his Mouth, and burnt his Tongue and his Lips, that it caus'd him to have (f) a stammering Speech for ever after, and upon this he was acquitted. Thermuthis being under a Concern, takes him immediately away out of the Company, without any Opposition from the King, it being GOD's Will for the Good of Moses, that he should not regard it. And the very great Advantages, which the Princess gave him of a generous and polite Education, put the Hebrews in Hope of some great Good to befall them; whilst the Egyptians on the other Side were as jealous of Mischief, but having then no Prospect of any Successor to the Crown that they could hope for, their bloody Design fell to the Ground.

167. The Birth of Moses, according to Manetho's Account of the Kings of Lower-Egypt, was in the sixth Year of the Reign of Rameffes Miamun, who reign'd sixty six Years. At this Time Men liv'd usually to be an hundred and twenty Years old. Levi was (g) 137 Years old at his Death; Kobath (h) was 127. Amram (i) was 136, and Moses (k) was 120. So that if this King of Egypt died at 120 Years old, he must be 60 Years old at this Time, and his Daughter Thermuthis might be about 40, which well agrees with the Story, and the Length of human Life in that Age of the World, according to the sacred Scriptures.

168. Josephus (l) tells a very diverting Story of Moses, which I cannot but relate, tho' the Credit of all doth only depend upon him. The Story is this: The Ethiopians made an Inroad upon the Borders of Egypt, rifling and spoiling that Part of the Country. The Egyptians resented the Affront, and march'd out against them with an Army to take their Revenge, both for the Dishonour and for the Injury. It came to a Battle, and the Egyptians were routed, some kill'd in the Action, and others forc'd shamefully to retreat. The Ethiopians were sufficiently puffed up with this Success, and follow'd the Blow so closely, that they were not without some Hope of Overrunning even the whole Country. They burnt and ravag'd without Controul, took Booty in Abundance, and carried off all before them without Resistance; insomuch that they march'd to Memphis itself, and so to the Sea, without any Opposition. The Egyptians were hard press'd, and in this Extremity had Recourse to their Diviners and Oracles, what they had best to do. The Answer was, that they should call in a certain Hebrew to their Assistance. Upon this the King tells his Daughter, that he was resolv'd to levy an Army against the Ethiopians to revenge their Injuries, and he should be glad to have Moses at the Head of it. The Princess promised to do her Part toward the Engaging of him, as a thing of great Importance to her Father's Service, but binding him under a sacred Oath before-hand, that no malicious Practice should be attempted upon the Person of Moses; casting it in the Teeth of the Priests, how great a Shame it was first to contrive and advise his Death, and then most wretchedly to implore his Friendship.

169. Moses was easily prevail'd upon both by Thermuthis and the King to undertake this Commission, which was very pleasing to the good Men of both Sides. The Egyptians flatter'd themselves, first with the Hope of Victory under his Conduct, and then with the Likelihood of an Opportunity, when their own Work was done, to destroy Moses. The Hebrews, on the other Side, delighted themselves with the Thought, that under the Command of so great a General, they might one Day find themselves in a Condition to shake off the Egyptian Yoke. In this Expedition Moses was intent to surprize the Enemy. The Passage over the Land was horribly infested with Serpents, many of them fierce, venomous, and terrible to the Sight, and several of them are to be found nowhere else; some with Wings lying upon the Catch, and others as mortal in the Air as they are upon the Ground. This Way was so deadly hazardous, that all People were against the Adventuring an Army thro' it; so that for this Reason he rather chose this Way than that by the Nile, upon a true Judgment that he might thereby surprize his Enemy. Moses was in the first Place only to provide against the Dangers of this desperate Passage, which he did by this wonderful Stratagem. The Bird Ibis is a mortal Enemy to all Sorts of Serpents, and they fly from the Pursuit of it like Deer from Dogs, till they are overtaken and devour'd. This Bird is only fierce to those Insects, and gentle to all other Creatures. (m) Now Moses's Invention to secure his Army against these Creatures, was to carry with him several of these Birds in Cages of Bulrushes, to clear the Way before him.

170. Moses was no sooner advanc'd to this dangerous Quarter, but he let loose his Birds upon the Serpents, as upon so many Enemies, and under their Protection he went forward without any Harm or Interruption. So that pushing hard to overtake the Ethiopians, he came up with them, before they were aware, and utterly defeated them; and having cut off their Retreat into Egypt he forc'd them back again to their own Home, destroying a great many of their Towns and Cities, and committing a terrible Slaughter among their People. This Victory of Moses put new Life and Courage into the Egyptians, whilst the Ethiopians on the other Hand had nothing but Death, Destruction and Slavery before their Eyes. They were at last driven into Saba, the Metropolis of Ethiopia, which Cambyfes afterward call'd by the Name of Meroe, having a Sister of that Name. Moses sat down before this Place, tho' in all Appearance impregnable, being surrounded by the River Nile, and two other Rivers, Astapus and Astabora, falling in to strengthen it; which made the Passage so much the more difficult: besides, as it stood in an Island, and was encompass'd with a strong Wall, it was also fortify'd with Ramparts, and other Works of Defence, to secure it from any Attacks or Inundations from the River.

171. Moses was not at all pleas'd with this Siege; for the Army lay idle, and there was no Forcing the Enemy to fight. However there happen'd a very extraordinary Encounter of another Nature. The King of Ethiopia had a Daughter call'd Tharbis, who had the Fortune once to see and observe Moses from the Walls of the Town with his Sword in his Hand, behaving himself with great Honour and Bravery. She was so infinitely taken with his Courage and Bravery, that she look'd upon him as the Balance of the two Kingdoms, having recover'd the Egyptians when they were at the lowest, and at the same Time humbled the Ethiopians in the very Height of their Victories. Upon all this put together, the Prince's fell violently in Love with him; and her Affections still growing upon her more and more, she broke her Mind at last to some particular Confidants which she had, and sent them over to Moses to offer her self in Marriage to him. Moses agreed to it, but upon this Condition (which was ratified with an Oath) that the Marriage should be consummated upon the Delivering up of the City, which happen'd very soon after upon a great Slaughter made of the Enemy. So that nothing more remain'd but to give GOD Thanks, and to solemnize the Wedding; which being done, the Army of the Egyptians return'd triumphantly into their own Land. I can only add, that no Countenance to this Story can be fetch'd from (n) what is said in Scripture, that Moses married an Ethiopian woman. For there the Word is a Cushite, from Cush another Son of Ham, who inherited a Part of Asia near Egypt on the Red-Sea. From that Country came Jethro, who was afterward Priest of Midian, and Moses (o) married Zipporah his Daughter; so that if he had married the other Ethiopian, it is probable, that she died in some short Time after.

172. The Life of Moses is stuff'd so full of fabulous Legends by the Eastern and especially the Jewish Writers, that there is nothing to be depended on, except what we find in the Scriptures; where we read, (p) that when he was full forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his brethren the children of Israel. Accordingly (q) when on a particular Day he beheld the hard Labours of the Israelites, he saw an Egyptian smiting an Hebrew. And he looked this way, and that way, and when he saw that there was no man near, he slew the Egyptian, and hid him in the sand. St. Stephen gives (r) a particular Reason for this Action, For he supposed, that his brethren would have understood, how that GOD by his hand would deliver them; but they understood not. The next Day he went out to look upon his Brethren, and found two of them contending with one another. The Jews (†) give this Account of it, That Dathan and Abiram, two Jews, quarrel'd with each other, and Dathan lifted up his Hand to strike Abiram. Upon this he (s) reproves Dathan, and ask'd him, Why he attempted to smite his Brother? especially since their common Calamities should teach them to love one another the more. But Dathan made this sharp Reply, Who made thee a prince and a judge over us? Intendest thou to kill me, as thou killedst the Egyptian yesterday? This put Moses into a terrible Fright, because he concluded, that the Murder was discover'd. It was not long before this News was told to the King of Egypt, which probably brought into his Mind the former Presages, that Moses should be a Scourge to the Egyptians, and this made him resolve to kill Moses, that he might effectually prevent it. Upon this Moses fled out of the Land of Egypt, and that he might be more secure, goes as far as Midian, where he gets Acquaintance with Jethro the Priest of the Country. This Priest seems by Birth to be from (t) Cush the Son of Ham, whose original Settlement seems to be between the Red and the Dead-Sea, and therefore his Posterity (u) were call'd Kenites, as belonging to that Country, which was (x) formerly promis'd to Abraham, and after that given to Esau. When Cush, who was the Father of Nimrod, remov'd with his Family toward Babylon, he left some of his Posterity behind him, who were the Ancestors of this Priest. This Country had been subject to several Changes and Misfortunes. First the (y) Hivites came and dwelt among them. Then the Phœnician Pastors or (z) Caphtorims, who came from the Egyptian Wars, destroy'd them. Then (a) the Horites came and dwelt there, and then the Children of Eſau ſettl'd there, deſtroy'd the Horites, and alter'd their Government from a Monarchy to an Ariſtocracy, not without much Bloodſhed and Diſturbance. Jethro being a good Man, removes from theſe Diſturbances to dwell quietly in Midian, where he had been ſettled about forty Years before Moses came to him. And therefore he goes under two Names, viz. (b) Renel or (c) Raguel, as he might be call'd in Idumea, and Jethro, or The Remainder, as he might be call'd in Midian, becauſe he was the only Remainder of the Cuſhites, who dwelt in that Country. Jethro hearing that Moses was fled out of Egypt, having (*) learned by his own Miſfortunes to pity thoſe who were under the like, takes him into his Houſe, employs him as a Shepherd, and gives him his own Daughter Zipporah for a Wife; which was a particular Reſpect, becauſe he was a Man in great Eſteem, and like Melchizedek in Canaan officiated as a Prieſt among thoſe few Families, who were not corrupted by Idolatry. By Zipporah Moses had two Sons, the (d) firſt he calls Gershon; that is, A ſtranger there. For he ſaid, I have been an alien in a ſtrange land. And he call'd the ſecond Eliezer, that is, My GOD is an help. For, ſaith he, The GOD of my father was my help, and delivered me from the ſword of Pharaoh. Zipporah (e) ſeems to have been an affectionate Wife to Moses, of which there is this Inſtance, That when Moses too far complying with the Cuſtoms in his Father-in-Law's Family had neglected to circumciſe one of his Children, and GOD was angry at him for the Neglect, and appear'd in ſuch a Manner, as if he intended to deſtroy him for it, Zipporah circumciſ'd her Son with her own Hands, to ſave her Husband's Life, without the leaſt Reflection (as is commonly thought) but only Uſing the common Form, (f) By me thou art made a Son-in-Law to GOD by the Blood of the Circumciſion, or By me thou art eſpouſed to the Church of GOD by this Rite of Circumciſion.

173. When Moses had been (g) about twenty Years with his Father-in-Law, which the Scripture calls In proceſs of time, or after many days, Rameſſes Miamun the King of Egypt dies, and (h) the Enemies of Moses, who fought his Life, did not long ſurvive him. However he was ſucceeded by Pharaoh Amenophis, who reign'd nineteen Years and ſix Months, and was drown'd in the Red-Sea. His Cruelty to the Iſraelites exceeded all that went before him, ſo that it is ſaid, (i) that the children of Iſrael ſighed by reaſon of the bondage, and they cried; and their cry came up unto GOD by reaſon of the bondage. Moses was now fourſcore Years of Age, and (k) he (perhaps out of a Curioſity to inquire after the State of his Father-in-Law's Relations in thoſe Parts) led the flock to the back ſide of the Wilderneſs of Edom, not thinking it ſafe to go into the Country, and ſo he came to the mountain of GOD, even to Horeb. This Horeb was a Part of Mount Sinai, where GOD afterward appear'd. And indeed the upper Part was divid'd into two Parts, one of which was call'd Horeb, and the other Sinai. Joſephus tells us, that it was the higheſt Mountain in the whole Country; and that the People had an old Tradition, that GOD dwelt there; ſo that in antient Time, out of pure Reverence to it, they forbore either feeding or walking upon it. Here GOD appears to Moses in a Flame of Fire in a Buſh; the Flame was fierce and violent, and yet neither the Leaves, Flowers, nor Branches, receiv'd the leaſt Damage. The (l) Flame (ſaith Philo the Jew) ſignify'd the Furiouſneſs of the Egyptians againſt the Iſraelites, and the Buſh the Iſraelites themſelves, and it repreſented, how they ſhould be ſurrounded with the utmoſt Dangers, and eſcape without the leaſt Hurt. Here GOD gives Moses a Charge to deliver the Iſraelites, and promiſes to be with him in this Expedition, answers all his Objections to the contrary, confirms him by ſeveral Miracles, and joins Aaron with him for the Compleating of this Deſign. And after this he reveals himſelf by his incommunicable Name JEHOVAH, which comes from the Hebrew Verb, that ſignifies to be, and hath the Characters of all the Tenſes in it, ſo that it is fitly tranſlated by St. John, (m) I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the firſt and the laſt, ſaith the LORD, which was, and is, and is to come, the almighty. It ſhews him to be the eternal, unchangeable, and all-ſufficient GOD, who alone hath his Being in and of himſelf, and gives to all others the being, which they have: So that he was what he is, he is what he was, and he shall be both what he was, and what he is from everlasting to everlasting, and all other Beings are dependent on him. It was never pronounc'd among the Jews but once a Year, which was by the High-Priest upon the solemn Blessing of the People, and it was Death for any other Person to speak it. And therefore Josephus saith, (n) It was never known, nor heard of before, and I dare not so much as mention it. Moses returning from the Bush acquaints his Father-in-Law with what had happen'd, and desir'd Leave to return into Egypt, which was easily granted, with good Wishes of Success. He (o) at first intended to have taken his Wife and Children with him, who accordingly went some Part of the Journey; but bethinking himself of the Danger, he sent them back again, and so they (p) stay'd with her Father until his Return. In his Journey he meets Aaron at Mount Horeb or Sinai, where they discourse together of all things which had happen'd, and concert Measures in what Manner they should address themselves to Pharaoh on this Errand. And first, they tell the Israelites the Message, which they were sent about, and did the Miracles before them, which they were commission'd to act for the Confirmation thereof, and which fill'd them with an universal Joy. This encourages them to go to Pharaoh, and demand the Release of the Israelites, which hath a different Turn from what they expected; for Pharaoh is angry at them, gives them a flat Denial, and orders their Tasks to be increas'd, and that they should make Brick without any Straw afforded them for such a Purpose. Upon this the Israelites were scatter'd about in all the Land of Egypt, to gather Stubble instead of Straw, and beaten for not performing their Tasks, which was now an Impossibility. Accordingly the People complain to Pharaoh, but they had no Redress, and Pharaoh answers them in a tyrannical Manner. At their Coming from him they meet Moses and Aaron, and complain bitterly to them of the Mischief, which they had done. They complain to GOD, and GOD renews his Promise, and at this Time mentions his incommunicable and glorious Name, which when Moses told the Children of Israel, they look'd upon him only as a Cheat and an Impostor, and (q) hearkned not to him, because of their anguish of spirit, and their cruel bondage. However GOD encourageth Moses to go again to Pharaoh, and to demand the Sending the Israelites out of the Land, and gave him Power to work a Miracle before him. When they were before Pharaoh, Aaron had the Rod of Moses in his Hand, which he cast upon the Ground, and it became a Serpent so great and terrible, that the first Time that (r) Moses did this Miracle, he fled from before it. Pharaoh startled at this Sight, and imputing it to the Art of Magick, sends (s) for his Sorcerers and Magicians, the principal of which were (t) Jannes and Jambres, to confront Moses; these, with several others, bring seeming Rods, which they cast upon the Ground, and they appear'd like Serpents; however this Rod of Moses and Aaron mov'd toward them, and swallow'd them up. This might have convinc'd Pharaoh, that Moses would in the End be the Destruction of them all, and therefore it was high Time to send them out of the Country; but instead thereof, it had a contrary Effect. Pharaoh seeing the Magicians do something, was in Hope that in Time they would do more, and so at last be able to prevail, and therefore he hardens his Heart, and refuses to obey. This, according to the Computation of our Learned Primate, must be on Saturday the thirteenth Day of March, and on the sixteenth Day of the sixth Month.

174. The Day following being Sunday, or a Day of religious Worship throughout the whole World, we may be sure, that Pharaoh would omit nothing, which might engage all his Idols to exert their utmost against these Designs of Moses and Aaron. For this Reason, some think, that he went to pay his Morning Devotions to the River Nile; for as (u) Plutarch observes, nothing was had in so much Honour among the Egyptians as that River. Others make Pharaoh to be a (x) Magician, and that he went to the River for such a Purpose; and so the (y) Chaldee Paraphrase adds, Behold, he goeth out to observe Divinations upon the Water, as a Magician. However (z) GOD commands Moses to confront him there, and to let him see, that the River could not help him; the first Plague, which was threatned, was the Turning of all the Waters of the River into Blood, which was perform'd on the next Day, being the eighteenth Day of the sixth Month. And here it is observable, that the Magicians, who could not prevent the Plague when fully threaten'd, nor remove it when inflicted, yet (a) they also brought forth Blood by their Incantments; so that tho' they could not make it better, they could help to make it worse. And the Mischief, which they did, had a worse Consequence, because it harden'd Pharaoh's Heart. On the Sunday (b) following, or the twenty fourth Day of the same Month, Pharaoh goes to the River again in the same Manner as before, and Moses goes again to confront him, and threatens another Plague from the River, which was an offensive Company of Frogs, and these were also sent the next Day, and the Magicians did the same. There was now no Occasion of Boasting, or (c) Speaking in the Language of these Kings, My river is my own, and I have made it for my self, since it was but the Cause of their Misfortunes. However Pharaoh sues to Moses to pray to GOD for him, with a Promise of sending the Israelites away. Upon Moses's Prayer to GOD, the Frogs were all destroy'd the next Day; but Pharaoh returns to his former Temper, and absolutely refuses to perform his Promise.

175. The Day after, being the twenty seventh Day of the same Month, GOD sends the Plague of Lice among them; a very insignificant Animal, however sufficient to be the Instrument of GOD's Justice upon an obstinate People. And to shew that the Magicians could do nothing without his Permission, he denied them the Power of Producing so small a Creature; so that when they attempted by their Incantments to bring forth Lice, they were not able to effect it; but were forc'd to confess to Pharaoh, That (d) this was the finger of GOD. The twenty eighth Day of the same Month Moses threatens the fourth Plague, which was the Swarms of Flies, and other Insects, and this was sent on the next Day, and remov'd the Day following, or on the last Day of the Month, by the Prayer of Moses. The first Day of the next Month being Sunday, GOD sends Moses again to Pharaoh, threatening a very grievous Murrain of the Egyptian Cattle, which was inflicted on the next Day, so that vast Numbers died of all sorts, especially those which were in the Field, whilst those belonging to the Israelites were preserv'd. Upon the third Day of the Month GOD sent the sixth Plague, which was that of sore Boils breaking forth upon Man and upon Beast, to which the Magicians were equally liable with other People, and were so far from Curing others, that they could not heal themselves. About the fifth Day of the Month Moses threatens the Plague of Thunder, Lightning and Hail, which he sends upon the sixth Day, and removes upon the seventh. Upon the eighth Day being Sunday, GOD sends Moses again with a particular Message to Pharaoh, threatening that unless he sent away the Israelites, the Country should be so afflicted with Locusts, that they should even darken the Air, and devour the Fruits of the Earth. His Officers being met together, probably for the Worshipping of their Gods, persuade him to comply, and had almost prevail'd; tho' he afterward rejected their Advice with Scorn, and drove Moses and Aaron out of his Presence. So that the Locusts were sent on the ninth, and remov'd on the tenth Day. On the tenth Day of this Month Moses, by the Appointment of GOD, commands the Israelites to separate a Lamb out of the Flock; and to keep it up for four Days, to be kill'd and eaten in Token of their approaching Deliverance. On the eleventh, twelfth, and thirteenth Days of the Month there was a total Darkness in the Land of Egypt, except in Goshen, where the Israelites were; so that the Egyptians saw not one another, neither did any one of them rise out of his Bed for three Days. On the fourteenth Day of this Month, or on Saturday in the Afternoon, (e) between the two evenings, as the Hebrew expresseth it, that is, In the middle Space, between the Declining and Setting of the Sun, or as we say, About three of the Clock in the Afternoon, the Israelites kill the Passover, sprinkle the Blood upon the Door Posts, and eat it in their Families, as soon as it could be got ready, and so lay themselves down to sleep.

176. It may here be observ'd, that the four former Days of the Antemoraical Sabbath, GOD sent Moses and Aaron with particular Messages to Pharaoh, threatening to turn the River into Blood, to send Frogs into their Houses, a Murrain among their Cattle, and the Locusts in the Fields; so that they could not observe this Day as a Day of Rest, according to the first Command: and this was without Doubt to wean them by Degrees from the Observation of the old Sabbath, because the new one was so soon to succeed in the Place thereof. But now the Providence of GOD so order'd it, that none of the Israelites could observe this Sabbath as a Day of Rest. For (f) at Midnight GOD destroy'd all the first-born in the land of Egypt, from the first-born of Pharaoh, who sat on the throne, to the first-born of the captive, which was in the dungeon, and all the first-born of the cattle. Their dying Groans wak'd those of the same Family, and when they sent to their Neighbours for Assistance, they soon found, that they were all afflicted in the same Manner, and that the Calamity was universal. Upon this there was a lamentable Outcry in Egypt, there being not an House, in which there was not one Dead. This oblig'd the Egyptians to hurry the Israelites out of their Country, being under an Apprehension that if they staid longer, the whole Nation would have been destroy'd; for there was hardly any other Judgment left but this. This caus'd the Israelites to be driven out with the utmost Haste, and instead of Resting on this Sabbath Day, according to the Commandment, they travell'd (g) from Rameses to Succoth, which could not be less than thirty Miles. Here they spend the sixteenth Day of this Month in Making Booths, and so they refresh themselves a little while under the Shade, and therefore they call'd the Name of the Place (h) Succoth, or Booths, and so in the Evening they go to Etham, which lay near the Red-Sea in the direct Road to Canaan. The seventeenth Day of this Month GOD (i) gives an express Command, that they should turn and encamp before Pihabiroth, between Migdol or the Tower, and the Sea over against Baal-Zephon. This was such a Situation, that in all human Probability they must have been infatuated to have chosen it. When they march'd out of Egypt, Moses acted the Part of an experienc'd General, by (k) Dividing the whole Company into five Parts, so that there was the Advanc'd Guard, the right Wing, the left Wing, the main Body, and the Rear, according to the Arabian Method of Marching with their Armies. And this was the Method which he afterward us'd in the Wilderness, when he had one Standard in the East, another in the West, another in the North, and another in the South, and the Tribe of Levi, with the Tabernacle, and all its Appurtenances, in the Center. However Moses pitches his Camp here, where he had the Red-Sea to the East, the River Ptolomeus, which comes from the Lake Amari to the Red-Sea, on the South, a strong Garison, or Migdol, on the West, and liable to be attack'd by the Egyptians from the North without any Possibility of Escaping. Besides this, they encamp'd over against Baal-Zephon, or Baal the Watchman. This was an Idol set up as the Guardian of their Country, and some think, that it was set up by the Magicians of Egypt, and by Pharaoh's Order, to hinder the Israelites in their Passage. And therefore Pharaoh hearing of this Situation of the Israelites, so apparently void of any good Conduct, might well say, (l) They are entangled in the land, the wilderness hath shut them in; or (m) as the Philistines did in the Case of Sampson, Our God hath delivered our enemy into our hand. On the eighteenth Day of the Month it was told Pharaoh, where the Israelites were, who thinking them to be really bewitch'd (as well he might) gathers his whole Army together, and follows after them on the nineteenth. On the twentieth he comes up in Sight of the Israelites, which made them murmur against Moses. On the twentieth in the Evening (n) Moses stretch'd out his Rod toward the Sea, and the Waters were divided; so that the Israelites passed over on dry Ground, and the Waters were a Wall unto them upon their Right Hand and upon their Left. The Egyptians then move forward, and march after them into the Place where the Sea had been. And then (o) the pillar of the cloud, which (p) formerly had led them in the Way, went from before their face, and stood behind them: And it came between the camp of the Egyptians, and the camp of Israel, and it was a cloud and darkness to the one, but it gave light to the other; so that the one knew which way to go, but the other could not see where to follow. When the Israelites were safe on the Shore, Moses stretch'd out his Hand toward the Sea, and the Sea returned, and drowned the Egyptians; insomuch that in the Morning, they saw their Enemies dead upon the Sea-Shore, and, as the Jews tell us, they took their Arms and their Armour, by which they were enabled to fight with their Enemies during all their future Expeditions. The Israelites being tired with such a strange March in the Night, and finding themselves safe, and their Enemies destroy'd, spend this Day, being Saturday, or their new Sabbath, in an holy Rest, in Praising GOD for his Mercies; and Using that (q) Song, which Moses hath recorded. From this Time they began the Observation of the seventh Day of the Week as a Sabbath, instead of the first; and Moses gives them a Command for the same in (r) these Words, Remember, that thou wast a stranger in the land of Egypt, and that the LORD thy GOD brought thee out hence by a mighty Hand, and by a stretched out arm, therefore the LORD thy GOD commanded thee to keep the Sabbath-day. So that the Reason, why this Day was observ'd, was peculiar to the Israelites, and consequently no other Parts of the World were ever under any Obligation to observe the same.

177. There have been several Writers, who have affirm'd, that this Passage over the Red-Sea was not miraculous, but that Moses being skill'd in Astronomy, and Natural Philosophy, took the Advantage of a low Ebb upon a great Spring-Tide, and that Pharaoh conducted more by Fury than Conduct, pursued him so far, that before he could recover the Egyptian Shore, he and his Army were overtaken by the Flood, and so destroy'd. By this we may see what Objections Malice and

Spice assisted by the Devil, will raise against the Scriptures without the least Shadow of Reason. For first, the greatest Springs and lowest Ebbs are about two or three Days after the Full and Change of the Moon; but this happen'd about two or three Days after the last Quarter, when the Ebbing and Flowing was the least of all. Secondly, It is against all Sense and Reason, that when Moses was Etham, and in Effect clear of Egypt, he should (without a divine Command) turn back again into the Mouths of his Enemies, when he could not know the Time that they would come upon him, and they might have attack'd him, when the Waters were at the highest. So that Moses had not the least visible Necessity for this hazardous March; and it is absurd to think, that the Egyptians did not know the Nature of the Red-Sea as well as he. The Egyptians at that Time were well skill'd in the Observations of the heavenly Motions, and of the Fluxes, and Reflexes of the Sea in their own Country, upon their own Coast, and in their most frequented Ports and Havens, where they might have had five hundred Years Experience of the Tides. So that it is ridiculous to think, that Moses could presume upon their Ignorance in a Case of this Consequence, or that he, who had been employ'd forty Years in Keeping Sheep in another Country, could understand it better than they. Besides, where there is any Ebbing of the Sea in any Gulf or Indraught of Water, there the Waters fall away from the Land, leaving all that Part toward the Land to be dry. So that if a Passage had been made by the Falling away of the Water ten or twelve Miles below Posidium, where Moses pass'd it, then when Pharaoh had found the Flood increasing, he needed not to have return'd the same Way toward the Egyptian Shore, but he might have kept before it on his right Hand, till he came to the northern Shore, and so have escap'd. Or if the Sea had drown'd them in this Manner, the Tide must have carried them to the northern Coast, and so the Israelites could never have seen one of them upon the Shore. Besides, it is certain, that Pharaoh did not come upon them at the Ebb, but at the Flood, and had destroy'd them all, if the Pillar of the Cloud and thick Darkness had not miraculously interpos'd, and prevented his Overtaking them. So that the People beholding Pharaoh's Approach cried out against Moses, and altogether despair'd of their Safety. And when

Moses pray'd to GOD for Help, he was answer'd by GOD, (s) Wherefore criest thou to me? Speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward. But lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thy hand over the sea, and divide it. And it was so contrary to all their Expectations, that (t) when Israel saw that great work, which the LORD did upon the Egyptians, the people feared the LORD, and believed the LORD and his servant Moses. And therefore the Account which Moses gives us will stand the Test, if we only consider the Situation of the River. The Course below where the Israelites pass'd was from East to West, and the River large; where they pass'd the Course was northward, and then it turn'd toward the Northwest for between twenty and thirty Miles, where it ended, and was encompass'd with the Shore. Now Moses saith, (u) that the LORD caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all that night, and made the sea dry land, and the waters were divided. As (x) a Space of two Miles was sufficient to open a Passage for the Israelites; so it is probable, that this violent Wind extended it self no farther, but it was perfectly calm on both Sides thereof, and blew from the main Land of Arabia. Had it extended it self to the North, it would have brought down the Waters from the Tongue of the Red-Sea to the Shore where the Israelites lay. Had it extended it self South to the Red-Sea, it would have driven up the Waters, and made it more unpassable. Besides, no other Wind could have serv'd so well for this Purpose. A north Wind would have driven all the Waters downward, and left none behind. A south Wind would have fill'd the Sea higher instead of Falling it. A west Wind might have dried the Shore, where the Israelites were; but then they would be apprehensive that the Waters lay on the opposite Shore, which must have prevented their Passing over. And therefore when they saw the Shore next them dried by a strong east Wind, it was a convincing Argument, that the opposite Shore must be dry, from whence the Wind blew, and therefore they could safely pass over. Moses therefore rightly tells us, (y) that the Waters were divided, and were as a wall to the Israelites on their right hand and on their left at a due Distance. The Waters cast on the others raised them higher; and the Israelites being in the Bottom were so much the lower. So that when

Now in a Mile there are 1760 Yards, which multiplied by it self, shews that there are 3097600 Yards in a square Mile, which doubled is 6195200 Yards in all, and this is above four Times the Number of the Men, Women and Children, according to the largest Computation. So that a Space of one Mile broad, and two Miles long, would have held the whole Company, and have allowed a Square of six Feet, or two Yards to each of them, which is much more than would be sufficient for their Marching.* (y) Exod. 14. 21.

the Egyptians found their Error, they said,
(z) Let us flee from the face of Israel;
for the LORD fighteth for them against the Egyptians: and then they fled back toward the Shore, where they enter'd; and before they came thither, the Waters were join'd near the Shore, so that (a) the Egyptians fled di- rectly to them, and so they were all over-whelm'd. Thus the Waters came rolling from the one Shore to the other, and drove the dead Bodies along to the opposite Shore, and afterward ebb'd away and left them there, in the sight of the Israelites. So that notwithstanding all the Cavils which have been rais'd, their Passage happen'd to be truly miraculous, and exactly as Moses hath describ'd it.

C H A P. V.

The Conclusion.

IN Reading the Historical Part of this Book, there are several things occurring, which may suggest to us the divine Authority of the sacred Scriptures, from whence we originally have it. The historical Part was never justly excepted against, and it hath stood the Test of the greatest Criticks in all Ages. Many heathen Writers give an Account of most of these Facts, as may be fully seen in several of our learned Commentators, and others, who have written on these Subjects. Here is nothing trifling or romancing, but the whole is solid, and close to the Purpose. The uninspir'd Yezers, who write of these things, fill their Writings with so many Fables, as do justly call in Question the Truths, which they mention; and the Arabians generally follow the same Method. Mahomet in his Alcoran hath studiously endeavour'd to add to the sacred Story many Inventions of his own Brain, that so he might pass for a divinely inspir'd Writer; but his Additions are so trifling and impertinent, as do plainly betray the Impostor to any unprejudic'd Reader, and of this his (a) History of Joseph (to omit all other Instances) is sufficient to detect him. In Scripture where any thing is miraculous, it is plainly related as such, and appears so to be; and all the other Parts shew their own Probability. Here we find how the Ages of Men gradually declin'd. From the Beginning of the World to the Flood Men lived above nine hundred Years, after that it was shortned to five hundred, and then to three hundred. Terah the Father of Abraham was (b) two hundred and five Years old when he died; and (c) the Patriarchs Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were about an hundred and eighty. Joseph, Levi, Moses, and Joshua, were (d) about an hundred and twenty Years of Age at their Deaths, and after that the Age of Man seems to be shortned, to what it is at this Time. Now no other Book gives us such an Account, and it was the Effect of an infinite Wisdom to transmit it to us, that we might know the Method whereby GOD's Providence peopled the World so soon after the Flood; and how it came afterward not to increase so fast, as it did at first. And it will serve as a Guide to the true Antiquities of other Nations, by Comparing the Ages of their Lives with those which are mention'd in Scripture, as is plain from the Examples of the Egyptians, Chinese, Babylonians, Germans and others. The Account which (e) Moses gives, when the Canaanite was alone in the Land of Canaan, and when the Perizzite was also there, shews us the Time when some of them first return'd from the Egyptian Wars, and consequently is a corroborating Circumstance to fix the History of that Nation according to the Tables of Eratosthenes and Manetho, and the Observations of our Learned Archbishop Usher, and Bishop Cumberland. And it is also observable, that every Age makes fresh Discoveries, and every Discovery does farther confirm to us, that such Texts were written by divine Inspiration. Besides, the (f) Prophecies of Jacob, as recorded by Moses, could be dictated by none but him, who knew all things before they came to pass. Jacob spoke of them above two hundred Years before Moses wrote them down, and Moses wrote them down before they were accomplish'd. Some of them tell the constant State of each Tribe from their first Settlement to the End. Others tell us what soon happen'd, as the Settlement of the Tribes; others what happen'd later, as in the Days of Jephthah and Sampson, the early Battles of Benjamin, and what they did in the Time of the Persian Monarchy; the Valour of the Tribe of Judah in their first Conquests, and that the MESSIAH should be of that Tribe in the latter Days. It was impossible to foretel, without a divine Spirit, that one Part of the Tribe of Zabulon should lie on the Lake of Tiberias, and the other Part near Zidon, especially since the Direction was (g) to divide the Land by Lot, which (h) was done accordingly. And tho' it might have been foreseen, that the (i) Tribe of Levi, to whom the Priesthood was annexed, should have no distinct Inheritance, but be scatter'd among the rest of the Tribes; yet it was impossible for human Understanding to foresee, that this would be the Case of Simeon, who had (k) a Lot, and consequently an equal Title with the rest of his Brethren, to that which was allotted for him. And therefore the Accomplishment of these things cannot but force a Confession from the most obstinate, That GOD was the immediate Author of these Writings.

2. Besides, When we rightly consider it, we shall find, that no one but an all-knowing Being could institute either the Sabbath, or the Passover, in such a Manner, as it was instituted in the Writings of Moses. As the Sabbath was appointed at the Creation to be observ'd on the first Day of Adam's Life, or the first Day of the Week; so far it was a Commemoration of what was past, or GOD's Resting after the Creation, and a Sign of what was to come, or of the Christian Sabbath, and therefore appointed by that GOD, who not only knew that CHRIST should rise from the Dead, but also knew that it should be on this Day of the Week, above four thousand Years before it happen'd, and also that thereby he should set apart this Day to be observ'd in all Christian Congregations to the End of the World. As the Sabbath was given to the Children of Israel, and observ'd on Saturday the twenty-first Day of the first Month, when they saw their Enemies dead upon the Sea-Shore; so it was appointed as a Day of Praise and Thanksgiving in Commemoration of their Deliverance out of Egypt. But as it was a Day of extraordinary Rest from all sorts of Labours; so far it was a Type of CHRIST's Resting in the Grave. This is plain from what the Apostle saith, (m) Let no man judge you in respect of the sabbath days, which are a shadow of things to come, but the body is of CHRIST. And there were two Ceremonies in it, which made it more reasonable for this Purpose; The one is (n) the strict Rest, which they were commanded to observe in these Words, Abide ye every man in his place; let no man go out of his place on the sabbath-day. And so the people rested upon this day, which look'd as if all were dead. The other is (o) the Prohibition, that they should kindle no fire throughout their habitations upon the sabbath-day, because this look'd like a Raising of something from the Dead, and therefore must be deferr'd until the Day following, so that it could not be instituted but by him, who knew at such a Distance of Time, that this was to be the Day of the Week; in which CHRIST should rest in the Grave, and that the Day following he should be raised to Life again.

3. And secondly, The Passover could not be instituted but by an all-knowing GOD. As it related to things past, it was an evident Commemoration of the Deliverance of the Israelites out of Egypt. And as it related to things to come, it was an evident Type of the Death of CHRIST; and therefore St. Paul saith, (p) that CHRIST our passover is sacrificed for us. Thus to instance in Particulars, (q) a Lamb was to be taken out of the Flock; so was CHRIST true and very Man like unto us. This Lamb (r) was to be set apart for this Purpose; and CHRIST alone was appointed for our Mediator. The Lamb (s) was to be without Blemish; and CHRIST alone was without Sin. The Lamb (t) was to be slain and roasted; and CHRIST suffer'd and died. They (u) were not to break any Bone of it; and the same was fulfill'd in CHRIST. The Lamb was to be (x) slain in the Evening, Between the two Evenings, or the first Declining and Setting of the Sun, that is, at three of the Clock in the Afternoon, or as the Jews express it, about the ninth hour; and this was the precise Time when CHRIST died. The Posts were to be sprinkled with (y) the Blood of the Lamb; and the Satisfaction of CHRIST must be imputed to us. The (z) Design of the Passover was, that the Destroyer might pass over the Israelites Houses, and not hurt them; and the Design of CHRIST's Death was, that we might be deliver'd from everlasting Death. The Lamb (a) was to be eaten in every Family; and there must be in every Man an Application of the Death of CHRIST to himself by Faith. The Lamb (b) was to be eaten all; and we must take CHRIST for our Saviour upon all the Terms, upon which he is pleas'd to offer himself to us. The Lamb (c) was to be eaten without leavened Bread, and what we do must be done without Pride and Hypocrisy. The Lamb (d) was to be eaten with bitter Herbs; and we must be patient and expect Afflictions. The Lamb (e) was to be eaten hastily in the Habit of Travelers; and we must live, as if we had here no abiding City, and did seek for one that is to come. The Lamb was to (f) be eaten only by circumcised Persons; and they alone who are baptized, have a Right to the Privileges of the Gospel, or to receive the LORD's Supper. He therefore who appointed this Ordinance under the Law, well knew all those Circumstances which happen'd at the Death of CHRIST, and all the Conditions of (g) the new Covenant, which he would make with his People under the Gospel, and therefore he must be GOD. These Institutions also shew, that the Appointer of them knew, that CHRIST should rise again on the third Day from the Dead, which being to be the Christian Sabbath, was to be on a Sunday, and consequently that he was to be crucify'd on a Friday. Thus (b) in the Sacrifice of the Peace-Offering, which was a Type of the same Nature with the other, the Offerer was to eat of it on the same day that it was offered, and on the morrow the remainder of it was to be eaten, and so long it was a Type of CHRIST, who was on those two Days subject to the Power of Death. But if any of the sacrifice of the peace-offerings was eaten at all on the third Day, it should not be accepted, neither should it be imputed to him that offered it; because it was no longer a Type of him, who was on this Day perfectly freed from Death: and therefore it was to be an abomination, and the soul that eat of it must bear his iniquity. And as the Author of these Books knew that CHRIST was to die on a Friday, to rest in the Grave on a Saturday, and to rise from the Dead on a Sunday; so he also knew, that this very Friday would happen (i) on the fourteenth day of the first Month, or the fourteenth Day after the first Appearance of the Moon at the Change; which depending on many minute Circumstances, could not be known at such a Distance in the Days of Moses, but by the Creator of Heaven and Earth, who at the Beginning gave to the Sun and Moon those Laws of Motion which they were to observe to the End of the World, and who alone knew them at that Time, and therefore these Books of Moses could be dictated by none but GOD alone.

4. It might be a Satisfaction to such, who scruple the Taking of an Oath before a Magistrate in serious and weighty Matters, to consider, that (k) Abraham requir'd it of his Servant, and (l) Jacob of his Son, and Abraham (m) also swore unto Abimelech; from which Oath the Place was call'd Beersheba, which was also a Place, where Abraham planted a Grove for religious Worship, and where he call'd on the Name of the LORD the everlasting GOD; and if we consider how readily the Ceremony of Putting the Hand under the Thigh was comply'd with in those Days, it may teach us more readily to comply with those innocent Ceremonies, which are now us'd according to the Custom of the Country wherein we live.

5. The (n) Planting of Groves, Building of Altars, and Dedicating of Pillars is an Argument, that in those early Times they had not only set Days and Seasons, but also set Places dedicated to the Worship of GOD; and tho' the Time is in a great Measure by divine Institution, yet the Place cannot be appointed but by human Authority, and ought to be such a Place, as is in all Respects convenient for such a Purpose. And we may observe from (o) Abraham's Purchasing the Cave of Machpelah from Ephron the Hittite for a Possession of a Burying-Place; and from (p) Abraham and Sarah, Isaac and Rebecca, Jacob, Leah and Joseph being bury'd there by the express Desire of (q) some of them; that there ought to be Burying-Places set apart, where People may be decently interred, and also in such a Manner, that the nearest Relations may lie near to each other.

6. There are but two Chronological Dislocations in all this sacred History, which is (r) the Account of Judah and his Family, the (s) Beginning whereof happen'd a little before (t) the Defilement of Dinah, and (u) the other Part soon after (x) the Selling of Joseph into Egypt. However it is all laid together, that the whole Story may be related at once: And tho' some things contain'd in it did not happen until after the Story mention'd in the next Chapter; yet it was very proper to place it where it is, that Judah's Misfortune in his Family being mention'd immediately after the Sale of Joseph (for (y) he was the chief Adviser in it) may teach us, that GOD punisheth us for our Sins in such a Manner, as we least can foresee. Judah had occasion'd Trouble to his Father for the suppos'd Loss of his Son Joseph, and now he is troubled with the real Loss of his own Children. And he was unfortunate as a Father, who had been so unnatural as a Brother. And we may add to this, that Judah's Sinning with his Daughter-in-Law, and Joseph's not Sinning with his Mistress, being plac'd together in the two (z) successive Chapters, may teach us, how just it is with GOD, when we transgress his Laws, to leave us to our selves, and suffer us to fall from one Sin to another; but if like Joseph (a) we set GOD before our Eyes, he will preserve us under the strongest Temptations, that none shall hurt us.

7. Tho' the Story of the Institution of the Passover is mention'd after the three Days Darkness, yet it was instituted before; and perhaps before the Plague of the Hail or of the Locusts came. For as soon as the Plague of Darkness was over, and any Egypt-

So that the Darknes did but end on the Morning of the Passover-Day, or the fourteenth Day of the Month, and it had been on the Egyptians the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth Days. Now the Command for Observing the Passover was (d) given to Moses on or before the tenth Day of the Month; and some think on the first Day, when the Year was also chang'd. So that the Reason why the Account of the Institution of the Passover is laid after this Plague, is, because the HOLY GHOST was willing to place the whole Story of it together. And tho' the Command for it, and the Observation of it, were at some Days Distance; yet the Account of its Institution is very properly mention'd at the Time of its Observation,

From the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, to their Entrance into the Land of Canaan.

C H A P. I.

From the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, to the Birth and Crucifixion of our SAVIOUR.

FROM the Departure of the Children of Israel out of Egypt, to the Year of the real Birth of CHRIST, or Year 00, were 1491 Years; to the Year of his Birth according to the vulgar Computation were 1495 Years; and to the Year of his Crucifixion were 1528 Years.

The Proof of this will be the Subject of the remaining Part of this Treatise in the Beginning of each respective Book, according to the following Method.

From the Departure of the Children of Israel out of Egypt, to the (a) Laying of Solomon's Temple in the fourth Year of his Reign, were 480 Years.

From whence subtract 4 Years.

And consequently from the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, to the Beginning of Solomon's Reign, were 476 Years.

The Israelites wander'd in the (b) Wilderness 40 Years.

Therefore from the Israelites Entrance into Canaan, to the Beginning of Solomon's Reign, were 436 Years.

Solomon reign'd (c) 40 Years.

From the Beginning of his Reign, to the Foundation of the Temple, were 4 Years.

Therefore from the Foundation of the Temple, to the End of his Reign, were 36 Years.

From the (d) first Taking of Jerusalem in the fourth Year of Jeboiakim, and the Captivity of the Jews, which follow'd thereupon, until their Return in the first Year of Cyrus were 70 Years.

(a) 1 Kings 6. 1. (b) Exod. 16. 35. Num. 14. 32, 33, and 32. 13. Deut. 2. 7, and 8. 2, 4. and 29. 5. Josh. 5. 6, and 14. 7. Neh. 9. 21. Psal. 95. 10. Amos 2. 10, and 5. 25. Act. 7. 36. 42, and 13. 18. Heb. 3. 9. 17. (c) 1 Kings 11. 42, and 2 Chron. 9. 30. (d) Jer. 25. 11, 12, and 29. 10. Dan. 9. 2. Zech. 7. 5.

But from the last Taking of Jerusalem in the eleventh Year of Zedekiah, and the Captivity of the Jews, which follow'd thereupon, and when (e) Ezekiel's 390 Years were accomplish'd from the Setting up of the golden Calves by Jeroboam, until their Return in the first Year of Cyrus were only 50 Years.

So that these things consider'd, the remaining Epochas may stand thus :

From the Departure of the Children of Israel out of Egypt, to their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, were 40 Years.

From the Israelites Entering into the Land of Canaan, to the Beginning of Solomon's Reign, were 436 Years.

From the Beginning of Solomon's Reign, to the Laying the Foundation of the Temple, were 4 Years.

From the Laying of the Foundation of the Temple, to the Death of Solomon, were 36 Years.

From the Death of Solomon, to the Setting up of the Golden Calves, was 1 Year.

From the Setting up of the Golden Calves, to the first Captivity of the Jews, from whence the seventy Years were computed, were 370 Years.

From the first Captivity of the Jews to the last, where Ezekiel's 390 Years ended, were 20 Years.

From the last Captivity of the Jews, to their Return out of Babylon, were 50 Years.

From their Return out of Babylon to the Birth of CHRIST, according to the vulgar Account, were 535 Years.

And therefore from the Departure out of Egypt, to the Birth of CHRIST, according to the vulgar Account, were 1495 Years.

But as our SAVIOUR was born four Years sooner than the vulgar Account ; so subtract 4 Years,

And then from the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, to the Time of his real Birth, were 1491 Years.

And as he was crucify'd in the thirty third Year of his Age according to the vulgar Computation ; so to 1495 Years

Add 33 Years.

And then the Total, from the Departure out of Egypt to the Time of our SAVIOUR's Crucifixion, were 1528 Years.

The vulgar Year of CHRIST 1495, being added to that in the former Table of 2513 Years, proves, that the vulgar Year of CHRIST's Birth was in the Year of the World 4008, and consequently that there were 4007 Years between the Day, in which the World was created Anno Mundi 1. and the same Day of the Year in the Year of the Birth of CHRIST, according to the common Computation, and as it is plac'd in all these Tables.

And as the vulgar Year of our SAVIOUR's Birth was in the Year of the Julian Period 4713 ;

So from thence subtract 4307 Years,

The Remainder is 706, which is the Year of the Julian Period, in which the World was created, Anno Mundi 1.

CHAP. II.

From the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, to their Passing over Jordan.

FROM the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, to their Passing over Jordan, were forty Years ; which (a) Space of Time is so frequently mention'd in the Scriptures, that it will admit of no Dispute. That these forty Years do not begin from (b) the Time, when the Threatning was given, or about a Year and an half after their Departure out of Egypt, but from the very Time of their Departure, will be evident, First, because they (c) went out of Egypt on the fifteenth Day of the first Month, after they had kept the Passover, and (d) at the same Time of the Year they enter'd into Canaan. Secondly, The (e) Children of Israel were fed with Manna forty Years. This (f) was from their Coming into the Wilderness on the fifteenth Day of the second Month after their Departure out of Egypt, until (g) their first Passover in Canaan. Thirdly, Moses was (h) eighty Years of Age, when he deliver'd GOD's Message to Pharaoh, and (i) at the End of the fortieth Year, even (k) when he died, he was but an hundred and twenty Years old.

2. This Sum of forty Years being added to that of 2513, in the End of the former Table, makes 2553 Years; which proves, that the Children of Israel enter'd into the Land of Canaan in the 2553d Year from the Creation.

3. There are three Persons, the Fixing of whose Births will explain some Passages in the present and future History. The first is Caleb the Son of Jephunneh. Of this there is no Difficulty. He tells us, (l) that he was forty years old, when Moses sent him to spy out the land of Canaan. This being in the Year 2514, he must be born in the Year 2474. And as he was (m) fourscore and five Years old, when Joshua began to consider of Dividing the Land, so it is plain, that (n) they did not conquer it at once, but it took up the Space of about six Years.

4. The second is Joshua the Son of Nun. It is probable, that he died in the Beginning of the same Year, when Cushan Rishathaim the Affyrian Emperor (o) began to oppress the Israelites, which our Learned Prelate makes to be in the Year 2591, so that as he was (p) 110 Years of Age when he died, he must be born in the Year 2481, and consequently must be about 32 Years of Age, when he came out of Egypt, and therefore (q) he is call'd a young man about the Middle of the same Year, which is the utmost Age, in which any one was call'd by this Name in those Times, and he could not be less, because he was (*) the General of the Israelitish Army against the Amalekites at the same Time. He was therefore about three and thirty Years of Age when he went to spy out the Land, and 78 Years of Age when their (r) Wars were ended, and GOD gave them Rest from all their Enemies, and they began to divide the Land when he is said to be old, and stricken in Years. And the (s) Exhortation of Joshua to the People immediately before his Death was thirty two Years after that, which is said to happen a long time after the LORD had given rest unto Israel from all their enemies round about. And therefore tho' the Israelites grew worse and worse; yet it is probable, that they corrupted themselves in the Time of Joshua, when he was old, and not so capable of Governing; which made him not only to admonish them so seriously to cleave unto the LORD, by a Repetition of former Benefits, and by Promises and Threatnings, but also (t) to make a Covenant with them, and set up a Stone for a Witness. And therefore tho' Judah headed (u) the twelve Tribes against the Canaanites, and (x) the Tribe of Joseph acted bravely, yet (y) they could not drive out the Inhabitants of the Land, because at the Death of Joshua, Cushan Rishathaim invaded them, assisted their Enemies, and even (z) brought them into Subjection for some Time.

5. The third is (a) Nabshon. He was (b) a principal Person in the Tribe of Judah, and their Standard-Bearer in the second Year after their Coming out of Egypt; and therefore we may suppose him to be at that Time about forty Years of Age, which was the Age of Caleb, and a fit Age for such an Employment, and therefore might be born about the Year 2475. His Great Grandfather Hezron (c) was born about three Years before the Going down into Egypt, in the Year 2295; so that there is the Space of 180 Years for three Generations, or 60 for one. And consequently his Grandfather Aram might be born about the Year 2355, and his Father Aminadab about the Year 2415. His Son Salmon (d) was in all Probability born in the Wilderness, and enter'd into the Land of Canaan, where he married Rahab, (who (e) hid the Spies) after the Taking of Jericho, by whom he is suppos'd to (f) have been the Father of Boaz mention'd so much in the Book of Ruth, about two and forty Years after the Passage over Jordan, or in the Year of the World 2595; all which Accounts have nothing of Improbability in them, and therefore may serve for a farther Confirmation of the Scripture Chronology.

6. The Tabernacle being set up on the first Day of the second Year after the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, namely, on the first Day of the Month Nisan, the Orders and Rules were given concerning the Sacrifices, and the Consecration of the Priests; and the eight Days of their Consecration and Sacrifices were accomplish'd before the Time came, when the Passover was to be kept by a former Command given in Egypt, and by a second Command given in the Wilderness. On this fourteenth Day of the first Month, which was the proper Day for the Passover, some Men, because they were unclean, could not observe it; and upon their Acquainting Moses with their Case, he presently brings them an Order (g) to keep it on the fourteenth Day of the next Month, and we have no Reason to doubt, but they observ'd it accordingly, even as (h) it was afterward observ'd in the Time of Hezekiah. Thus the Translation of this Feast a Month beyond its proper Time, did rather enforce the Sig-

nificancy of things to come than of things past, as rather commemorating the Death of CHRIST than their Deliverance out of Egypt, when it happen'd not to be on that very Night.

7. When GOD had positively declar'd, that (i) the Israelites should wander forty Years in the Wilderness, and that all of them, except Joshua and Caleb, should die there, and when he did thus cut short the Age of Man, to what it is at this Time, then Moses (k) penn'd a melancholy Psalm, in which he tells us, how they were consum'd by GOD's Anger for their Impieties. And now Man's Age is come to seventy or eighty Years (after which there is only Labour and Sorrow) instead of those Hundreds, which they liv'd before.

8. Here we may observe, that as Sin at first brought Death into the World; so Sin did afterward shorten the Age of Man. Before (l) the Flood the Patriarchs liv'd almost to a thousand Years. But the Sin, which brought the Flood, took away one half of Man's Age, so that they, who were born afterward, (m) never attain'd to the Age of five hundred. At the Confusion of Babylon it was shortned again in the same Manner; so that (n) none born after that Time liv'd up to two hundred and fifty, as it is easy to observe by Computing those Ages. After the Death of the Patriarchs, when the true Worship of GOD was very much declin'd in their Families, and the rest of Mankind were overrun with Superstition and Idolatry, the Life of Man was shortned again; so that we read of none born since, who exceeded an hundred and five and twenty. Neither did the Ages of Men stand at that Measure; but at the frequent Murmurings and Provokings of GOD in the Wilderness, a third Part more, or thereabout was cut off from the Age of Man, and the common Stint of Man's Life was brought to seventy or eighty Years, or thereabout, or more particularly to 83 or 84 Years, which very few exceeded, and which Moses speaks of in the before-mention'd Psalm, compos'd upon that Occasion. And tho' the Sins of Mankind have been very great and universal since that Time; yet the Age of Man's Life hath not been shortned any more; because a shorter Space would hardly have been sufficient for the Finding out and Improvement of Arts and Sciences, as well as for other Reasons.

Of the Sabbatical Year.

AND now, as we have brought the Children of Israel out of Egypt into the Wilderness under the Conduct of Moses, who afterward deliver'd to them not only the Moral, but also the Judicial and Ceremonial Law, which last consisted in several Types and Representations of their MESSIAH or our JESUS, who was then to come; so it will be requisite to consider, what Types they had, which could point out unto us not only in general the Transactions of his Life, but also by a constant Chronological Revolution, could foreshew the Years in which some of the most remarkable Passages should happen; and among them there are two, which will deserve our Thoughts, namely, their Sabbatical Year, or Year of Rest, and their Year of Jubilee, or Year of Rejoicing.

2. The Sabbatical Year being appointed once in seven Years, and the Year of Jubilee being appointed to be the fiftieth Year, it hath made most Commentators incline to this Opinion, that the Sabbatical Years were included in the Years of Jubilee, as Parts in the whole, and that they did always begin and end together. According to this Account, the Year of Jubilee happen'd once in every forty-nine Years, and both the Years of Jubilee, or the first and the last, were included in the fifty, according to a Way of Speaking very common among the Jews. If this is the true Account, then as (a) both the Sabbatical Year and (b) the Year of Jubilee were Years, in which they were neither to reap their Corn, nor gather in their Grapes; it would be impossible, that two such Years should come together, and yet (c) the contrary is plainly intimated, where GOD having injoin'd these two Rests, promiseth a Blessing upon the Observance of them. If they did observe his Statutes, and keep his judgments, and do them, then they should dwell in the land in safety. But lest when two such Years did come together, they should doubt the Providence of GOD to provide for them, he promiseth, that he would preserve them by a more immediate Care.

(a) Lev. 25. 5.

(b) Lev. 25. 11.

(c) Lev. 25. 20, 21, 22.

For then (saith he) I will command my blessing on the sixth year, and it shall bring forth fruit for three years. And if he did thus provide for them in extraordinary Cases, which could happen but (d) twice in three hundred and fifty Years, they might certainly depend upon him in the ordinary Courses, when they had Liberty to sow in the eighth Year, as well as when they were forc'd to eat of the old fruit until the ninth Year; for in all these Cases, until the fruits came in, they should eat of the old store. Besides, whilst the Notion of the Sabbatical Years being included in the Year of Jubilee lasted, there was no Use made of these Epochas in Chronologys; and the Learned Dr. Prideaux, in his Preface to his Historical Connexion of the Writings of the Old and New Testament, plainly affirms, that it was beyond his Skill. But this is in Effect to render those divine Institutions wholly needless, as if they had not been communicated to us by one, who is infinite in Wisdom. Whereas, by Fixing these different Epochas in different Years, and Carrying on both distinctly, I hope to make it evident, that even those Times and Seasons, being Part of the Ceremonial Law, serve with the rest, as (e) Schoolmasters to bring us to CHRIST; That they are of excellent Use in Chronology, and worthy of the Appointment of him who hath plac'd the Times and Seasons in his own Power, and that they do directly point out unto us the Years of our SAVIOUR's Nativity and Crucifixion.

3. To begin therefore with the Sabbatical Year. It is very evident, that among the Jews the seventh Day was a Day of Rest, and also that the seventh Year was a Year of Rest. One Day in seven took its Rise from the Creation of the World, according to the Example of GOD himself, who in six days made heaven and earth, the sea and all that therein is, and rested the seventh day. Wherefore the LORD blessed a seventh day (for so I shall venture to translate it) and hallowed it. But as the Year was alter'd, when the (f) Israelites came out of Egypt, from one Month to another; so the Sabbath was likewise alter'd from one Day to another. This is plain from what hath been already mention'd, more particularly from (g) the second Repetition of the Law by Moses, And remember, that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that the LORD thy GOD brought thee out thence by a mighty hand, and by an out-stretched arm, therefore the LORD thy GOD commanded thee to keep the sabbath day. But as the Passover did not only look back to the Deliverance of the Israelites out of Egypt, but also directed them to look forward to CHRIST our Passover, who at that Time was also crucify'd for us; so the Sabbath was not only a Memorial of Things past, but also a Sign of Things to come, and directed them to look to CHRIST, who on this Day rested in the Grave. It is particularly said of him in the Articles of our Creed, That the third day he rose again from the dead. This Day, as all the four Evangelists tell us, was the Day after the Sabbath, or the first Day of the Week. On this Day he (h) appear'd to the two Disciples going to Emmaus. On (i) the same Day of the Week he appear'd again to his Disciples, and on that Day seven-night he (k) confirm'd St. Thomas in the Faith of his Resurrection. On the same Day of the Week the Apostles were (l) inspir'd by the HOLY GHOST. This Day was call'd (m) the LORD's Day. And Athanasius observes, that the Sabbath was chang'd by our LORD himself, and therefore all Christians observe that Day, in which he their Master rose from the Dead. It is very evident, that (n) CHRIST was crucify'd on the Day before the Jewish Sabbath, even the day of the preparation. That he (o) rested in the Grave on the Day of the Jewish Sabbath, which was also a celebrated Feast, and (p) was particularly observ'd by the Disciples. Thus the Jewish Sabbath was a Type of CHRIST's Resting in the Grave on that Day, who accordingly by his Death fulfill'd the same, as it was typical, and by his Resurrection he establish'd another, which was to be of a perpetual Obligation. If then the Sabbath Day was typical, why not also the Sabbatical Year? If the one directed us to the Day of the seven, in which CHRIST was to rest in the Grave, why may we not as well suppose, that the other might direct us to the Year of the seven, in which this happen'd. As therefore he rested in the Grave on the Sabbath Day; so he rested in the Grave on the Sabbatical Year, and thus he put an End to both these Types at once.

4. For the Proof of this we must inquire, when the Sabbatical Year began, and how long it was from thence unto the Death of CHRIST. As for the first Inquiry, we must take Notice, that the Command for Observing (q) a Sabbatical Year was given (r) with the rest of the Levitical Law, at

(d) That is, at the End of the fifth Jubilee, when the Sabbatical Year was the Year before it, and at the End of the seventh Jubilee, when the Sabbatical Year was the Year after it. the Beginning of the second Year after their Departure out of Egypt, or at the Vernal Equinox in the Year of the World 2514. The Observation of this Rest consisted chiefly in two things, First, in their not Tilling their Ground, nor Pruning their Vineyards, and not Gathering in the Fruits of the Earth, whence it was call'd (s) the Sabbath of the land. This could not be observ'd, until the Israelites (t) came into the Land of Canaan. Secondly, It consisted in the Creditors freely Discharging their Debtors, and Releasing their Debts, even (u) as GOD for CHRIST's sake hath forgiven us, and hence it was call'd, (x) The LORD's Release, and was a Type of the full and free Forgiveness of Sins, and the Liberty which we obtain for the Sake of CHRIST our LORD, who on such a Year as this made a full Satisfaction for all. And thus it might be observ'd (as no Doubt it was) as soon as the Command was given. The Reason of its Institution was in Commemoration of their Deliverance out of the land of Egypt, and out of the house of bondage, and that (y) they might learn to do to others, even as GOD had done to them. And as this might be observ'd immediately; so they had greater Reason to observe it, when their own Deliverance was so fresh in their Memory. And therefore as the Jewish Sabbath was kept soon after their Departure out of Egypt; so the first Jewish Sabbatical Year was kept soon after the said Departure. As to the Year, there are two things to be consider'd, either the Time of the Year when it began, or the Year it self. As to the Jewish Year, it is certain that it began at the Vernal Equinox in Reference to all things sacred, by an express (z) Command from GOD himself; but in civil Matters the former Method of Beginning at the Autumnal Equinox is suppos'd to have still continu'd. And there is great Reason to think, that their Sabbatical Year began at that Time, when all their Harvest was over, which began at the other Equinox. Then they were not to sow, as they usually did in October and the following Months, but to stay till the Return of the Season the next Year. For if this Year had began in March, they could not have reaped that which they had sown the Year before. But how to fix the Year it self is a greater Difficulty, and can (I think) no otherwise be determin'd than by Considering, that as in Canaan it was a Rest from Tilling, so in the Wilderness it must be a Rest from Travelling and Working. Now the Israelites came out of Egypt in the Spring, and in the Year of the World 2513. Their first Year was (a) a Year of Travel to Succoth, to Etham, to Pihabiroth, to Marah, to Elim, to the Red-Sea, to Sin, to Dophkah, to Alush, and to Sinai. And tho' they continu'd there for some Time; yet they were constantly imploy'd in making the Tabernacle to the End of that Year. Their second Year was also a Year of Travel (b) to Kibrothhattaavah, to Hazereth, and to Rithmah, or Kadeshbarnea, where they arrive about (c) the latter End of July, in the Year of the World 2514, and here they tarry (d) many Days, even a full Year, in the same Manner as they had tarried at Sinai, but without any Work to do. So that here was properly a Sabbatical Year to the Israelites in the Wilderness. And as their Year of Jubilee, and their Sabbatical Year, being both of the same Nature, began in the seventh Month, or at Autumn; so this began not far from the same Time, and particularly continu'd at the Passover in the Year 2515. And it is difficult to assign any other Reason, why the Scripture is so positive in Mentioning this Year only, as a certain Year of Rest to the Israelites, but that we should take Notice of it as a Sabbatical Year, and compute from thence accordingly. Now from the Year 4041, when (as it will appear by these Tables) our SAVIOUR was crucify'd, let us subtract the first Sabbatical Year 2515, according as it is thus laid down in these Tables, and the Remainder is 1526, which being divided by seven, the Cycle of these Years, there is no Remainder. This shews, that our SAVIOUR was crucify'd in a Sabbatical Year; and thus the Type both of the Day and of the Year do answer exactly with the Antitype.

5. And now let us come into the Land of Canaan, and see when their first Sabbath of the land was observ'd. And here (e) the Words of Moses must be our Guide. When ye shall come into the land, and shall have planted all manner of trees for food (which was the Work of the first Year) then ye shall count the fruit thereof as uncircumcised; three years (exclusive of the first Year) shall it be as uncircumcised unto you; it shall not be eaten of. But in the fourth year (exclusive of the first) all the fruit thereof shall be holy (or a Sabbatical Year) to praise the LORD withal. And in the fifth year ye shall eat the fruit thereof (then ye shall sow and reap, then ye shall plant Vineyards, and gather in the Grapes, and then ye shall do all Manner of Husbandry) that the earth may yield unto you the increase thereof. I am the LORD your GOD. Now as the Israelites came out of the Land of Egypt in the Year of the World 2513; so they came into the Land of Canaan in the Year of the World 2553. This Year they planted Trees for Food; then the Years 2554, 2555, and 2556 were Years, in which they were not to eat thereof, and the Year 2557 was the Sabbatical Year. And the Command it self shews, that it ought to be thus observ'd at their Entrance into the Land of Canaan. Now from the Year of the World 4041 let us (as before) subtract this Sabbatical Year 2557, and the Remainder is 1484; which being also divided by seven, or the Cycle of these Years, there is no Remainder, and so this like the other answers exactly to the Antitype. Thus all these Rites are Shadows of things to come, and plainly shew, that they were ordain'd by a most wise Being, who knew exactly at so great a Distance of Time the very Year, in which they should all be fulfilled. And as GOD was pleas'd to number the Years so exactly for many Ages from the Creation; so hath he given us such Signs as these by which we may know how to rectify them afterward.

6. Thus the Computation of the Sabbatical Years, tho' it is mention'd (f) by Moses immediately before the Year of Jubilee, must not be reckon'd as a Part thereof, but as a distinct Epocha by it self. It is (g) mention'd as distinct from the other, and to be at the End of every seven Years. And then the (h) Metaphor of a Sabbath, namely, always one in seven, is more clear and plain; and it will be of great Use to fix the Time of our SAVIOUR's Crucifixion.

7. This Computation of the Sabbatical Year may help us to fix the (i) fourteenth Year of King Hezekiah's Reign, to the Year of the World 3298, according as it is plac'd in these Tables. From the Year 3298, subtract the Sabbatical Year 2515, and the Remainder is 783, which being divided by seven the Remainder is 6, and shews it to be the Year before the Sabbatical Year. This Year the Assyrian Army being very great (since 180000 of them were destroy'd in one Night) had ravag'd the Country, spoil'd all their Tillage, and came near to Jerusalem without any Opposition. Hezekiah praying, and sending to Isaiab, receives a comfortable Answer and a comfortable Sign. The Answer was, that the Assyrian Army should not be able to do any Mischief to Jerusalem, but should return with Shame into their own Land; and that GOD would protect and defend the City of Jerusalem (at least during the Life of Hezekiah) for his own Sake, and for his Servant David's Sake. And (k) this should be a Sign unto them. Tho' the Country was ruin'd and plunder'd; yet the Earth of its own Accord should bring forth a sufficient Plenty: Ye shall eat this year, such things as grow of themselves. And tho' the next Year was the Sabbatical Year, in which they were not to sow, nor reap, nor gather in their Vineyards; yet let them go on in their Duty, and GOD would provide for them, that they should eat the next year, that which sprung up in the same Manner, and in this same Year. And as they should experience the Truth of this Promise in the next Harvest; so let them continue their Obedience to him, and his Providence would provide for them; so that in the third Year (when the Sabbatical Year was past) they should enjoy such a lasting Peace and Plenty, that they might sow, and reap, and plant vineyards, and eat the fruit thereof.

8. This Computation may fix the Sabbatical Year (l) mention'd by the Prophet Jeremiah thus: In the eighth Year of Zedekiah, at the Autumnal Equinox, or the Year of the World 3417, the Sabbatical Year began; so that the Year 3418, was the Sabbatical Year. Thus if we subtract 2515, or the first Sabbatical Year, the Remainder will be 903, which being divided by 7, there is no Remainder, and consequently proves it to have been the Sabbatical Year, which the Prophet mention'd. So that the Story is thus: At the Beginning of the Sabbatical Year in the eighth Year of Zedekiah's Reign, and the Year of the World 3417, (m) the princes and all the people having enter'd into a covenant, and having heard, that every one should let his man servant, and every one his maid servant go free, and that none should serve themselves of them any more, they obeyed, and let them go. In the Beginning of the next Year, Anno Mundi 3418, (n) Zedekiah despises the oath, and breaks the covenant which he had made with the King of Babylon, and (o) sends Ambassadors to Egypt, that he might be supply'd with an Army both of Horse and Foot, and so (p) he rebels against the King of Babylon. The Princes and People, (q) puff'd up with great Expectations from Egypt, compel by Force the servants and the handmaids, whom they had let go free, to return, and brought them into subjection for servants and for handmaids. Upon this (r) the Prophet Jeremiah tells them of this Fault, and threatens the Sword, the Famine, and the Pestilence as the Consequences thereof, and also that Je-

Jerusalem should be taken, and Zedekiah given to the King of Babylon's Army, which came to pass accordingly; for (s) in the same Year, being the ninth Year of King Zedekiah's Reign, in the dead Time of Winter, the City was besieged for a Year and an half, and afterward taken according as it had been foretold. Which Account agrees exactly with the Scripture History, and what is mention'd by our best Chronologers, and fixes the Sabbatical Year at this Time.

9. And lastly, this Computation may afford us some small Light for the Fixing the Time between Jeroboam's making Israel to sin, and the last Babylonish Captivity, when Jerusalem was taken by a Siege. This Distance (t) is plainly shewn to be three hundred and ninety Years. Now (u) the seventy Years Captivity in Babylon so often mention'd in Scripture, began from the Time when Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon (x) came to Jerusalem, and besieged it, and which was in the third Year of Jehoiakim King of Judah, whom (y) GOD gave into his Hand, with Part of the Vessels belonging to the Temple; and this was twenty Years before the last Captivity. For Jehoiakim (z) reigned eleven Years, so that two Years pass'd before his Troubles began, and the last Captivity was (a) in the eleventh Year of Zedekiah, who succeeded him at (b) three Months Distance. As therefore the nine last Years of Jehoiakim, and the eleven Years of Zedekiah added together, make twenty in the whole, and these subtracted out of the seventy Years, make it appear, that there were fifty Years from Zedekiah's Captivity to the Return from Babylon; and thus there seems to be fifty Sabbatical Years unobserv'd, from the Time when Jeroboam first made Israel to sin to the last Captivity, in the whole Space of the three hundred and ninety Years, which are (c) so plainly intimated in Scripture. and which may be reckon'd thus: In the three hundred and ninety Years aforesaid, there were six and fifty Sabbatical Years in all, inclusive of the last, in the eleventh Year of Zedekiah, when Jerusalem was taken. They were all probably unobserv'd, except (d) in the Reigns of Hezekiah and Josiah. The first Year of Hezekiah's Reign, being a Sabbatical Year, could not be observ'd, the Reformation being but newly begun, the Ground having been plow'd the Year before, or perhaps the Harvest being over before he began to reign. In (e) Hezekiah's nine and twenty Years Reign (f) one was observ'd, even in his fifteenth Year, by the Command of the Prophet Isaiab. And as he doth not blame them for their former Non-observance; so this Silence is a tacit Confession, that the other in his eighth Year was observ'd, and the Prophet only exhorts them to do as they had done before, notwithstanding their present Difficulties; and thus, no Doubt, the other two were observ'd in the twenty second, and in the last Year of Hezekiah's Reign. Josiah reign'd (g) one and thirty Years. In the (h) eighteenth Year of his Reign the Book of the Law was found, upon which there was (i) a great Concern, because the People had not acted according to it; and upon this the two following Sabbatical Years in the twentieth and twenty seventh Years of his Reign were observ'd, the People then knowing their Duty, but being ignorant of it before. Thus six were observ'd in all, and the other fifty were omitted, which (k) fifty Omissions were punish'd accordingly with fifty Years final Captivity; and so (l) the Land enjoy'd her Sabbaths, as Moses had foretold.

CHAP. IV.

Of the Year of Jubilee.

AS the Passover points out unto us the Time of the Year, in which CHRIST was crucify'd; as the Feast of Weeks typify'd the Inspiration of the Apostles; as the Sabbath Day among the Jews directed us to the Day of the Week, in which CHRIST rested in the Grave, and the Sabbatical Year directed us to the Year of this Rest; so the Feast of Tabernacles, typifying the Nativity of CHRIST, directs us to the Time of the Year, and the Jubilee directs us to the Year, when it happen'd.

2. The Jubilee was the last Festival, which GOD commanded to be observ'd by the Jews. The English Word Jubilee is deriv'd from (a) the Hebrew, where it signifies sometimes a Ram, and sometimes only a Ram's Horn. Thus (b) in Joshua, Seven priests shall bear before the ark seven trumpets of rams horns; where the Word (c) is us'd, and expounded by the Chaldee Paraphrasts, as it is in our Translation.

3. There were five main Uses of this Feast. First, For the general Release of Servants. Secondly, For the Restoring of Lands and Tenements to the first Owners, who formerly sold them. Thirdly, Hereby a true Distinction of their Tribes and Families was preserv'd, because Lands return'd to their Owners in their proper Tribes, and Servants to their own Families; and hereby CHRIST was more easily prov'd to be of the Tribe of Judah, and of the Family of David according to the Promise. Fourthly, Some are of the Opinion, that as the Grecians did compute their Times by the Olympiads, the Pagan Romans by their Lustra, and the Christian Romans for some Time by the Indictions; so the Jews computed by the Jubilees, or at least that it was so intended. Lastly, It did mystically shadow forth that spiritual Jubilee, which Christians enjoy under the Gospel by the Coming of CHRIST, by whom we have not only a Re-entrance into the Kingdom of Heaven, which we had all forfeited by our many Sins, (and this was signified by their Re-entrance upon their Lands formerly sold) but also the Sound of the Gospel, which in this Feast is typify'd to us by the Sound of the Trumpets, is gone throughout the World. Thus (d) the LORD hath blown the trumpet. But neither this Release of Servants, nor the Restoring of Lands was until the tenth Day of the Month Tisri, or five Days before the Feast of Tabernacles, at which Time it was proclaim'd by the Sound of the Rams Horns. The nine first Days of this Month the Servants feasted, made merry, and wore Garlands in Token of their approaching Liberty. To these I shall add another Use, viz. It directs us to the Year of CHRIST's Nativity.

4. To prove this these three Particulars must be observ'd, First, That CHRIST was born at the Feast of Tabernacles, which always follow'd the Sounding of the Jubilee. Secondly, He was born in the Year of Jubilee. And Thirdly, The first Jubilee was observ'd in the third Year after the Israelites enter'd the Land of Canaan, Anno 2555.

5. First, CHRIST was born at the Feast of Tabernacles, which always follow'd the Sounding of the Jubilee, that is, in a Year when the Jubilee happen'd. The Sounding of the Jubilee was always on the tenth Day of the Month Tisri, or the seventh Month, and the Feast of Tabernacles began on the fifteenth Day of the same Month.

6. This Month was ennobled in former Times, First, (e) in this Month the World was created, and when Sin had enter'd into it, the Redeemer was promis'd, that he should be born of a Woman. In this Month were all the Fathers born, who liv'd before the Flood, and all the Patriarchs, who were after, as the Jews generally assert, and not without some Reason. From this Month the Year began from the Creation of the World to the Redemption out of Egypt; and tho' the sacred Year was alter'd, yet the civil Year continu'd the same. In this Month the Year of Jubilee began in the succeeding Ages. In this Month were these famous Solemnities, The Fest of Expiation, and the Feasts of Trumpets and Tabernacles. In this Month the Tables of the old Law were repair'd. For Moses, after the Fast of forty Days, comes down from the Mountain, a Messenger of good things to come, on the first Day of this Month, which was appointed to be the Feast of Trumpets in succeeding Ages. And such glorious things as these may be also observ'd concerning the Feast of Tabernacles it self. At that very Time (f) did the Israelites set about Making of the Tabernacle in the Wilderness, and at (g) that very Time was the Consecration of Solomon's Temple. And it would be very strange, if all these things were Types of nothing.

7. But secondly, A View of the Jewish Feasts will help forward this Observation. Those, which were of divine Institution, were (h) only three, viz. The Feast of unleavened Bread, The Feast of Weeks, and The Feast of Tabernacles. And these were partly for Remembrance of things past, and partly for Types and Figures of things to come.

8. The Feast of the Passover was for a thankful Remembrance of the great Deliverance of the Israelites out of Egypt, when for Haste they were forc'd to carry their Dough unleaven'd upon their Shoulders. And the Evening before, God having slain all the first-born of Egypt, preserv'd the first-born of the Israelites, because he saw the Blood of the Paschal Lamb sprinkled upon the Door-Posts of their Houses. For this Cause they were commanded to rejoice before the LORD their GOD, whenever that happy Time of the Year should come, and to keep it holy in a peculiar Manner.

9. This Feast was also a Type and Figure of good Things to come, viz. Of our Deliverance from the Bondage of Sin and Satan by that immaculate Lamb CHRIST JESUS, who was foreordain'd of GOD to be slain upon the Cross for the Sins of the World on the same Month and Day; and whenever GOD shall behold this Blood of CHRIST apply'd by a lively Faith to the Soul of any Christian, he will spare and not destroy it.

10. The second Feast, or the Feast of Weeks or Pentecost, was, First, For the Remembrance of the Law given at that Time upon Mount Sinai with Thundering and Lightning, and the Sound of a Trumpet from Heaven. And Secondly, For a Type of the Doctrine of the Gospel, which was publish'd at the same Season, when with a Sound from Heaven, cloven Tongues like Fire (i) fell upon the Apostles, and they were all filled with the HOLY GHOST.

11. As for the Feast of Tabernacles, the first End is plain, that it was a Memorial of the long Dwelling of the Israelites in (k) Tabernacles in the Wilderness. Ye shall dwell in booths (saith the LORD) all that are Israelites shall dwell in booths; That your generations may know, that I made the children of Israel to dwell in booths, when I brought them out of the land of Egypt. I am the LORD your GOD.

12. But it is not so express as in the former, of what things to come concerning CHRIST it was a Type. However we may judge thereof from (l) the Words of St. John, The Word was made flesh, and dwelt (or fix'd his Tabernacle) among us. For so (m) the Word may signify. By this Expression St. John seems plainly to intimate, That as the Passover was a Type of his Passion, and the Pentecost a Type of the Sending of the HOLY GHOST; so the Feast of Tabernacles should be for a Type of his Incarnation, when the Divine Nature took our Flesh as a Tabernacle to inhabit in, and the WORD of GOD became Immanuel, or GOD with us. For it is incredible, that this principal Feast should not be a Type of some principal thing concerning CHRIST, as well as the rest, it being as solemn as the other two, or rather the chief of the three. And there is nothing but his Incarnation and Nativity, which can be apply'd to it.

13. But to proceed to Particulars: The Institution of the Feast of Tabernacles agrees excellently with the Time of CHRIST's Birth. For First, When Moses came down from the Mountain on the first Day of the Month Tisri, and declar'd, that GOD was appear'd, and the People pardon'd, his (n) Face shone, as if the Divinity had inhabited the Manhood, so that the Israelites could not look upon him; and he then gave Directions, that they should immediately set about the Building of the Tabernacle (which was hitherto hinder'd by and because of the golden Calf) seeing that GOD would now dwell among them, and forsake them no more. Upon this the People bring their Offerings, which were view'd and found to be sufficient. And then immediately they pitch their Tents, knowing that they were not to depart from that Place, before the Divine Tabernacle was finish'd; and thus they set about this great Work with all their Might at this Time of the Year. Hence the fifteenth Day of this Month, and seven Days after, were appointed for the Feast of Tabernacles, in Commemoration of their Dwelling in Tents in the Wilderness, when GOD dwelt in the Midst of them. And it seems very evident, that these things respect the Incarnation of CHRIST, when GOD dwelt among us in human Flesh, with a very apt and typical Aspect. And to this may allude the (o) many Expressions of GOD's Dwelling among the Children of Israel.

14. Secondly, The Reason, why (p) GOD was so punctual, that all things should be made by Moses according to the Pattern, which was shewn to him in the Mount, may probably be to shew us, That CHRIST JESUS, who took our Nature upon him, was the same, who before was seen by Saints and Angels in the highest Heavens.

15. Thirdly, This Feast had a more extraordinary Course of Sacrifices than either of the other, which seems more visibly to point at the Time, when he, who was the Accomplishment of them all, should come in the Flesh.

16. Fourthly, This Feast was of one Day's Continuance more than the rest, this having eight festival Days, and the other two but seven. And it is not improbable, that the eighth Day was added to it, which was (q) a great day of the feast, as figuring the Time of his Circumcision.

17. Fifthly, Another Custom us'd at this Feast may also confirm this Opinion. For (r) whilst they gather'd and carry'd the Boughs, whereof they made their Tabernacles, they usually sang a Kind of Litany, in which the People continually cry'd Hosanna, Hosanna, that is, Save now. This was so usual, that in Time the Feast, and the Boughs, and all their Ceremonies, came to be call'd Hosanna. Hence arose the Cry of the People in the Gospel, when (s) they cut down Boughs to honour our SAVIOUR Riding upon an Ass, Hosanna to the Son of Da- vid, Hosanna in the highest. For tho' it was at a different Time of the Year from the Feast of Tabernacles; yet the Carrying of Boughs put them in Mind of the accustomed Acclamation at that Feast. All which seems to be order'd by the Providence of Almighty GOD, to shew, First, What this Ceremony of Tabernacles aim'd at, namely, the Mystery of our Redemption by GOD in the Tabernacle of our Flesh, or the Incarnation of CHRIST, which is that which made him to be JESUS, a Saviour, and makes us to cry unto him by Faith, Hosanna, Save now. And secondly, That it might be known who this Tabernacle was, the People by a secret Providence cry'd out unto our SAVIOUR, even at another Time, Hosanna to the Son of David, ascribing in their so Speaking the whole Ceremony of Boughs and Tabernacles to him.

18. Sixthly, Another Custom us'd at this Feast may not be improperly consider'd, which is their Drawing and Pouring out of Water, and their great Rejoicing for it. This Pouring out of Water was us'd every Day of the Feast, and their Rejoicing upon it was so great, that in all this Feast, nay, in all the Feasts throughout the Year, they had not the like. One (t) of the Priests with a golden Tankard goes to the Pool of Siloam, and there he fills it with Water. He returns back again into the Court thro' that which was call'd, The Water Gate; and when he came there, the Trumpets sounded. Then he goes to the Rife of the Altar, and after some Ceremonies he pours it out by Way of Libation. Towards Night they begin their Rejoicing for the Pouring out or Drawing of the Water, which Mirth they continu'd far in the Night every Night of the Feast. And this their Rejoicing was so very great, that they say, He that never saw the Rejoicing at the Drawing of the Water, never saw Rejoicing in all his Life. Now it is certain, that our SAVIOUR applies this whole Ceremony to himself. For (u) in the last and great Day of the Feast, when they had kept this great Mirth seven Days, in Reference to the Drawing and Offering of Water out of the Pool of Siloam, he (x) stood and cried, saying, If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink. He that believeth in me, as the Scripture hath said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water. And this he spake of the spirit, which they, who believed in him, should receive. But to apply this to our blessed SAVIOUR. When he was just entering upon the (y) thirtieth Year of his Age, and consequently at the very Time of this Feast, he was baptiz'd with Water by St. John in the River Jordan. At this Time he was not dipp'd, but the Water was pour'd down upon his Head, as at the Altar, which sanctify'd the Oblation, and thus he sanctify'd Water to the mystical Washing away of Sin. And as the Waters of Siloam went Eastward, and the Waters of Jordan went Southward, until they came to the dead Sea, and thus they both went either to or from the four cardinal Points of the World; so the (z) Water of Baptism typify'd by the one, and sanctify'd by the other, goes not to the Jews only, but also to the Gentiles, who (a) were dead in trespasses and sins, and serves for the Healing of all Mankind. That the Water was pour'd on the Head of CHRIST (and that he in this Particular agreed more exactly with the Type, than if he had been dipp'd) is evident from (b) the Words of St. John the Baptist, who said to the Pharisees and Sadduces, I indeed baptize you with water; but CHRIST shall baptize you with the HOLY GHOST and with fire. Here both the Baptisms allude to each other, as both perform'd in the same manner; and therefore it will be as hard to prove, that St. John plung'd his Disciples into the Water, as it is to prove, that CHRIST did plunge his Disciples into the Fire. But this was literally fulfill'd, (c) when cloven tongues, as of fire, sat upon the heads of the Apostles, coming from Heaven with a Sound like the Rushing of Water, and they were all filled with the HOLY GHOST. There is (d) a remarkable Passage in the Talmud. Rabbi Levi saith, Why is the Name of it call'd, The Drawing of the Water? And to this it is answer'd, Because of the Drawing or Pouring out of the HOLY GHOST, according to (e) that which is said, With joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation. And (f) St. Matthew saith, that JESUS, when he was baptized, went up straitway from the water, and to the heavens were opened unto him, and he saw the spirit of GOD descending like a dove, and lighting upon him, And lo, a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. And he that compares these together, may soon observe the Agreement between the Type and the Anti-type, viz. the plentiful Effusion of the HOLY GHOST, and the Pouring forth of the Water at this Season.

19. To these Particulars (g) another Text may be added, which may serve in a great Measure to illustrate them. And it shall come to pass, that every one, who is left of all the nations, which come against Jerusalem, shall go up from year to year to worship the king, the LORD of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles. And it shall be, that those who will not come up of all the families of the earth unto Jerusalem to worship the king, the LORD of hosts, even upon them shall be no more rain. This is a Prophecy of the Times under the Gospel, and of a Feast that should be then kept; and it would be hard to conceive, that GOD should take more Care, or that Christians should be under a greater Obligation to observe this, than either of the other two, if this was not typical of the Gospel Times, as the other two undoubtedly are. Besides, if the Feast of the Nativity doth not answer to the Feast of Tabernacles, as far as it was typical, there is no other which answers to it at all, and then this Curse must light upon all the Christian Churches in all Ages, and in all Places, which would be a much harder Case.

20. Seventhly, That CHRIST was born about the Feast of Tabernacles will very probably appear from the Church of Alexandria, which was planted by St. Mark, who adapts his Gospel more exactly according to the Chronological Order of Time than the other Evangelists. This Church kept the Feast of St. John the Baptist's Nativity (as St. Cyril witnesseth in an Homily on that Occasion) on the eight and twentieth Day of the Month Pharmuth, which (b) answers to the four and twentieth Day of our April. Now it must be observ'd, that (i) according to the Alexandrian Account of Time, they did not reckon the Year of the Birth of CHRIST, as we do, but suppos'd it to be eight Years later, even in the Year of the Julian Period 4721. Accordingly it appears by Calculation, that the Jewish Year did then begin on the twenty fifth Day of March, and therefore that the Day of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, being the eight and twentieth Day of the Month Pharmuth, or the four and twentieth Day of April, did not then happen on the fifteenth Day of the first Month, but on the first Day of the second; so that they reckon'd not (k) six Months complete between the Birth of St. John and the Birth of our SAVIOUR, as we do, but only five Months and an half, or the sixth Month current. And he who views (l) the Texts in the Margin with Attention might think, that they had some Reason for such a Computation; especially if they depended upon the common Exposition of such Expressions without other concurring Circumstances. Or, which is more probable, they might fix the Feast of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, at such a Time, when the Jewish Feast began very late, and so the four and twentieth Day of the Month Pharmuth might happen near the fifteenth Day of the first Jewish Month, and so be about half a Year before the Feast of Tabernacles.

21. Lastly, The Day of our SAVIOUR's Nativity will be more abundantly evident from the four and twenty Courses of the Priests, and the Course of Abia, when Zachariah burnt Incense in the Temple. Concerning which we are to observe, that the Priests were (m) divided by David into four and twenty Courses. These Courses, thus newly settl'd by David for Number, and thus rank'd by Lot for Order, and both being design'd for the Service of the Temple, when it should be built, it is not to be question'd, but that they began their Round, when the Service of the Temple did first begin. This Round began on the Day of the Feast of Tabernacles, if it happen'd to be on a Sabbath, or otherwise on the Sabbath Day after. Now when Solomon settl'd the (n) Service of the Temple, the great Feast of Tabernacles, or the fifteenth Day of the seventh Month, happen'd to be upon a Sunday, the Day both of our SAVIOUR's Nativity and Resurrection (all which will appear in their proper Places by Calculation) there was an extraordinary Concourse of People, and the whole Week was celebrated in an extraordinary Manner. The following Sabbath, being the twenty first Day of the same Month, the Course began, in which all the Priests were present. The Day after, being the two and twentieth Day of the Month, was on a Sunday, the last and great Day of the Feast, and the Day on which our SAVIOUR was circumcis'd, which was also a solemn Assembly. On the Monday (o) being the three and twentieth day of the same Month, he sent the people away into their tents, glad and merry in heart for all the goodness, which GOD had shewed them. So that this Week also (p) there was a great Feast, the People not being as yet gone to their own Houses, but living in Tents near Jerusalem; and therefore the Company of the Congregation continu'd to be so great, and the Multitude of the Sacrifices to be so many, that no single Course was able to undergo the Service; and therefore (q) then especially, (as also at the other two great Festivals) all the Courses serv'd indifferently, and on the next Sabbath Day, being the eight and twentieth Day of this Month, the Course of Jehoiarib, or the first Course began.

22. They chang'd every Week, coming in on the Sabbath, and (r) going out on the next; so that by the Time of the Passover they had just finish'd their first Course, and from thence they began their second Round again. In the eighth Course of this second Round (for (s) this was the Course of Abia) Zechariah heard the glad Tidings of the Birth of St. John the Baptist, who was the Forerunner of CHRIST, just about the same Time of the Year that (t) Sarah heard of the fix'd Time of the Birth of Isaac, which was about the Middle of the Summer, or at the Solstice. And therefore (u) six Months after this, or at the Winter Solstice, the Angel appear'd to the Virgin Mary immediately before her Conception, and CHRIST was born nine Months after, or at the Autumnal Equinox, which according to the Jewish Reckoning was in the seventh Month, and usually about the Time of the Feast of Tabernacles.

23. But that the Reader may have a full and perfect View of these Courses, it may not be thought improper to interpose a Calendar or Almanack of them both, for the Year preceding the Dedication of the Temple by Solomon, and the Year of the Nativity of our Blessed SAVIOUR, beginning at the Course of Abijah, when Zechariah receiv'd this Message from the Angel, and ending on the Day on which our SAVIOUR was circumcised. In which the first Column serves for the Day of the Month according to the Julian Account, the second serves for the Day of the Week in the Year of the Dedication, the third for the Day of the Week in the Year of the Nativity, the fourth shews the Feasts and Fasts and other remarkable Days of the Jewish Months.

24. As the Dedication of the Temple happen'd to be in the Year of the World 3000, or before the Vulgar Year of the Nativity 1008; so it appears by Calculation, that the Sun touched the Autumnal Equinox in that Year on the last Day of September, and that the Moon was visible after the Change on the second Day of October following. And as we have no Reason to doubt, but that Solomon made his Observations for the Beginning of the Year at the Autumnal as well as at the Vernal Equinox, since the same Method would equally serve for both, and his Skill in Astronomy would make him the more exact in all such Computations, especially in so remarkable a Year as this; so we may very well suppose, that this seventh Month, according to the sacred Account, or the first Month according to the civil Account, began from the first Visibility of the Moon. And therefore it appearing from Calculation, that the Moon was visible on the second Day of October in the Evening, and consequently the first Day of the seventh Month happen'd on the third Day of October, and the fifteenth Day of the same Month, in which this famous Feast of the Dedication was kept, happen'd to be on the seventeenth Day of October. In this Year the Julian Period was 3705, which being divided by 28 the Remainder is 9, which shews that B was the Sabbatical Letter, and C the Dominical Letter for the latter Part of that Year, which answering to October 17 shews, that this great Feast was held on a Sunday, the Day of the Christian Sabbath, and on the same Day both of the Week and of the Jewish Month in which our SAVIOUR was born, and not on the Day of the Jewish Sabbath, as (x) the learned Dr. Lightfoot suppos'd, the Hurry of Business being much too great for such a Day. And the last or great Day of the Feast was also on the four and twentieth Day of the same Month, the Day of the Christian Sabbath, or the Day both of the Week, and of the Jewish Month, in which our SAVIOUR was circumcised; and so (y) on Monday the three and twentieth day of the seventh Jewish Month, or the twenty fifth Day of October, he sent the people away into their tents, glad and merry in heart for the goodness that the LORD had shewed unto David, and to Solomon, and to Israel his people.

25. Here we may also see the Reason (z) of Solomon's holding a Feast, and all Israel with him fourteen days, and also, why it is so particularly divided into seven days and seven days. The Feast of Tabernacles began upon a Sunday, and therefore it was seven Days to their Sabbath. During this Time all the Priests attended to observe this solemn Feast. On the next Sabbath all the Priests are present and serve, the Law was begun to be read, and the High Priest officiating in Person serv'd for that Week before the first Course began, which lasted for seven Days more, and the Total was fourteen Days. The seven first Days were for all the People. On the eighth Day, or the great Day of the Feast, being the twenty second Day of the Month, Solomon gave Orders for all the People to return Home, which they did on the following Day, or the twenty third Day of the Month. However he continu'd the Feast till the following Sabbath was ended; for so long the High Priest continu'd to officiate, and no longer, and the other Priests continuing with him, they were feasted all together.

26. It is agreed by all our present Chronologers, that our SAVIOUR was born four Years before the Year of his Birth according to the Vulgar Computation: On that Year the Sun came to the Autumnal Equinox on the twenty fifth Day of September. And therefore it appearing from Calculation, that the Moon was visible on the twenty second Day of September, immediately before; the first Day of the Month Tisri, or the seventh Month, happen'd to be on the twenty third Day of September; and the fifteenth Day of the same Month in which he was born, was on the seventh Day of October, and the Day of his Circumcision was on the fourteenth.

In this Year the Julian Period was 4710, which being divided by 28, the Remainder is 9; which shews that F was the Sabbatical Letter, and G the the Dominical Letter for that Year, which answering to the seventh and fourteenth Days of October, shews that our SAVIOUR was both born and circumcised on the Day of the Christian Sabbath, and answer'd to the same Days of the Week, in which the two famous Feasts of Tabernacles were observ'd by King Solomon, at the Dedication of the Temple.

(a) Hippocrates περί σαρκῶν.

24. To fill up some void Places in the Calendar, I have inserted the Sections out of the Law and the Prophets, according as (a) they were read in the Jewish Synagogues on every Sabbath day, beginning at the Feast of Tabernacles, October the 18th, Anno ante Christum 1, and ending at the Feast of Tabernacles Anno Christi 00. Whether these Lessons or Sections were appointed and set out from the Law by Moses, or Joshua, or Ezra, or by any other, or how the like in the Prophets came to be parallel'd with them, or to be read instead of them, when the Persecution of Antiochus forbade the Law, is not my Business to determine. Only if the Reader will observe the Harmony between the two Portions, which were read at one time, he may see, that the Choice of them was of more than common and ordinary Discretion. And sometimes the taking Notice of the Portions themselves will help to clear and satisfy some Obscurities, which could not so easily have been done without them.

25. Secondly, The Reader may observe from the first of these, how the Old and New Testament came at first to be appointed to be read throughout for the first and second Lessons in our daily Service; and he may observe from the second, how the Epistles and Gospels came to be introduc'd for Sundays and Holydays.

26. Thirdly, He who considers the Calendar, may not only observe, that the (b) first and last Days of the Feast of Tabernacles, when our SAVIOUR was born and circumcis'd, happen'd to be on a Sunday; but he may also find several other things, which are remarkable. The (c) first Day of the fourth Month, or Tammuz, was the Day of Elizabeth's Conception of John the Baptist, and the (d) first Day of the tenth Month, or Tebeth, was the Day of the Virgin Mary's Conceiving by the HOLY GHOST, and these may point out to us another typical Reason for the great Rejoicings among the Jews at the Feast of their new Moons, and the Sound of the Trumpets and Rejoicings at that Time. And that there were particular Providences, which requir'd to be taken Notice of in the same Manner with the Jubilee, as being Forerunners of more joyful News, than is usually imagin'd. Secondly, Tho' the Course of Abia, in which Zachariah served, is only mention'd in general Terms; yet we may guess, that the particular Day, in which he receiv'd the Message from the

Angel, was on (e) the last Day of that Course. On this Day the Decree of Abasbuerus to destroy the Jews was (f) revers'd, and Copies of the Revocation written and dispers'd, and sent by proper Messengers. And therefore on this Day the Angel being a proper Messenger sent from Heaven with better Tidings, might bring the News to the Jewish Nation of the Forerunner of their MESSIAH, and that GOD would visit and deliver his People. Thirdly, The Eating of unleaven'd Bread among the Jews began (g) on the Day after the Passover, and on this Day John the Baptist (h) was born, who came (i) neither eating nor drinking of any thing that was delicious, and (k) whose meat was locusts and wild honey. Fourthly, The Angel deliver'd to the Virgin Mary the News of her Conception (l) on the last Day of the old Year, and she conceiv'd on (m) the first Day of the new, according to the Roman Account. And this cannot but put us in Mind of the new Covenant made with the Gentiles, by him who was thus conceiv'd, and which (n) St. Paul doth excellently describe in this Manner: CHRIST is the mediator of a better covenant, which was established upon better promises. And finding fault with the other, he saith, (o) Behold the days come, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judab. For all shall know me from the least to the greatest. For I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more. So that whereas he saith, A new covenant, he hath made the first old. And that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away. Fifthly, It may also be observ'd, that the (p) Annunciation and Conception of the Blessed Virgin happen'd in the Time of the Feast of the (q) Dedication of the Temple, which was observ'd (r) in Commemoration of the cleansing of it by Judas Maccabeus, after it had been profan'd by Antiochus Epiphanes. This could not but put them in Mind, that (s) the LORD, whom they did seek, should suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant whom they delighted in. Who should purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they might offer unto the LORD an offering in righteousness. And then the offerings of Judab and Jerusalem should be pleasant unto the LORD as in the days of old, and as in former years. And sixthly, we may observe, that they were near the Right, who reckon six full Months between the (t) Birth of John the Baptist, and the Birth of our SAVIOUR; tho' the Words both of (u) St. Luke and the (x) Angel, shew the Annunciation was in the sixth Month after the Conception of Elizabeth, which might be equally true of any Space of Time exceeding five Months. For Elizabeth (y) conceiv'd on the first Day of the fourth Month, or Tammuz, and the Angel brought the News of it to the Virgin Mary on (z) the last Day of the Month Chislen, or the ninth Month; so that there was the Space of six full Months between, and yet no Part of any seventh. And therefore the Apostle might truly say, (a) That the holy days, and the new moons, and the sabbath days were shadows of things to come; but the body was of CHRIST.

27. Lastly, From these Sections we may give a probable Conjecture concerning the Time of the Year when our SAVIOUR read (b) a Part of the Prophecy of Isaiah, in (c) the Synagogue of Nazareth, namely, that it was in (d) the Beginning of the Month Tisri, or the seventh Month. The particular Portion of Scripture which he read, is not among the Portions appointed to be read at all. But (e) two, which are very near it, are appointed for the two Sabbath Days immediately before the Feast of Tabernacles. And therefore when the (f) Minister of the Congregation call'd him out to read, he went up into a Desk or (g) Pulpit as usual, which stood in the Midst of the Synagogues for that Purpose, and when the Book of Isaiah was deliver'd to him, and he was directed to the Part appointed to be read: he read not the Part appointed, but a Part very near it. And when the People were surpriz'd, as thinking it had been a Mistake, he makes an Apology to this Effect: (h) Marvel not at this, that I read not the Section which is appointed, but a Section near it; For this day is this Scripture, (which I read) fulfilled in your ears. And all men bore him witness, that what he said was true, and wonder'd at the gracious words, which proceeded out of his mouth.

28. But to return from this Digression to the Birth of our SAVIOUR on the Day of the Feast of Tabernacles. It may be objected, That the Birth of CHRIST was in December, but the Feast of Tabernacles was kept on the fifteenth Day of the seventh Month, which answer'd in a Manner to our September or October, and which Day in this Calendar is plac'd on the seventh Day of October, and therefore it could not be so late in the Year at the Time of his Birth as it is usually suppos'd to be. So that if the Feast of Tabernacles had been a Sign of his Incarnation, the Time should as well have agreed here, as it did in the Passover and his Passion, and also in the Giving of the Law, and the Sending of the HOLY GHOST. But between the Birth of our SAVIOUR, and the Feast of Tabernacles in the Age when he was born, there was frequently three Months Difference, and never less than two.

29. But in Answer to this it may be affirm'd, that we do not observe the right Time; and this is not a late Notion only, but it was the Opinion of Joseph Scaliger, Dr. Lightfoot, Mr. Mede, and the most learned Chronologers of the last Century. These affirm, That the Birth of our SAVIOUR was soon after the Autumnal Equinox at the Time of the Feast of Tabernacles, and not in December, as the Memory thereof is now celebrated. For it is certain from (i) Clement Alexandrinus, that in the Primitive Church there was no absolute Agreement about the Time of the Nativity: And he adds, That they, who inquire more exactly into the Time, do assign the five and twentieth Day of the Month Pachon, which is our twentieth Day of May for the real Day. And to this Time of the Year the learned Dr. Allix, in his Book de natali Christi, doth plainly incline.

30. Others assign'd others and divers Times, as Epiphanius witnesseth almost four hundred Years after CHRIST: So long therefore there was no Certainty agreed upon. And it was after the Time of Constantine, that the Day, which we now observe, was first chosen in the Latin Church, but not in the Greek, till the Days of St. Chrysostom in the Beginning of the fifth Century, who made an Oration yet extant upon the first Observing of this Day, which (as he saith) they then receiv'd from the Roman Church, and which he endeavours to prove to be the true Day of his Nativity.

31. If any one would know, how they came after so many uncertain Opinions to resolve at last upon this Day, we are plainly told, that it was upon a false Supposition, and a mistaken Ground. For finding in (k) the Law, that the High Priest was oblig'd once every Year to enter into the most holy Place, and there to offer Incense at the Feast of Expiation, and reading in St. (l) Luke's Gospel, that the Angel Gabriel appear'd to

(t) Thus we place the Nativity of John the Baptist on June 24, and the Birth of CHRIST on December 25, at a full half Year's Distance. (u) Luke 1. 26. (x) Luke 1. 36. (y) July 8, Anno ante Christum 1. (z) December 31, Anno ante Christum 1. (a) Coloss. 2. 16, 17. (b) Isai. 61. 2. (c) Luke 4. 16. (d) See Anno Christi 00, September 23, when the seventh Month, or the Month Tisri began. (e) Isaiah 60. 1. to the End; and Isaiah 61. 10, to 63. 10. (f) שְׁלִיחַ צְבָר. (g) Βήμα, Heb. בֵּימָה. (h) Luke 4. 21. 22. (i) Stromaton Lib. 1. Page 4. (k) Levit. 16. 29. (l) Luke 1. 8 to 24.

Zacharias, as he went to offer Incense in the Temple, they suppos'd, that he was the High Priest, and argu'd thus: The Time of the High Priest's Offering Incense in the most holy was about the latter End of September in those Days, particularly on the tenth Day of the seventh Month, which then might happen on any Day between the eighteenth Day of September and the seventeenth Day of October: Now as soon as Zacharias had fulfill'd the Work of his Ministration, John the Baptist was conceiv'd; and this (supposing the Month Tisri or the seventh Month to begin as soon as possible) might have happen'd about the twenty fifth Day of September. Now when the Angel saluted Mary, he told her, (m) that her Cousin Elizabeth had been with Child six Months. If then John the Baptist was conceiv'd about the twenty fifth Day of September, the Annunciation of the blessed Virgin, and the Conception of our SAVIOUR, which happen'd about six Months after, must fall about the twenty fifth Day of March, and so his Birth must fall about the twenty fifth Day of December, which was nine Months after his Conception. And this was the Ground, upon which the Feast of CHRIST's Nativity was fix'd to this Day.

32. To this they answer, who think otherwise, First, That the Angel did not appear to Zacharias in the most holy Place. For the Altar of Incense was without the Veil, at which (n) the Angel appear'd. Neither could Zacharias be the High Priest; for (o) he was of the course of Abia, and it came to his lot to offer incense. But the High Priest was of no Course; neither did the Offering of Incense in the most holy Place fall to him by Lot, but it was his only and proper Office. The Ground thereof was therefore wholly mistaken.

33. Secondly, At the Birth of CHRIST every Man, Woman and Child was to go to be tax'd at the City, to which they belong'd, whither some had long Journeys, particularly the Virgin Mary her self travell'd about (p) seventy Miles. But the Middle of Winter was not a proper Season for such a Business, especially for Women with Child and Children to travel in. Therefore CHRIST could not be born in the Depth of Winter.

34. Lastly, At the Birth of CHRIST the Shepherds lay abroad watching with their Flocks in the night Time; but this was not likely to be in the Depth of Winter. And if any shall think, that the winter Winds or Frosts were not so severe in those Parts, let him remember the Words of CHRIST in the Gospel, (q) Pray that your flight be not in the winter. If the Winter was so bad a Time for Men to flee by Day, it seems not to be a fit Time for Shepherds to lie in the Fields by Night, or Women with Child to travel on any Occasion. They had (r) Frost, and (s) Snow, and (t) Ice in that Country; and this was the proper Time, when they might expect it. Besides, when our SAVIOUR was brought before the (u) High Priest, the servants and officers had made a fire of coals in the Palace, for it was cold, and warmed themselves. And if it was cold by Day in the Palace on the third Day of April, which was the Day of the Passover on that Year, when the Sun had passed the vernal Equinox, What must it be by Night in the open Air, and in the Time of December, when the Sun was very near to the winter Tropick?

35. Secondly, It may be objected, Why do not the Governors of the Church alter the Day kept in Commemoration of CHRIST's Birth from the wrong Day to the true one?

To this it may be answer'd, That tho' we do not observe the Day of his real Birth; yet we observe the Day, which was set apart for this Purpose by publick Authority. We observe the Day, which all the western Churches always observ'd, and which afterward was observ'd by others upon their Authority. Prudentius, who liv'd before the Middle of the fifth Century, in his Hymn for (x) the twenty fifth Day of December saith, That this was the famous Birth-Day, which was then observ'd. And certainly, tho' some may think, that the Time it self is most fit for such a Solemnity; yet no Time can be unlawfully chosen for such a Day. We have a Command, that (y) all things be done according to the Injunction; and that (z) the spirits of the prophets, or particular Persons, must be subject to the prophets, or the general Orders. And therefore, as there hath been an Injunction in the primitive Times, and handed down to us ever since, it can hardly be adviseable for a particular Church to alter the same without an universal Consent. The Apostle (a) speaking of another Case saith, But if any man seem contentious, we have no such custom, neither the churches of GOD. In which he pleads the Argument of Custom to overrule any Disputes in Church Discipline, and plainly shews us, that the Customs us'd in the Churches of GOD ought to determine such things, as are not absolutely necessary. And indeed, without this the many Commands, urg'd with the strongest Motives, that we should (b) be all of one heart and of one mind, and endeavour to keep the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace, can hardly be observ'd. It was the Observation of (c) St. Augustine, That the very Change of a Custom, tho' it might be useful in it self, yet it may give Offence by its Novelty. And they, who consider what a small Matter occasion'd the Rupture between the eastern and western Churches, which could never afterward be heal'd, and the fatal Consequences thereof, by Letting Mahometanism into the one, and Popery into the other, will hardly think it proper to make such Alterations in one Church without the Approbation of all the rest.

36. Having thus prov'd, that our SAVIOUR was born on the Day of the Feast of Tabernacles, being the fifteenth Day of the seventh Month, it will be necessary in the next Place to endeavour to prove, that he was born in the Year of Jubilee, the most solemn Ceremony whereof was upon the tenth Day of the same Month. For this there is the Authority of Bishop Jeremy Taylor in his Life of CHRIST. And he, who considers it as typical, will find sufficient Reason for such a Conjecture. The general Release of Servants was a plain Intimation of the Redemption, which CHRIST was to bring with him, not only from the Jewish Law, but also from the Slavery of Sin and Satan. And the Restoring of Lands and Tenements to their first Owners, who formerly sold them, will plainly refer us to CHRIST, who hath restor'd us to a better State, than that which Adam lost; and instead of an earthly Paradise, which was forfeited by the Eating of the forbidden Fruit, hath purchas'd for us an eternal Inheritance in the Kingdom of Heaven. And thus immediately after the Time, when the Rams-Horns sounded a Redemption of Captives, the holy Angels from Heaven proclaim'd a Redemption from Satan. When the Servants prais'd the Bounty of their Masters, then the heavenly Host in a great Multitude prais'd GOD, and said, (d) Glory be to GOD on high, and on earth peace, and good will toward men. And when the Servants rejoic'd for that Liberty, which was peculiar to themselves, then those blessed Spirits said to the Shepherds, (e) Fear not, for behold I bring you glad tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a SAVIOUR, which is CHRIST the LORD.

37. The last thing propos'd is, that the first Year of Jubilee happen'd in the third Year, after the Israelites were enter'd into the Land of Canaan. As the Year of their Entrance was Anno Mundi 2553; so according to this Supposition, the first Jubilee was observ'd at the Autumnal Equinox, Anno Mundi 2555. And as our SAVIOUR was born at the Feast of Tabernacles Anno Mundi 4005, and the Year of Jubilee came but once in fifty Years; so from the Year 4005, subtract 2555, and the Remainder is 1450, which being divided by 50 there is no Remainder, and shews, that our SAVIOUR was born in the Year of Jubilee, upon Supposition that the first Jubilee was observ'd Anno Mundi 2555, or in the third Year after the Israelites were enter'd into the Land of Canaan. For the Proof of this we must refer to the original Commands of GOD for the Observing of the Sabbatical Year, and the Year of Jubilee. The first is contain'd in these Words, (f) Speak unto the Children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come into the land, which I give unto you, then shall the land keep a sabbath unto the LORD. Here is a Direction to observe the Sabbatical Year. And (g) immediately upon this follows the other Command for the Observing of the Jubilee, which seems to imply, that they should observe a Year of Jubilee, as soon as possibly they could, upon their Entrance into the Land of Canaan. And as that Direction first given did not fix the Sabbatical Year to the first Year of their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, but it was over-rul'd by (h) an express Command, that they should first plant trees, and then count the fruit as uncircumcised for three years, before it could be holy to praise the LORD withal, and then they were to observe it, as soon as possible; so the Command that they should observe the Year of Jubilee, did not fix it to the first Year of their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, because it might be hinder'd by some particular Accidents. However they were oblig'd by this Command to observe it as soon as possible; and how it was observ'd, will (as I suppose) appear by the following Computation.

38. The Jubilee, being a Year of Rest and Mirth, could not be observ'd, before they had conquer'd a great Part of the Land, and had receiv'd visible Tokens of GOD's future Favours, which they could depend on. But this was the Work of seven Summers, before (i) they began to divide the Land. This appears from the Age of Caleb. The Israelites came out of Egypt in the Year of the World 2513. At the latter End of the Summer, in the following Year, or the Year 2514, when (k) Grapes were fully ripe, Moses sends (l) twelve Men, and (m) Caleb among them, to spy out the Land of Canaan. When Joshua began to divide the Land,

Caleb gives (n) this Account of himself, Forty years old was I, when Moses the servant of the LORD sent me to spy out the land. And now behold, the LORD hath kept me alive, as he said, these forty and five years, ever since the LORD spake this word unto Moses, whilst the children of Israel wandered in the wilderness, and now lo, I am this day fourscore and five years old. So that if to the Year of the World 2514, when the Spies were sent, we add these five and forty Years, it brings us to the Year 2559, when Joshua began to divide the Land, and consequently there were seven Summers in the Land of Canaan, before these Wars were fully ended. In this Space of Time they had (o) conquer'd one and thirty Kings in all; twenty of whom were conquer'd, before (p) Joshua and all Israel with him returned to the camp to Gilgal to observe the Jubilee, as (q) will be soon mention'd. For (r) when Jabin king of Hazor heard that Joshua had retreated to Gilgal, he sent to the king of Madon, the king of Shimron-meron, and the king of Achishaph to join with him against the Israelites, who accordingly (s) were the 21st, 22d, 23d, and 24th among those that were conquer'd. So that the Story runs thus: In the Julian Year of the World 2553, in the Spring, the Israelites pass over Jordan, upon which they (t) keep the Passover in Gilgal. After this they (u) proceed to take Jericho. Upon this, when (x) they expected the same Success, they were smitten at Ai, so that the hearts of the people melted, and became as water. This made Joshua rent his clothes, fall upon the earth, and put up a bitter Lamentation before the ark of the LORD, whilst the Elders of Israel had Dust upon their Heads, and GOD told them, that the People were accursed, neither would he be with them any more, except they destroyed the accursed from among them. Upon their Performance of what GOD requir'd (y) Ai was taken; but the Consideration, that they had been accursed, must abate their Joy. So that this seems to be all which happen'd in this Summer's Campaign. In the following Winter the Gibeonites (z) by Craft obtain a League, and the Princes of the Congregation swore to them to let them live, and asked not counsel from the mouth of the LORD. And it being contrary to the many express Commands of GOD, that they should destroy all the People of the Land, it gave the whole Congregation too just an Occasion to murmur against the Princes, and was the Original of all the Misfortunes which happen'd to them in future Ages from the Natives of the Land. So that the Season of this Year for the Observing of the Jubilee passed off without any sufficient Ground for such a Solemnity, and only the Kings of Jericho and Ai seem to be conquer'd in the Year 2553. When (a) the neighbouring Kings heard of this, they enter'd into a Combination the next Spring to fight against Joshua. And so (b) the King of Jerusalem, and four more Kings in Confederacy with him, resolve to destroy the Gibeonites, for the League which they had made, and accordingly besiege the Town. They send to Joshua to succour them. GOD himself encourages Joshua, and promises him Success. And after the Battle GOD cast down great Stones from Heaven upon them, and slew more in this Manner, than those which the Israelites slew with the Sword. This was succeeded by another Miracle, the like whereof never happen'd before nor since; for the Sun stood still a whole Day to give an Opportunity for the Israelites to gain a complete Victory. Such visible Tokens of GOD's Favour were attended with fresh Successes. (c) Seven Kings and their Cities, and their Land, were (d) conquer'd one after another at one time, in one Year or Campaign, even the second Year after their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, or the Julian Year of the World 2554, because the LORD GOD of Israel fought for Israel. So that nine Kings were conquer'd in the second Year. In the third Year, or Year 2555, they conquer (e) eleven more Kings, which are mention'd in their Order in the Catalogue. And (f) then Joshua returned, and all Israel with him to the camp to Gilgal. Then was the Time, when (g) they seem'd to enjoy a settl'd Peace, and none moved his tongue against the children of Israel; for they had conquer'd all the southern Parts of the Land of Canaan. Now it seems strange, that after such visible Tokens of Success, Joshua did not press forward at least toward the Sea-Coasts, but return'd to the Camp to Gilgal, which was the Place where he first pitch'd; when he came over Jordan, and that he should bring all Israel thither with him. But the Reason seems to be this, That he having now a Time of Peace and visible Tokens of GOD's Favour, was willing in the Month Tisri, or the following Autumn, to retire to such a Place, where he might observe the Jubilee, and accordingly did observe it that Year. The next Year, or Year 2556, the Sabbatical Year began, which lasted until the Autumn in the Year 2557; so that these two Years seem to be Years of little or no Action. However having in the former Years conquer'd all the south Country, he proceeds in the following Spring, in the Year 2558, toward the North, conquering the (b) eleven Kings, whose Cities lay in the Tribes of Ephraim, Manasseh and Zebulun, which employ'd him that Summer, and Part of the next; and so in the Year 2559, he proceeds to divide the Land, at which Time Calcb was fourscore and five Years old, as is before mention'd.

39. As for the Year of Jubilee, it came only once in fifty Years, as (i) Ainsworth observes, and to which (k) Bishop Patrick seems to incline. The first of these expressly saith, That the Year of fifty Years means the fiftieth Year. So that they are mistaken, who count every nine and fortieth Year to be the Jubilee. That nine and fortieth Year was the seventh seven, the ordinary Sabbath, and the Year of Rest; and the Year following was the Jubilee, even the fiftieth Year, and thus two holy Years came together. And thus (saith he) the Hebrew Canons declare it. Maimonides (l) saith, The Year of Jubilee comes not in the Account of the Years of the seven; but the nine and fortieth is the Release, and the fiftieth is the Jubilee, and the one and fiftieth Year begins the six Years of the seven following, and so in every Jubilee. And Rabbi Menahem (m) is much to the same Purpose, The nine and fortieth Year is the Year of Release; and after it is the Jubilee in the fiftieth Year. This is true, when the Sabbatical Years and the Years of Jubilee began together (which is the only particular Case that they mention) and serves in all other Cases to fix the Sabbatical Years to seven Years, or seven Sabbatical Periods to nine and forty Years; and the Year of Jubilee to be always not the nine and fortieth but the fiftieth Year.

40. Thus we find, that our SAVIOUR was born in the Year of Jubilee; and that the Types both of the Day and Year do answer exactly with the Antitype. And as the Year of our SAVIOUR'S Crucifixion (as plac'd in these Tables) is demonstrated from the Sabbatical Year; so the Year of his Birth is also demonstrated from the Year of Jubilee.

CHAP. V.

A Journal from the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, to their Entrance into the Land of Canaan.

THE Time of the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, and the Distance from thence to their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, being thus fix'd; and also the Sabbatical Years and the Year of Jubilee being thus settl'd, as certain Epochas to compute by, like the Olympiads among the Greeks, and the Indiction among the Romans; I shall now subjoin a Journal of the Scripture History from the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, to their Entrance into the Land of Canaan. And for this Purpose it is necessary to compute the Beginning of the second Year after their Departure out of Egypt, which was in the Year of the World 2514, and the Beginning of the Year before their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, which was in the Year of the World 2552.

2. As to the first of these, it appears by (a) Calculation, that the Sun came to the vernal Equinox on the fourth Day of April; that on the twelfth Day of April following, the Difference of the oblique Descension of the Sun and Moon was 14 Deg. 37 Min. and therefore the Moon was visible in that Evening, and consequently the thirteenth Day of April was the first Day of the new Year, according to the Jewish Account. The Julian Period was also 3219, which being divided by 28, the Remainder is 27 for the Cycle of the Sun, and shews that the Jewish Sabbatical Letter for that Year was A, and the Dominical Letter was B.

3. As to the second, or the Year of the Israelites Entrance into Canaan, it appears also by (b) Calculation, that in that Year the Sun also came to the vernal Equinox on the fourth Day of April, and that on the eleventh Day of April following, the Difference of the oblique Descension of the Sun and Moon was 12 Deg. 11 Min. which makes it very uncertain, whether the Moon was visible at that Time or not, and the Negative is most probable, they being not curious in their Observations, and pitching on the east Side of Mount Horeb, so that they could not so plainly discern the Moon at her Setting. And consequently the thirteenth Day of April was the first Day of the new Year, according to the Jewish Account. The Julian Period was also 3257, which being divided by 28, the Remainder is 9 for the Cycle of the Sun, and shews, that the Jewish Sabbatical Letter for that Year was B, and the Dominical Letter was C.

The Sabbathical Rest is dispensed with on this Day, as to be abolish'd, Exod. 12. Num. 33. 3. The Wave Sheaf was appointed to be offer'd on this Day, being always the Sunday after the Passover. This was a Type of CHRIST's Rising from the Dead on that Day, who was the first Fruits of them that slept, 1 Cor. 15. 20. and by whom all the rest were sanctify'd and made acceptable to GOD. This was the Δευτερόπρωτον, or the second Sabbath after the first, Luke 6. 1. and was the first Day from whence the Feast of Weeks began, and the Day of Pentecost was counted, Acts 2. 1. 14	f	18	The fourth Day of unleavened Bread, and toward the Feast of Pentecost. It was now told Pharaoh that the People fled, Exod. 14. 5. For till their third Day's March they went strait forward toward Horeb; where GOD at first appear'd unto Moses, Exod. 3. 1. according as they had desir'd to go three Days Journey into the Wilderness to sacrifice to GOD, Exod. 3. 18. Exod. 5. 3. and Exod. 8. 17. But when they turn'd out of that Way toward the Red-Sea, then Pharaoh had Intelligence, that they intended to go to some other Place, beside that which they had ask'd Leave to go to. Thereupon Pharaoh and the Egyptians prepare to pursue them for their Jewels, and to bring them back again into their former Slavery.
15	g	19	The fifth Day of unleaven'd Bread, and toward the Feast of Pentecost. The Egyptians pursue the Israelites, Exod. 14. 5, 6, 7, &c.

30	C	4	lowing the Jewish Sabbath in the Passover Week, Deut. 16. 9, 10, 11, 12. Levit. 23. 15 to 22. The Feast of Weeks begins, which lasts seven Days. On this Day GOD delivers the Law from Mount Sinai; and on this Day the Apostles were afterward inspir'd to preach the Gospel. This happen'd on the twenty fourth Day of May, being ten Days after our SAVIOUR's Ascension into Heaven; so that the Antitype and the Type happen'd in the same Week of the Julian Year, the one at the Beginning, and the other near the End. And consequently it was also remarkable, that the Jewish Passover happen'd at the same Time of the Year with our SAVIOUR's Crucifixion, and that the Jewish Passover ended one Week, and the Antemosaic Sabbath soon after began another. These things were thus fore-ordain'd by him, who is the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the Ending, the First and the Last, who always had the Times and the Seasons in his own Power, and hath order'd the Motions of the Heavens so to correspond thereunto, even from the Foundation of the World, that we may say with Admiration, Oh the depths of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of GOD! How unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out!
31	d	5	Moses builds an Altar to represent CHRIST, and sets up twelve Pillars to represent the twelve Tribes. He offers Sacrifices, sprinkles the Blood, and makes a Covenant between God and the People, Exod. 24. 1 to 9. The People being thus sanctified, Moses and Aaron with Nadab and Abihu, and seventy of the Elders of Israel, go up into the Mount, see the LORD, and eat and drink before him, and he lays not his avenging Hand upon them, Exod. 24. 9, 10, 11. The second Day of the Feast.

3	g	8	The fifth Day of the Feast.
4	a	9	The sixth Day of the Feast.
5	B	10	The last Day of the Feast, which was always on the Day of the Jewish Sabbath. The Glory of the LORD abode upon Mount Sinai during these six last Days of the Feast of Weeks, or of Pentecost, Exod. 24. 15, 16. And for this Reason this was a solemn Feast, even one of the three which lasted seven Days, one in Commemoration of the Law being deliver'd, and the other six in Commemoration of the Glory of GOD appearing for so many Days after.
6	C	11	This Day being the Day of the Week with the Christian Sabbath, Moses goes up into the Mount to receive the two Tables of Stone, Exod. 24. 12, 13, 14. so that Aaron and the Elders depart from him, and only Joshua stays at some Distance. At this Time he not only receives the Law; but on the Day of the Christian Sabbath he begins to receive Directions for Making the Tabernacle, Exod. chap. 25. 26, 27. which was a Type of the Incarnation of JESUS CHRIST, who was made flesh, Καὶ ἐσκήνωσεν ἐν ἡμῖν, and placed his Tabernacle among us, John 1. 14. and was born, and rose from the Dead on the same Day of the Week. And now Moses begins his Fast of forty Days and forty Nights, Exod. 24. 18. Deut. 9. 9.

12	d	17	This Day the Jews observe as a Day of Fasting, because they reckon, that on this Day Moses broke the two Tables of Stone; so that they compute it three Days sooner than the real Time.
15	g	20	Now at the End of the forty Days past, Moses comes down from the Mount, destroys the golden Calf, and breaks the two Tables of Stone, which GOD had given him.
16	a	21	On this Day Moses arms the Tribe of Levi, who kill three thousand of the principal Idolaters, Exod. 32. 25 to 30.
17	B	22	This being the Day of the Jewish Sabbath, Moses spends it in Prayer to GOD for the Israelites, Exod. 32. 30 to the End.
19	d	24	About this Time the People are plagued for their Idolatry, Exod. 32. 35.
20	e	25	GOD refuseth to go with the People, for which they mourn, and lay aside their Ornaments, Exod. 33. 1 to 7.
21	f	26	The Tent of Moses (which hitherto had been instead of a Sanctuary) is remov'd out of the unclean Camp. And then the Cloud of Glory, which had been taken away because of their Idolatry, is restor'd, Exod. 33. 7, 8, 9, 10.

25	B	2	The Sabbath is observ'd.

6	f	13	The Offerings are view'd, Exod. 36. 1, 2, 3, 4.
7	g	14	The People are restrain'd from Offering, Exod. 36. 5, 6, 7. And if Moses brought with him the Pattern, which was shewed him in the mount, Exod. 25. 9, 4. Acts 7. 44. Heb. 8. 5. it might now be shewn to the Workmen.
8	a	15	The Feast of Tabernacles is now observ'd, as before commanded, Exod. 23. 14, 15, 16, 17. Levit. 23. 33 to the End. Num. 29. 12 to the End. Deut. 16. 13 to 18 , which must be kept with great Joy, as a Preparation for their Building a Tabernacle for their GOD to dwell among them.
9	B	16	The Jewish Sabbath is observ'd.
10	C	17	The Tabernacle, (a Type of CHRIST, who ἐσκήνωσεν ἐν ἡμῖν, fix'd his Tabernacle among us, John 1. 14. ) is begun to be built on the same Day of the Week, which we observe in Commemoration of the Antitype. And so they continue to work until the End of the Year, the Sabbath Days only excepted. It is remarkable, that among the Commands of GOD for Doing this Work, the Command for Observing the Sabbath is frequently injoin'd, Exod. 31. 15, 17. Exod. 34. 21, and Exod. 35. 2. So that GOD hereby declar'd, that all other Commands should give Place to this. Neither did the divine Wisdom think it proper, that on the Day of the Week, in which CHRIST was afterward dead, and rested in the Grave, the Jews should be employ'd in Building any other Place for his Reception.

A Journal of the remarkable Occurrences in the second Year after the Israelites went out of Egypt. Anno Mundi 2514.

N. B. At the End of the last Year the Moon chang'd on the eleventh Day of April, and the Jewish Sabbatical Letter for this Year is A. On the twelfth Day of April in the Evening, the Distance of the Moon from the Sun was such, as render'd it very uncertain, whether she was visible or not, and the negative was most probable, the Moon being then so near her Apogaeum, and their Observation at that Time not being exact. If so, then the Moon being first visible on the thirteenth in the Evening, the Year must begin on the fourteenth Day.
April	Nisan.	1	f	1 The Tabernacle is set up, Exod. 40. 1, 2, 17.
14	Sab. Let.	2	g	2 On this Day it is probable, that GOD spake to the Israelites from the Tabernacle and gave them in Charge that Part of the Levitical Law in Chap. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7. and to consecrate Aaron and his Sons for the Priest's Office, Levit. 8. 1, 2, 3. And thus the ceremonial Law was given to the Israelites from the Tabernacle on the same Day of the Week, in which it was fulfill'd by CHRIST, when he offer'd up his Body as a Sacrifice for us.
15		3	A	3 Aaron and his Sons are consecrated accordingly. The first Day of their Consecration begins on the Day of the Jewish Sabbath, and the last Day of their Consecration ended on the same Day of the Week; for it lasted eight Days, Exod. 29. 29, 30, 35, 36, 37. Levit. 8. 33, 34, 35, 36. And as the Consecration of Aaron lasted a Jewish Week from Sabbath to Sabbath; so we Christians observe a Week from Sunday to Sunday, even the Whitsun Week, in Commemoration of the Inspiration of the Apostles, and Setting them apart by a more glorious Consecration to begin the Church of CHRIST.
16		4	B	4 The second Day of Consecration, Levit. 8. 33, 34, 35, 36. Exod. 29. 29, 30, 35, 36, 37.
17		5	c	5 The third Day of Consecration, Levit. 8. 33, 34, 35, 36. Exod. 29. 29, 30, 35, 36, 37.
18		6	d	6 The fourth Day of Consecration, Levit. 8. 33, 34, 35, 36. Exod. 29. 29, 30, 35, 36, 37.
19		7	e	7 The fifth Day of Consecration, Levit. 8. 33, 34, 35, 36. Exod. 29. 29, 30, 35, 36, 37.
20		8	f	8 The sixth Day of Consecration, Levit. 8. 33, 34, 35, 36. Exod. 29. 29, 30, 35, 36, 37.
21		9	g	9 The seventh Day of Consecration, Levit. 8. 33, 34, 35, 36. Exod. 29. 29, 30, 35, 36, 37.
22		10	A	10 The eighth Day of Consecration, Levit. 9. 1. Aaron offers for himself and the People, Levit. 9. On this Day Nadab and Abihu offered strange fire before the LORD, and were burnt, Levit. 10. 1, 2. That it was on this Day appears; since on this Day they offered the Goat, Levit. 9. 3, 15. which was burnt, because on this Day such things had befallen to Aaron, that he was not fit to eat thereof, Levit. 10. 16, 17, 18, 19, 20. And thus the Service of the Sanctuary began by Accident with Death and Judgment. The Lamb is taken up, and set apart for the Passover, Exod. 12. 3. Num. 9. 1, 2.
23		11	B	11 On this Day, and the remaining Days of the Month, the rest of the Levitical Laws are given. Compare Leviticus with Num. 1. 1.
24		12	c	12 The Passover is observ'd in this second Month by the Command of GOD, Num. 9. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. occasion'd by some Persons being unclean, and declaring their Condition in the former Month, as was before-mention'd, Num. 9. 6 to 15. Here was a new Dispensation, and a Matter of very great Moment. For the Translation of that Feast a Month beyond its proper Time, did more eminently enforce the Significancy of things future than of things past, and rather recorded the Death of CHRIST to come, than their Deliverance out of Egypt, when it happen'd not to be on the same Night.

A Continuation of TABLE the Thirty Eighth.

Anno Mundi 2514.

May.	Sub. Let.	Day.
14	A	1	The Sabbath is observ'd. And GOD on this Occasion speaks to Moses from the Tabernacle, and commands him to number the People, and set up their Standards accordingly, Num. 1. 1.
15	B	2	The People are number'd, and their Standards are set up, Num. chap. 1. And their Encampments are settled according to Order, Num. chap. 2. And the Jewish Church becomes most glorious on the Day of the Christian Sabbath.
16	c	3	The Princes offer their Gifts to the Sanctuary, Num. 7. That they offer'd not until their Standards were set up, is evident by Comparing the Method of both, Num. 2 and 7. Nahshon the Son of Aminidab of the Tribe of Judah (from whom David and our blessed SAVIOUR descended, Ruth. 4. 20. ) offer'd first, Num. 7. 12.

21	A	8	The Sabbath is observ'd.
22	B	9	Eliasaph of the Tribe of Gad offers on the sixth Day, Num. 7. 42.
23	c	10	Elisama of the Tribe of Ephraim offers on the seventh Day, Num. 7. 48. They who were unclean in the first Month now set apart the Lamb for the Passover, Num. 9. 6 to 15.
24	d	11	Gamaliel of the Tribe of Manasseh offers on the eighth Day, Num. 7. 54.
25	e	12	Abidan of the Tribe of Benjamin offers on the ninth Day, Num. 7. 60.
26	f	13	Ahiezer of the Tribe of Dan offers on the tenth Day, Num. 7. 66.
27	g	14	Pagiel of the Tribe of Asher offers on the eleventh Day, Num. 7. 72. They who were unclean in the first Month now keep the Passover, Num. 9. 6 to 15.
28	A	15	The Sabbath is observ'd.
29	B	16	Ahira of the Tribe of Naphtali offers on the twelfth Day, Num. 7. 78. So that upon the Day of the Christian Sabbath all the Offerings are compleated.
30	c	17	On or about this Day, Jethro or Hobab , Moses's Father-in-Law, comes to visit him, Exod. 18. The Reasons for Fixing the Story about this Time are these: First, It is said, Exod. 18. 12. that Jethro took Burnt-Offerings and Sacrifices for GOD. But the Law for Burnt-Offerings and Sacrifices was not yet given, Exod. 10. 26. And by the Law they were to be brought to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, Levit. 1. 3. and to Aaron and his Sons, Levit. 1. 5. who could not officiate until after their Consecration in the former Month. Secondly, It is said, Exod. 18. 13, 16. that Moses sat to judge the people, and made them know the statutes of GOD, and his laws. Now the Moral Law cannot be meant hereby; for that was given in such a Manner, that they all knew it; but it was the Ceremonial Law, which GOD spake to Moses from the Tabernacle, Levit. 1. 1, 2. and commanded him to declare it to the Children of Israel. Thirdly, The Chusing of Judges and Elders, which was by Jethro's Counsel, Exod. 18. 17, to the End, was not till their Departure from Sinai , Deut. 1. 7, 8. This Counsel was given by Jethro immediately upon his Coming to Moses , Exod. 18. 13, &amp;c. and it was so near to their Departure from Sinai , which is mention'd, Num. 10. 11. that it seems, some Warning of their Departure thence was given them before, Deut. 1. 6, 7, 8, &amp;c. Fourthly, The Murmuring of Aaron and Miriam against Zipporah Moses's Wife (who without Doubt was brought thither with her Children by her Father) is set after their Departure from Sinai , Num. 12. and this in all Probability was upon her first Coming among them, and their first Conversation with her, or soon after. Fifthly, The Departure of Jethro or Hobab from the Israelites at Sinai , Num. 10. 29, 30, 31, 32, is set so near the Place, where this Story is laid, that only a few Verses come between. To this it may be objected, That in Exodus chap. 18. the Story is mention'd, before the Israelites came to Sinai. But the Reason of this will appear by Looking back upon the Curse, which GOD denounc'd against Amalek , Exod. 17. 14, 15, 16. GOD will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven: And the LORD hath sworn, that the LORD will have war with Amalek from generation to generation. Now that the HOLY GHOST might shew, that Jethro , who dwelt among the Amalekites , 1 Sam. 15. 16. Judg. 4. 11, 17. Num. 10. 29. did not fall under this Curse, he brings in the Story of his Coming into Israel , and Making his Peace with GOD, in the very next Place after the Curse is related; not thereby to conclude strictly, that his Coming was at that very Time, as soon as the Curse was pronounc'd, but to shew, that he once came, and so avoided the Curse.

June.	1	e	19	Jethro gives Moses Counsel to choose Judges, Exod. 18. 13 to 24.
	2	f	20	The Cloud ascends from the Tabernacle, to give Notice of Travelling to the Israelites , Num. 10. 11.
	3	g	21	This Day the People prepare to travel by Setting the Standards and the Tribes in their Order, and Appointing the Levites to their particuiar Charges, Num. 10. 14 to 29. Moses desires his Father-in-Law to go with him, Num. 10. 29, 30, 31, 32. which he refuseth, and goes home, Exod. 18. 27.
	4	A	22	The Sabbath is observ'd.
	5	B	23	The Israelites travel, Num. 10. 33.

	7	d	25	The Israelices encamp at Taberah , Num. 11. 3. which is also call'd Kibroth battaavah , or, The Graves of those who lusted , Num. 11. 34. Num. 33. 16. Here they murmur for Want of Flesh, and are plagued, Num. 11. which Murmuring seems to be on the following Sabbath, and an Act of the whole Congregation, Num. 11. 4.
	11	A	29	This therefore was the Sabbath Day, in which they murmur'd.
Anno Mundi 2514.
June.	13	c	1	The Quails are now sent for a whole Month, Num. 11. 20. And therefore there being no Mention made of them at this Time in any other Place, it is most probable, that the Israelites continu'd at Kibroth battaavah for this whole Month; so that there is nothing else remarkable.
Anno Mundi 2514.
July.	13	c	1	The Quails are sent no longer. About this Time the Israelites come to Hazeröth , Num. 11. 35. Num. 13. 17. Aaron and Miriam speak against Moses, and vilify his Wife Zipporah, whom Jethro brought to him at Sinai, Num. 12. Miriam is shut out of the Camp for seven Days, which hinders them from Marching, Num. 12. 15.
	24	b	12	About this Time they march and come to Rithmah , Num. 33. 18. in the Wilderness of Paran , Num. 12. 16. which is also call'd Kadesh and Kadesh-barnea , Num. 13. 26. Num. 32. 8. Deut. 1. 9. It was first call'd Rithmah , Num. 33. 18. compar'd with Num. 12. 16. and Num. 13. 26. and perhaps it was so call'd from many Juniper-Trees, which grew there, as 1 Kings 19. 4. but now call'd Kadesh , because the LORD was there sanctify'd before the People, and Barnea , or The wandering Son , or a People who deserv'd to wander ; because the Decree for their long Wandering in the Wilderness was made here.
Anno Mundi 2514.
August.	7	b	26	About this Time the twelve Spies are sent to view the Land of Canaan , Num. 13. Num. 32. 8, 9. Deut. 1. 19 to the End, and return at the End of forty Days, Num. 13. 25. so that nothing remarkable happen'd in the next Month Ab .
Anno Mundi 2514.
September.	16	g	6	The Spies return on the Evening before the Sabbath, at the End of forty Days, and bring with them a Bunch of Grapes , and also Pomegranates and Figs , Num. 13. 23, 24. which they might well do, even in the Beginning of this sixth Month, because the former Year being an Embolimæan Year made the Months happen the later, and the Sun on this Day was in $\text{æ} 9$ , as it is about the twenty second Day of August in this Age of the World. And the Grapes are fully ripe sooner in that Climate, than they are in these more northern Parts.
	17	A	7	The next Day being the Sabbath, the whole Congregation murmur, Num. 14. 1, 2, 3. and are therefore sentenc'd to wander forty Years in the Wilderness, until they were all destroy'd, Num. 14. 22 to 40. In Memory whereof the Jews have since observ'd the seventh Day of the Month Elul for an annual Fast.
As

As the Israelites continu'd three hundred seventy one Days near Mount Sinai, according as (a) it appears in the Margin by Computing from (b) the Day when they came thither, Anno Mundi 2513 (the Year consisting of thirteen Months, or 384 Days) to (c) the Day when the Cloud gave them Notice of their Departure thence; so they continu'd three hundred and seventy one Days at Kadesh-barnea: and consequently as they came thither on the twenty fourth Day of July, or on the twelfth Day of the Month Tammuz, Anno Mundi 2514, which Year consisted of 354 Days; so they departed thence on the thirtieth Day of July, or the twenty ninth Day of the Month Tammuz, Anno Mundi 2515. And as the Sabbatical Letter for that Year was G, and for the Year before was A; so it is evident, that they began their Rest there, and their March from thence (as usual) on the Day after the Sabbath. That they staid so long at Kadesh-barnea, appears from the Words of Moses, (d) So ye abode at Kadesh many days, according to the days that ye abode there, or as long as they had before stay'd at (e) Horeb, which (f) is the same with Sinai. So that they spent the same Quantity of Time, or Number of Days in each Place.

Anno Mundi 2552.

2. In the first Day (as it is most probable) of the first Month which began the fortieth Year of the Israelites Travels in the Wilderness, they come to (g) Kadesh. This was a Kadesh in (h) the Wilderness of Sin, toward (i) Eziongeber and the Red-Sea, and was (k) the thirty third Place where they encamp'd, and it was not Kadesh-barnea, where they had been before, and which (l) was situate near the South-Coast of the Land of Canaan, and was call'd (m) Rithmah by Moses. In (n) the Text it is said, that the Israelites came to the desert of Zin to Kadesh in the first month, but it names not the Year; for it refers to the Decree made of their forty Years Wandering, and this was the first Month of the fortieth Year, as it is more clearly express'd in (o) other Places. And therefore tho' the Occurrences, which happen'd in all this former Space, cannot be fix'd to a certain Chronological Order; yet we find, that of the (p) two and forty Journeys in the Wilderness, (q) fifteen were ended in the third Summer, the (r) nine last were perform'd in the last Year, and there remains six and thirty Years for the other eighteen, or about the Space of two Years for each Journey. However, many Particulars of the last Year in the Wilderness, and the first in the Land of Canaan, may be mention'd with a greater Exactness, as appears in the following Table.

If it be ask'd, How the same Mountain came to be call'd both Horeb and Sinai ? To this it is answer'd by Dr. Lightfoot, Vol. 1. Page 711. That this Hill had two Names, and (as Bellonius saith) two Tops. The one Side of it was call'd Horeb , or dry, barren Ground, from the rocky Drought of it, being utterly void of Water. The other was call'd Sinai or Bushes, from the Bushes and Brambles, which grew upon it, in one of which Moses saw the LORD in a Flame of Fire. Perhaps the whole Mountain was antiently call'd Horeb , Exod. 3. 1. and it was never call'd Sinai , until the Children of Israel came thither, Exod. 16. 1. after their Departure out of Egypt, when Moses shew'd them the Bushes where GOD appear'd, and put them in Mind of the Promise given, Exod. 3. 12. That when he had brought the people out of Egypt, they should serve GOD upon this mountain. (g) Num. 20. 1. (h) Num. 20. 14, 15. (i) Num. 33. 36. Deut. 2. 8. (k) Num. 33. 36. (l) Num. 34. 4. 22	g	10	This Day Miriam is suppos'd to have died, Num. 20. 1. since the Jews on this Day observe a yearly Fast in Commemoration hereof. She was the Sister of Moses and Aaron both by Father and Mother, Num. 26. 59. 1 Chron. 6. 3. Her Age is uncertain, but it appears, that she was much older than Moses or Aaron , because Exod. 2. 4. when Moses was laid in the River, she stood at some Distance to observe what might happen. It is probable, that they might mourn for Miriam seven Days, according to Custom, Gen. 50. 10. This was also the Time, that she was shut formerly out of the Camp, Num. 12. 14, 15. and if so, then

C H A P. V.

The History of the WORLD.

AFTER Pharaoh Amenophis was drown'd in the Red-Sea, his Son Sesostris succeeded him in the Kingdom of Lower-Egypt. His Acts both at home and abroad, as they are related by Heathen Historians, exceeded all others in any Part of the World, and even those of Alexander the Great; and yet Authors differ prodigiously concerning the Time of his Reign. Eusebius (a) out of Africanus, and he out of Manetho the Egyptian Priest, makes him very antient by Placing him in the twelfth Dynasty, and afterward Moses in the eighteenth. Sir Walter Raleigh (b) places his Death about an hundred and twenty Years before the Deliverance of the Israelites out of Egypt. Sir John Marsham (c) reckons Sesostris to be the same with Shishak in the Time of Rehoboam; but then he and Eusebius confute themselves by Placing Danaus the Brother of Sesostris about the Time of the Departure out of Egypt. Sir John Marsham's Opinion being follow'd by none, and learnedly confuted by (d) Bishop Cumberland, was again reviv'd by the late Sir Isaac Newton, without taking the least Notice of the Arguments by which it was confuted. And therefore I rather chose to follow (e) our learned Prelate, who makes his Coming to the Throne to be immediately upon the Passage of the Israelites thro' the Red-Sea. The (f) Greek Historian saith, that after his Birth his Father perform'd a noble Act, and becoming a King. He caus'd all throughout all Egypt, who were near of the same Age with his Son, and especially those who were born the same Day with him, to the Number of seventeen hundred in all, to be brought together, and to have the same Education, and be instructed in the same Discipline and Exercises with his Son, supposing that by being thus most familiarly acquainted, and conversing one with another, they would be always most loving and faithful Friends, and the best fellow Soldiers in all the Wars. Providing therefore every thing for his Purpose, he caus'd the Boys to be exercis'd daily in the Schools with hard and difficult Labours, as that none should eat till he had run an hundred and fourscore Furlongs, or two and twenty measur'd Miles and an half.

And by this Means, when they were of a fit Age, they were capable either to be Commanders, or to undertake any brave or noble Action both in Respect of the Vigour and Strength of their Bodies, and the excellent Qualifications of their Minds. There are some, who write, that at the Time of his Birth, Vulcan appear'd to his Father in his Sleep, and told him, that the Child then born should conquer the whole World, and that this was the Reason, why his Father assembled so many of the like Age, and bred them up together with his Son to make Way for him to rise with more Ease to that Height of Imperial Dignity; and that when he was grown to Man's Estate, he fully believing what had been foretold, undertook those Expeditions, which are reported of him. In the first Place he was sent with an Army into Arabia by his Father, and his Companions, who were bred up with him, and attended him at the same Time, where they endur'd great Fatigues in Hunting and Killing of wild Beasts, and after that having overcome all his great Labours, Toils and Troubles, as also the Want both of Water and Provision in that desert Country, he conquer'd all that rude and barbarous Nation, which was never before subdued, as not being inhabited in the Time of Nimrod and Semiramis. And the Killing of those wild Beasts was a particular Providence, which made the Israelites afterward travel with less Difficulty and Danger in those Countries. After this it is said, that he was sent into the western Parts, where he conquer'd the greatest Part of Lybia, being as yet but a Youth. If this Account can be depended on, it is probable, that he was concern'd in this Expedition, when the News was brought him that his Father and his whole Army were drown'd in the Red-Sea, and therefore he left the Rest of Libya untouch'd, and came back with his whole Army into Egypt to secure to himself the Government of that Kingdom. When he return'd, he found the Country in a lamentable Condition. The Israelites, who were their Slaves, were gone from them. All the veteran Soldiers were lost with their Arms, Chariots and Horses, the first-born in every Family were all slain in one Night, their Cattle were kill'd with Siculus lib. 1. cap. 4. where he begins his History of him with these Words, Seven Descents after Miris they say Sesooxis (or Sesostris) reign'd, who excell'd all his Ancestors in great and famous Actions. But not only the Greek Writers differ about this King; but likewise the Egyptian Priests and Poets relate various and different Stories concerning him. We shall relate such as are most probable, and agreeable to those Signs and Marks, which are yet remaining in Egypt to confirm them.

the Murrain, their Fruit destroy'd first by the Lightning and Hail, and then by the Locusts, which had eaten up every green thing upon the Face of the Earth, so that nothing but a Famine could be expected. In this lamentable Posture of Affairs at home, Sesostris prepares for an Expedition abroad, thinking that it could not be worse, and hoping that it might be better, and encourag'd by his former Successes he undertakes to subdue and conquer the whole World. Some report, that he was stirr'd up by his Daughter Atbyrte to attempt an universal Monarchy. For being a Woman of an extraordinary Understanding, she made it out to her Father, that the Conquest was easy. And others encourag'd him by their Divinations, foretelling his Successes by the Intrails of the Sacrifices, by their Dreams in the Temples, and Prodigies seen in the Air. For this Purpose he made it his chief Concern to gain the Love and good Will of all the Egyptians, judging it necessary in order to effect what he design'd, so far to engage his Soldiers, as that they should readily and willingly venture their Lives for their Generals, and that they whom he should leave behind him, should not contrive, nor hatch any Rebellion in his Absence. To this End he therefore oblig'd every one to the utmost of his Power, working upon some by Money, upon others by Giving them Lands, and upon many more by free Pardons, and upon all Occasions by fair Words, and an affable and courteous Behaviour. For he pardon'd those, who were condemn'd for High Treason, and freed all that were in Prison for Debt by Paying what they ow'd, of whom (g) there was a vast Multitude in the Goals. For (h) the Israelites borrowed of the Egyptians jewels of silver, and jewels of gold and raiment, and they lent unto them such things as they required, insomuch that they spoiled the Egyptians. This made the Creditors more exacting, and the Debtors less able to pay, and therefore the Liberality of Sesostris, and the Poverty of his Country, made him the sooner raise an Army. Upon this he resettl'd the antient Division of the Country into six and thirty Parts, which the Egyptians call'd Nomi or Provinces, and were first made by the Canaanitish Pastors at their Entrance into the Country; and over every one of these he appointed a Nomarchus or Governor, who should take Care of his Revenue in his Absence, and manage all other Affairs relating to their several and respective Provinces. Out of these he chose the strongest and ablest Men, and rais'd an Army answerable to the greatness of the Design, consisting (if the Historian may be credited) of six hundred thousand Foot, and twenty four thousand Horse, and twenty seven thousand Chariots of War. And over all the several Regiments he made those the principal Commanders, who had been brought up with him, being such as had been us'd to martial Exercises, and from their Childhood earnest and zealous to perform heroick Exploits, and were knit together as Brethren in Love and Affection both to the King and to one another; and upon these his Companions he bestow'd large Estates in Lands in the richest Parts of Egypt, that they might not be in the least Want of any thing, reserving only their Attendance upon him in the Wars.

2. Upon this (i) Sesostris constitutes his Brother Armais, who was also call'd Danaus, Lieutenant General of Egypt during his Absence, and vested him with all sovereign Powers and Privileges, the Wearing of the Crown excepted, and with a Caution not to oppress the Queen or her Family, nor to intermeddle with his Concubines; and so he proceeds in his Expedition.

3. In the mean Time the Dukes of (k) Edom finding that the Israelites had pass'd the Red-Sea, and were come into their Neighbourhood, chang'd their Form of Government, and chose a King, that they might the better defend themselves in Case of Necessity. For then (l) as Moses said, The dukes of Edom were amaz'd, and trembling took hold of the mighty men of Moab. The Name of this first King is not mention'd, but it is plain, that he was an able and a valiant General. He took the Advantage of (m) the Israelites after a long March, and kill'd several of those, who stay'd behind. He fought the Israelites (n) in a pitch'd Battle at Rephidim, and (o) prepar'd to attack them, when they only desir'd a Passage thro' his Country, and the Monarchy thus settl'd continu'd (p) to the Time of Jehoshaphat King of Israel, and we know not how much longer.

4. But Sesostris (q) having rendezvouz'd his Army, march'd first against the Ethiopians, who inhabited the south Country; and having conquer'd them, he forc'd them to pay him a Tribute of Ebony, Gold and Elephants Teeth. Then he sent forth a Navy of four hundred Sail into the Red-Sea, and was the first Egyptian, who built Ships resembling our modern Form; whereas before they were oblong and flat-bottom'd, and consequently not so fit for speedy Sailing. By the Help of this Fleet he gain'd all the Islands in those Parts, and subdu'd the bordering Nations as far as to India; but happening to come into a shallow Sea, and his Ships drawing more Water than usual, he either could not, or was afraid to go any farther, and so he return'd into Egypt. After this, upon Consulting the Priests, he recruited his Army, and march'd with them by Land into Asia. By this Time the Israelites had pass'd into the Deserts of Arabia, whither Sesostris was afraid to follow them, partly because he well knew the Barrenness of the Country, that there could not be a Subsistence for two such Multitudes, and the Israelites being first, must of course consume all the Provision, and chiefly because he knew what Miseries Egypt had so lately underwent for their Sakes; and dreading a miraculous Overthrow of himself and his whole Army, he had learn'd from his Father's Example to beware, and so he march'd directly into Canaan, and committed no Hostilities against the King of Edom, rather looking upon himself as oblig'd by that Nation for the Mischiefs, which they had so lately done to the Israelites, whom he look'd upon as his profess'd Enemies, tho he dar'd not to march after them.

5. In the mean Time the Canaanites had heard of the frequent Promises, which GOD gave to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, that their Seed should possess this Land, and at the Time appointed they should come forth out of Egypt, and destroy them all, and that they had in a miraculous Manner pass'd the Red-Sea for this Purpose, which put them in a terrible Consternation. They concluded, that if they weaken'd their Army by Engaging with the one, it would be an effectual Means of their being destroy'd by the other. They had Reason to expect their Lives if they submitted to the Egyptians, but had no Reason to expect even that, if they submitted to the Israelites, and were also in Hope of considerable Reinforcements from Egypt to protect them whenever there should be Occasion; and therefore the whole Country immediately submitted to Sesostris without the least Opposition. Upon this he places Governors in all the principal Towns, to collect an annual Tribute and send it to him, and also to raise Recruits as often as he should want them. These were (r) one and thirty in all, who in the Time of his Successor Busris the Tyrant set up every one for himself, which made them so much the weaker, and was the visible Cause of their being so easily destroy'd by Joshua one after another.

6. Sesostris flush'd with this Success (as the Historian tells us) without any Loss of Time marches forward with his whole Army, and conquers all Asia. For, (saith he) he

(s) not only invaded those Nations, which Alexander the Macedonian afterward subdu'd, but likewise those which he never set his Foot upon. For he both pass'd the River Ganges, and likewise pierc'd thro' all India to the main Ocean. Then he subdu'd the Scythians as far as to the River Tanais, which divides Europe from Asia. In the same Manner he brought into Subjection all the rest of Asia, and most of the Islands of the Cyclades. From thence he went into Thrace in Europe, and marching thro' the Deserts the Thracians endeavour'd to cut off his Retreat, insomuch that he was in Danger of Losing his whole Army, thro' the Difficulty of the Passages, and Want of Provision; and therefore putting a Stop to his Expedition in Thrace, he erected Pillars up and down in all his Conquests, whereon were inscrib'd in Egyptian Letters, call'd Hieroglyphicks, these Words:

7. Among those Nations, which were stout and warlike, he (t) carv'd such Representations upon the Pillars, which might shew their Valour; and among those Nations who made no Resistance he carv'd (u) such Representations, as might shew their Cowardise: And in some Places he set up his own Statue carv'd in Stone, with a Bow and a Lance, about four Cubits and four Hands in Height, of which Stature he himself was reported to be. Herodotus (x) reports the same Story, and adds, that the Army under his Command seems to have gone as far as Scythia and Thrace and no farther, because there are such Monuments in those Countries, and none beyond them, and that he himself had seen some of them in Syria or Palestina, or the Land of Canaan, which shew'd that at that Time they were an effeminate People; and that he saw two of them in Ionis, one in the Road from Ephesus to Phocæa, and the other in the Road from Sardis to Smyrna. There are some, who call him by the Name of Ægyptus, and (y) tell us, that Egypt, which was before call'd Aeria, took its Name from Ægyptus, who reign'd there, when Danaus was expell'd. Others call'd him Rameses, after the Name of his Grandfather, and from hence (z) Tacitus calls him Rhamses, and saith of him, that he conquer'd Africa, Ethiopia, Media and Persia, Bactria, Scythia, Syria, Armenia and Cappadocia, as far as the Bithynian Sea on the one side, and the Lycian Sea on the other. In all these Places we cannot find that he planted any new Colonies, except at the (a) Lake Mæotis by the River Tanais, where he gave an Original to the Nation of Colchis.

These

These the (b) learned Bochart proves to have come from Castubim, by the Affinity of the Name, only leaving out the Letter S, who was one of the Grandchildren of (c) Ham by Mizraim, and whose Posterity lay at the End of the Red-Sea, near the Borders of the Land of Canaan. This he proves, from the Testimony of (d) Apollonius in his Argonauticks, who saith, that the Inhabitants of Æa, the most antient City of Colchis, were brought thither by an Egyptian King, who, as the (e) Scholiast expressly tells us, was Sesonchosis or Sesostris. The same also is affirm'd by (f) Dionysius Periegetes, (g) Priscianus, (h) Festus Avienus, (i) Valerius Flaccus, (k) Herodotus, Diodorus Siculus, (l) Strabo and others. To these Testimonies may be added other Arguments, which the (m) learned Bochart hath more fully prov'd; as that the Inhabitants both of Colchis and Egypt were of a black Colour, and curl'd Hair; and for this Reason were frequently call'd Ethiopians. That Herodotus affirms, that the Inhabitants both of Colchis and Egypt were circumcis'd, not by a late Order, but from the Beginning, of which Sanchoniatho (n) gives us this Account, That Ham was circumcis'd, and forc'd his Auxiliaries to submit to the same; so that from Ham this Custom came into Egypt, (o) the Land of Ham, and from thence it came to Colchis. Both Nations work'd up Linen in the same Manner, and wore Linen Garments: They both worshipp'd the Sun; their most antient King Æætēs was said to have the Sun for his Father, and the same was affirm'd of the Egyptian Kings. At Phasis in Colchis there was the Picture of their tutelär Goddess, holding a Cymbal in one Hand with Lions under her Throne; and this was also the Representation of Isis in Egypt. In Colchis there was also a River call'd Isis, after her Name. Both Nations were studious of magick Arts, insomuch that in Egypt there were Jannes and Jambres, and in Colchis there were Circe and Medæa. The most famous Philosophers came antiently from Egypt; and Marsyas, as eminent as any of them, came from Colchis. Both Nations were famous for Geography, and a Map of the Conquests of Sesostris was originally preserv'd by both; neither of these Nations did offer Sheep for Sacrifices. And as the Posterity of Castubim lay nearest to the Land of Canaan, from whence they added many Words to their own Language; so they carried these Words with them into Colchis, of which this learned Author hath given us a surprizing Account.

8. During this grand Expedition of Sesostris abroad, his Brother Armais, or Danaus, acted the Tyrant at home, and (p) did just the contrary to what he should have done. He without any Difficulty or Scruple casts off the Allegiance, which he ow'd to his Brother, and sets up for himself. He expels the Queen, abuses the King's Concubines, and by the Advice and Assistance of his false Friends he takes the Crown, and resolves to maintain his Title by Force of Arms. The Egyptian High Priest gave notice to Sesostris from Time to Time of all these Indignities; who being now reduc'd to the last Difficulties, despairing of more Conquests, and fearing to lose all, if he stay'd abroad any longer, he march'd back with all Expedition into Egypt by the Way of Pelusium, and secures his Government.

9. In the mean Time (q) his Brother Danaus, having Notice of his Return from this great Expedition, feigns himself to be of another Temper, and meets him at Pelusium the frontier Town, before he could have a certain Account of this Matter from the Inhabitants of the Country. Here Danaus invites Sesostris to a great Feast, together with his Wife and Children, and under an open Shew of Friendship plots secretly against his Life; for being all overcome by Wine, and gone to Rest, he caus'd a great Quantity of dry Reeds, long before prepar'd for that Purpose, to be plac'd round the King's Pavilion in the Night, and to be all set on fire. The Flames quickly spread themselves all round, and the King had little Assistance either from his Servants or Lifeguard, who were all overcome with Wine. Upon this Sesostris, with his Hands lifted up to Heaven, calling upon the Gods for Help for his Wife and Children, rush'd with them thro' the Flames. Tho' it is also reported, that he waking and finding his Danger, consults with his Queen what to do in this Extremity, who adviseth him to throw two of his Children into the Flames, that they might be as a Bridge for all therest; which he did, and so they escap'd. And being thus unexpectedly preserv'd, he made Oblations to the rest of the Gods, but especially to Vulcan, as to him by whose Favour he was so remarkably deliver'd. He also on this Occasion plac'd at Memphis in the Temple of Vulcan his own and his Wife's Statues, each of one intire Stone, thirty Cubits in Height, and others for his Sons, which were twenty Cubits high. Upon this a War follows between the two Brothers, in which (*) Sesostris being Conqueror expels his Brother Danaus, who flees from Egypt into Greece, in a Ship of fifty Oars, which is said to be the first Ship of that Kind seen in that Country, especially in the Ægean Sea, the first Inhabitants being transported thither from Asia the less in flat-bottom'd Boats, coasting along by the little Islands, and the Inhabitants of Tarsus, who had Ships of another Fashion, sailing to Countries peopled at first by them, and lying at a greater Distance. Upon his coming into Greece, he begins to erect a Kingdom, and claim'd a Title to it as descending from Io the Granddaughter of Libya, and so he endeavours to draw off all those, who had formerly been planted there from Egypt to be govern'd by him. The Kingdom of Argives had been founded there long before by Inachus, who reign'd fifty Years; after him Phoroneus reign'd sixty Years; then Apis five and thirty Years; after him Argus seventy Years; from whom not only his City, but also all Peloponnesus was call'd Argos; then Crius reign'd four and fifty Years, Phorbis thirty five Years, Triopas forty six Years, Crotopus one and twenty, and Sthenelus eleven. At this Time a War begins between Sthenelus and Danaus. Sthenelus makes Gelanor his General, who fights with Danaus for some Time, till the Argives seeing a Wolf kill a Bull, judg'd that it was the Will of Apollo, that the Stranger should have the Kingdom. Upon this Gelanor yields up all to Danaus, and from him all the Grecians who liv'd near the Sea-Shore, and were therefore formerly call'd Pelasgi, were since call'd Danai. Danaus upon his Advancement builds a Temple to Apollo Lycius, and make a Wolf's Head to be the Badge, or, as we say, the Arms of Argos; and his Daughters erected a Temple to the Honour of Minerva. Herodotus tells us, (r) that Danaus came originally from Chemmis, a large City of Thebais in Egypt, where they kept the Memory of him carefully, and the Genealogy of Perseus from him. Perhaps one Cause of his Advancement at Argos might be his Directing them to cut Canals in several Parts of the Country, after the Egyptian Method, for the better Conveniency of Watering their Land, which it formerly wanted, and which he manag'd so much to their Satisfaction and Interest, that they were more easily inclin'd to intrust him with the Care of all their other Concerns. Strabo saith, that he did it also by the Use of Wells and Pumps, for which they were also famous in Egypt. And Apollodorus saith, that he did it by the Help of his Daughters, and the Poets make this their Punishment for Killing their Husbands. The Story goes, that Sesostris or Ægyptus had fifty Sons, and that his Brother Armais or Danaus in his Absence married them to his own fifty Daughters, and order'd all of them to kill their Husbands the first Night; which they all did, except Hypermnestra, who saved her Husband Lynceus; and that when Danaus had reign'd nine and fifty Years, his Son-in-Law Lynceus murder'd him, and succeeded in the Kingdom.

10. Sesostris having now spent nine Years in this Expedition, and carrying himself in the mean Time courteously and familiarly toward all his Subjects, and having broken the Power of the Assyrian Monarchy, that they were not in a Condition to attack the Israelites in the Wilderness, he orders all the Nations, which he had conquer'd, to bring their Presents and Tributes yearly to him, every one in Proportion to his several Abilities. And he himself, with the Captives and the rest of the Spoils, of which there was a vast Quantity, returns into Egypt, far exceeding all the Kings which were before him in the Greatness of his Actions and Achievements. He adorn'd all the Temples in Egypt with rich Presents, and the Spoils of his Enemies; and after that he rewarded his Soldiers, who had serv'd him in the War, every one according to his Desert. For (s) having before divided the Land of Lower-Egypt into six and thirty Nomi or Counties, he now divides his Subjects into three Parts; one Part consisted of his Court, which were either Priests or civil Officers, the other Part consisted of Husbandmen and Tradesmen, and the third Part consisted of their settl'd Militia, which also consisted of two Sorts, call'd either the Hermotybie or the Calasiries, and were esteem'd above all Tradesmen. Accordingly twelve of these Nomi were given to these military Men, the full Number of them were two hundred and fifty thousand Men, who in their Courses were the King's Guards; and every one of them had, to maintain him and his Family, Land free from Taxes, whose Area or superficial Content was twelve Aroure, each A-roure being an hundred Cubits on every Side. So that the whole consisted (t) of about nine Acres and an half of our Statute Measure, (u) and according to the nearest Computation, might contain about an eighth Part of the whole Country of Lower-Egypt. And tho' we may look upon it but small to breed up a Family upon it; yet in this Case we must consider the great Fruitfulness of the Country, the great Improvements made by Gardening, that they manur'd it themselves, and especially their cheap Way of Living. For we are assur'd, (x) that they brought up their Children with very little Cost, and were sparing to Admiration on that Account. They provided for them Broth made of any poor and mean Stuff, which might easily be had, and fed those who were of Strength, and able to eat it, with the Pith of the Bulrushes or Paper Weeds, which grew in the Nile, roasted in the Embers, and with Roots and Herbs got in the Fens, sometimes raw and sometimes boil'd; and at other Times fry'd and boil'd. The Climate was so warm and temperate, that most of the Children went barefooted and naked. And it is said, that it cost not a Parent above twenty Drachms, or about twelve Shillings and Six-pence of our English Money, to bring up a Child to Man's Estate. And this was the chief Reason, why Egypt was so populous, and excell'd all other Places in magnificent Structures.

11. Thus it is said, that not only the Army return'd home loaded with Riches, and receiv'd the Glory and Honour of their approv'd Valour; but the whole Country of Egypt reap'd many Advantages by this Expedition. For Sesostris having now disbanded his Army, and having given Leave to his Companions in Arms, and Fellow-Conquerors, to take their Ease, and enjoy the Rewards of their Conquests, and being also fir'd with an earnest Desire of Glory at home as well as abroad, and ambitious to leave lasting Monuments of his Memory behind him, he made many fair and stately Works, admirable for their Cost and Contrivance, by which he is said both to have advanc'd his own Reputation, and to have procur'd unspeakable Advantages to the Egyptians for the Time to come. For beginning first with what concern'd the Gods, he built a Temple in all the Cities of Egypt to that God, whom every Place most ador'd; he also employ'd none of the Egyptians in his Works, but finish'd all by the Labours of the Captives, and therefore he caus'd this Inscription to be made in all the Temples, None of the Natives were put to labour here. It is reported, that some of the Captives brought out of the Babylonish Country, (because they were not able to bear the Fatigue of the Work) rebell'd against the King, and having possess'd themselves of a Fort near the River, they wasted the Country thereabout, but at last having obtain'd a Pardon, they chose a Place for their Habitation, and call'd it Babylon after the Name of the chief Town in their own Country. And it is farther added, that Troy, situate upon the River Nile, was so call'd upon a like Occasion. For Menelaus, when he return'd from that famous Siege with many Prisoners, arriv'd in Egypt, where the Trojans deserting him, seiz'd upon a certain strong Place, and took up Arms against the Greeks, till they had gain'd their Liberty, and then they built a famous City, and call'd it after the Name of their own. And thus also Cadmus, going from Thebes in Egypt to Greece, built there a large City, and call'd it by the same Name. It is certain, that there are Towns in Egypt call'd Troy and Babylon; tho' it is not so certain, how they came at first to be so call'd.

12. When Sesostris had built the Temples, he proceeded to raise many Mounts and Banks of Earth, to which he remov'd all the Cities that lay low, and in the Plain. that both Man and Beast might be safe and secure at the Time of the Inundation of the River. He also cut many deep Ditches, from the River as far as from Memphis to the Sea, for the ready and quick Conveying of Corn and other Provision and Merchandise thither by shorter Cuts both for the Support of Trade and Commerce, and the Maintaining of Peace and Plenty all over the Country. And when he had done this, he fortified all the frontier Places against the Incursions of Enemies, and made it of difficult Access; whereas before, the greatest Part of Egypt lay expos'd to a superior Number of foreign Forces. But now the Multitude of Canals drawn all along the River, made the Entrance very difficult, and the Country not so easy to be invaded. He also defended the east Side of Egypt against the Irruptions of the Syrians and Arabians, with a Wall drawn from Pelusium thro' the Desarts as far as Heliopolis for the Space of fifteen hundred Furlongs. He also caus'd a Ship to be made

(t) For each Aroure being a Square of 100 Cubits, must be 10000 Cubits in the whole, and the 12 Aroures will contain 120000 Cubits, which is equal to a Square of 346,414 Cubits in Breadth. And as each Cubit contain'd 21,888 Inches, so such a Side will be equal to 7582 Inches, or 632 Feet; and as  $16\frac{1}{2}$  Feet make a Perch, and 160 Perch an Acre; so such a Square would contain 1520 Perch, or 9 Acres and an half of our Statute Measure. (u) For according to Cellarius's Map of Lower-Egypt, the Country is near to an oblong of 300 Miles long upon the Sea-Coast, and 100 Miles broad toward the Land; so that the whole might contain about 30000 Square Miles, or 19200000 Acres, reckoning 640 Acres to a square Mile. Allotting therefore nine Acres and an half to each Man, the 250000 would take in all 2425000, which is about an eighth Part of the whole, inclusive of Rivers, &c.

(x) Diodorus Siculus, lib. 1. cap. 6.

of Cedar, of two hundred and eighty Cubits in Length, gilded over with Gold on the outside, and with Silver within; and this he dedicated to the God, who was most ador'd by the Thebans. He also erected two Obelisks of polish'd Marble an hundred and twenty Cubits high, on which was inscrib'd a Description of the large Extent of his Empire, the great Value of his Revenue, and the great Number of Nations conquer'd by him.

13. It is also reported of him, that he order'd all the Kings of the conquer'd Nations, who either held their own Kingdoms thro' his Favour, or had receiv'd large Principalities as a Token of his particular Kindness, to come with their Presents and Tributes into Egypt at the Times appointed; and when they were come accordingly, he receiv'd them with all the Signs of Honour and Respect; but when he went to the Temple, or into the City, he order'd all the Horses to be unharnes'd out of his Chariot, and that four Kings and other Princes should draw it in their Places. The Design of this proud Custom was to make it evident to all, that there was none comparable to him in Valour, who had conquer'd the most famous and potent Princes in the World. So that in short, this King seems to have excell'd all others, that were ever eminent either for Power or Greatness, either before or after him, both as to his Warlike Enterprizes, the Number of Gifts and Oblations, and his wonderful Works in that Country.

14. After he had reign'd three and thirty Years he fell blind, and wilfully put an End to his own Life; for which the Heathen Historian saith, he was admir'd not only by Priests, but by all the rest of the Egyptians. Because as he had before manifested the Greatness of his Mind by his Actions; so they thought that his End was agreeable, by a voluntary Death, to the Glory of his Life. It is said, that the Fame and Renown of this King continu'd so fresh down to Posterity, that many Ages after, when Egypt was conquer'd by the Persians, and Darius the Father of Xerxes would set up his Statue at Memphis above that of Sesostris, the chief Priest upon the Debating of the Matter in the Conclave boldly spoke against it, declaring that Darius had not as yet exceeded the noble Acts of Sesostris, which the King was so far from resenting, that on the contrary, he was well pleas'd and taken with that Freedom of Speech, and said, That he would endeavour (if he liv'd as long as the other did) to be nothing inferior to him, and wish'd them only to compare things done in Proportion to the Time; for that was the justest Trial and Examination of Valour.

15. There is an Objection against this Story, viz. that if it was true, the Egyptian Monarchy ought to be reckon'd among the other four, especially as well as the Grecian, which began and ended with Alexander the Great. But to this it may be answer'd, that each of the other Monarchies utterly overturn'd that which was before it. But as the Assyrian Monarchy was standing before his Time; so he left it standing afterward. None of the Historians tell us that he conquer'd either Babylon or Nineveh; but he rather coasted it along the Red-Sea and the Persian Gulph, and took in the neighbouring Countries, and after that went thro' the Land of Canaan toward Scythia on the other Side, and enter'd not into the Heart of the Empire. And as (y) Daniel describ'd it, he seiz'd on the Eagles Wings, and pluck'd off the Feathers, but left the Heart and Vitals untouch'd.

16. But the greatest Dispute concerning Sesostris, is about the Time when he liv'd. They who follow Manetho can never be reconcil'd with Scripture or Probability; and others, who make him to be Shishak in Rehoboam's Time, entangle themselves with as many Difficulties. But tho' they differ so widely from Truth, some on the one Hand and some on the other; yet they all place his Brother Danaus near the Time in which he really liv'd. Eusebius, who follow'd Manetho in Sesostris, places Danaus but two Years distant from this Time, as it is observ'd by our learned Prelate, and he makes Sesostris to be the Son of that Pharaoh, who was drown'd in the Red-Sea. Sir John Marsham, who makes Sesostris to be Shishak, affirms his Brother Danaus to have liv'd four and twenty Years before the Departure of the Israelites; so that their near Agreement about the Time of one Brother, might more easily reconcile the Difference about the other. Our learned Bishop Cumberland (z) is of the same Opinion with Archbishop Usher, in Making Sesostris to be the Son of that Pharaoh, who was drown'd in the Red-Sea, and he hath given such solid Arguments to prove it, that tho' they have been disregarded by some; yet they have been answer'd by none. As for the Names of Sesostris and Shishak, they only agree in a single Letter, which tho' repeated, is not sufficient to frame an Argument upon it; and as for their Actions they were vastly different. The Actions of Sesostris have been already mention'd, and as for Shishak, the Scripture tells us in the (a) Book of Kings, that in the Beginning of Rehoboam's Reign Judah did evil in the sight of the LORD, and provoked him to jealousy. So that it came to pass in the fifth year of king Rehoboam, that Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem: And he took away the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king's house; he took away even all the shields, which Solomon had made. In (b) the Book of Chronicles the Account is more particular, with this Addition, that Shemaiah the Prophet admonish'd the King and Princes of their Wickedness; and upon their Humiliation promis'd, that GOD would grant them some Deliverance, and his Wrath should not be poured out upon Jerusalem by the Hands of Shishak, and accordingly he went back into Egypt, and we hear no more of him. Josephus (c) expounds it thus: Rehoboam being brought into the utmost Extremity of Despair, the Prophet told the King, that GOD was pleas'd so far to accept of their Humiliation and Repentance, that they should not be utterly destroy'd and cut off, but only deliver'd into Subjection and Slavery to the Egyptians, that they might learn by Experience, whether it was better to serve GOD or Man. In this panick Fear Rehoboam deliver'd up Jerusalem to Shishak upon certain Conditions, but he without any Regard to Faith or Honour broke his Articles; and afterward went back again with a prodigious Booty. So that this bars all farther Progress in that Expedition. Sesostris spent nine Years in his Wars, and there is not the least Shadow of Reason to think, that Shishak did not return the same Summer. Shishak went immediately back again from Jerusalem; but Sesostris extended his Conquests into Scythia and Thrace. Sesostris conquer'd all the Land of Canaan, or else he could have gone no farther; but Shishak did not touch the ten Tribes of Israel, where Jeroboam reign'd, who had (d) liv'd with him a long Time in the Reign of Solomon, and probably invited him to distress Rehoboam, against whom he had rebell'd, that he might be the safer, when the Kingdom of Judah was impoverish'd.

17. But not to insist upon (e) lesser Authorities, there are several other Writers of considerable Note, who place Sesostris long before Rehoboam's Time. Aristotle (f) affirms the Kingdom of Sesostris to have been much older in Time than Minos in Crete, which Sir John Marsham owns to be in the Time of Joshua. Pliny affirms, (g) that Troy was taken in the Time of Ramesis. This Ramesis was the third in Descent from Sesostris. And there were but five Years from his Death to the Reign of Thoris, under whom Africanus places the Taking of Troy. So that these Authors agree pretty near in this Matter, and both must imply, that Sesostris being long before the Time of Ramesis, must be at a greater Distance from the Siege of Troy. Strabo (h) affirms Sesostris to have been before the Trojan Times; and Sir John Marsham, and in general, all the Writers of the Argonautick Expedition own plainly, that the Colonies of Sesostris had been in Colchis before that, which all agree to be the Century before the Fall of Troy.

18. The only support of this Opinion, that Shishak and Sesostris were the same, is a Quotation in Josephus, (i) where he saith, that Herodotus of Halicarnassus takes Notice of this Expedition, only erring in the Name of the King. Now Josephus begins his Chapter thus, GOD aveng'd himself upon Rehoboam by the Hand of Shishak King of Egypt, (k) concerning whom Herodotus being mistaken, ascribes what he did to Sesostris. So that Josephus saith expressly, in the Beginning of the Chapter, that Sesostris was not Shishak, and others infer from the same Chapter, that Sesostris was Shishak. Neither will the Quotation out of Josephus prove what it is alledged for. As it is quoted it stands thus: Herodotus of Halicarnassus takes Notice of this Expedition, being only deceived as to the Name of the King. This alone intimates, as if there were but one Difference, and that is the Name; but take the whole Sentence together, and we shall find many more Differences. For Josephus adds, (l) he was deceived only as to the Name of the King, and that he went into many other Countries, and that he subdu'd the Palæstina Syria, and seiz'd the Men who were in it, without striking a Stroke. Now if we take the whole Sentence together, which is the fairest Way, it destroys that for which it was quoted, and shews that there were many other Differences between Sesostris and Shishak beside the Name. We may as well argue, that the Word πλανηθεῖς, deceived, must not be restrain'd by the Word μόνον, only; but that it must refer to all the Words which are join'd together by the Conjunction καί, or and, in the same Sentence. Thus to give a parallel Instance: In the Apostles Time there were some, who taught the primitive Church, that (m) except they were circumcised, and kept the law of Moses, they could not be saved, against whom St. Paul disputed, and wrote very largely both to the Philippians and Colos-

ians. Now let us suppose, that St. Paul (who uses (u) the same Words with Josephus) did give up the Cause, excepting in the Case of Meats, because he saith (o) the Jewish Oeconomy stood only in Meats, without repeating the whole Verse, which stood only in meats, and drinks, and divers washings, and carnal ordinances imposed upon them until the time of reformation; can we imagine, that the Primitive Christians would have thought St. Paul to have been fairly treated? But if any one had confuted such a Method, by Laying the whole Quotation before the World, and after that a third Person had still insisted on the first Objection, as if it had been never answer'd, what must then be thought of it? And this is the Case in the present Controversy. Sir John Marsham quotes Josephus by Halves, to prove an Assertion of his own. Bishop Cumberland (p) plainly lays this before the World in a Discourse almost for this only Purpose; and yet Sir Isaac Newton takes no Notice of the Answer, but proposeth the very same Argument, as if it was unanswerable. He also (q) tells us, that GOD gave to Shishak מלכות הארצות the kingdoms of the lands, and puts down the Hebrew Words, and the Text for a Proof of it. The whole Verse, which he quotes, is this, Nevertheless they (the Jews) shall be his servants; that they may know my service, and the service of the kingdoms of the countries. Here is not a Word of other Countries given to Shishak in the whole Text (the Words, GOD gave them to him, are made Scripture by Sir Isaac Newton) and therefore when he (r) saith, that he hath made his Chronology to agree with the Scriptures, he may be suppos'd to mean the Scriptures of his own making. The learned Bochart, who (s) interpreted the Words of Josephus, as if Sesostris was Shishak, tells us, that according to this it is evidently false, that the first Inhabitants of Colchis planted there by Sesostris could be so late as this Time. For the Argonautick Expedition, where they are particularly mention'd, was many Ages before the Time of Rehoboam. This Argument he was so candid to leave as unanswerable against his own Opinion, as taken from Josephus, whereas if he had hit upon the true Time of Sesostris, there would not have been the least Occasion for this Objection.

18. But after all, if Josephus was of this Opinion, it will appear, that this was the Mistake of Josephus, and not of Herodotus, to whom he chargeth it. Josephus took his Antiquities from the Records of the Jews, which gave a full Account of what happen'd to Abraham their Father, and his Posterity, both before and after they had inherited the Land of Canaan, but gave him no Account of that Country, when it was not theirs, and particularly whilst the Israelites were in the Wilderness. It is therefore more than probable, that Josephus knew of no Conquest of the Land of Canaan by the Egyptians before the Time of Rehoboam, and therefore telling us what Herodotus saith of Sesostris, he adds, Now this can only be understood of the Conquest of our Country by the Egyptians, not thinking that it might be (as it really was) conquer'd by the Egyptians, when it was not theirs. Josephus farther adds, Herodotus tells us of several Pillars erected and left there with the Images of Men cut upon them in an effeminate Manner, as an emblematical Way of stigmatizing the Men for giving up their Country without a Blow. Now this Rehoboam (saith he) was undoubtedly our King, who gave up all for the Asking. Herodotus saith, that the Pillars were set up by Sesostris, and so they were; for he set up many Pillars of the same Nature in other Countries. But Josephus by Mistake applies them to Shishak after his Expedition, because he knew of no other Expedition but that. Herodotus, in what he saith of Sesostris, agrees with Diodorus Siculus and others: But if Josephus intended to fix the Actions of Sesostris to Shishak, there is no antient Author who will agree with him.

19. And after all, the very Pillars, which Josephus, Herodotus and all Authors both antient and modern do mention, might determine this Controversy, that Sesostris was not Shishak. Shishak made an Irruption into Judaea, plunder'd the Temple and the Country; and as both the Scriptures and (t) Josephus tell us, immediately went back again into Egypt. Now can we imagine, that if he had set up such Pillars, as a perpetual Mark of Infamy on that Nation, the Jews would have let them stand, so as to be seen in Herodotus's Time? They would certainly have pull'd every one of them down immediately upon his Retreat. But if Sesostris, who succeeded the Pharaoh, that was drown'd in the Red-Sea, had conquer'd Canaan, and set up the Pillars, there is good Reason to think, that they might continue still. No one dar'd to pull them down in his Reign, or in the Time of the Deputies, who govern'd under him. These continu'd till Joshua conquer'd them one after another, so that the Canaanites, on whom the Pillars reflected, were a conquer'd People, and dar'd

(u) Josephus, lib. 8. cap. 4. useth the Words μόνον and καί in the same manner with St. Paul, μόνον ἐν βρώμασι καὶ πόμασι. (o) Heb. 9. 9, 10. (p) Sanchoniatho, Page 409, &c. not pull them down. And the Israelites knew, that these Pillars were no Reflection on them, but only on their Enemies, and therefore they left them standing.

20. Another Argument to fix the Time of Sesostris, may be their Ages at their Deaths. Diodorus Siculus saith, that he reign'd fix and thirty Years, reckoning from the Death of his Father. Others, who are followed by Marshall, say that he reign'd fixty eight Years, reckoning from the Beginning of his Expeditions into foreign Countries. And consequently he could not be less than ninety Years old when he died. His Brother Danaus was made Viceroy of Egypt, and liv'd eighty three Years after. At the End of nine Years, he fled into Greece, where (u) after fifteen Years Time he was made King of Argos, where he reign'd nine and fifty Years; so that he liv'd seven and forty Years after the Death of his Brother, and could not be much less than 120 Years old when he died. Now this Age agrees well with the Time of the Israelites Departure out of Egypt. Aaron was (x) 123 Years old when he died. Moses was (y) 120 Years old at his Death, when his eye was not dim, nor his natural strength abated. Caleb was (z) 85 Years old, and in perfect Vigour, when the Land of Canaan was divided, and how long he liv'd afterward is uncertain; and Joshua (a) was 110 Years old at his Death; so that all this agrees well with the Age of Danaus and Sesostris. But it was very different in the Time of Rehoboam. David was but (b) 70 Years old when he died. In his Reign (c) Barzillai being 80 Years old, was by Reason of Age a Burden to himself and those about him. Solomon reign'd (d) forty Years, and (e) was very young, when he began to reign. Rehoboam (f) died at eight and fifty Years of Age. And Jehoshaphat died at (g) sixty Years of Age, which few of his Successors exceeded; and therefore the Length of the Life both of Sesostris and Danaus can by no Means agree with the Age of Rehoboam or his Contemporaries.

21. I shall only add another Argument, which is, that Sesostris was the first Egyptian that built long Ships. For the better Managing of this Argument, it will be necessary to give an Account of the Rise and Progress of Navigation in those early Times. And for this Purpose we may observe, that Ships were very common during the Time of the Israelites being in the Wilderness. Moses tells them, (h) that if they were disobedient GOD should bring them again into

Egypt by Ships; and Balaam prophesies (i) of Ships coming from Chittim or Greece. So that by the Help of Ships the Grecian Coast was well known at that Time; and indeed it could not be peopled at first (k) by the Sons of Japhet, after their Names, in the manner as Moses mentions, but by Shipping. As to the Rise of Navigation, it is certain, that the first Pattern of a Ship for the new World to imitate was the Ark, which landed on an Hill, and being of great Bulk must be taken Notice of by all, and imitated by those who came first to the Sea-Shore. Now the Ark was (l) an Oblong of three hundred Cubits long, fifty Cubits broad, and thirty Cubits high; so that the Model thereof was a Parallelepiped, the Breadth of it being much less than the Length, and the Height was much less than the Breadth, the Sides also were streight, and the Bottom flat; and therefore it was call'd an Ark, or a Chest, this being the Form which it did most resemble. This Ark was not design'd to be made for Sailing, but rather to lie upon the Water, and to land Noah and his Family near the Place, where it was built; and therefore could only be a Pattern for them to make square and flat-bottom'd Vessels by; and such as these might be easily built, their Timber being naturally fit for this Purpose. So that they who tell us, that the first Ships were round, are out in their Mathematicks, there being not the least Necessity for such a Figure, and no Way to make it but by the Trouble of Bending of Boards, or the Pains of Cutting a great deal of Timber to Waste, which naturally growing streight, might be fitted to the other Form with much less Labour or Damage. When Ham and Japhet, who were sav'd in the Ark, came to Babylon, it is probable, that they built such oblong Boats as these of a large Bulk, to be serviceable in Building both the City and the Tower, and so they might fetch what they wanted not only down the Streams of Tigris and Euphrates, but also down the Rivers Gorgus, Lycus and Caprus, which run into the Tigris. And it is observable, that here were excellent Materials for such a Purpose. As the Ark was made of Gopher or Cypress Wood, which was the most durable of any; so it is observable, that among these Rivers there was a Place call'd Cyparissus, near to Arbela where Alexander the Great beat Darius; and here it is suppos'd by the learned Bochart, that Noah built the Ark. And the Cypress also grew in so great a Quantity in the Plains of Babylon, that (m) Alexander

(u) For the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt was before the Year of CHRIST 00, 1425 Years; the Expulsion of Danaus was 9 Years after, or in the Year 1486, as appears from Archbishop Usher, and the Year of his being made King of Argos was 1474, as appears from Marshall's Tables. is said to have built a vast Fleet in that Place, which consisted of no other Wood. And therefore when Nimrod began the Assyrian Monarchy, he built all the Places, which the (u) Scripture mentions, upon the great Rivers, that he might have the better Conveniency by Water-Carriage, and they might get into Boats to avoid wild Beasts, and keep an open Passage to and from those People, whom they left behind, as Occasion should require. Thus Babylon was built upon Euphrates; Erek upon the River between Babylon and the Persian Gulf; Accad where the Tigris and Euphrates join'd; Calneh, Resen, Nineveh, and Rebobo upon the Tigris, and Calah upon the River Lycus. With such Boats as these they might easily go to the Persian Gulf, and fetch from thence the rich Commodities of Sheba, De-dan, Raamah, and the Land of Havilah.

22. Accordingly the River Euphrates would naturally lead the Posterity of Ham toward the north Part of the Mediterranean Sea. And Sanchoniatho tells us, that (o) Ham himself had his chief Residence at Berytus, a Sea-Port Town in Phœnicia, which he gave to the Cabiri or Dioscouri, and to Husbandmen and Fishermen; and (p) the Descendants of the Dioscouri, having built some tumultuary and other stronger Ships, went to Sea, and being over-against Mount Cassius, they were cast away, and there they consecrated a Temple in Memory of their Escape, which was of so great an Antiquity, that it is reported by some, who afterward saw it, that they found no Image in it. Arvad (q) the Son of Canaan, and Grandson of Ham, with his Posterity the Arvadite, possess'd the Island of Aradus, which he must do by Shipping, and call'd it after his Name. Sidon (r) the first-born of Canaan is reported to have built the City of Sidon in Phœnicia, and that the Inhabitants of the Country were call'd Sidonians from him. The Name (s) in Hebrew plainly implies, that it was a Town remarkable for the fishing Trade, like Bethsaida in the Land of Canaan. These Inhabitants must have a Notion of the Ark, they lay open to the Sea, and near to the Forest of Lebanon, from whence they might be supply'd with Timber for the Building of their Ships. And there is no Doubt but they had been long employ'd this Way, which made Solomon in (t) his Letter to Hiram say, Thou knowest, that there is not among us any who have skill to hew timber like the Sidonians. It is the general Opinion, that the Sidonians fled in great Numbers to Carthage, when Joshua enter'd the Land of Canaan, and then they built that City; and the Likeness (I might say Identity) of the Carthaginian Language, which we have in Plautus's Pœnulus, with the old Phœnician Language, is an Argument us'd by many learned Men to favour this Opinion. Procopius (u) tells us, that when the Inhabitants of Phœnicia and Palæstina were conquer'd, and put to flight by Joshua, they were scatter'd all over Africa, and built a Castle in the City of Numidia, which in his Time was call'd Tigisis (Tingis or Tangier) where there were two Pillars of white Stone erected near a great Fountain, with this Inscription in the Phœnician Character and Language, We are they who fled from Joshua the Robber the Son of Nun. Bochart (x) gives many Reasons to confirm this Account, and adds, That there is no Cause to doubt of it.

23. When Ham went afterward into Egypt (which from him was call'd (y) The land of Ham) there is no Doubt but he carry'd this Art of Navigation with him, and the Egyptians soon learned to trade to the Persian Gulf, from whence they brought the Jewels of Gold and Silver, and all the precious Stones, which the Israelites borrow'd of them. The Canaanitish Pastors (z) came out of Egypt into that Land, at the Time when Abraham first sojourn'd there, and they carry'd on the same Trade in the Mediterranean Sea with such Success, that the Word Canaan in Hebrew signifies a Merchant; and the Philistines, who were the chief among them, were generally seated near the Shore.

24. Such a Trade as this was afterward carry'd on by the Israelites, when they dwelt in the Land of Canaan. Thus Jacob prophesy'd of (a) Zebulun, that he should dwell at the Haven of the Sea, near the Lake of Tiberias, which is call'd in Scripture the Sea of Galilee; and he should be an haven for Ships. His Lot should extend from thence to the Mediterranean, where there were many Sea-Port Towns. And when Deborah and Barak conquer'd Sisera at the River Kishon, the Tribe of Dan (b) plac'd their Families on Shipboard, which they might well do at (c) the Haven of Joppa, that lay in their Tribe. And the Tribe of Asher was so timorous, that (d) they put off from the Shore, till the Battle was over, and remained in the Sea, which they might the better do, since (e) Zidon and Accho, afterward call'd Ptolemais (to say nothing of Tyre) might afford them Ships for such a Purpose; and their Design was without Doubt to sail away (as the Phœnicians had before done from Joshua) in Case of Necessity.

25. The Posterity of Japhet, who upon the Erecting of the Assyrian Monarchy fled from their Habitations between the Tigris and Euphrates, and settl'd in Asia the less, soon found out a Way, by the Help of Shipping, to take Possession of the opposite Shores of Greece, being conducted thither by the Sons and Grand-Sons of Japhet, who accordingly (as Moses mentions) call'd the Places by their own Names. And as Tarshish or Tarsus was first seated in Cilicia, the most eastern Parts of that Country; so his Voyages were longer, and consequently he made larger Ships, and Ships according to the modern Form, which they call'd long Ships, and were more necessary for their Purpose. Hence it was, that all Vessels, for longer Voyages and greater Burdens, came to be call'd Ships of Tarshish, because they were built like the Ships of Tarshish properly so call'd. And this is the Reason, that (f) the Septuagint do sometimes call the Ships of Tarshish by the Ships of the Sea, in Opposition to smaller Vessels us'd by Coasters, or in shorter Voyages. This is a natural and easy Way to account for Solomon's Navy being call'd (g) A navy of Tarshish, and also for (h) the Ships which were built by Jehoshaphat's Order, being call'd Ships of Tarshish. Now it is evident from Scripture, that these Ships could not be call'd Ships of Tarshish, as being built at Tarshish, or Trading either to Tarshish originally so call'd, or to any Colony of it call'd by that Name, nor from their Sailing on the Sea of Tarshish, or the Mediterranean Sea. For the Scripture saith, (i) that the Ships of Solomon were design'd to go to Ophir for Gold, which lay on the Mouth of the Red Sea, and is a Peninsula on the south-east of the Gulph of Bengal, which was call'd by the Antients both Greek and Latin, The golden Chersonesus, and now Malaya. And the Ships of Tarshish built by Jehoshaphat were (k) broken at Eziongeber, which was an Haven upon the Red Sea, where (l) the Israelites once encamp'd in their Journeys between Egypt and Canaan. So that they, who affirm, that Shishak was the first, who built long Ships in the Time of King Rehoboam, do very much forget themselves; since we cannot but think, that in their Reading they have met with such Particulars, as would otherwise oblige them to be of a contrary Opinion.

26. Hence it appears, that the long Ships built for large Voyages, and great Burdens, were first built at Tarsus in Cilicia, and after that in common Use in the Mediterranean Sea, and even on the Egyptian Shore; for Danaus fled from thence to Greece in a Ship of fifty Oars. But the Red Sea being not so broad as the Mediterranean, and in many Places very shallow, and abounding with Islands, they traded in those Parts with the old-fashion'd oblong Ships, being such as would draw but little Water. And Sesostris, the Successor of Pharaoh Amenophis, and Brother of Danaus, was the first who built long Ships of the modern Fashion in those Seas. These Ships being all in the utmost Danger, and many or most of them cast away in the narrow Water, made the Egyptians content themselves with their old Fashion; insomuch that it was reckon'd one of the famous Acts of King Solomon, that he first built the Ships of Tarshish, or long Ships, in those Parts. So that the Affirming Shishak to be the first who built them, is to deny what the Scripture saith of King Solomon, and to shake the Authority of those sacred Writings in the preceding History.

27. But to dispatch the History of Lower Egypt all at once until the Time of Solomon. After (m) Sesostris had reign'd three and thirty Years, his Son succeeded him in the Kingdom, and took upon him the same Name, or Sesostris the Second. Herodotus calls him Phero, mistaking his Name for Pharaoh, which was the common Title of the Kings of Egypt. His real Name was Busiris, and by some he is said to be the Son, or rather the Grandson of Neptune and Libya, the Daughter of Epaphus. Our learned Prelate (n), saith that Ramesse Miamun, who made the Decree for the Drowning all the Infants of the Israelites, was often by the Mythologists call'd Neptune; and his Grandson was so like him for Tyranny and Cruelty, that for this Reason he might be call'd his Son. And from hence it is probable, that (o) it was usual with the Poets to call all bloody and cruel Tyrants the Sons of Neptune, as void of all Humanity, and sprung out of the Sea. He perform'd nothing remarkable by his Arms abroad. But remembering the great Calamity, which beset the Egyptians for the sake of the Israelites, whom they call'd Hebrews or Foreigners, he reviv'd the Custom of Sacrificing Men, which Tethmosis had long before abolish'd, and built (p) Altars for that Purpose on the Banks of the Nile, where he put all Strangers to Death, who came into his Country, with the utmost Torments, as an effectual Method to prevent Strangers from Settling among them, and bringing upon them the same Misfortune at another Time. But GOD's Vengeance for these Facts soon found him out. For the Heathen Historian tells us, that the Affliction and Misery which befel him, was remarkable; for he became blind, as his Father was before him, and so he continu'd for a long Time, deriving his Misfortune either from his Father in his Birth, or rather as (p) a Judgment upon him for his Impiety. And after him there were many Successions of Kings in Egypt, of (q) whom we are told, that they did nothing worth the Mentioning of their Names in History; and this is the Reason, that we hear nothing of them in the Scripture for many Ages after.

28. And here we cannot but again admire the Providence of GOD both in Preserving the Israelites from their Enemies in the Wilderness, especially after the Defeat (r) at Hormah in the second Year, and in the Manner of their conquering the Land of Canaan. GOD had promis'd (s) those who were then alive at the Red-Sea, that they should no more see the Egyptians come against them in an hostile Manner, and he knew how to fulfil his Word. When Sesostris came to the Throne, he had but a melancholy Time in Egypt, there being not an House in which there was not one dead; and his Father and the whole Army were drown'd. For this Reason he could not bear staying in the Country, but resolv'd upon some Expedition, and accordingly he fits out a large Navy in the Mediterranean Sea, and got together the greatest Army that he possibly could, under his Command, and left the Country to be govern'd by his Brother Armais, Danaus or Rameffes. The Judgments which befel his Country one after another, were too fresh in his Memory to let him pursue the Israelites; neither could his Fleet be any way serviceable on this Occasion, when they were in the Wilderness, and at a Distance from the Red Sea. It is probable, that he did not march out of Egypt (t) till after the Battle between Joshua and the Amalekites, and (u) that at Hormah, when the Israelites had a sharp Engagement in the one, and were defeated in the other. Then Sesostris begins his Expedition against the Land of Canaan, which he conquer'd with little Difficulty, being divided into eleven Kingdoms, according to (x) the Names of the eleven Sons of their Father Canaan: And thus the Canaanites, who in the Pastoral Wars thought to have conquer'd all Egypt, are conquer'd by them, and so they revenge themselves of the Injuries, which they had formerly sustain'd. The Canaanites were now enslav'd that they could not stir; and the conquering Army was on the other Side of Jordan (which was a Barrier) and it was afterward employ'd in other Expeditions. After the Conquests of Sesostris in Asia, he pass'd over into Europe, where he was in Danger of Losing his whole Army, thro' the Difficulty of the Passages, and want of Provisions. This put a Stop to his Expedition in Thrace, and so he return'd into his own Country. The Rebellion of his Subjects at home in his Absence, caused him to undertake no more Expeditions abroad; and the Danger of Losing his Army abroad was a particular Caution to him not to venture any more into a Wilderness, especially against a People in whose Behalf GOD had so signally appear'd, by Plaguing the Egyptians, Causing them to pass safely thro' the Red Sea, and Drowning their Enemies who pursu'd them. And thus the Israelites were preserv'd. Besides, Sesostris having conquer'd the Land of Canaan, puts Governors in every Town to act under him, and order'd every one of them annually to come to Egypt, and bring their Tributes to him. Busris succeeding him, acted so tyrannically toward Strangers, that none of them would venture to come into Egypt, but they all set up for themselves; and he being taken blind, and unactive in warlike Exploits, could not reduce them any more to his Obedience. These were (y) all call'd Kings, and had a separate Interest from each other, so that the Strength of each was so much the less. Upon this they quarrel with one another, insomuch that (z) Adonibezek, who was one of them, subdu'd threescore and ten of the rest. And whereas if they had been united, they (a)

(p) Diodorus Siculus, lib. 1. cap. 5. tells us, that it was for his Impiety against the River, against which he threw his Javelin; and adds this Comical Story, by which we may observe, how ready the Devil is by his Oracles to stir up those to Murder, who are inclin'd to Cruelty. Being blind, he was forc'd to apply himself for Help to the Gods, whom he sought to appease with many Offerings for a long Time together; yet he could find no Relief, till at the End of ten Years he was directed by the Oracle to go and worship the God of Heliopolis, and wash his Face in the Urine of a Woman, who never had known any other Man beside her own Husband. Hereupon he began with his own Wife, and made Trial of many others, but he found none honest, except a Gardiner's Wife, whom he afterward married, when he was recover'd. All the suppos'd Adulteresses, and perhaps many honest Persons, he caus'd to be burnt in a little Village (which from this Execution the Egyptians call the holy Field) to testify his Gratitude to the God of Heliopolis for this great Benefit. At the Command of the Oracle he erected two Obelisks, each of one intire Stone, eight Cubits in Breadth and an hundred in Height, and dedicated them to the Deity. Herodotus also tells us the same Story, with little Variation, in his Euterpe, chap. 57. (q) Diodorus Siculus, lib. 1. cap. 5. (r) Num. 14. 44, 45. Deut. 1. 44, 45. (s) Exod. 14. 13. far exceeded the Israelites both in Number and Might; yet being thus divided among themselves, they could not engage in any one common Enterprize, which was the visible Providence, that (b) enabled Joshua so easily to conquer them one after another.

29. But to return to the Israelites. After they had pass'd the Red Sea, and sung a Song of Praise, and kept their (c) first Sabbath in Commemoration of their Deliverance out of Egypt, the Israelites (d) were very backward and unwilling to march; so that Moses brought them from the Red Sea, not without some Importunity. Some think the Cause hereof proceeded from a Desire to return into Egypt, which now, perhaps, they thought to be so empty, that being thus arm'd with the Spoils of their Enemies, they might easily get it for themselves; others think, that they expected the Sea might throw up more Spoil, which if they carried, they might gather for themselves. And yet another Reason might be, that they were not well satisfy'd in the Abolishing of the ancient Sabbath, and Establishing the new one, which they had observ'd the Day before. However they (e) gave so much Credit to what he told them, that they march'd at his Command (f) into the Wilderness of Shur, which (g) lay in the Road from Canaan to Egypt, that so the People might be the more easy, as not knowing his true Intention, and hoping that they might go back (h) from thence to Egypt by the Way of Etham, where they had been but very lately before. But this did not answer their Expectation; for they wander'd three Days in that Wilderness, and found no Water; so that their Cattle as well as they suffer'd much by it, and could not afford them Milk sufficient to quench their Thirst. Upon this they were glad to return back again toward their first Station, and so they came to Marah on Wednesday the twenty fifth Day of the Month Nisan. Here they found Water, but were still disappointed, for it was so brackish and (i) bitter, that they could not drink of it. And for this Reason they call'd the Place Marah, which in Hebrew signifies Bitterness. The People upon this murmur against Moses, and Moses cries to GOD, who directs him to a Tree, which when he had cast into the Waters, they were made sweet, and may put us in mind of our blessed SAVIOUR, who by the Tree of his Cross chang'd the Bitterness of everlasting Death into the Sweetness of eternal Life. Here Moses saith, (k) that GOD made for the Israelites a statute and an ordinance, and here he proved them.

And said, If thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the LORD thy GOD, and wilt do that which is right in his sight, and wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes; I will put none of these diseases upon thee, which I have brought upon the Egyptians; for I am the LORD that healeth thee. What this particular Statute and Ordinance was, can be known only by Conjecture. It is certain, that it related not to any Part of the ceremonial Law; for (l) the Prophet Jeremiah plainly alluding to it, saith in the Name of GOD, I spake not unto your fathers, nor commanded them, in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, concerning burnt-offerings and sacrifices. But this thing commanded I them, saying, Obey my voice, and I will be your GOD, and ye shall be my people. It is the most antient and constant Tradition of the Jews, that now he commanded them to observe the Sabbath, which they understand by Statute, and to do Justice, particularly to honour their Parents, and the Judges, whom GOD had set over them, which they understand by Ordinance or Judgment, as the Hebrew Word שבת plainly signifies, especially because these two Commandments are press'd upon them in Deuteronomy, with this particular Inforcement, (m) As the LORD thy GOD hath commanded thee; which they will have to relate to this Command at Marah. And this (n) Maimonides confesses in these Words: It appears from the Scripture, and the Cabala also, that the first Precept which GOD gave us after we came out of Egypt, was not concerning burnt-offerings and sacrifices, but it was that which was given us at Marah, where he gave us a Statute and a Judgment. And it is a certain Tradition, that the Statute was the Sabbath, and the Judgment was the Taking away all Iniquity, or the Preventing Sins from being national by Inflicting Penalties upon Offenders. So that it is probable, that at this Time GOD gave them a Law for the constant Observing of the Sabbath on the seventh Day of the Week, and not on the first, as it had been observ'd before. They had observ'd it on the seventh Day before by Killing the Passover thereon, and travell'd on the next Day out of Egypt, which was their antient Sabbath. They rested the next seventh Day at the Red Sea, where they sung their Song of Praise for their glorious Deliverance, and travell'd again on the next Day by the Direction of Moses. So that here was another antient Sabbath broken.

(b) Exod. 23. 29, 30, and Deut. 7. 22. (c) Exod. 14. 31, and 15. 1 to 22. (d) This Bishop Patrick observes from the Hebrew Word שבת in Exod. 15. 22. (e) Exod. 14. 31. (f) Exod. 15. 22. (g) Gen. 16. 1, 7. (h) Num. 33. 8. (i) Pliny mentions these bitter Fountains, Nat. Hist. lib. 6. cap. 29. (k) Exod. 15. 25. (l) Jer. 7. 22, 23. (m) Deut. 5. 12, 16. See Selden, lib. 3. de jure naturali & Gentium, cap. 9. pag. 314, 333, &c. Edit. Vet. (n) More nebochim, part 3. cap. 32.

But these were only particular Cases. They had a particular Command, (o) That on the first day there should be an holy convocation, and on the seventh day there should be an holy convocation. But this might refer only to the Days of the Passover Week. And therefore GOD justifies what they had done before, by Declaring his Will for the Future, that they should observe the seventh Day of the Week as a Sabbath, and not the first. This will more plainly appear from a Repetition of (p) the Command in Deuteronomy, Keep the sabbath day, the seventh and not the first, as the LORD thy GOD commanded thee at Marah, and not as it was practis'd before. Six days shalt thou labour and do all thy work, as it was before, But the seventh day of the Week is now the sabbath of the LORD thy GOD. And remember that thou wast a stranger in the land of Egypt, and that the LORD thy GOD brought thee out thence through a mighty hand, and by a stretched out arm; therefore the LORD thy GOD commanded thee at Marah to keep the seventh day, as that which had been just before most solemnly observ'd in Commemoration of this Deliverance. The Prophet Ezekiel seems also (q) to intimate the same, where he saith, that when GOD lifted up his hand to bring them into the land, that he had espied for them, he commanded them not to defile themselves with the idols of the land of Egypt, and to prevent this, he gave them his sabbaths to be a sign between him and them, that they might know, that he was the LORD that sanctified them, that separated them unto himself from all the People of the World, that they might serve him alone, and the Sabbath might be a Sign of it, because he alone was worshipp'd on that Day. But then it follows, that the House of Israel walked not in these Statutes, for they greatly polluted his sabbaths, and their hearts went after their idols, which they worshipp'd on the other Day, and so this Day was neglected. And to prevent this, GOD commanded them not to defile themselves with these idols, but to hallow his sabbaths, that they might be a sign between him and them, and they might know, that he was the LORD their GOD by being worshipp'd on this Day, which was alter'd for this Purpose, that he might not be worshipp'd at the Time when others offer'd to their Idols.

30. The Stay of the Israelites at Marah, their fifth Station, was but short; but soon after this Statute and Ordinance was given, they (r) march to Elim, their sixth Station, where they had a much better Conveniency; for there were twelve Wells of Water, and threescore and ten Palm-trees, so that here they had sufficient to quench their Thirst, and a pleasant Shade to refresh themselves; and after they had stay'd there as long as was convenient, they take a long March toward the Country of Canaan, and approach to the Land of Edom. That this was a long March is evident, because Elim was situated near the Red Sea, of which (s) the Writer of the Holy Wars gives this Account, that Baldwin the first, when he pass'd that Way into Egypt, enter'd Elim, a most antient City, and well known to the children of Israel, in antient Times; and when they came thither, the Inhabitants having Knowledge of the King's Approach, took Shipping, and so retreated into the neighbouring Sea.

31. The Stay of the Israelites at Elim, gave Time to the new King of Edom to raise a large Army, and particularly from the Country of Amalek the (t) Grandson of Esau or (u) Edom, who lying nearest the Land of Canaan, on the south Side, were most concern'd to annoy them; because if the Israelites had Possession of the Country, they would be the most expos'd to their Incursions, or to be wholly subdu'd by them. And therefore the Army consisting chiefly of Amalekites, and these being the most desperate Enemies, whatever was done by the whole is particularly said to be done by them. Besides, it is most probable that the King of Edom himself was of that Tribe, and the Scripture seems to intimate the same, by Calling him (*) Amalek, or the Amalekite, and therefore his Army consisted chiefly of them, being his near Relations, and old Acquaintance, and therefore such whom he could best confide in. However, the King of Edom seeing the Israelites in full March, and not thinking himself strong enough for a pitch'd Battle, lays an Ambuscade of Amalekites, who fall upon the Rear, when they were in the greatest Disorder, after they were pass'd by, and so put the whole Body into Confusion. Of this Moses speaks thus (x) almost forty Years after. Remember what Amalek did unto thee by the way, when ye were come forth out of Egypt, How he met thee by the way, and smote the hindmost of thee, even all them that were feeble behind thee, when thou wast faint and weary, and he feared not GOD. Therefore it shall be, when the LORD thy GOD hath given thee rest from all thine enemies round about in the land which the LORD thy GOD giveth thee for an inheritance to possess it, that thou shalt blot out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven, thou shalt not forget

32. Now tho' the Israelites had taken the Arms and Armour of the Egyptians at the Red Sea, yet Moses had not as yet train'd them up in the Art of War, neither was he fully assur'd of their Fidelity; but as they had murmur'd once before at the Red Sea, and the second Time at Marah; so he was apprehensive, that they would be apt to return to Egypt rather than sustain the Wants and Dangers, which every where accompany'd them in the Wilderness, and the perpetual Wars to which they might be thus expos'd, so that he marches off with his undisciplin'd Army, for fear of a Battle; and his Enemies seeing them arm'd, were afraid to pursue them; and so after a long and tedious March, they come back again to the Red-Sea, and there they encamp; which tho' Moses (z) omits to mention in the Book of Exodus, yet he takes a particular Notice of it in (a) the Book of Numbers, as their seventh Station. And here it is probable, that Moses pitches upon those who were fittest to bear Arms, and makes Joshua their General; so that now they are disciplin'd and train'd up to the Art of War, to prevent a like Insult at another Time. Moses was eighty Years of Age, and therefore not fit to go out to Battle; and he had also Business enough of another Nature; but Joshua was (b) two and thirty Years of Age in the Prime of his Strength, and therefore (c) he is call'd A young man.

33. However, (d) one and thirty Days after their Coming out of Egypt they march again, and come to the Wilderness of Sin, which was their eighth Station; so that they came hither on a Tuesday, and in three Days Time had eaten up all the Product of the Country; and in this Length of Time had consum'd the Stores, which they carry'd with them out of Egypt. And tho' they had great Numbers of Cattle and Sheep among them; yet it is probable, that they were not willing to feed themselves with many of those, but reserv'd them both for the Milk to breed up their Children, and also to stock the Country, when they should come to the Land of Canaan. And therefore upon the Sabbath Day following, the whole Congregation, who should have met together for the Worship of GOD, betake themselves to a different Exercise, and murmur the third Time against Moses and Aaron. Moses betakes himself to Prayer, probably about the Time when the morning Sacrifice was offer'd, and had a Promise, that at the Evening they should eat Flesh, and in the Morning they should be fill'd with Bread; which happen'd accordingly; for (as (e) Josephus tells us, who is follow'd by (f) our Translation) soon after this there came a wonderful Flight of Quails, of which there are a vast Number in the Arabian Gulf, and these Birds were so tir'd with crossing it, that they drop'd down quite wearied into the Camp of the Hebrews. Others (g) of very eminent Learning interpret it of Locusts, who were brought into the Wilderness of Arabia from the Red Sea, by (h) a southern or an easterly Wind, and sometimes fled in such vast Quantities, as to darken the Air; and when they fell one upon another to a great Depth, they were not suffocated by it, but preserv'd like a Cluster or Swarm of Bees by Reason of the Length of their Feet, and the Thinness of their Wings. Such as are commonly brought hither, have a very purging Quality, and therefore not fit for a constant Food. But it is as certain, that there was another sort in those Parts of the World, which were accounted a very delicious Meat; and they, who have tasted of them, compare them to a fresh Crab or Lobster (like to which they are in Shape and Figure) and they are several Ways prepar'd, and accounted very wholesom Food, when the Heads, Wings and Feet were thrown away. This was (i) the constant Food of St. John the Baptist, and (k) Pliny saith, that some Parts of Ethiopia liv'd upon them, and that being dry'd in Smoke and salted, they were preserv'd for their Nourishment throughout the whole Year. The next Day, being the Day after the Sabbath, they had a miraculous Bread rain'd from Heaven, which continu'd in Showers every Night, the Eve of the Sabbath excepted, until they were (l) in Possession of some Part of Canaan, and had eaten of the Corn of the Country, and then it ceas'd. It was a (m) small round thing, as small as the Hoar-frost upon the Ground at first, but afterward it was white, and about the Bigness of Coriander-Seed, and the Taste of it was like Wafers made with Honey. This they call'd מן הוּא, Man hue, which in Hebrew signifies, What is this? and afterward מן, Man, or a Portion, because it was what they never saw before, and therefore they could not tell how to give it any other Name. Of this they (n) gather'd the six following Days of the Week, with a particular Command that they should leave none of it till the next Morning, and when any was left, it bred Worms and stank; and this was to teach them that they were to depend on GOD's Providence to give them day by day their daily bread. On the Eve of the Sabbath, (o) Moses said unto them, This is that which the LORD hath said, To-morrow is the rest of the holy sabbath unto the LORD; bake that which ye will bake to day, and seethe that which ye will seethe; and that which remaineth over, lay up for you to be kept until the morning. And when they did so, it did not stink, neither was there any worm therein. Upon this Moses commands them saying, Eat that to day, for to day is a sabbath unto the LORD, to day ye shall not find it in the field. And after that, when some of the people went out on the seventh day to gather it, they found none. And the LORD said unto Moses, How long refuse ye to keep my commandments and my laws? See, for that the LORD hath given you the sabbath, therefore he giveth you on the sixth day the bread of two days; abide ye every one in his place, let no man go out of his place on the seventh day, and so they rested accordingly: And it was so strictly observ'd, that some Time after, when (p) they found a Man, who was binding up of Wood, or imploy'd about his weekly Business, the rest were so strict in Observing it, that they put him in Prison, and he was not brought before Moses, at least not judg'd, till the next Day, when he was condemn'd by the Command of GOD to be ston'd with Stones, and he was executed accordingly; so that this new Jewish Sabbath was, by the Direction of Moses, observ'd in Egypt, and at the Red Sea, commanded at Marah, repeated by Moses both in Exodus and Deuteronomy, confirm'd by a constant Succession of Miracles in the Wilderness for forty Years, and the Transgressors were capitally punish'd; without all which they could not well be suppos'd to change the old Day for a new one, tho' they might have retain'd their antient Custom with less Difficulty or Sanction.

34. For a Perpetuating the Remembrance of this Miracle, (q) GOD commanded Moses to take a pot, and put an omer full of Manna therein, and lay it up before the LORD to be kept for their generations. This Pot was (r) made of Gold, and plac'd within the Ark, in which there was Aaron's rod that budded, and the two tables of the covenant; so that it continu'd there till the Babylonish Captivity, when (s) these five Particulars were lost: 1. The Shechinah, or Divine Presence. 2. The Urim and Thummim. 3. The holy Fire upon the Altar. 4. The Spirit of Prophecy; and 5. The Ark of the Covenant, and the Mercy-Seat, which was upon it, and so the Pot of Manna was lost, having been miraculously preserv'd till that Time.

35. After the Israelites had tarry'd for some Time in the Wilderness of Sin, and made (t) their eighth Station at Dophkah, they march'd from thence to Alush, their ninth Station, in both which Places there pass'd nothing remarkable; and so from thence they went to (u) Rephidim their tenth Station, which was the direct Road to the Country of Edom. Here was no Water for the People to drink, and therefore they murmur the fourth Time, and from this Murmuring against GOD's Providence, and Tempting of him, the Place was sometimes call'd Massah, or Temptation, and sometimes Meribah, which signifies Strife or Contention. Upon this Moses prays to GOD, and GOD commanded him to take of the Elders of Israel to be Witnesses of the Miracle, and his Rod in his Hand, and come to the Rock of Horeb, so call'd in Hebrew from the Dryness of the Country round it, and smite the Rock, and it should afford them Plenty of Water, which he did, and the Success answer'd his Expectation. The Psalmist observes (x) GOD clave the rocks in the wilderness, and gave them drink as out of the great depths; so that the waters ran down like rivers, and flow'd from Horeb to Rephidim in Quantities sufficient for themselves and their Cattle, and was a (y) standing or continual Water, which made this Part of Arabia habitable in future Ages, tho' no Man ever dwelt in it before. The Jews tell us, that this Water follow'd them afterward in the Wilderness wherever they went, so that they wanted no more until the last Year of all. And the Apostle (z) intimates the same by saying, that the Israelites drank of that spiritual rock, which followed them, and that rock was CHRIST, or a Figure of him. The Rock being smitten afforded Water, and CHRIST being crucified, affords us his Spirit. The Water from the Rock accompany'd the Israelites to the End of their Travels, and they all drank of it without Distinction, and CHRIST by his Spirit is (a) with us always, even to the end of the World. And thus (b) by one spirit are we all baptiz'd into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free, and are all made to drink into one spirit.

36. The King of Edom, who knew nothing of this Miracle, expecting the Israelites to be almost dead with Thirst, and flush'd up by his former Success, resolves to hazard a pitch'd Battle, and therefore gathering all his Forces together, and especially the Amalekites as before-mention'd, he marches out of his Country to attack them. Upon this Moses orders Joshua his General to choose the stoutest Men and best disciplin'd, and fight with the whole Army, promising that he would be importunate with GOD in Prayer, and take the Rod of GOD in his Hand, thereby encouraging Joshua to hope that GOD would deliver them, tho' a Miracle was requir'd to bring it to pass. The next Morning Joshua goes to fight the Enemy, and Moses goes with Aaron and Hur, who (as (c) Josephus tells us) was Miriam's Husband, to the Top of a Hill, where they might see the Engagement; and when Moses lifted up his Hands, imploring the divine Aid, the Israelites prevail'd, the Sight of the Rod of GOD inspiring them with such Courage, that their Enemies could not stand before them; but when Moses let down his Hand, and they could not see the Rod, their Spirits flagg'd, and they began to give Ground, as imagining that Moses despair'd of Victory. When Aaron and Hur saw this, they took a Stone, and set Moses on it, and they held up his Hands until the Evening, and so after a hard Battle Joshua gain'd an intire Victory. In a grateful Commemoration hereof, Moses builds an Altar, and calls it JEHOVAH Nissi, or, The LORD is my Banner, as plainly shewing, that by him alone they had Success. And he gives (d) this Reason, Because as he sat on the Stone, and stretched out his Hand with the Rod; so the Hand of the LORD sitting upon the Throne of his Majesty, was stretched out, and held up his Banner to fight with Amalek throughout all Generations.

37. The Encampment of the Israelites at Rephidim was on the west Side of the Mount of Horeb, and on that Side which lay toward the Land of Edom. It was a Mountain with two Tops, like Parnassus in Greece. The Top which lay toward Edom, was a rocky, dry, and barren Ground, and was therefore call'd Horeb. The Top, which lay toward Arabia, was full of Bushes, and therefore was call'd Sinai; and among these was one of the Bushes, where GOD had (e) before appear'd unto Moses. The Israelites, on the second Day of the third Month, being Friday the twenty eighth Day of May, and the Day after the Battle, decamp'd from the Side of the Mountain call'd Horeb, and pitch'd on the other Side call'd Sinai. Here they might well expect greater Revelations of GOD, and his Will, and therefore came more willingly thither, because (f) GOD had before said these Words to Moses in this Place, Certainly I will be with thee, and this shall be a token, that I have sent thee; when thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve GOD upon this mountain. When they were encamp'd here, the Cloud, which (g) constantly went before them to guide them in the Way, remov'd, and stood upon the Top of the Mountain, where the Glory of GOD appear'd, and call'd Moses to him, who went frequently down to the People to deliver the Message of GOD to them, and frequently went up again to return their Answers to GOD. Thus he saith of himself, (h) I stood between the LORD and you at that Time, to shew you the word of the LORD; for ye were afraid by reason of the fire, and went not up unto the mount. Thus was Moses a Mediator between GOD and his People and a fit Type of CHRIST the Prophet like unto Moses. And the Reason of that strict Injunction, that tho' they were (i) declar'd to be a peculiar treasure unto GOD above all people, a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation; yet (k) there should not a hand touch the Mountain, but he should surely be stoned or shot through; and whether it was beast or man, it should not live, was that (l) no man should presume to take this office upon himself, except he was first call'd and appointed thereunto. And as to what peculiarly belongs to CHRIST, it should not be given to Saint or Angel, or any other Creature: For (m) as there is but one GOD, so there is but one mediator between GOD and man, the man CHRIST JESUS, who gave himself for all. Accordingly GOD commands, and the People sanctify themselves the remaining Part of that Day, and the next Day being the Sabbath, and so they were ready on the third Day being Sunday, and the great Day of the Feast of Pentecost, to hear what GOD should say unto them, who on this Day deliver'd to them the ten Commandments with his own Mouth, as they are recorded in the twentieth Chapter of Exodus, and afterward wrote them with his own Hand in two Tables of Stone, and gave them to Moses as a perpetual Law both to the Israelites and all Mankind. In Commemoration hereof, GOD appointed the Feast of Weeks, or the Day of Pentecost to be observ'd, and to be reckon'd from the Day of the Passover in a very particular Manner, so as to be counted (n) from the Morrow after the first Sabbath following the Passover, as from the first Day of the Week or Sunday, in the very same Manner as we Christians compute our Whitsontide. Their Passover was (o) the fourteenth Day of the first Month, which both on this Year, and the Year when our SAVIOUR was crucify'd, happen'd on a Friday. The Day after was the Jewish Sabbath, in which our SAVIOUR also rested in the Grave. The Day after being (p) the morrow after the sabbath, or a Sunday, the Israelites were oblig'd to bring a sheaf of the first fruits of their harvest unto the priest, as that which was (q) cut or taken from the Earth on that Day. The Priest was oblig'd to wave this sheaf, or move it round to all Parts of the World, to shew that on that Day he should be taken from the Ground, or rise from the Dead, who was to be the first Fruits of them that slept. And as this Sheaf was a Consecration or Dedication of all the rest, and a Sign that the whole Harvest should follow in its due Season; so the Resurrection of CHRIST was a Type and Pledge of ours, that (r) we also like him shall all be made alive. And thus they offer'd a Sheaf or Omer of the first Fruits of their Barley Harvest. From this Day was taken an Account of the seven Sabbaths, or Weeks, and upon the Morrow after the seventh (that is, upon our LORD's Day) was celebrated the Feast of Weeks, being the fiftieth Day or Day of Pentecost, which was also (s) call'd, The Day of the first Fruits, at which Time they offer'd the first Fruits of their second or Wheat Harvest, which was therefore call'd (t) the Feast of Harvest, because then was the Conclusion of the principal or whole Harvest of the Year. Upon which Day (u) the Apostles having themselves receiv'd the first fruits of the spirit begat three thousand Souls with the Word of Truth, and presented them as the first fruits of the Christian Church unto GOD, and to the Lamb. And therefore the Matter being so order'd by GOD himself, that in the Observation of the Feast of the Wave-offering, and the Feast of Weeks, the seventh Day of the Week, or the Jewish Sabbath, was purposely pass'd over, and those great Solemnities were kept upon the first Day of the Week, and these (x) were Shadows of things to come; it is no Wonder that the Christian Church hath appropriated that Day (in which those things were fulfill'd, of which they were Shadows) instead of the seventh for the Service of GOD.

38. Upon this Occasion Moses tarry'd in the Mountain of Horeb forty Days and forty Nights, during all which Time (y) he did neither eat bread nor drink water, and his Fasting in the Mount, before he receiv'd the Law, was a Type of our SAVIOUR's Fasting so long in the Wilderness, before he preach'd the Gospel. During this Time GOD gave to Moses by Word of Mouth the Ceremonial Law, which he was to teach the Israelites, and also the Judicial Law, by which their Magistrates were to act, and a particular Command to build a Tabernacle for his Worship: and that he might be more exact herein, GOD shew'd him a visible Pattern of it in the Mount, with all the Furniture belonging to it, and the Vestments of the Priests set up before him in the same Manner, as he afterward set it up below among the People, with a strict Command to make all things according to the Pattern which he saw. For GOD would have nothing left to the Fancy of the People, whom he knew to be too much inclin'd to the Gentile Superstition. And if Moses had not been determin'd by a divine Prescription, they would have been apt in all these things to have interpos'd their own Inventions.

39. In all this Law there were three things remarkable, viz. The Sacrifices, the High Priest's Garments, and the Structure of the Tabernacle, and these were Types of something else. The Sacrifices were slain to make an Atonement for the Sins of the People, to shew that JESUS CHRIST should in due Time offer up himself for the same Reason, and be that (z) Lamb of GOD, who should take away the sins of the whole World. The Sacrifices were slain at the Altar, which (a) sanctify'd the Gift, and the Altar of CHRIST's Godhead gave Worth and Efficacy to his Manhood, and so made it to be a complete and a sufficient Sacrifice. The (b) bodies of those beasts, whose blood was brought into the sanctuary for sin, were burnt without the camp: And JESUS also, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood, suffered without the gate. In some Cases (c) a Goat was slain, and another which was join'd to it was let out into the open Field, after the High Priest had laid his Hand thereon, and confess'd the Sins of the People, which Goat was to carry them into the Land of Forgetfulness. Thus the Body of CHRIST should die, the Soul should be separated from it, and thro' the Efficacy hereof apply'd by Faith, GOD hath (d) promis'd, that our sins and our iniquities he will remember no more. In another Case one (e) Bird was to be kill'd, and another to be dipp'd in its Blood, and let fly into the open Air; and very often (f) there were Burnt-offerings, when the Bodies were consum'd by Fire, and the Smoke thereof ascended up into the Air, and all this was to shew, that when the Body of CHRIST did really die, his Soul should ascend into (g) Paradise in a separated State, to make Way for our Souls to be happy in the same Manner. In the Judicial Law, there was (h) this remarkable Sentence: If a man hath committed a sin worthy of death, and he be put to death, and thou hang him on a tree, his body shall not remain all night upon the tree, but thou shalt in any wise bury him that day, for he that is hanged is accursed of GOD. And tho' it was the Custom of the Romans (who at that Time had Authority over the Jews, and brought in the Punishment of Crucifixion among them) to leave the Bodies of crucify'd Persons expos'd to publick View in the open Air; yet CHRIST, who was crucify'd for us, was taken down, and bury'd the same Day, who (as (i) the Apostle saith) hath redeemed us from the curse of the law being made a curse for us, as it is written, Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree; that the blessing of Abraham might come upon all, and that all might receive the promise of the spirit through faith.

40. As for the High Priest's Vestments, who was a Type of CHRIST our great High Priest, it is observable, that they were made of the finest Materials and finest Work, which possibly could be, to shew the great Dignity of his Office. The (k) Bonnet represented a Crown, or rather such a Tiara, as the Kings of the East wore in antient Times, to shew the Kingly Office of our SAVIOUR. Upon the Mitre there was a Plate with (l) this Inscription upon it, HOLINESS UNTO THE LORD, to typify him, who alone was (m) without Blemish and without Spot. Upon (n) the Shoulders of the High Priest there were two Onyx Stones, and on them were engrav'd the Names of the twelve Tribes of Israel, which at that Time was the whole Church, to shew how CHRIST bears, carries and supports his whole Church in all their Trials and Afflictions. There was also (o) a Breastplate adorn'd with twelve precious Stones, and on them were engrav'd the same twelve Names, to shew how near his Church and People are to CHRIST. They were engraven not only upon (p) the Palms of his Hands, but his wounded Side shews, that they were very near his Heart, and he hath them in continual Remembrance before his Father, and continually (q) liveth to make intercession for them. Josephus (r) farther adds, By the linnen Garment of the High Priest is meant the whole Body of the Earth; by the violet Colour the Heavens. The Pomegranates answer the Lightning, the Noise of the Bells the Thunder. The four colour'd Ephod (since it pleas'd GOD to order it so to be) bears a Resemblance of the very Nature of the Universe; and the Interweaving of it with Gold hath a Regard to the Rays, that give us Light. The Rationale in the Middle of it intimates the Position of the Earth in the Center of the World. The Girdle about the Body of the Priest, is as the Sea about the Body of the Earth. The two Sardonyx Stones are a Kind of Figure of the Sun and Moon; and by the twelve other Stones are understood either the twelve Months, or the twelve Signs in the Circle, which the Greeks call the Zodiack. The violet-colour'd Tiara speaks a Resemblance of Heaven; and it would have been an Irreverence to have written the sacred Name of GOD upon any other Colour; and the triple Crown and Plate of Gold gives us to understand the Glory and Majesty of Almighty GOD. All this seems to represent the Divinity of our great High Priest, that (s) All power is given unto him, and (t) He is Lord of all things both in heaven and earth. That (u) He is not the GOD of the Jews only, but of the Gentiles also; and (x) in every nation he that feareth GOD and worketh righteousness is accepted of him.

41. It is remarkable, that (y) when Alexander the Great had made himself Master of Tyre, he march'd against the Jews with a full Resolution to punish them for Disobeying his Commands. In this Distress Jaddua the High Priest, and all Jerusalem with him, implore the Mercy of GOD for their Deliverance from this Danger, and make their devout Addresses to him with Sacrifices, Oblations and Prayers. By which GOD being mov'd with Compassion toward them, directed Jaddua in a Vision by Night to go out and meet the Conqueror in these Robes, with the Priests attending him in their proper Habits, and all the People in white Garments. Jaddua in Obedience hereto went forth the next Day according to this Direction; and advancing to a Place call'd Sapha, he there waited the Coming of Alexander, and on his Approach met him in this pompous and solemn Manner. As soon as Alexander saw the High Priest coming toward him in this Manner, he was struck with a profound Awe, and hastning forward bowed down to him, and saluted him with a religious Veneration, to the great Surprize of all that attended him, who expected nothing less, than that Alexander would have destroy'd them, as he destroy'd the Tyrians, and came thither with an eager Desire to have had a Share of the Booty. When all were amaz'd at this Behaviour, Parmenio ask'd the King the Reason of it, and how it happen'd, that he, whom all ador'd, should pay such Adoration to the Jewish High Priest? To which he answer'd, that he did not pay that Adoration to him, but to that GOD, whose Priest he was. For that when he was in Macedonia, and there consulting with himself how he should carry on the War against the Persians, and was in much Doubt about the Undertaking, the same Person, and in the same Habit, appear'd to him in a Dream, and encourag'd him to lay aside all Distrust about that Matter, and pass boldly over into Asia, promising him, that GOD would be his Guide in the Expedition, and give him the Empire of the Persians; and therefore seeing this Person, and knowing him by his Shape and Countenance, that he was the very same that appear'd to him, he assur'd himself from thence, that he made the present War under the Conduct of that GOD, whose Priest he was, and therefore paid Adoration to him in the Person of his Priest. Upon this having kindly embrac'd Jaddua, he enter'd Jerusalem in a friendly Manner, and offer'd Sacrifices to GOD in the Temple; where Jaddua having shewn him the (*) Prophecies of Daniel, which foretold the Overthrow of the Persian Empire by a Grecian King, he went from thence with the greater Assurance of Success in his farther Carrying on of the War, not doubting but that he was the Person, who was meant by those Prophecies. So that the GOD, who directed Moses to make such Ornaments for the High Priest, was the GOD, who caus'd Alexander to dream this Dream, who foretold by Daniel the Subversion of the Persian and the Succession of the Grecian Monarchy, who assisted Alexander, and gave him Success in all his Undertakings, who (†) governs all the Kingdoms of the World, and disposeth of them, as it seems best unto him.

42. As for the Tabernacle, (y) Josephus tells us also, that it is the Image of the whole World. It was thirty Cubits long, and divided into three Parts, two for the Priests in general, as a Place is common to them all, and free of Access like the Earth and the Sea. The third Place, where no Mortal must be admitted, is as the Heaven, reserv'd only for GOD himself. The twelve Loaves of Shew-bread upon the Table, signify the twelve Months of the Year. The Candlestick is made up of seventy Pieces, and refers to the twelve Signs of the Zodiack, through which the seven Planets take their Course; and the seven Lamps on the Top of the seven Branches bear an Analogy to the Planets themselves. The Curtains, with the four Colours wrought unto them, represent the four Elements. The Linnen signifies the Earth, as the Flax takes its Growth out of it. The Purple represents the Sea from the Blood of the Fish Murex, that gives it the Tincture. The violet Colour is the Symbol of the Air, and the Scarlet of the Fire. The Jew hath well observ'd, that the Holy of Holies, or the Inner Part was a Resemblance of the Heavens, into which (z) the High Priest went alone not without blood, which he offered for himself, and for the Errors of the People. And the Apostle (a) tells us, That the Holy Ghost signified hereby, that the way into the holiest of all was not yet made manifest, whilst the first Tabernacle was yet standing. But CHRIST being come an high priest of good things to come by a greater and more perfect tabernacle not made with hands, that is to say, not of this building; neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood he entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us. Before this Holy Place stood the Ark, with the two Tables of the Law in it, and (b) a Covering over it, which we call the Mercy-Seat, which (c) the Septuagint and the Apostle sometimes call a Propitiation. Over this there were two Cherubims stretching forth their Wings, and looking toward each other. Of this GOD said to Moses, (d) There will I meet with thee, and there will I commune with thee from above the mercy-seat, from between the two cherubims, which are upon the ark of the testimony. Here therefore the divine Presence did manifest it self, and therefore he is so often call'd (e) the GOD that sitteth or dwelleth between the cherubims. This Mercy-seat was therefore reckon'd a Type of CHRIST, who interposeth between the Sentence of the Law, and the Justice of GOOD, who is (f) the Propitiation for our Sins, and (g) appointed by GOD for this Purpose through faith in his blood. And as this was the Place of the immediate Presence of GOD, and stood directly opposite to the Entrance into the Tabernacle, and without the Holy of Holies; so from thence came the Custom among the Jews, to worship and bow toward that Place, especially at their first Coming in and Going out, and from hence the same Custom was continu'd in the Christian Church, long before any Images were set up in the same to be worshipp'd, as they have been since in the Church of Rome; and to this they might well apply the Commands of the Psalmist, not only (b) to worship, and fall down and kneel before the LORD our maker, but also (i) to worship before his footstool.

43. As GOD had declar'd (k) his Design of making such a Sanctuary to be, that he might dwell among them; so this Dwelling was fitly represented, by having all things in it belonging to a Dwelling-House, particularly a Table and Bread, whereby they were made to understand, that this was the Place of his Habitation. There was a Table and a Candlestick order'd for this House, because they were the ordinary Furniture of a Room; but no Seats, it not being proper to sit in the Presence of his divine Majesty. For the same Reason the Table had its Dishes, Spoons, Bowls and Covers, (tho' they were never us'd) and was always furnish'd with Bread upon it; and the Lamps were continually burning in the Candlesticks; and there was a continual Fire in the Dwelling of GOD upon his Altar, and a constant Meat and Provision brought to it by the Sacrifices there offer'd, which were partly consum'd by Fire upon GOD's own Altar, and partly eaten by the Priests, who were GOD's domestick Servants, and therefore to be maintain'd by him. And beside the Beasts offer'd up in Sacrifices, there was also a Meat-offering made of Flour and Oil together, with a Drink-offering, which were always join'd to the daily Sacrifice, being the Bread and the Drink, which was to go along with the Meat. It was also strictly commanded, that Salt should accompany every Oblation, because it was not fit that GOD's Meat should be unfavoury. And all these were to be consum'd at the Altar only, with the holy Fire that came down from Heaven, because they were GOD's Portion, and to be consum'd by Fire in an extraordinary Manner. And the Bread, being made of the same Corn which the Jews themselves did eat of, shews that they were GOD's Guests, who continually entertain'd them with the same Provision, which was made for him.

44. Another thing remarkable in the Tabernacle is, that it was a Model by which the Temple was afterward built, which is (l) therefore call'd a Resemblance of the holy

Tabernacle, which GOD had prepar'd from the Beginning. In the Tabernacle there was first the Holy of Holies, separated from the other by a Veil, then the main Body, with the Door opposite to it, and after that the outward Court. Thus it was in the Temple, whose Veil was rent at the Crucifixion of our SAVIOUR, and thus in the Christian Churches, there are the Chancels, which were antiently separated from the Rest by Rails or Lattices, and therefore call'd Cancelli; next to this is the Body of the Church, and a Door opposite to it; and without this the Church-Yard. We may add, that in the Temple there were two Piles of Building on each Side, which were Chambers for the Priests, and in our large Churches we have generally two Isles in the same Manner. In the Temple there was an high Tower opposite to the Holy of Holies, and the Towers in our Churches are generally opposite to the Chancel. In the Temple there was a very large square Walk, call'd (m) Solomon's Porch, and this gave the first Rise to the Cloysters in all Cathedral Churches, and also in the Colleges in our Universities. The chief Difference is, that their Holy of Holies was plac'd toward the West, and the Entrance was from the East; but our Chancel is plac'd toward the East, and the Entrance is from the West. They look'd forward toward us, to see what should happen in the latter Days, and we look back again toward them, to view what happen'd in the early Ages. They look'd after the Accomplishment of all by the MESSIAH, and we should behold how all things were fulfill'd, which were written in the Law and the Prophets concerning him. Wherever they were they look'd toward Jerusalem, and so do we, as if we both did wait for (n) that Jerusalem, which is from above, and is the mother of us all.

45. The Jews tell us, that when Moses was in the Mount, he not only receiv'd the written Law, but the traditionary also, and say (o) that when GOD deliver'd a Precept to Moses, he always added the Exposition and Meaning of it. That Moses afterward went into his Tent, and Aaron alone follow'd him; to whom Moses deliver'd the Precept, which he had receiv'd, together with its Exposition, or oral Law. That hereupon Aaron kept on the right Hand of Moses, and Eleazar and Ithamar came next into the Tent; to whom Moses communicated what he had before imparted to Aaron, upon which one of them betook himself to the right Hand of Moses, and the other to the left Hand of Aaron. After this the seventy Elders came in, and Moses taught them, as he had taught Aaron and his Sons. After rectly opposite to the Entrance into the Tabernacle, and without the Holy of Holies; so from thence came the Custom among the Jews, to worship and bow toward that Place, especially at their first Coming in and Going out, and from hence the same Custom was continu'd in the Christian Church, long before any Images were set up in the same to be worshipp'd, as they have been since in the Church of Rome; and to this they might well apply the Commands of the Psalmist, not only (b) to worship, and fall down and kneel before the LORD our maker, but also (i) to worship before his footstool.

43. As GOD had declar'd (k) his Design of making such a Sanctuary to be, that he might dwell among them; so this Dwelling was fitly represented, by having all things in it belonging to a Dwelling-House, particularly a Table and Bread, whereby they were made to understand, that this was the Place of his Habitation. There was a Table and a Candlestick order'd for this House, because they were the ordinary Furniture of a Room; but no Seats, it not being proper to sit in the Presence of his divine Majesty. For the same Reason the Table had its Dishes, Spoons, Bowls and Covers, (tho' they were never us'd) and was always furnish'd with Bread upon it; and the Lamps were continually burning in the Candlesticks; and there was a continual Fire in the Dwelling of GOD upon his Altar, and a constant Meat and Provision brought to it by the Sacrifices there offer'd, which were partly consum'd by Fire upon GOD's own Altar, and partly eaten by the Priests, who were GOD's domestick Servants, and therefore to be maintain'd by him. And beside the Beasts offer'd up in Sacrifices, there was also a Meat-offering made of Flour and Oil together, with a Drink-offering, which were always join'd to the daily Sacrifice, being the Bread and the Drink, which was to go along with the Meat. It was also strictly commanded, that Salt should accompany every Oblation, because it was not fit that GOD's Meat should be unfavoury. And all these were to be consum'd at the Altar only, with the holy Fire that came down from Heaven, because they were GOD's Portion, and to be consum'd by Fire in an extraordinary Manner. And the Bread, being made of the same Corn which the Jews themselves did eat of, shews that they were GOD's Guests, who continually entertain'd them with the same Provision, which was made for him.

44. Another thing remarkable in the Tabernacle is, that it was a Model by which the Temple was afterward built, which is (l) therefore call'd a Resemblance of the holy

Tabernacle, which GOD had prepar'd from the Beginning. In the Tabernacle there was first the Holy of Holies, separated from the other by a Veil, then the main Body, with the Door opposite to it, and after that the outward Court. Thus it was in the Temple, whose Veil was rent at the Crucifixion of our SAVIOUR, and thus in the Christian Churches, there are the Chancels, which were antiently separated from the Rest by Rails or Lattices, and therefore call'd Cancelli; next to this is the Body of the Church, and a Door opposite to it; and without this the Church-Yard. We may add, that in the Temple there were two Piles of Building on each Side, which were Chambers for the Priests, and in our large Churches we have generally two Isles in the same Manner. In the Temple there was an high Tower opposite to the Holy of Holies, and the Towers in our Churches are generally opposite to the Chancel. In the Temple there was a very large square Walk, call'd (m) Solomon's Porch, and this gave the first Rise to the Cloysters in all Cathedral Churches, and also in the Colleges in our Universities. The chief Difference is, that their Holy of Holies was plac'd toward the West, and the Entrance was from the East; but our Chancel is plac'd toward the East, and the Entrance is from the West. They look'd forward toward us, to see what should happen in the latter Days, and we look back again toward them, to view what happen'd in the early Ages. They look'd after the Accomplishment of all by the MESSIAH, and we should behold how all things were fulfill'd, which were written in the Law and the Prophets concerning him. Wherever they were they look'd toward Jerusalem, and so do we, as if we both did wait for (n) that Jerusalem, which is from above, and is the mother of us all.

45. The Jews tell us, that when Moses was in the Mount, he not only receiv'd the written Law, but the traditionary also, and say (o) that when GOD deliver'd a Precept to Moses, he always added the Exposition and Meaning of it. That Moses afterward went into his Tent, and Aaron alone follow'd him; to whom Moses deliver'd the Precept, which he had receiv'd, together with its Exposition, or oral Law. That hereupon Aaron kept on the right Hand of Moses, and Eleazar and Ithamar came next into the Tent; to whom Moses communicated what he had before imparted to Aaron, upon which one of them betook himself to the right Hand of Moses, and the other to the left Hand of Aaron. After this the seventy Elders came in, and Moses taught them, as he had taught Aaron and his Sons. After them came in the Multitude, and all that sought the LORD, who receiv'd the like Instruction from his Mouth; so that Aaron receiv'd these Traditions from Moses four Times, his Sons three Times, the Elders twice, and the Multitude once. After this Moses withdrawing Aaron repeated the whole of both Laws, as he had heard it from him, and he withdrew. Then Elcazar, and Ithamar repeated the same, and withdrew. After this the seventy Elders made the same Repetition to the People then present; so that all of them having heard these Laws repeated four Times, they had them firmly fix'd in their Memories. After this, Moses the Day before his Death repeated it to Joshua; Joshua deliver'd it to the Elders, who succeeded him; the Elders deliver'd it to the Prophets, the Prophets transmitted it down to each other till it came to Jeremiah; Jeremiah gave it to Baruch, and Baruch to Ezra. Ezra gave it to the Men of the great Synagogue, the last of whom was Simon the Just: By him it was deliver'd to Antigonus of Socho; by him to Jose the Son of Johanan; by him to Jose the Son of Joezer, and by him to Nathan the Arbelite and Joshua the Son of Pera-chiah; and by them to Judah the Son of Tobai, and by him to Simeon the Son of Shutab, and by him to Shemaiah and Ab-talion; and by him to Hillel and Sham-mai, who interpreted the same in a different Manner to their Scholars. Hillel is said to deliver it to Simeon his Son, who is suppos'd to be the same, that took our SAVIOUR into his Arms, when he was presented in the Temple. Simeon deliver'd it to Gamaliel his Son, who was President of the Sanhedrim, when (p) the Apostles were examin'd before them, and (q) educated St. Paul in all these Traditions of the Fathers. From him it descended to Simeon his Son, then to Gamaliel his Son, then to Simeon his Son, and so to Rabbi Judah, whom they call The holy Man. But as all this is without the least Warrant from Scripture; so if the Jews could invent so many, so great, and such formal Lyes for nothing, what might they have done, had it been for a Wager?

46. This Rabbi Judah being a blind Man, and having nothing else to do, about eighty Years after the Destruction of the Temple, and the Dispersion of the Jews, fearing lest so great a Treasure should be lost, set himself to collect all these Traditions into Writing out of these two Schools, which he did in a Book call'd, The Mishneh, or second Law, and in which he generally lays down their different Opinions, which Book being written in a very short and obscure Style, occasion'd two very copious Expositions of it, the one call'd, The Babylonish Talmud, in thirteen large Volumes, and the other call'd, The Jerusalem Talmud, in eight large Volumes, and all of them in Folio, which last Books are the most difficult of all the Rabbinical Learning. And as the Jews tell us, that the Reconciling of these Differences, and Setting them in a due Light, is a Work reserv'd for the MESSIAS; so he hath done it in much fewer Words, declaring of them all alike, that (r) they transgressed the commandment of GOD, and laid it aside by their Traditions, and in vain did they worship him, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

47. But to return from this Digression: Moses having stay'd longer in the Mount than the Israelites expected, so many of them as could not be oppos'd by the rest (s), come tumultuously unto Aaron, and require of him to make a sacred Symbol or Sign, as other Nations had, which might represent GOD to them in a visible Manner. Aaron partly overcome by their Importunity, and partly frighten'd into a Compliance, takes their Ear-rings of Gold, melts them in the Fire, and makes the Similitude of an Ox with them, about the Bigness of a Calf. Perhaps he thought that the Israelites would be best pleas'd with such an Image at this, having (t) seen the Idolatry of the Egyptians in Worshipping both living Oxen, and also the Pictures of such; or, which is more probable, only to put them in Mind of the divine Power, which was hereby represented. For an Ox's Head was antiently an Emblem of Strength, and Horns were a common Sign of Kingly Power. Upon this the Israelites hold a Feast, and run into all the Extravagances of the Egyptian Idolatry. And GOD commands Moses to go down immediately, and put a Stop to it. But before this (u) GOD declares first his Intention to destroy all the Israelites, which was diverted by the Prayer of Moses, who (x) stood before him in the breach to turn away his wrathful indignation. When (y) GOD resolv'd to spare the Israelites, he expresses

(t) The Egyptians worshipp'd Joseph (who fed them in the Famine) under the Representation of an Ox, which plow'd the Ground, and trod out the Corn; which Ox they call'd Mnevis; and they also worshipp'd another Ox, which they call'd Apis, with great Solemnity, whenever they could meet with such a one. This Apis was consecrated to Isis and Osiris, and they describe him thus, His Body was to be all black, excepting a square Spot of White upon his Forehead. He was also to have the Figure of an Eagle, as some say, or of an half Moon, as others tell us, on his Back; a double List of Hair on his Tail, and a Beetle or Knot under his Tongue. And perhaps after Aaron had cast it at first into the Shape of an Ox, Exod. 32. 4. he might afterward fashion it with a graving Tool, according to this Description. (u) Exod. 32. 9, 10. his Anger against Aaron, and declares his Resolution to destroy him; but Moses pray'd for Aaron also at the same Time, and so he was preserv'd. At his Coming in Sight of the Camp, he (z) was very angry, and cast the two Tables out of his Hands, and brake them beneath the Mount, which the (a) Eastern Writers say he afterward pick'd up again, and plac'd in the Ark, together with other two whole Tables, which were afterward given him. Upon this he destroys the Golden Calf, and grinds it to Powder, and throws it into the Water, of which they were afterward oblig'd to drink. He calls for those who were zealous for the Cause of GOD to destroy the chief Idolaters, which the Levites did at that Time, to the Number of three thousand Men, who acted with that Impartiality, that they spar'd not even their own Children, whom they knew to be guilty. And for this Service Moses promis'd to them (b) that they should be consecrated to the LORD, and be a peculiar People to him, they should be GOD's Priests, and Ministers of his House, and the tenth of all the Land should be given them for an Inheritance. The next Day Moses goes again to GOD to beg Pardon for his People. And tho' GOD had not utterly cast off his People, and had resolv'd not to punish the innocent; yet he declares, that they should perish, who had offended his Divine Majesty. And accordingly, he (c) sent a Pestilence among them, and tells them, that (d) he would visit this Sin of the Fathers upon their Children in future Generations, which made the Jews observe, that (e) no Vengeance had since come upon the Israelites, in which there had not been half an Ounce of the Golden Calf. However (f) after several Threatnings and other Signs of GOD's Displeasure, he shew'd himself in some Measure reconcil'd to them; and upon the great Humiliation of the People, he (g) order'd Moses to hew two Tables of Stone like unto the first, and bring them with him to the Top of Sinai, which Moses did accordingly, and then GOD renew'd his Covenant with his People, proclaim'd himself a GOD merciful and gracious, long-suffering, and abundant in goodness and truth, keeping mercy for thousands, and forgiving iniquities, transgressions and sins; he wrote upon the Tables (h) the ten Commandments, as they had been in the former. Upon this Occasion Moses was again in the Mount as before forty Days and forty Nights, during which Time, he (i) neither did eat bread, nor drink water, and so was the second Time a Type of our SAVIOUR's Fasting in the Wilderness.

48. When he came down from the Mount with the two Tables in his Hand, it is said, (k) that the Skin of his face shone. The Word which signifies a Horn being deriv'd from this Hebrew Verb, hath made many be of this Opinion, that there were two Horns or Rays of Light, which came from his Forehead; and for this Reason he is usually painted in our Churches with two such Rays from his Face, and a Rod in his Hand. And several Commentators give these Reasons of it, viz. to put the Israelites in mind of their Sin, and to shew, that as they were most inclinable to worship those Beasts, which had Horns; so GOD could dignify whom he pleas'd in such a Manner, and particularly his Servant Moses, whom they ought to reverence the more in Time to come for this Reason. The Apostle tells us, that (l) the children of Israel could not stedfastly behold the face of Moses for the glory of his countenance, and a Sense of their own Guilt might make them the more asham'd on such an Occasion. When therefore Moses spoke to the People, he put a Veil over his Face; but when he went to speak with GOD, he took it off. The Apostle (m) makes it to represent the Obscurity of the Law, unless as it refers to the Antitype. Moses put a veil over his face, that the children of Israel could not stedfastly look to the end of that which is abolished. But their minds were blinded; for until this day remaineth the same veil untaken away in the reading of the old testament; which veil is done away in CHRIST. But even unto this day when Moses is read, the veil is upon their hearts; nevertheless when it shall turn unto the LORD, the veil shall be taken away. For we all, who are Christians, when we read therein, behold as in a glass the glory of the LORD.

49. As soon as the Face of Moses ceas'd to shine, that the Israelites might freely and familiarly converse with him, Moses (n) told them, that they must build a Tabernacle for GOD to dwell among them, who expected, that the People should willingly offer such things as were necessary for that Purpose, which they did so liberally, that they were soon restrain'd from Offering any more. Upon this Bezaleel of the Tribe of Judab, and Aholiab of the Tribe of Dan, were appointed by GOD himself for the Overseeing and Managing of the whole Work; which was done with that Exactness, that upon a strict View by Moses, it was found to be according to the Pattern that was before shewn him. And accordingly he commended the Workmen, who had done their Work faithfully, and the Children of Israel, who had contributed the Materials, and gave Thanks to GOD, who had enabled them so to do, and had given them so evident a Sign, that he was pleas'd to dwell among them. When the Israelites perceiv'd, that such a stately Tent was building, they rightly concluded, that they should not decamp, until it was finish'd and set up; and therefore they made Booths for themselves and their Families. Accordingly on Friday the eighth Day of October, or the fifteenth Day of their seventh Month, they observe the Feast of Tabernacles, as GOD had before (o) commanded them so to do; which without Doubt they observ'd with great Joy, as a Preparation for their Building a Tabernacle for their GOD. The Day following they observ'd their Sabbath, which Command was not only given them before at Marah and Sinai, but also enjoin'd (p) among the other Commands for Doing this Work; and hereby GOD declar'd, that all other Commands should give Place to this. Neither did the divine Wisdom think it proper, that on the Day of the Week, in which CHRIST was afterward dead, and rested in the Grave, the Jews should be employ'd in Building any other Place for his Reception. But on the Day following, being Sunday, the Tabernacle (which was a Type of CHRIST, who (q) was made flesh, and dwelt among us, and was also born on this Day, and so fix'd his Tabernacle with us) is begun to be built, even on the same Day of the Week, which we observe in Commemoration of the Anti-type. In eight Days Time the Israelites had finish'd the Making of Booths for themselves, and therefore the first and the eighth or last Day were (r) the two great Days of the Feast, as it is still among us Christians, the one in Commemoration of the Birth of CHRIST, and the other in Commemoration of his Circumcision.

50. The Israelites being thus employ'd, we hear no more of them till the Tabernacle was set up, which was done by (s) the express Command of GOD, on the first Day of the first Month of the Year, according to their Account, when GOD was pleas'd in a miraculous Manner to testify his Approbation of it. For (t) the Cloud, which had hitherto gone before them like a Pillar by Day, and like a Flame of Fire by Night, now visibly remov'd from the Front of their Camp, and covered the tent of the congregation, in such a Manner, that Moses was not able to enter into it, because the cloud abode thereon, and the glory of the LORD filled the tabernacle; and thus a cloud was upon it by day, and fire was on it by night, in the sight of all the house of Israel throughout all their journeys: And it was afterward their constant Method, that when the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle, the children of Israel went forward in all their journeys. But if the cloud was not taken up, then they journeyed not, until the day when it was taken up.

51. The first Month of this new Year takes in the whole Story of Leviticus. And therefore as soon as the Tabernacle was erected, and probably, on the Day following, GOD (u) speaks to Moses from thence, and gives him several Rules and Ordinances concerning it, the first of which are concerning Sacrifices to represent the Death of CHRIST, as the Tabernacle it self did represent his Body. After this he (x) gives Direction concerning the Consecration of Aaron to be the High Priest, and his Sons to be Priests under him; which was done with that Solemnity, that it lasted seven Days, in the Presence of the whole Congregation, or so many as could be Spectators of it, that they might be Witnesses of what was done, and satisfy all the People, that Aaron and his Sons did not intrude themselves into this Office, but were solemnly call'd and consecrated to it by Moses the Servant of the LORD. And therefore an inward Call alone is not sufficient, but there must be an external Ordination for that Purpose; for (y) no man ought to take this office unto himself, but he that is called of GOD, as was Aaron. There must be Satisfaction given not only to the Person himself, but also to the People among whom such a Person officiates. But here is no Witness to testify an inward Call, except the same Person. And in this Case even CHRIST saith (z), If I bear witness of my self, my witness is not true. There are but two Ways to prove our Mission, either by a due Ordination, or by Working of Miracles. This last was that which CHRIST appeal'd to, with this Declaration, that (a) if it had been otherwise, he ought not to have been believ'd. And therefore they who cannot bring this Testimony, ought to submit to the other, before they presume to take this Office upon them.

52. Aaron being thus consecrated, he offers upon the Day after a (b) burnt-offering for himself, and a sin-offering for all the People, and (c) immediately after this he lifted up his Hands, imploring the divine Blessing upon the People, which he afterward pronounc'd. Upon this GOD manifested his Approbation of the whole, for that Glory (d) which before fill'd the Tabernacle, now appear'd without in the Sight of all the People, and a Fire came from thence, which burnt up the Sacrifices: And when all the People saw it, they shouted for Joy, and prais'd GOD with an humble Thankfulness, who hereby testify'd his Presence among them, and his gracious Acceptance of them. And as GOD had before given a positive Order, (e) that the fire should be ever burning upon the altar, and should never go out; so they preserv'd this Fire until the Captivity, by a constant Supply of Wood for that Purpose; so that it continu'd during the first Temple, but the Jews agree, (f) that it was wanting in the second, notwithstanding the Story (g) in the Maccabees, that it was hid in a Pit, and miraculously restor'd in the Time of Nehemiah.

53. But as no State in this Life is without its Troubles; so a sad Accident happen'd, which turn'd the Joy of Aaron's Family into Sorrow; for (h) Nadab and Abihu, his two eldest Sons, attempted without any Order from GOD to burn Incense in the Sanctuary. They both attempted it, tho' it was to be offer'd but by one at a Time, and probably they offer'd it out of Season, it being neither the Time of the Morning, nor the Evening Sacrifice. And whereas they might now be oblig'd to take only of the Fire burning on the Altar, which they call'd holy Fire, they took it from another Place, which if allow'd, would have brought the Altar into Disesteem, and occasion'd the Worshipping of other Gods in other Places. The Cause of all this might be, that they had eaten and drank too liberally on this solemn Feast, which made them forget themselves, and rashly run into so gross a Mistake, which occasion'd the Prohibition (i) of Wine and strong Drink to the Priests, who were to enter into the Sanctuary. But GOD, to deter others from the like Offence, struck them dead immediately with Fire from before his Face, giving this as a Reason, (k) I will be sanctified by all them that come nigh me, and before all the people will I be glorified. This Misfortune so sensibly afflicted Aaron, that he (l) would not eat of the Goat for the Sin-offering, as he was (m) expressly commanded; and he gave this Reason to Moses for it, that (n) they had in many Particulars acted as it was commanded; but that since there had such a heavy Misfortune befall him, in the Death of his two Sons, he could not have eaten it with a joyful and thankful Heart, as he ought to have done, and therefore he fear'd, that GOD would be angry at him, and he also should lose his Life in the same Manner with his Sons; which (o) Apology satisfy'd Moses. For where there is no wilful Contempt, but rather a Respect intended in any Action, all good Men are inclin'd to make a favourable Construction of it, and grant it an Indulgence, tho' there may be some Error in it.

54. And now the Feast of the Passover drawing nigh, GOD (p) commanded the Israelites to observe it in the same Manner as they had observ'd it in Egypt the Year before, lest they should look upon it as a temporal Command, which they did accordingly; at which Time some Persons, who had been unclean by the Touching of a dead Body, desire to know of Moses, whether they should keep it with the rest of the Israelites or not; and Moses, by the Direction of GOD, makes a standing Rule, that in all such Cases they should keep it on the fourteenth Day of the next Month. And the Rest of the Month was spent in GOD's Delivering many other Commands to the Israelites, as we find them recorded in (q) the remaining Part of the Book of Leviticus.

55. On (r) the first Day of the second Month in this new Year, GOD commands Moses to number the Tribes, and place them in their Order about the Tabernacle; and it is very remarkable, that let them march which Way soever, the same Tribes were always on the same Side, let it be either East, West, North or South, and began first to march accordingly, even tho' they happen'd to be the hindmost. The (s) Levites were appointed to pitch on the three Sides of the Tabernacle, and Moses and Aaron before it. On the (t) east Side there were the Tribes of Judah, Issachar and Zebulun. On the south Side there were the Tribes of Reuben, Siméon and Gad. On the west Side were the Tribes of Ephraim, Benjamin and Manasseh; and on the north Side the Camps of Dan, Asher and Naphthali. That there was an infinite Wisdom concern'd in the Disposal of these Camps, which knew all Events to the End of the World, and was the same which appear'd to (u) Ezekiel and (w) St. John, will appear by comparing them all together. In the Wilderness there was a Throne for the Divine Majesty, or the Holy of Holies, in the Tabernacle. In Ezekiel and the Reve- lations there is a Throne, expressly call'd so, and all these are suppos'd not to be vacant, but fill'd with the Divine Majesty, as it is particularly express'd by Ezekiel and St. John. In the Wilderness, and by St. John, this Throne is plac'd in the Midst of all, in Ezekiel above all. And all this is to shew GOD's Providence in and over his Church, and that nothing happens to her but by his Appointment and Permission. Next to the Tabernacle in the Wilderness, was the Camp of the Levites, including the Priests as their principal Part. Next to the Throne in the Revelations are the four and twenty Elders, like the Heads of (x) the four and twenty Courses of the Priests, appointed by David to attend upon the Temple in their several Turns. Beyond these in the Wilderness, are the twelve Tribes of Israel, reduc'd into four Armies or Bodies, pitching at a convenient Distance on the East, South, West and North Sides, each having its particular Standard under so many principal Tribes, Judah, Reuben, Ephraim and Dan. Each of these principal Tribes, as the Head of each Army, according to the antient Tradition (y) of the Jews, had their own peculiar Animals display'd on their Banners, particularly Judah's Ensign on the East was a Lion, Ephraim's on the West was an Ox, Reuben's on the South was a Man, and Dan's on the North was a flying Eagle. Thus when Ezekiel saw his Vision with (z) his Face toward the North, the four Faces of the Cherub which he saw did exactly correspond thereto. For the Face (a) on the Right-hand or East was as a Lion, that on the Left-hand or West was like an Ox, that on the South, which he mentions first as being before him, was like a Man, and that on the North was like an Eagle. The (b) same Order is also observ'd by St. John, as an Introduction to his Prophecies, or (c) the Opening of the Seals, which immediately follow'd. And as (d) the Seat of St. John's Visions was the Roman Empire; so this Situation in the Wilderness, and Ezekiel's Vision, compar'd with his, do fix the History of the four first Seals, and consequently serves for a Key to all the rest. The first Seal shews us (e) a white Horse, and he that sat on him, had a bow, and a crown was given to him; and he went forth conquering and to conquer. By this is meant CHRIST himself, who was perfectly clean and pure, and without Spot or Blemish. He is represented by St. John as a Lion, the Ensign of Judah on the east Side, and is call'd (f) the Lion of the tribe of Judah, to shew more expressly a Correspondence of this Seal with his Authority and Power. He first set up his Kingdom at his Resurrection and Ascension, which begun in the East, and soon made a great Progress, and after the Destruction of his Enemies the Jews, was still more and more advancing it self in the Roman Empire. The (g) second Seal shews a red horse, and power was given to him that sat thereon to take peace from the earth, and that they should kill one another: and there was given unto him a great sword. This is introduc'd by the second Animal an Ox, whose Station was on the West Side of the Camp of Israel, and the Prophetick Scenes. This fixes the History to the Reign of Trajan, and his immediate Successors of the Ælian Family. He was born in Spain the utmost Parts of the West, and was the first Roman Emperor, who was not an Italian. And he and his Successor Hadrian made the most dismal Slaughters of the Jews, which ever were known, to the Number (as (h) some say) of twelve hundred thousand Men. The third Seal (i) shews a black horse, and he that sat thereon had a pair of balances in his hand. And there was a voice in the midst of the four beasts, saying, A measure of wheat for a penny; and three measures of barley for a penny. And see, that thou hurt not, or (k) be not unjust in the oil and the wine. This was introduc'd by the third Animal, which had the face of a man, whose Station was on the South Side of the Camp of Israel, and the Prophetick Scenes. This fixes the History to the Beginning of the Reign of Septimius Severus, who was born in the South Part of the Roman Empire, even in Africa it self, and he and his Successors under this Seal were the only Roman Emperors, who were of this Extraction. And the Care, which he and his Successors took to make good Laws, and execute them impartially, particularly in Relation to Oil and Wine, and to procure Plenty of both, as related by the Historians of those Times, doth perfectly agree with this Prophecy. The fourth Seal (l) shews a pale horse, and his name that sat on him was Death, and hell followed with him, and power was given unto them over the fourth part of the earth to kill with sword, and with hunger, and with death, and with the beasts of the earth. This was introduc'd by the fourth Animal, which was like a flying eagle, whose Station was in the North side of the Camp of Israel and the Prophetick

Scenes, and fixeth the History to the Beginning of the Reign of Maximinus, who was born North as far as Thrace, and thus it was to continue during the Reigns of his immediate Successors.

There were Wars and Murders, Tyranny and Cruelty, a Pestilence for fifteen Years together, and a Famine consequent thereon, at which Time it was no Wonder, (m) if the wild Beasts of the Earth increas'd upon them. So that it is evident, that the GOD, who gave Directions, how the Israelites should pitch their Tents, was the GOD who appear'd to Ezekiel and St. John, in Visions agreeing therewith, and made them so exactly to agree with the History of future Ages; and consequently knew in the Beginning what should happen to the End of the World.

56. In the Situation of the Levites round the Tabernacle, it is observable, that the Family of Gershon pitch'd (n) behind toward the West, the Family of Kobath on (o) the Right-hand toward the South, and the Family of Merari (p) on the Left-hand toward the North, and they were reckon'd to be twenty and two thousand, but in Computing them we shall find that they were three hundred more. Thus

Num. 3. 22.	Gershon	7500
28.	Kobath	8600
34.	Merari	6200
Total		22300

Which may be thus accounted for: The Family of Kobath was the most numerous, and (q) Moses and Aaron were descended from them. Moses and Aaron (r) pitch'd their Tents on the East Side of the Sanctuary, and probably Moses on the Right-hand near to his Family; so that he might take three hundred from them, one half to attend on him, and the other half to attend on Aaron, and so they who remain'd in their respective Camps might be the exact Number, which the Scripture mentions; and the Camp of Kobath will be still the largest of the three.

57. The Number of the Israelites from (s) twenty Years old and upwards, (t) was 603550, but the Number of the (u) Levites from a Month old and upwards was but 22300, so that we cannot suppose, that the Number of those, who were above twenty Years old, could exceed twenty thousand, which was not a thirtieth Part in Number of the rest. These were to have the full Tythe of Cattle, Sheep, and indeed of every thing even to Mint, Anise and Cummin; so that in this Respect two Levites had as much or more of the Product of the Ground as five other Israelites, beside the Sacrifices, voluntary Oblations, and other Offerings at the three stated Feasts, and (x) the eight and forty Cities which were given to them, could not be less than a (y) full Proportion with the rest; so that there was a much more ample Provision than many imagine, for such as in those Days did attend the Service of the Altar. And if (as most affirm) they paid a second Tythe every Year, the Levites had much more, and the Husbandman paid above a sixth Part, as appears from (z) an ancient Computation in this Manner.

6000 Bushels in one Year belonging to the Husbandman.

100 Bushels was the least, which could be paid to the Priests, for the first Fruits of the threshing Floor:

(m) Such a Destruction of Men the Scriptures frequently intimate to be the Cause of the Increase of wild Beasts, as Levit. 26. 21. Deut. 7. 22. Deut. 32. 24. Ezek. 5. 17, and Ezek. 14. 15, 21. (n) Num. 3. 23, 24, 25, 26. (o) Num. 3. 29, 30, 31, 32. (p) Num. 3. 35, 36, 37. (q) Exod. 6. 16, 17, 18, 19, 20. (r) Num. 3. 38. (s) Num. 1. 2, 3. (t) Num. 1. 46. (u) As above. (x) Num. 35. 1 to 9. (y) As the Levites had eight and forty Cities given them, Num. 35. 7. and on each Side a thousand Cubits for Suburbs, and two thousand more for the Fields of the Suburbs, Levit. 25. 34. or for their Pasture Ground. See Patrick on Num. 35. 5. So let us suppose, that the whole might be equal to a Square of two Miles and an half, making in all 158400 Inches, or 7236 Cubits at 21,888 Inches to a Cubit. From hence subtract 6000 Cubits for the Fields and Suburbs on each Side, and the City will be equal to a Square of 1236 Cubits, which is equal to a Square of 27053 Inches, or 136 Perch, and is not very large for a City. According to this Computation, What therefore belongs to each City will be equal to a Square of  $2\frac{1}{2}$  Miles, or  $5\frac{1}{4}$  Square Miles, and the eight and forty Cities, with their Suburbs and Fields, will be equal to 250 Square Miles. Let us next suppose that the whole Land of Canaan belonging to the twelve Tribes was equal to an Oblong of 200 Miles in Length, and 100 Miles in Breadth, or 20000 Square Miles in the whole, which is more than can be allow'd. However according to this Reckoning the Levites will have an eightieth Part of the whole. Now the rest of the Israelites above twenty Years of Age being 603550, Num. 1. 45, 46. and it being impossible, that all the Levites of that Age could be 20000, since all of a Month old and upwards were but 22300, the whole Number might be about 623550. The Levites therefore being but a thirtieth Part of the whole, will have such a Proportion of Land, as 30 is to 80, or 3 to 8, which was very considerable, beside the Tythe of all the rest. And if we reckon 640 Acres to a Square Mile, their 250 Square Miles will amount to 160000 Acres in the whole; which according to the lowest Computation was 8 Acres to each Man. However we may rather conclude, that GOD allow'd to his Servants the Levites when in Canaan, about the same Quantity of Land, which Sesostris distributed among his Soldiers in Egypt in the Time when they travell'd in the Wilderness. But if among the 22300 Levites, we allow 5458, to be between a Month and twenty Years of Age, and that only 16842 of them, among whom the Land was divided, were above twenty Years of Age, then according to the former Suppositions each of them might have nine Acres and an half, which was the exact Quantity that Sesostris gave to his Soldiers. Or it may be the same, if we reckon the Land of Canaan to be less than what is here computed, as it really was. (z) Sextinus Amamus de decimis.

5900 Bushels remaining to the Husbandman, out of which he paid two Tythes.

590 Bushels were the first Tythe to the Levites, Tobit 1. 7. Neb. 10. 37.

59 Bushels the Levites paid to the Priests, which is call'd, The Tythe of the Tythes, Neb. 10. 48. 2 Chron. 31. 6.

5310 Bushels remain'd to the Husbandman, out of which he paid his second Tythe, Tobit 1. 7. and it was spent two Years in the Temple, Deut. 14. 26. and the third Year given to the Poor, Deut. 26. 12. (a)

531 Bushels were the second Tythe.

4779 Bushels remain'd to the Husbandman as his own, all being paid.

1121 Bushels are the Sum of both Tythes join'd together, which is above a sixth Part of the whole, or almost nineteen out of an hundred; but if the first hundred is added to it, it is 1221 or above a fifth Part, or twenty to an hundred.

And therefore according to this Computation, if we except the second Tythes of the third Year as belonging to the Poor, the Tythes belonging to one Levite will be four Times as much in Value, as the Lands belonging to any other Israelite.

58. Whilst the Camp of the Israelites was settled in the Order before-mention'd, GOD (b) gave direct Orders to the Israelites to separate unto him the Tribe of Levi instead of the first-born, who before executed the Office of Priests in their respective Families; and also (c) to put out of the Camp all unclean Persons, which was done accordingly, and he also gave them (d) several other Laws, which were to be observ'd among them.

59. Thus on the first Day of the second Month, in the second Year, which was the Day of the Jewish Sabbath, GOD speaks to Moses from the Tabernacle, and (e) commands him to number the People, and set up their Standards on the four Sides of the Camp, and particularly mentions the Names of the Princes of each Tribe, who was to be their Standard-Bearer, and the principal Persons to give Directions in all Cases of this Nature. The Day (f) after the People are number'd, these Standard-Bearers are settled, and they take care to settle these Encampments according to their Directions. And thus the Jewish Church becomes most glorious on the Day of the Christian Sabbath; which being done, Moses (g) seems to dedicate the whole Camp to GOD by some particular Ceremonies, which were without Doubt according as he had been commanded, tho' the Command is not mention'd, because it was never afterward to be in Use; and these Princes consult what they should offer unto GOD for this Honour done them, that so their Offerings might be alike, which they did one by one every Day, the Sabbaths excepted; so that all their Offerings were completed on the sixteenth Day of the same Month, being the Day of the Christian Sabbath.

60. In the mean Time GOD gives (b) some other Commands to Moses relating to the Office of the Priests, and gives him (i) particular Directions for the Consecration of the Levites, which were observ'd accordingly; and the Persons who were unclean at the Time of the Celebration of the last Passover, are directed to observe it on the fourteenth Day of the second Month, according to the Directions which had before been given them. The Translation of this Feast a Month beyond its proper Time, occasion'd that it could not then be a Commemoration of their Deliverance out of Egypt, because in such a Case it would have been observ'd on that very Night, or not at all; and therefore it must refer to something else, and chiefly to something else to come, which was the Death of CHRIST.

61. When Moses was coming into Egypt upon GOD's Message, at the End of the former Year, the (k) Angel of the LORD appear'd in a threatening Posture, as if he intended to kill him, which could not but affright him, and put him into some Disorder. The Reason was, because he had neglected to circumcise one of his Sons; which being done, and the Danger over, Zipporah his Wife fearing some other Misfortune, into which she and her Children might fall by the Way, or in Egypt, desir'd Moses to send her home again, until he had finish'd the Work that he went about, to which he consented. But now Jethro his Father-in-Law (l) hearing of all the glorious things, which GOD had done for the Israelites by the Hand of Moses, brings his Wife and his two Sons with him unto Moses at Sinai, where they receiv'd each other with a mutual Affection, Moses telling Jethro the great Deliverances, which they had met with, and Jethro rejoicing when he heard the News, and (m) professing his Belief in the GOD of the Israelites. He was certainly a good Man, and his Piety might be the chief Inducement to cause Moses to be so nearly related to him. He was descended from Cush, the Family of the Son of Ham, and there-

In Respect of its being paid to the Poor, it was call'd מעשר עני, The poor Man's Tythe; and in Respect of its being paid every third Year, it was call'd מעשר שליש, The third Tythe, Tobit 1. 1. fore is call'd (n) a Cushite, which we translate an Ethiopian. Before the Beginning of the Assyrian Monarchy by Nimrod the Son of Cush, he remov'd with a great Part of his Family toward Babylon, and settl'd in the South Part call'd Cuscha; and after that remov'd into the Parts of Persia call'd Cussetan, or the Province of Cush. And those who were left behind in their old Country being much weaken'd thereby, were expos'd to the Invasions of the (o) Ishmaelites, the (p) Avites, the (q) Horites, the (r) Caphtorims, or neighbouring Parts of Egypt, and the (s) Idumæans, which so weaken'd them, that in the Time of Jethro there was hardly any thing of them remaining in that Country but the antient Name. He is call'd in the Books of Moses by three Names. The first (t) is Reuel, which (u) the Septuagint frequently translates by Raguel, which was also the Name of his (x) Father, and was accordingly the Name of some others in those Countries, particularly of (y) Raguel mention'd in the Book of Tobit. The (z) Name signifies Fear, Terror or Consternation, as if some heavy Calamity afflicted the Nation at each of their Births, and probably was occasion'd by such Commotions. The other Name is (a) Jethro, or, The Remainder, as if he was the last of all, who tarried in that Country; and when he remov'd from thence to dwell among the Midianites, who were of Posterity of (b) Abraham by Keturah, he was there call'd (c) Hobab, or, The Beloved, where he was so well respected, that he was made (d) the Priest of Midian, not perhaps of the Midianites, but of his Brethren the Cushites, who upon those several Occasions before-mention'd upon the Dispersions from the Country of Cush, might come and settle there. And it is probable, that his Interest in that Country might be a peculiar Providence, that none of all the Sons of Keturah, which were settl'd in those Parts, gave the Israelites the least Disturbance, whilst they travell'd in the Wilderness. Jethro (e) coming thither, offer'd a Burnt-offering and Sacrifices to the GOD of the Israelites, which shews, (f) that all those Laws were then fully settl'd by GOD himself. And the next Day (g) Moses judg'd the Israelites according (h) to those judicial Laws, which had been before establish'd after the Delivery of the ten Commandments. Jethro seeing Moses undergo so great a Fatigue, advis'd him (i) to appoint fit Judges to act under him in all the lesser Matters, to which he consented, and which was a great Ease to him afterward all the Days of his Life.

62. After this (k) GOD commands Moses to make two Silver Trumpets, and tells him the Use of them in Calling the Princes or the People together on any particular Occasion. And when Jethro had been with him about three Days, the (l) Cloud ascends from the Tabernacle, to give Notice of their March from Mount Sinai, and so they prepare to travel by Setting the Standards and the Tribes in their Order, and Appointing the Levites to their particular Charges. And Moses knowing what a signal Piece of Service his Father-in-Law had done him in so short a Space of Time, and concluding that his Advice might be as proper on other Occasions; (m) desires him not to leave him, with a Promise to gratify him to the utmost of his Power for such an Obligation, which he refus'd, and return'd back again into the Country of Midian. The Reason of his Refusal is suppos'd to be, because he had not settl'd the Government of these People, nor the Office of the Priesthood during his Absence; and that he might teach them the Worship of the true GOD, and leave in them a true Sense of Religion, which he effected in so great a Measure, that Piety was propagated in some Families among them to future Generations. For the (n) Rechabites came out of this Country, who (o) descended from this Jethro or Hobab, and (p) whose Virtue the Prophet Jeremiah praises in the latter End of the Jewish Church.

63. After a tedious March of three Days in (q) the Wilderness of Paran, the Israelites (r) came to a certain Place, where some of them began to murmur, but not publickly, either because of the Length of the Journey, or for Want of such Provisions as they had a Mind to. But GOD, who knows our private Actions, destroy'd many of them by a Fire, which was quench'd at the Intercession of Moses. For which Reason the Place, which probably had no distinct Name before, was now call'd Taberah, or a Burning. However, (s) the whole Multitude was so far from being reform'd by this, that they come tumultuously unto Moses, and murmur for Want of Flesh, and at the Prayer of Moses GOD promisseth to give them so much as should serve for a whole Month. But (t) while the flesh was yet between their mouths, and before it was chewed, the wrath of the LORD was kindled against the people, and he smote the people with a very great plague. And therefore the name of the place was called Kibroth-hattaavah, or the Graves of Lust, because there they buried the people that lusted. When Moses relates the Story first in (u) the Book of Numbers, he mentions both the Names, but doth not tell us, whether or no they were two different Places. When he (x) repeats the same in Deuteronomy, he seems to mention them as two different Places. And when he (y) speaks of their several Encampments, he leaves out one of the Names, as if they were both the same. But the Truth seems to be this: They were two different Places, but so near to one another, that when they had remov'd from one Place to the other, some of the Tents stood on the same Place where the others had stood before; and therefore it was rather a Change in the Situation of their Camp than a different Encampment.

64. The two (z) most learned Men of their Age have differed in their Opinions, what Food this was, which was given to the Israelites, one of them affirming it to be Quails and the other Locusts. It is possible, that the original Word might signify both; and therefore at this Time they might be fed with both. They (a) complain'd for Want of Variety, and therefore GOD might give them Variety. And (b) the Psalmist seems to refer to both, when he saith of GOD, that he rained flesh upon them as thick as dust, and feathered fowls like as the sand of the sea. And he let it fall into the midst of their camp, even round about their habitation.

65. The People being six hundred thousand Men, it was impossible for Moses so to speak, that he could be heard of them all, and therefore (c) he complain'd to GOD, that the Burden was too heavy for him, and desir'd to be eas'd of it either in Life or by Death. GOD commands him to bring to him seventy of the Elders, and promises to (d) endow them with extraordinary Gifts, that they should speak to the People such excellent Truths as were proper for them to hear, and might persuade them to their Duty on all Occasions, with such forcible Arguments, and in so pressing a Manner, that all might be sensible, that it was GOD who qualify'd them for this Work, and these Gifts were conferr'd not only on all the Number which were present, but even upon two that remain'd in the Camp,

66. After a small Stay at Kibroth-hattaavah the Israelites decamp'd from thence,

and came to Hazereth their thirteenth Station. Zipporah the Wife of Moses had not been with him above a Fortnight or three Weeks, but (e) Aaron and Miriam revile her and Moses for her Sake. It is probable, that they had never seen her before; and when they saw her they despis'd her, being of a black or swarthy Complexion like the rest of the Family of Ham, from whom she was descended by his Son Cush. But there were other Reasons for Reflection: Shem (from whom they were descended by Abraham) had (f) the Right of Primogeniture conferr'd upon him as a Reward of his Piety to his Father Noah, and Ham was not only the youngest Son, but accursed of GOD for his Impiety at the same Time. His Race fell soon into Idolatry, for which Reason the Canaanites were devoted to utter Destruction, the Egyptians were plagu'd in a terrible Manner, the Cushites had been weaken'd by frequent Invasions, and Jethro who tarry'd longer than the rest, was forc'd at last to fly his Country. The Reflection against Moses was, that he was too much rul'd by this foreign Family. He had made Judges by the Advice of Jethro, and since that had appointed seventy Elders to be Prophets without consulting them; and therefore they look'd upon themselves as slighted upon the Account of these new Relations, and resented it accordingly. But GOD vindicates his Servant Moses by a Voice from the Tabernacle; and as Miriam was the chief Aggressor, and stirr'd up Aaron to join with her (for which Reason she is (g) mention'd as the first) so she was smitten with Leprosy, the Sight whereof brought Aaron to a deeper Sense of his Sin, so that he humbly begg'd Pardon for himself and for her, and so escap'd.

67. After Miriam had (h) been shut out of the Camp seven Days (for (i) so long was any Person reckon'd as unclean by this Distemper) they (k) march'd again and came to Rithmah, a Place so call'd from the great Number of Juniper Trees, which were in it. This was their fourteenth Station, and it lay in the Wilderness of (l) Paran in the direct Road to the Land of Canaan, and so near it, that another March might have brought them into the southern Part of the Country. Here Moses (m) by the Commandment of GOD chooses out twelve Men, one out of every Tribe, and commanded them to search out the Land, and bring him a particular Account. The Name of him, who was of the Tribe of Ephraim, was (n) Hoshea, whom Moses for a particular Reason (n) call'd Jehoshua, and was he, who afterward led the Israelites into Canaan, and is not only by the Septuagint, but also (o) in the Apocrypha call'd Jesus the Son of Nave, and is once in the New Testament call'd (p) Jesus by St. Paul himself. The Name Hoshea in Hebrew signifies a Saviour, and the Word Jehoshua, Joshua, or JESUS, signifies, The LORD will save. The Name was thus alter'd, to shew the Israelites that Joshua was only the Instrument, but the Praise and Glory of all must be given to GOD alone. He was a Type of CHRIST; and as he led the Israelites into the Land of Canaan; so CHRIST brings us to the Kingdom of Heaven, that (q) Rest, which remaineth for the people of GOD. For this Reason our blessed LORD was call'd by this Name, and the Angel gives this Account hereof to Joseph, telling him, that the Virgin Mary (r) should bring forth a son, and they should call his name JESUS, because he, the LORD himself, should not be a temporal Saviour only, as Joshua was, but he should save his people from their sins.

68. These Spies are suppos'd to agree together to separate themselves, or only to go two and two for fear of being discover'd, and to return at the End of forty Days, which they did accordingly. At their Return they brought of the Fruit of the Land, particularly some of the Pomegranates and Figs; and when they came to a Brook in the southern Part, they cut down a large Bough from a Grape-Tree, which they brought upon a Stick between two; and for this Reason the Brook was call'd, The Brook of Eshcol, which Word signifies, A Cluster of Grapes. This needs not to look like a Romance, since (s) Strabo saith, that the Vines in Margiana and other Places were so big, that two Men could scarce compass them in their Arms, and that they produc'd a Bunch of Grapes of two Cubits, or three Foot and an half in Length, which could not well be carry'd but between two upon a Stick. They return'd back (as near as can be computed) on the sixteenth Day of September, according to our Style, at which Time the Sun was in nine Degrees of Virgo, as it is with us about the twenty second Day of August. And tho' this is earlier than the Time, when Grapes are ripe among us; yet in the Parts more near the Sun, they ripen'd sooner, and so might be fully ripe about the same Time. The Canaanites, who return'd from the Egyptian Wars, and had there learn'd the Art of Fortification, built such large Walls about Towns, as were thought to be impregnable. Some of the Men were of a gigantick Stature, and particularly the Anakims, of whom it was a (u) Proverb, Who can stand before the Children of Anak? And their Names at that Time shew'd their Size. Anak signify'd (x) a Chain or a Collar, such as the commanding Officers wore in those Days, and therefore shew'd a Man well vers'd in Military Affairs. The (y) Names of his Sons were remarkable. Abiman signifies, Who is my Brother? as if there were none to be compared to him. Sheshai coming from a Word which signifies six, imports him to be six Cubits high, which was near the Height of Goliath; and Talmi signifies Furrows, as if his Height was equal to the Breadth of a Furrow, which in Countries where they mow their Corn and do not reap it, must be very considerable. The Spies returning magnify all these Reports, and put the People in a Fright, only Caleb and Joshua endeavour to appease them, and the People murmur at the News, and for this Reason GOD destroys all the Spies except those two, who were reserv'd to enter into the Land of Canaan; he tells them that they should wander forty Years in the Wilderness, until they, who were above twenty Years old, should be all destroy'd; and their Children should be brought in to possess it, which forty Years are not to be reckon'd from this Time, but from the Time of their Coming out of Egypt. Upon this Occasion Moses pens (z) the ninetieth Psalm, in which he sadly complains, how (a) their Days were consum'd by GOD's Wrath, and their Years came very soon to an End in Comparison of the former Generations. After this the Murmurers, instead of humbling themselves before GOD, resolve now to seize upon the Land, or perish in the Attempt; and tho' (b) Moses dissuades them from it, they resolve to go on, and had so great an Overthrow, that the Name of the Place was call'd Hormah, or Destruction, from this Accident. After this GOD gives the Israelites (c) some other ceremonial Laws, and (d) punisheth with Death the Man who presumptuously breaks the Sabbath.

69. Upon this (e) GOD commands the Israelites to wear Fringes at the Bottom of (e) the four Skirts of their Garments, and to put over it a Ribband of blue, being of a distinct Colour from all the rest, which bound the Fringe fast at the Top, and made it more conspicuous. This was a particular Fashion, and shew'd them to be a particular People.

And as the Rainbow was appointed by GOD to shew, that there should be no other general Flood; tho' in it self it could signify nothing; so this was appointed to shew them, how they were bound to keep all GOD's Commands. A small Fringe or Lace would have been sufficient for this Purpose; but as the Superstition of the Jews increas'd, so they who pretended to a greater Holiness than others, (e) enlarged the borders of their garments, that this Fringe and Lace might be the longer, and enlarg'd their Fringes, so that they swept the Ground, which made them more remarkable; and at last their Superstition grew so much, as to contrive, that these Fringes might be so wrought, as to signify the six hundred and thirteen Precepts contain'd in the Law of Moses, which they often speak of, and so put them in Mind of (f) all the commandments of the LORD, and (g) our SAVIOUR himself is suppos'd to wear them in Compliance with the Jewish Custom at that Time. And it is probable, that at the same Time GOD might give them a Law, like to that (h) which Moses repeated in Deuteronomy, These words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thy heart, and thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thy hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thy eyes, and thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and upon thy gates; which being spoken in a figurative Sense, they took in a literal. Accordingly they had Schedules or Scrolls of Parchment, which were of two sorts; one they call'd Phylacteries for the Forehead, or Frontlets, reaching from one Ear to the other, and tied behind with a Thong; the other they call'd Phylacteries for the Hand, fasten'd upon the left Arm above the Elbow on the Inside, that it might be nearer the Heart. Both these sorts were worn, not by the Pharisees only, but by the Sadduces also, but (i) with this Difference, that the Pharisees for greater Ostentation wore their Hand Phylacteries above their Elbows, and the Sadduces in the Palms of their Hands. And as the Command might be taken in a literal Sense; so our SAVIOUR did not blame the Wearing of them, but the Making them broad, whereby they would appear more holy than others. And as they could not write all the Books of Moses in such Scrolls as these; so they only wrote these four Particulars,

Exod. 13. 11 to 17.

Deut. 11. 13 to 22.

These they put into one Skin, in which there were made four distinct Houses or Receptacles for each of these Texts. And as there is also a (k) Command, That they should write some of the Law upon the posts of their houses, and upon their gates; so they wrote in Parchment these two Particulars,

Which they roll'd up, and writing upon it the Name of שׁדַּי Shaddai, or, The Almighty, they put it into a Piece of Cane or other hollow Wood, and fasten'd it to the Doors of their Houses, and of each particular Room in them; and as often as they went in or out, they (l) made it a Part of their Devotion to touch this Parchment and kiss it.

70. During the Stay of the Israelites at (m) Kadesh-barnea, there arose another Insurrection against Moses and Aaron. Korah, their Cousin-german, could not bear his being excluded the Office of the High Priest, and concluded, that there ought to be more than one, and Dathan and Abiram the Sons of Reuben concluded, that their Tribe being the first born ought to have had the civil Power, without considering, that they were excluded by (n) their Forefather Jacob, for (o) a heinous Crime, which Reuben had been guilty of. These drew two hundred and fifty Men into the same Conspiracy, who being Men of principal Note among them, brought Incense and Censers to offer for themselves, and for the rest of the People. But GOD to vindicate the Authority of Moses and Aaron, caus'd the Earth to open and swallow up Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, and burnt up the rest with Fire from his Presence. And to prevent the like for the future, GOD commanded, that broad Plates should be made of the Censers, which they offer'd for a Covering for the Altar, that all who saw them might know the Reason of it, and learn to beware by such an Example. And the next Day, when the Congregation murmur'd against Moses and Aaron, a Plague destroy'd 14700 of them, which would have gone farther, had it not been prevented by the Intercession of Moses, and the Incense which Aaron offer'd. And to prevent any Complaint concerning the Priesthood of Aaron, GOD (p) order'd all the Tribes to bring every Man a Rod, probably all cut off from the same Tree, and lay them up before the Ark, and to write the Names of the Tribes upon them, only Aaron's Name instead of Levi. The next Day they view'd these Rods, and all the rest remain'd as dry as before, but Aaron's Rod had in some Places the Appearance of Buds. in others Buds come out, in others Blossoms, and in others Almonds, to shew by this Miracle, that the Priesthood should not be confin'd alone to Aaron, but should descend to his Posterity. This effectually convinc'd them for the present, and the Rod was order'd to be laid upon the Side of the Ark, and is suppos'd still to have continu'd in the same State to prevent the like Murmuring for the future. How long it continu'd there is uncertain, it (q) seems to have continu'd in the first Temple, but was not in the second, and it put a final End to all Disputes about the Priesthood, both in the Tribe of Levi and in the Family of Aaron. And upon this GOD gives (r) other Commands concerning the Charge of the Levites, their Maintenance and their Office.

71. After the Israelites (s) had tarry'd as long at Kadesh barnea, as they tarry'd at Horeb or Sinai, which (t) was three hundred seventy one Days, they decamp'd from thence on the thirtieth Day of July, or the twenty ninth Day of their Month Tammuz, and (u) march'd back again to the Red-Sea. And from the Time that the Curse of Wandering was (x) pronounc'd against them, to the Time when they came to the Wilderness of Zin was eight and thirty Years, during which Space Moses (y) reckons eighteen Marches, in which they were led back again to Eziongeber, or from the North to the South, and so to the Red Sea, in which Journeys they (z) compass'd the Land of Edom many Years, and nothing remarkable happens; and so at last (a) they come to Kadesh, not Kadesh-barnea, which was their fifteenth Station, and (b) lay upon the Confines of the Land of Canaan, but (c) another Kadesh near the Land of Edom, and not far from the Red Sea. Here they arrive on the first Day of their new Year, upon the thirteenth Day of April, and (d) nine Days after Miriam dies, her Mutiny against Moses (e) being probably the Sin, which depriv'd her of Ent'ring into the Land of Canaan.

72. And now GOD being willing to try this new Generation, whether they were any better than their Fathers, caus'd the Waters to fail, which had accompany'd them from the Time, when (f) they were at Rephidim; so that they probably emptied themselves into the Red-Sea, and went no farther. Besides, they were now coming into Countries, which abounded with Water; so that after this first Trial of their Faith and Patience, there was no need of a constant Miracle to procure it for them. And this we may learn from the Names of several Places, where they afterward encamp'd. Not long after this they came to (g) a land of rivers of water, then (h) to Oboth, which signifies Bottles, where we may suppose that they fill'd their empty Bottles with Water, and in Commemoration hereof gave this Name to the Place. Then (i) they came to Ije abarim, The Heaps of Fords, or as the Chaldee expounds it, The Fords of them that pass over; then to (k) the Brook Zered, then to (l) the River Arnon, and then (m) to Beer or a Well, which they digg'd for their Conveniency. But the People murmur, as their Fathers had done; upon which GOD commands Moses to take his Rod, and go to a certain Rock, and speak to it in the Presence of the People, and it should yield Water for their Use. Moses, instead of speaking to the Rock, speaks to the People, and smites the Rock; for which he and Aaron his Brother were refus'd Entrance into the Land of Canaan, and the Place was call'd, The Waters of Meribah, or the Waters of Strife; and to distinguish it from (n) another Place of the same Name the Word Kadesh, or holy, is added to it, because (o) the children of Israel strove with the LORD, and he was sanctified among them. His Goodness to them was more evidently known, by Working such a Miracle when they had no Title to it, as having not acted according to his Directions.

naan, observing that they stay'd there so long after several other short Encampments, and not knowing the Reason of it, but concluding they were providing to attack his Country, because they were near the Place, where the twelve Spies went into the Land of Canaan eight and thirty Years before, and therefore might be inform'd of all the Roads and Passages leading that Way into the Country, he brings together his Army, and by Surprise falls on the Out-Skirts of the Camp, and takes some of them Prisoners. Upon this the Israelites make a Vow, that if GOD would give them Success, they would utterly destroy their Cities; which they did accordingly, and from thence the Name of those Places was call'd Hormah, or Destruction.

74. Upon this the People expected to have immediately march'd to take Possession of the Land; but the Time not being yet come, they were oblig'd to march back again toward the Red Sea, and to compass once more the Land of Edom. This Disappointment made them the more uneasy, inasmuch that they murmur'd against the Providence of GOD, and the Administration of Moses, as they had done many Years before. To prevent this from being universal, GOD sent a very venomous Kind of Serpents among them, which bit or stung the People, so that many of them died. Upon this the People repent, and come to Moses confessing their Faults, and desiring him to pray to GOD in their Behalf, which he did; and upon this GOD gives him this Direction, (u) Make thee a brazen serpent, and set it upon a pole, or (as it is also in Hebrew) for a Banner, or an Ensign; and it shall come to pass, that every one that is bitten, when he looketh upon it, shall live; which he did, and the Success answer'd their Expectation. The Eastern (z) Writers look upon it as fasten'd to an Ensign. Hence it is, that we speak sometimes of the Ensign of the Cross. And the (y) Prophet Isaiah useth the same Word, when he saith, There shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek, and his rest shall be glorious. And he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel. The Author of the (z) Book of Wisdom calls it a sign of salvation, and speaks the Sense of the Jews, when he saith, He that turned himself toward it, was not saved by the thing which he saw, but by GOD, who was the Saviour of all. And we know, who hath given us the true Meaning of it in these Words, (a) And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the son of man be lifted up. For GOD so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. The Serpents are therefore the Devil and his Angels, their Venom is Sin, with which they slay the Souls of Men, and CHRIST (b) was made in the likeness of sinful flesh, and (c) was made sin for us, who knew no sin in himself, that we might be made the righteousness of GOD in him, and by Looking unto him with a true Faith, as crucified for us, might be healed of all the Wounds, which our Sins have made. It is (d) recorded, that when Constantine the Great march'd against Maxentius, and was taken up with devout Ejaculations tho' then an Heathen, there appear'd to him a Pillar of Light in the Fashion of a Cross with this Inscription, By this overcome. And the Night following our SAVIOUR appear'd to him in a Dream, with a Cross in his Hand, commanding him to make a royal Standard, like that which he had seen in the Heavens, and cause it to be born before him in the Wars, as a sure Sign of Victory and Safety; which when he did, his Enemy was kill'd, and his Army routed, tho' consisting of double the Number; and this was the Cause of his Conversion to Christianity, and Reducing the Roman Empire to the same Obedience. And this (e) is the Victory that overcometh the world, the Flesh, and the Devil, even our faith. For who is he that overcometh, but he that believeth that JESUS CHRIST is the son of GOD, and our only SAVIOUR?

75. And now the Israelites, after several short Encampments, come (f) to Bamoth in the Valley that is in the Country of Moab, near to the Mountain of Pisgah, which looks toward Jeshimon, and which is call'd the Mountains of Abarim before Nebo, and here they encamp. And after they had stay'd here a little Time to rest themselves, they (g) send Messengers to Sihon King of the Amorites, in the same Manner as they had sent before to the King of Edom, for Leave to pass thro' his Land, who refus'd them a Passage, and came with his whole Army to fight them, expecting that they would march off from him, as they march'd off from the Edomites. But the forty Years Travel in the Wilderness being near expir'd, and the Time being come in which they were to begin to inherit the Land, which GOD had promis'd them, of which this was a Part, they were encourag'd to venture a pitch'd Battle, and so they gave him a total Overthrow, took all his Cities, and possess'd his Land, and made (h) a Song in Commemoration hereof to encourage them on all future Occasions of the like Nature. After this they march'd toward Bashan, where (i) Og the King thereof, being (k) of a Gigantick Stature, came out against them with his whole Army, being also Men of the same Size; the Sight of whom so terrified the Israelites, that GOD himself encourag'd Moses not to fear them, and promis'd him Success, and that they should also possess their Land, as they did the other, and then they succeeded accordingly. So that these two Victories were Earnests of future Favours, and a full Proof, that when GOD was with them, neither Giants nor Walls could stand before them; so that they might well call to Mind, what Joshua and Caleb had (l) said before to quiet their Murmurings, that they were able to overcome them, and if the LORD delighted in them, he would bring them into that land, and give it them. That there was no Occasion to fear them, since their defence was departed from them, and GOD was with the Israelites.

76. After this the Israelites march, until they come to the East Side of Jordan in the Plains of Moab, over-against Jericho, on the other Side of the River, where they extended their Camp from (m) Beth-jeshimoth to Abel-shittim, and here they stay'd till they passed over Jordan under the Conduct of Joshua. Upon this (n) Balak the King of the Moabites, hearing the Success, which the Israelites had, and that they had destroy'd two Countries, was afraid that his Turn would be the next; and to prevent it, he sends for Balaam, a notorious Enchanter, and a Dealer with familiar Spirits of the worst sort, call'd (o) Serpents or Devils, that by his Assistance the Israelites might be destroy'd, and all the Powers of Hell might be engag'd to root them out. But GOD, who defeated the Magicians in Egypt, shew'd himself to be the same GOD still. The Moabites come, and bring great Presents with them. Balaam being of a covetous Temper, and (p) loving the wages of unrighteousness, intended to go with them. But GOD appears to him, and forbids him; upon which he denies them, and (q) owns himself to be overrul'd by a superior Force. Upon this (r) Balak sends more and more honourable Ambassadors with larger Presents, and Offers of the utmost Honours, which could be conferr'd upon him. Balaam having Time to harden his Heart, resolves to (s) take these Rewards, be the Consequence what it will,

which is charg'd upon him as his Error. GOD appears to him again, and tells him in an angry Manner, that since he hath such a Mind to go, he may follow his own Inclinations. Upon this he resolves to go the next Morning, carrying with him an evil Mind, desirous to get the Money and the Honour which was offer'd him, hoping as he had now gain'd one Point, he might gain the other, and so curse the Israelites according to his Inclinations. This made that GOD angry, who knows the Heart; and therefore he sends his Angel with a drawn Sword, to make him sensible of his Error. The Ass saw the Angel, and three Times saves his Master's Life by Avoiding the Danger. Balaam knowing nothing of this smites the Ass as often in great Fury. GOD enables the Ass to speak and argue the Case with him, who convinces him of his hard Usage. And thus Balaam (t) was rebuk'd for his iniquity, and the dumb ass speaking with mans voice forbade the madness of the prophet. After this Balaam was enabled to see both the Angel and his own Folly, so that he offer'd to go home again, but was permitted to proceed upon Condition that he should speak only those Words, which GOD should put into his Mouth. And thus instead of (u) Cursing them he blessed them three Times, or as (x) Moses saith in another Place, When Balaam was hir'd against the Israelites to curse them, the LORD their GOD would not hearken unto him, but turn'd the Curse into a Blessing to them, because the LORD their GOD lov'd them. And for this Reason (y) the Israelites had a Command, that an Ammonite or a Moabite should not enter into the congregation of the LORD until the tenth generation after they were made Proselytes, and they should not enter into any Leagues with them for mutual Assistance.

77. After this Balaam, tho' an Heathen, prophesies of CHRIST JESUS as (z) a Star, which should arise out of Jacob, or (a) the son of man, which came down from heaven, whose Kingdom should be from everlasting to everlasting, and is call'd (b) the root and the offspring of David, and the bright and morning star, who should (c) rule over all the children of Seth, from whom (d) Noah descended, and therefore there should be no longer a Distinction between the Jews and other Nations, but all Mankind should be united under his Government. And therefore (e) out of Jacob he should come, who should have dominion. And this is (f) rightly explain'd by the Psalmist, who saith, He shall have dominion from sea to sea, and from the rivers unto the end of the earth. After this he prophesies of the neighbouring Countries, how (g) the Assyrian Monarchy should conquer them again, and so recover its Strength, and (h) after that the Grecian Army under Alexander the Great should overturn that Empire, and set up another. And this shews the Assyrian Monarchy to be then in being, and well known both to Moses and Balaam, tho' not in its greatest Splendor.

(o) The Word in Hebrew for Enchantments is אֲשֵׁרִי, or Serpents, and is the same by which the Devil is call'd, Gen. 3. 1, &c. (p) 2 Pet. 2. 15. (q) Num. 22. 13. (r) Num. 22. 15. (d) Gen. 5. 3 to 30. (e) Num. 17. 19. (f) Psal. 72. 8. The Masorites observe, that the Hebrew Verb, which signifies to have Dominion, is used in this Tense, and with an Apocope, only in these two Texts, and therefore they interpret the one by the other, and both of the MESSIAS, who shall have Dominion over his Subjects, and cut off or destroy all his Enemies.

78. And now Balaam not being able to do what Mischief he would, but being willing to do what Mischief he could, (i) advises Balak to send the Moabitish and Midianitish Women to converse freely with the Israelites, and so intice them to Whoredom first, and Idolatry afterward. This he concluded would make GOD angry at them, and destroy them, and the Event did in a great Measure answer his Expectation. Upon this the Anger of GOD was kindled against them, and he commanded Moses to give Directions to destroy all those who were guilty. The Judges being negligent, GOD sent a Pestilence among the People. How many died of it is differently reported. Moses saith, (k) that the Number was four and twenty thousand; and St. Paul saith, (l) that it was three and twenty thousand. To reconcile this some say, that three and twenty thousand died of the Plague, and one thousand by the Hand of Justice. But this doth not take away the Difficulty, because Moses saith, that the full Number died of the Plague. But the Words of St. Paul will better reconcile it, who saith, That there fell in one day three and twenty thousand: So that the Pestilence lasted two Days. The Number which St. Paul mentions died on the first Day, and a thousand on the second, occasion'd by the Remissness of the Judges to execute Justice. This was resented by Phinehas the Son of Eleazar and Grandson of Aaron, who observing that they were willing to favour a Prince among them, and a Daughter of the chief Person among the Midianites, who were brought before them, he took a Javelin and kill'd them both; and for this his Zeal (warranted only by (m) an express Command from GOD) the Plague was stay'd, and the High Priesthood confirm'd upon him and his Posterity.

79. And now all things are preparing for the Entrance of the Israelites into the Land of Canaan. Their (n) Numbers are taken in order to divide the Land more equally among them; and to take away all Suspicion of Partiality, every Tribe was (o) to cast

Lots for what should be given to them. The (p) Daughters of Zelophehad petition for an Inheritance among their Brethren, which was granted by GOD himself, and Laws are made for this Purpose to be observ'd for the future. Moses being (q) told of his approaching Death, desires GOD to nominate a Successor, and Joshua is appointed accordingly. And (r) farther Laws are made concerning Offerings, the Observing of their solemn Feasts, and the Obligation of Vows. Moses is commanded to (s) avenge himself and People upon the Midianites for the Whoredom and Idolatry into which they had seduc'd the Israelites, which was done accordingly, without the Loss of a Man; and Balaam the Ringleader of all this Mischief was slain among the rest, which he seems to have been apprehensive of, when (t) he pray'd saying, Let me die a natural Death like the death of the righteous, or innocent Person; and let my latter end be like his.

80. After this the (u) Tribes of Reuben and Gad, and half the Tribe of Manasseh, desire that their Inheritance may be allotted to them on the same Side of Jordan, where they were now encamp'd, out of the Countries which they had lately conquer'd. Moses mistakes their Intention at first, and reproves them for it. However they offer to go with the rest of their Brethren over Jordan, undertake the same Hazards, and endure the same Difficulties, and not return till the rest were settl'd, leaving only their Wives and Children behind them. Moses agrees with them on these Conditions. Upon this they go on to (x) conquer other Places and dispossess the Inhabitants, and inhabiting in them call many of them by their own Names; as (y) Havoth Jair, or, The Habitations of Jair; and where they met with any Towns, which bore the Names of the Pagan Idols, as (z) Nebo and Baal-meon, or the Habitation of Baal, they chang'd their Names to keep themselves free from such idolatrous Worship, according to the Command which GOD had given, (a) Thou shalt make no mention of the name of other Gods, neither let it be heard out of thy mouth. This was so commendable an Act in them, that GOD immediately upon it gives (b) Directions to the other Tribes, that when they came into Canaan, they should in the same Manner dispossess all the Inhabitants, destroy all their Pictures and molten Images, and quite pluck down all their high Places; threatening that if they did it not, they should be punish'd for their Disobedience, as it frequently happen'd in the Course of their History.

81. Upon this (c) GOD describes the Borders of the Land of Canaan, which he had promis'd to the other Tribes, and (d) tells the Names of those who should divide it. He (e) allots eight and forty Cities to the Levites, and six of these to be Cities of Refuge, where he, who had kill'd any Man, might be protected until the Death of the High Priest, if the Murder was not wilful; and after the Death of the High Priest, he was free from the Imputation of Guilt, or Danger of Punishment; so that he was at Liberty to return again to his own Possession. Thus the Manslayer's Liberty depended upon the Death of the High Priest under the Law, to represent to us, that we have no Deliverance under the Gospel but by our great High Priest the SON of GOD, who was appointed to die, that he might thereby make Satisfaction for our Sins, and set us at Liberty from the Guilt of all.

82. After this the half Tribe of Manasseh being related to the Daughters of Zelophehad, represent the Danger of their Marrying into another Tribe, in which Case the Inheritance given to them might be lost, which Inconveniency was remedy'd by making a Law, that all Heiresses should marry only those of their own Tribe; and these Daughters are the first Instances of the Observing of the same. Which Story brings us to the End of the Book of Numbers, and to the Beginning of the second Month, which happen'd before their Entrance into the Land of Canaan.

83. This Month beginning on the seventh of February, Moses on the first Day of it begins a long Discourse to the Israelites before his final Departure from them, in which he repeats their History during their Stay in the Wilderness, putting them in Mind of GOD's Goodness to them, and their Ingratitude to him, exhorting them to Obedience by many Promises and Threatnings, and many other Arguments, and dissuading them from an Opinion, that they went in to inherit the Land of Canaan by any Righteousness of their own; which may teach us, that our Righteousness is not the Cause of our inheriting the Kingdom of Heaven, of which the Land of Canaan was a Type. He dissuades them from Idolatry, as the Sin which they were continually inclin'd to, which would be the Cause of all their Troubles, and all the Judgments that would befall them. He repeats to them the moral Law first, and after that a great Part of the ceremonial, and adds many Particulars not mention'd before; from whence the Book, which gives an Account of it, is call'd Deuteronomy, or the second Law. He encourageth the Israelites to enter into Canaan, and take Possession of the Land, he appoints Joshua to be his Successor, and gives him a Charge accordingly. He finisheth the five Books, which go under his Name, and gives them all to the Levites, and orders them to be publickly read every Year at the Feast of Tabernacles, that they might the better be known and observ'd. And he composeth a Song setting forth GOD's Mercies and Vengeance, and exhorting them to serve him, and him alone. After this, according to the Example of Jacob, he blesteth the twelve Tribes, as a Conclusion of the whole, and prophesieth, tho' more obscurely, of what should happen to them. Thus (f) he speaks of Judah, that it should be a valiant and a successful Tribe; of Benjamin, (g) that the divine Majesty, or his Residence the Temple, should be on his Borders, whose Lot touch'd Judah's at Jerusalem, and did not fall off from it in the Revolt of Jeroboam. Of Joseph he said, that (h) this Tribe should be situate in a most plentiful Country, and enrich'd by the divine Blessing upon it; that the Hills of Mount Ephraim, Samaria and Baschan, which lay in it, should abound with Olives, Grapes, and such like Fruit, and he should be successful over his Enemies, several of the Judges, who deliver'd Israel, descending from him. Of Zebulun and Issachar he saith, that (i) they should call their Neighbours together to the Worship of GOD, which was (k) remarkably fulfill'd, when CHRIST began to preach in that Country; and that they should grow rich by Merchandise, being seated in a maritime Country. He said, that (l) Gad should have a large Inheritance, and (m) be farther enlarg'd, as it afterward happen'd. He saith of Dan, that (n) he should leap upon the Prey like a young Lion, as (o) it seiz'd upon Laisb and the adjacent Country. And he saith of Asher, that (p) it should dwell in a Country, where there should be Plenty of Olives, and also Mines both of Brass and Iron. And it is observable, that the City of (q) Sarepta, or Zarephath, had its Name from the Trade of Melting such Metals, which was carry'd on in it.

84. And now the Time of Moses's Death drawing near, he according to (r) the Command of GOD (s) goes up to the Top of Pisgah, which was over against Jericho, from whence GOD in a miraculous Manner enabled him to see all the Land of Canaan, from the North to the South, and over against him as far as the Mediterranean Sea, Part of which was an hundred Miles Distance. So that no Eye could possibly reach it; and the Arch of the Earth is such, that perhaps the highest Mountains in that Country could not be seen by Reason of the interposing Bulk; however without a Miracle it was impossible that he could have seen the Plains, and the Fruitfulness of the Country. Here he died (as is suppos'd) on the twenty fourth Day of the eleventh Month, and the Israelites mourned for him (t) thirty Days, that is until the first Day of the first Month in the following Year. For as they then computed thirty Days to each Month, and their common Year being Lunar, consisted of 354 Days, so their last Month could have but four and twenty Days in the whole.

85. The Eastern Writers tell us, that Moses (u) died in the Mountain by a Kiss from the Mouth of GOD; that is, he did not die of any Disease, nor worn out with Age, neither had he any Pain, but merely because GOD, the supreme Governor of all things, had so order'd it. He had a most delectable Sense and Taste of the divine Love, being neither unwilling to die, nor surpriz'd with the Thoughts of it; for he well knew the Time, the Place, and the Manner of it; and with a pleasant Mind, and a compos'd Spirit, he resign'd up his Soul to that GOD, who receiv'd it from him. After this (x) his Body was remov'd by the Angels from the Mountain into a Valley, and bury'd so privately, and in such a Manner there, that the Place could never be found. The Devil us'd his utmost Skill, that the Place of his Burial might be known, that it might have admitted an Occasion to the Jews to commit Idolatry, and so either worship him as a GOD, because of the Fame of his Miracles, or at least as a Saint, according to the Method of the Church of Rome. For as the Melchizedekians (y) worshipp'd his Image, what would they have done, if they had found his very Body? and how prone might the Israelites have been in the Time of their Distress, especially at the Captivity of the Land, to run to his Sepulchre, and beg him with Tears to pray for them, whose Prayers had been so prevalent, whilst he liv'd among them? So that the Preventing hereof occasion'd the great Dispute between the good and bad Angels, of which (z) St. Jude gives us this Account, That Michael the archangel, when contending with the devil he disputed about the body of Moses, durst not bring against him a railing accusation, but said, The LORD rebuke thee.

The CONCLUSION.

WHAT hath been said on this Subject may vindicate the Authority of these Books of Moses. He writes with such Simplicity and Integrity, as shews the Inditer to be more than human, or that Moses had in this the Assistance of the divine Being. He records his own Failings, and the Punishments inflicted on him, particularly that he should not go in to possess the Land of Canaan for that Reason; which is contrary to the Method of all Impostors. Tho' the Land of Canaan was so plentiful a Country, and all their Hopes were of Possessing it for ever after their Travels in the Wilderness; yet he makes not the least Provision for his two Sons Gershom and Eliexer, who (a) in all Probability enter'd into that Land, and being above forty Years of Age were fit to succeed him; he mentions nothing of them in his Discourses to the People, and we hear nothing of them afterward; and Moses himself appoints Joshua, a Man of another Tribe, to be his Successor. This shews, that he was influenc'd not by temporal Views, but by others of an higher Nature; that (b) he had respect unto the recompence of reward, and both endured and acted, as seeing and being guided by him, who is invisible. The Ceremonial Law, as it was in that Time, might be look'd upon as insignificant in it self, and only obligatory as it was commanded of GOD, who might command whatever he pleas'd, and it is our Duty to obey him; but whilst we Christians look upon it as (c) our schoolmaster to bring us unto CHRIST, we may see great Reasons for every Particular, and the Accomplishment of it shews us the manifold Wisdom of that GOD, who at first injoin'd it. The Prophecies which he mentions are as remarkable, either relating to CHRIST, the Israelites, or future Ages. Of CHRIST, GOD speaks to him (d) in this Manner, I will raise them up a prophet from among their brethren like unto thee, and will put my words in his mouth, and he shall speak unto them all that I command him. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever will not hearken unto my words, which he shall speak in my name, I will require it of him. This was not fulfill'd in the succeeding Generations; because we are expressly told, that (e) there arose not a prophet since in Israel like unto Moses, whom the LORD knew face to face. In all the signs and the wonders, which the LORD sent him to do in the land of Egypt to Pharaoh, and to all his servants, and to all his land, And in all that mighty hand, and in all that great terror, which Moses shewed in the sight of all Israel. And therefore the most learned of the Jews did confess, that (f) it should not be fulfill'd till the Cessation of Prophecy; but after that the MESSIAH should come who should be like him, or rather greater than he. And hence the Apostles declar'd (g) to the Jews, how it was fulfill'd. As for (h) his Prophecies concerning the Settlement of the Israelites in the Land of Canaan, they could not be known but by a divine Spirit. Moses had (i) given plain Directions to divide the Land by Lot, which (k) Joshua did accordingly, so that there could not be any Contrivance between them in this Case. Lots are merely accidental, and unforeseen, and therefore (l) as when the lot is cast into the lap, the whole disposal thereof is of the LORD; so nothing of this Nature can be foretold, but by him that disposeth of them. His Prophecies of the Transactions of the ten Tribes are remarkable; and to these we may add, what (m) he speaks in few Words concerning the future Monarchies, that Ships should come from the Coast of Chittim (by which is meant both Greece and Italy, and consequently both the Grecian and the Roman Empires) and should afflict Ashur (or the Country of Assyria, as Alexander did) and should afflict Eber (the Jews or Hebrews, as the Roman Monarchy did) and he also (or the Roman Monarchy) shall perish for ever; so that when we view what Daniel hath (n) observ'd concerning the Fall of this last Empire, when the saints shall possess the kingdom, or a Reformation from Po-

(a) It is probable, that Zipporah living among the Ishmaelites was not an Enemy to Circumcision, but only willing that her Son should not be circumcised until he was thirteen Years of Age, according to the Custom of that Country, which they learn'd from the Example of Ishmael, Gen. 17. 25. Hence it appears that one or rather both of her Sons could not be twenty Years of Age, when Moses went into Egypt, Exod. 4. 24, 25, 26. and therefore nothing hinders, but that they might have inherited the Land of Canaan. From the Entrance of the Israelites into the Land of Canaan, to the Finishing of the Temple.

FROM the Entrance of the Israelites into the Land of Canaan, to the Finishing and Dedication of Solomon's Temple, were four hundred and forty seven Years.

For first, The Space of Time from the Departure of the Children of Israel out of Egypt, to the Laying the Foundation of the Temple at Jerusalem by Solomon, is so exactly mention'd in (a) the Scripture, as to put it out of Dispute. And it came to pass in the four hundred and fourscore Year after the children of Israel were come up out of the land of Egypt, in the month Zif, which is the second month, that Solomon began to build the house of the LORD.

Now from the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt to their Entrance into Canaan, were forty Years, as hath been already mention'd.

So that from	480 Years
Substract	40 Years

And the Remainder is 440, or the Space of Time between the Entrance into Canaan, and the Laying the Foundation of the Temple.

Now Solomon was (b) seven Years in Building this Temple.

So that to	440 Years

And the Total is 447 Years from the Entrance of the Israelites into the Land of Canaan to the Dedication of the Temple, which was begun to be built in (c) the fourth Year of King Solomon's Reign, and dedicated in the eleventh.

And therefore to the Year of the World	2553 when the Israelites enter'd into
Canaan , add	440 Years

And the Total is	2993, or the Year in which the Temple began to be built,
To which add	7 Years

And the Total is 3000, or the Year of the World, in which the Temple was finish'd and dedicated.

2. Concerning this Space of four hundred and eighty Years so expressly mention'd, there are four different Computations. The first of these is that of the Jews, who allow 450 Years from the Death of Joshua to the

be two and thirty Years of Age, when he ministred to Moses, and when this Battle was fought.

5. However after all, the Account of our learned Prelate meets with some Objections. For first, he makes the Oppression under (a) Cushan Rishathaim immediately to succeed the Death of Joshua; whereas (b) the Scripture saith expressly, that the People served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders, that overlived Joshua; who had seen all the great works of the LORD, that he had done for Israel. But when that generation were gathered unto their fathers, and there arose another generation after them, which knew not the LORD, nor yet the works which he had done for Israel, then they did evil in the sight of the LORD, and served Baalim, and the groves. And then the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and he sold them into the hand of Cushan Rishathaim. So that this is suppos'd to have happen'd a considerable Time after the Death of Joshua. The other Objection is, That (c) Jephthab treating with the Amorites, before the Battle in which he conquer'd them, pleads his Right to all the Country in Dispute between them by Prescription, because the Israelites had been in Possession of it for three hundred years; but neither Josephus, Dr. Lightfoot, or our learned Prelate, make the Space so long. To answer these Objections (d) Sir John Marsham hath taken another Method: He agrees with (e) Josephus, that Joshua was in Possession of the Land of Canaan five and twenty Years before his Death, and that it was five and thirty Years more before Cushan Rishathaim oppress'd the Israelites, and therefore if (f) by those who had seen all the great works of the LORD, which he had done for Israel, is meant all those, who were of a competent Age to remember what had happen'd at their Passage over the Red-Sea, which was an hundred Years before this, we may well suppose them to be dead in that Space of Time. After this he reckons the Years of the Oppressors as distinct from the Years of the Judges, which makes too great a Number of Years; so that the Account of Jephthab will still remain as an Objection. To remove it, Sir John Marsham divides the Land of Canaan into four Parts, viz. the Eastern, Western, Northern, and Southern, and consequently that there were several of these Judges contemporary in the several Parts of the Kingdom; and where it is mention'd that the Land had Rest for a particular Number of Years, it doth not mean the whole Country, but only that particular Part, which was freed from the Oppression. After this he placeth some of the Judges, which acted in the North, as contemporary with Eli and Samuel the High Priests. This Account (g) our admirable Commentator looks upon as most reasonable. And as it is follow'd by Marshall in his Chronological Tables, with some few Amendments; so I cannot but look upon them as the most exact in this Epocha. And if we divide the Land of Canaan into four Parts, the Account thereof will stand as in the following Table.

6. There is one great Difficulty, which ariseth from Comparing the Chronology in Scripture with the Genealogies in the Book of Ruth.

For, from the Entrance into the Land of Canaan, to the Building of the Temple, were Years

Out of which substract David's Life,	70
2 Sam. 5. 4.
And the Years of Solomon , 1 Kings 6. 1.	4
The Total being	74

There will remain Years 366 And yet in these 366 Years there are but four Generations. For Salmon (who was (b) the Son of Naasson, or Nahshon, a (i) Prince among his People, and Standard-Bearer to the Tribe of Judah) begat Boaz of (k) Rahab, who hid the Spies in her House at Jericho. Boaz (l) begat Obed of Ruth, and Obed begat Jesse, and Jesse begat David. But as the Age of Man was lessen'd at the Murmuring of the Israelites to (m) eighty Years, as it is now, this is impossible, since

(a) Annales, pag. 42. (b) Josh. 24. 31. Judg. 2. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10. Judg. 3. 5, 6, 7, 8. (c) Judg. 11. 26. (d) Canon Chronicus, lib. 2. (e) Jewish Ant. Book 5. Chap. 1, in the End. Elmacinus, pag. 54. allows 31 Years for the Government of Joshua, Lutychius in his Annals, pag. 117. allows him six Years for the Conquering of the Land, fourteen Years for the Dividing it, and eleven Years after that in Peace, or 31 Years in all. And The Samaritan Chronicle allows him five and forty Years in the whole. N.B. That I do here correct the Mistake, which I was guilty of in the former Book of Allowing to Joshua 38 Years for his Government in Canaan, and consequently to have been but 32 Years of Age when he fought with the Amalekites, Exod. 17. 8, 9, &c. in which Year he was call'd נער A young Man, Exod. 33. 11. whereas if we allow but five and twenty Years for his Government, he must be five and forty Years old at that Time. And therefore he might be call'd A young Man, when only compar'd with Moses, or else the Word נער might signify Officers in the Army under the Direction of another, as Joshua was under Moses. So it is Gen. 14. 24. or military Men in general, without any Distinction of Age, as 2 Sam. 2. 21. because this was the most proper Age for such an Exercise. And 45 Years is much more proper than 32 for the Age of a General. (f) Josh. 24. 31. Judg. 2. 7. (g) Bishop Patrick's Comment on Judg. 2. 11. (h) Matth. 1. 4. Ruth 4. 20. (i) 1 Chron. 2. 10. Num. 1. 7. (k) Josh. 2. 1 to 23, and 6. 22, 23, 25. (l) Ruth 4. 21, 22. Matth. 1. 5, 6. (m) Psal. 90. 10.

there must be allow'd more Years to a Generation, than can be allow'd to the Age of a Man, and therefore they must be suppos'd to have Children even before they themselves were born.

7. For the Solving of this Difficulty there are two Methods propos'd: First, That it is not certain, that the Lives of all Men were shorten'd, at the Time when the Israelites murmur'd in the Wilderness. The Curse then pronounc'd might be only against that Generation, and might not affect others, the Reason of Cutting them off so soon being peculiar to themselves, viz. to prevent their Entering into the Land of Canaan. And therefore the Lives of others might be extended much longer until the Time of David, and especially in that Family, which GOD had honour'd so far, as to appoint that CHRIST himself should be born of it. According to this Account, we may suppose, that Salmon might be about twenty Years of Age, when he enter'd into Canaan; and Rahab, whom he married, to be about the same Age. And then these Years may be thus commodiously distributed, if we suppose Rahab to have born Boaz in the forty second Year after they enter'd Canaan; and if we assign an hundred and two Years before he begat Obed, and an hundred and eleven Years to Obed, before he begat Jesse, and as many to Jesse, before he begat David, which make the exact Sum of three hundred sixty and six. And this is the less strange, since after this Time we read of very old Men, who might be capable of having Children at the Age now mention'd, particularly (2) Jehoiada the High Priest, who liv'd an hundred and thirty Years; and long since that, Thomas Parr our own Countryman liv'd an hundred and two and fifty Years, and had a Son when he was an hundred and five Years old.

8. But secondly, It doth not evidently appear, that all these were the immediate Children of the Parents here mention'd. It is true, that the Word implies it in our English Language, but it doth not so necessarily follow in Hebrew. The Scripture speaks (a) not only of begetting children, but also of begetting childrens children. And of Hezekiah it is said (b) more than once, Of thy sons, which shall issue from thee, whom thou shalt beget, they shall take away, and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon; which could not be accomplish'd in a strict Sense at least before the fourth Generation. For thus (c) Hezekiah begat Manasses, and Manasses begat Amon, and Amon begat Josias. And Josias begat Jechonias and his brethren, about the time that they were carried away to Babylon. And it is observable, that in these Genealogies there is a different Style, and perhaps for a different Reason. The (d) Wife of Salmon is mention'd, by whom he had Boaz, and the Wife of Boaz is mention'd, by whom he had Obed, and (e) the Brethren of David are mention'd, as Sons of Jesse; but neither the Brethren of Jesse the Son of Obed, nor the Wife of Obed the Father of Jesse, is taken notice of. Here therefore a Latitude of Expression may be allow'd; and if here we allow four Generations, as in the Case of Hezekiah, there will be eight in all, and this will leave the Space of six and forty Years for each Generation, which may easily be granted, and so the Difficulty will be solv'd; especially when we consider, that (f) Boaz supposes himself to be no young Man, when he said to Ruth, Thou hast shewed more kindness in the latter end than in the beginning, inasmuch as thou followest not young men, whether poor or rich; and (g) Jesse was counted an old Man, when David his Son was but a Youth.

be two and thirty Years of Age, when he ministred to Moses, and when this Battle was fought.

5. However after all, the Account of our learned Prelate meets with some Objections. For first, he makes the Oppression under (a) Cushan Rishathaim immediately to succeed the Death of Joshua; whereas (b) the Scripture saith exprelly, that the People served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders, that overlived Joshua; who had seen all the great works of the LORD, that he had done for Israel. But when that generation were gathered unto their fathers, and there arose another generation after them, which knew not the LORD, nor yet the works which he had done for Israel, then they did evil in the sight of the LORD, and served Baalim, and the groves. And then the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and he sold them into the hand of Cushan Rishathaim. So that this is suppos'd to have happen'd a considerable Time after the Death of Joshua. The other Objection is, That (c) Jephthab treating with the Amorites, before the Battle in which he conquer'd them, pleads his Right to all the Country in Dispute between them by Prescription, because the Israelites had been in Possession of it for three hundred years; but neither Josephus, Dr. Light-foot, or our learned Prelate, make the Space so long. To answer these Objections (d) Sir John Marsham hath taken another Method: He agrees with (e) Josephus, that Joshua was in Possession of the Land of Canaan five and twenty Years before his Death, and that it was five and thirty Years more before Cushan Rishathaim oppress'd the Israelites, and therefore if (f) by those who had seen all the great works of the LORD, which he had done for Israel, is meant all those, who were of a competent Age to remember what had happen'd at their Passage over the Red-Sea, which was an hundred Years before this, we may well suppose them to be dead in that Space of Time. After this he reckons the Years of the Oppressors as distinct from the Years of the Judges, which makes too great a Number of Years; so that the Account of Jephthab will still remain as an Objection. To remove it, Sir John Marsham divides the Land of Canaan into four Parts, viz. the Eastern, Western, Northern, and Southern, and consequently that there were several of these Judges contemporary in the several Parts of the Kingdom; and where it is mention'd that the Land had Rest for a particular Number of Years, it doth not mean the whole Country, but only that particular Part, which was freed from the Oppression. After this he placeth some of the Judges, which acted in the North, as contemporary with Eli and Samuel the High Priests. This Account (g) our admirable Commentator looks upon as most reasonable. And as it is follow'd by Marshall in his Chronological Tables, with some few Amendments; so I cannot but look upon them as the most exact in this Epocha. And if we divide the Land of Canaan into four Parts, the Account thereof will stand as in the following Table.

6. There is one great Difficulty, which ariseth from Comparing the Chronology in Scripture with the Genealogies in the Book of Ruth.

For, from the Entrance into the Land of Canaan, to the Building of the Temple, were Years

Out of which substract David's Life,
2 Sam. 5. 4.	70
And the Years of Solomon , 1 Kings 6. 1.	4
The Total being	74

There will remain Years 366
And yet in these 366 Years there are but four Generations. For Salmon (who was (b) the Son of Naasson, or Nahshon, a (i) Prince among his People, and Standard-Bearer to the Tribe of Judah) begat Boaz of (k) Rahab, who hid the Spies in her House at Jericho. Boaz (l) begat Obed of Ruth, and Obed begat Jesse, and Jesse begat David. But as the Age of Man was lessen'd at the Murmuring of the Israelites to (m) eighty Years, as it is now, this is impossible, since

(a) Annales, pag. 42. (b) Josh. 24. 31. Judg. 2. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10. Judg. 3. 5, 6, 7, 8. (c) Judg. 11. 26. (d) Canon Chronicus, lib. 2. (e) Jewish Ant. Book 5. Chap. 1, in the End. Elmacinus, pag. 54. allows 31 Years for the Government of Joshua, Eutychius in his Annals, pag. 117. allows him six Years for the Conquering of the Land, fourteen Years for the Dividing it, and eleven Years after that in Peace, or 31 Years in all. And The Samaritan Chronicle allows him five and forty Years in the whole. N.B. That I do here correct the Mistake, which I was guilty of in the former Book of Allowing to Joshua 38 Years for his Government in Canaan, and consequently to have been but 32 Years of Age when he fought with the Amalekites, Exod. 17. 8, 9, &c. in which Year he was call'd נָעַר A young Man, Exod. 33. 11. whereas if we allow but five and twenty Years for his Government, he must be five and forty Years old at that Time: And therefore he might be call'd A young Man, when only compar'd with Moses, or else the Word נָעַר might signify Officers in the Army under the Direction of another, as Joshua was under Moses. So it is Gen. 14. 24. or military Men in general, without any Distinction of Age, as 2 Sam. 2. 21. because this was the most proper Age for such an Exercise. And 45 Years is much more proper than 32 for the Age of a General. (f) Josh. 24. 31. Judg. 2. 7. (g) Bishop Patrick's Comment on Judg. 2. 11. (h) Matth. 1. 4. Ruth 4. 20. (i) 1 Chron. 2. 10. Num. 1. 7. (k) Josh. 2. 1 to 23, and 6. 22, 23, 25. (l) Ruth 4. 21, 22. Matth. 1. 5, 6. (m) Psal. 90. 10.

there must be allow'd more Years to a Generation, than can be allow'd to the Age of a Man, and therefore they must be suppos'd to have Children even before they themselves were born.

7. For the Solving of this Difficulty there are two Methods propos'd : First, That it is not certain, that the Lives of all Men were shorten'd, at the Time when the Israelites murmur'd in the Wilderness. The Curse then pronounc'd might be only against that Generation, and might not affect others, the Reason of Cutting them off so soon being peculiar to themselves, viz. to prevent their Entering into the Land of Canaan. And therefore the Lives of others might be extended much longer until the Time of David, and especially in that Family, which GOD had honour'd so far, as to appoint that CHRIST himself should be born of it. According to this Account, we may suppose, that Salmon might be about twenty Years of Age, when he enter'd into Canaan; and Rahab, whom he married, to be about the same Age. And then these Years may be thus commodiously distributed, if we suppose Rahab to have born Boaz in the forty second Year after they enter'd Canaan; and if we assign an hundred and two Years before he begat Obed, and an hundred and eleven Years to Obed, before he begat Jesse, and as many to Jesse, before he begat David, which make the exact Sum of three hundred sixty and six. And this is the less strange, since after this Time we read of very old Men, who might be capable of having Children at the Age now mention'd, particularly (z) Jeboiada the High Priest, who liv'd an hundred and thirty Years; and long since that, Thomas Parr our own Countryman liv'd an hundred and two and fifty Years, and had a Son when he was an hundred and five Years old.

8. But secondly, It doth not evidently appear, that all these were the immediate Children of the Parents here mention'd. It is true, that the Word implies it in our English Language, but it doth not so necessarily follow in Hebrew. The Scripture speaks (a) not only of begetting children, but also of begetting childrens children. And of Hezekiah it is said (b) more than once, Of thy sons, which shall issue from thee, whom thou shalt beget, they shall take away, and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon; which could not be accomplish'd in a strict Sense at least before the fourth Generation. For thus (c) Hezekiah begat Manasses, and Manasses begat Amon, and Amon begat Josias. And Josias begat Jechonias and his brethren, about the time that they were carried away to Babylon. And it is observable, that in these Genealogies there is a different Style, and perhaps for a different Reason. The (d) Wife of Salmon is mention'd, by whom he had Boaz, and the Wife of Boaz is mention'd, by whom he had Obed, and (e) the Brethren of David are mention'd, as Sons of Jesse; but neither the Brethren of Jesse the Son of Obed, nor the Wife of Obed the Father of Jesse, is taken notice of. Here therefore a Latitude of Expression may be allow'd; and if here we allow four Generations, as in the Case of Hezekiah, there will be eight in all, and this will leave the Space of six and forty Years for each Generation, which may easily be granted, and so the Difficulty will be solv'd; especially when we consider, that (f) Boaz supposes himself to be no young Man, when he said to Ruth, Thou hast shewed more kindness in the latter end than in the beginning, inasmuch as thou followest not young men, whether poor or rich; and (g) Jesse was counted an old Man, when David his Son was but a Youth.

C H A P. II.

The History of the WORLD to the Death of Joshua.

THE History of the Israelites, from the Time of their Enttring into Canaan, until the Time when the learned Dr. Prideaux began to treat of them, hath very little Connexion with that of other Nations. We hear no more of Egypt until the Time of Shishak and Rehoboam. Colonies were now settled in all Parts, so that most Nations kept quiet to themselves, and were contented in Manuring and Improving their own Country. The Eastern Writers add very little to what we find in Scripture. The Jews had little or no Dealing with other Nations. They were distinguish'd from all the Rest of the World by Circumcision, by Observing their Sabbath on a different Day, and by many other Rites and Ceremonies: They boasted of their Privileges beyond other Nations, and other Nations abhorr'd them for their Boasting; so that they took little Notice of them in their Histories. Besides, all the Greek and Roman Historians are of a much later Date, and so they pass over all these Epocha's in a general Silence. And therefore there is very little of History that can be added, to what we find either in the Scripture or Josephus, especially when we add to them what Bishop Patrick, our most admirable Commentator, hath said upon (a) the Historical Books. And therefore there is the less Reason to enlarge thereon.

2. But to proceed. After the Death of Moses, and the Children of Israel had mourn'd (b) for him thirty Days, which ended with the old Year, they begin the new one with the Observation of the Sabbath; and the next Day Joshua a Type of our JESUS takes upon him the Government of the People, on the same Day of the Week that the Antitype was exalted as King over all by his Rising from the Dead. Now (c) GOD appears to him, and promises him Success: Upon which he settles the People in their Order, provides for the Passing over Jordan, orders the armed Men of the Reubenites, Gadites, and the half Tribe of Manasseh to pass over with him, according to their Agreement made with Moses, and they all promise to be faithful and true to him, as to their King or Governor. The same Day being the third Day of April according to

(a) On Joshua, Judges, Ruth, First and second Books of Samuel, First Book of Kings, and second Book as far as Chap. 15, to the End. First Book of Chronicles, and second Book, as far as to the End of Chap. 27. (b) Deut. 34. 8. (c) Josh. chap. 1.

Anno
2553. our Style, Joshua sends the Spies to (d) search out the Land, and particularly view the Strength of the Town of Jericho, which stood over against them, and therefore ought to be taken before they could proceed any farther. The (*) Eastern Writers tell us, that they were valiant and religious Men, and in the prime of their Youth; that in order to pass undiscover'd they chang'd their Habit, as if they had come from a distant Country, and that they cried to those, who ask'd from whence they came, in this Manner, We are People from the East, and our Companions have heard of this powerful People, who were forty Years in the Wilderness without either Guide or Provision, And it was reported to us, that they had a GOD, whom they call'd, The King of Heaven and Earth; and who (as they say) hath given them both our and your Country. Our Companions therefore have sent us to find out the Truth hereof, and report it to them. And therefore we have come to you from a distant Country. We have also heard of their Captain, whom they call Joshua the Son of Nun, who put the Amalekites to Flight, who destroy'd Sihon and Og, and the Kings of Midian and Moab. Wo therefore be to us, and you, and all that flee to us for Shelter. They are a People, who pity none, leave none alive, drive all out of their Country, and make Peace with none, but such as are Strangers to us both. We are all accounted by them as infidels, profane, proud and rebellious. And therefore whoever of us or you will take Care of themselves, let them take their Families and be gone, lest they repent of their Stay, when it is too late. And thus they impos'd on the Country till they came to Jericho. Thus (†) they came thither as Strangers, and so they went whither they would, and saw whatever they had a Mind to, without any Stop or Question. They took a View of the Walls, the Gates, and the Ramparts, all the Strength and Weakness of the Town, passing the whole Day for Men of Curiosity only, without any Design. And as they were discoursing how to get back again, Intelligence was brought to the King, as he was at Supper, that they were Spies, and so he sent to apprehend them. However, if any Credit can be given to this Story, it was but just that they, who thus impos'd on the Canaanites, were afterward impos'd on in the same Manner by the Gibeonites. These Men coming to Jericho, lodge with a Woman call'd Rahab, who kept a publick House or an Inn to entertain Strangers. The Chaldee Paraphrast (e) expressly gives her this Character without the least Mark of Infamy; but the Hebrew Word frequently signifying an Harlot, or a Whore, she is so call'd in our Translation. And the Septuagint speaking in the same Manner, and being the Translation common among the Jews, the (f) Apostles St. Paul and St. James call her by the same Name; not because she was really so (for (g) the Word in the Hebrew will bear a different Sense) but because she was reputed so. Both these Apostles rank her with Abraham the beloved of GOD; one propounds her as an Example of a lively Faith to all Christians, and the other as an Example of good Works. She was admitted into the Society of GOD's People, marry'd into a noble Family of the Tribe of Judah, and CHRIST was born of her Posterity, and therefore the Word in the Hebrew ought to have the most favourable Construction, which the original Language will admit of. However, if she had been so formerly, there is no Doubt but she afterward saw her Error; and when she was among the Israelites, she liv'd a sober and an exemplary Life. When the two Spies came to her House, she (h) entertain'd them very courteously, professeth her Belief, that GOD would give that Land to the Israelites, secures them from such as were sent to take away their Lives, gives them Directions how to escape, and makes an Agreement with them on certain Conditions for the Saving her own Life, and the Lives of her Relations, of all which the Spies at their Return give an impartial Account to Joshua, and encourage him to proceed accordingly with Hope of Success; and at the same Time they (**) mention the whole Business of Rahab with all its Circumstances, especially that of the Oath. Upon this Joshua consulted Eleazar the High Priest, and all the Elders, who immediately pronounc'd the Promise to be binding, and so ratified the Obligation.

3. Thus the Spies set out to view the Land of Canaan on the Day of the Christian Sabbath, as if it was to teach us, that no Day is fitter for us to view by the Eye of Faith the Kingdom of Heaven, that Rest which remains for us, and the Services of the Saints above, than that Day in which we on Earth do rest from our Labours, and which is devoted to the Service of our GOD. The Spies perform what they were commanded on the Sunday, Munday, and Tuesday, as we call them, or upon the second, third, and fourth Days of the first Month, and return in the Evening. The next Day in the Morning Joshua commands the Officers to give a strict Charge to the People to prepare for themselves Victuals, and every thing else which was necessary for a March, because (i) after three full working Days were over, they should pass over Jordan, tho' they themselves could not tell in what Manner. However they prepare such Things on the Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, being the fifth, sixth and seventh Days of the same Month. And after they had observ'd the Sabbath, and these three before-mention'd working Days were ended, Joshua rises early (k) in the Morning on the ninth Day of the Month, being our LORD's Day, to begin to take Possession of the promis'd Land. This Day he commands them (l) to sanctify themselves, not only by (m) legal Purifications; but also to dispose their Minds by holy Meditations and Prayer to GOD to receive his Benefits, and to be more sensible of them when they had them. Because that Wonder would now be begun to be perform'd, of which the whole Congregation should reap the Benefit the next Day.

4. And now the Officers give a Charge to the Priests, in what Manner they should carry the Ark before the People; and to the People, at what Distance they should follow the Ark. And accordingly when the Priests came to Jordan, the Waters part, the Ark stands in the middle upon dry Ground, some few of the People pass over that Day, and the next Day they all come over, the Ark comes up out of the River, and the People encamp on the other Side, between Jordan, which lay behind them, and Jericho which lay before them. When they were passing over, they could observe, that the Waters on the southern Part ran away from them, and those on the northern Part stood very high, like a Mountain, near the City call'd Adam, which was in the Outskirt of their Camp, and therefore the Psalmist seems to intimate, that (n) some of their Tents were pitch'd in it. There are some, who tell us, that in Commemoration of this Miracle there was a Town beyond Jordan call'd (o) Bethabara, or the House of the Passage, but this Town lies in our modern Maps beyond the Sea of Galilee, and therefore was at too great a Distance, and was at first but a single Inn built for the Entertainment of such, who came over in Boats. It is certain, that there was another Memorial of it; for by the express Command of GOD they took twelve Stones out of the River, of a different Colour from those on the Land; and the Reason is (p) particularly mention'd, When your children ask their fathers in time to come, saying, What mean you by these stones? Then ye shall answer them, That the waters of Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant of the LORD, when it passed over Jordan, and these stones shall be a memorial thereof for ever unto the children of Israel. Josephus (*) tells us, that Joshua erected an Altar of the twelve Stones, and sacrific'd upon it, celebrating the Feast of the Passover also in the same Place in a State of Plenty and Abundance, equal to the Degree of Want and Misery, which they had hitherto endur'd. For the Canaanites Harvest was at this Time ripe upon the Ground, their Cattle and other Booty were every where expos'd, and the Israelites in Possession of all. However this Miracle to terrify'd the Canaanites, that tho' the Israelites rested a considerable Time on the Banks of the River, and were not in a Condition for Action, there was no one who dar'd to set upon them, by which Means they were preserv'd.

5. For it happen'd, that all the Israelites, who were then under forty Years old, and so born in the Wilderness, were uncircumcis'd. The Jews at that Time had very probably a Notion, that when (q) GOD at first commanded this Rite, it was only as a Sign that the Posterity of Abraham should inherit the Land of Canaan, and therefore they were not willing to perform their Part of the Covenant, until GOD had perform'd his. This shews their Obstinacy and Perverseness in the highest Degree. But GOD, who intended that this Ceremony, like the Sacrifices, should be done away at the Coming of CHRIST, never blam'd the Neglect of (r) either, nor punish'd them for it, as he punish'd their Murmurings, their Blasphemy, and their Profaning of the Sabbath, their Idolatry, Fornication, and such moral Evils. For this Reason Moses never blames their Neglect, nor enjoins this Duty, but tells us the true Meaning of it, (s) Because the LORD had a delight in their fathers to love them, he chose their seed after them, even these above all people; and therefore they ought to circumcise the foreskin of their hearts, and be no more stiff-necked. So that well might St. Paul say, (†) He is not a Jew, who is one outwardly, neither is that circumcision, which is outward in the flesh. But he is a Jew, who is one inwardly, and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, and not in the letter, whose praise is not of men but of GOD. And therefore, lest they should think that they were not any longer bound to the Performance of this Duty, GOD renews it again, by Commanding Joshua to (t) make Knives of Flint, or (u) sharp stone, as Zipporah did, and circumcise the children of Israel the second Time, reckoning that the first, when the others were circumcis'd at their proper Age, and so were not to be circumcis'd again. This Joshua did on the eleventh Day of the first Month, when GOD said unto him, (x) This day have I rolled away the reproach of Egypt from off you, or the Mark of Slavery to which they had there been long subject, but were now declar'd to be a free People, by receiving the Mark of the Seed of Abraham, and made Heirs of the promis'd Land. In Commemoration of this, (y) the neighbouring Hill was call'd, The Hill of the Foreskins, and the Place, where they were encamp'd, was call'd (z) Gilgal, or A Rowling. At the (a) End of three Days, when their (b) Wounds began to be heal'd, they observe the Passover, which they could not have done, if they had not been circumcis'd, and so they were made Partakers of both Sacraments at once. The Morrow after being (c) the first Day of unleaven'd Bread, and the Day when they observ'd the Sabbath, the (d) Manna continu'd, being preserv'd by GOD for their Use, which afterward ceas'd on the Days of Labour, when they had eaten of the old Corn, which was the Product of the Country. The Eastern Writers farther add, (*) That then Joshua and the Children of Israel prais'd the LORD with the same Hymn, which Moses us'd at the Passage over the Red Sea, adding Songs and Psalms of their own, agreeable to the present Occasion. And they are so very particular, as to repeat some of the Words: Who is like unto thee, O LORD? O thou most holy, most terrible, who manifests thy Power, who workest Miracles, and performest Wonders. What shall we say, O LORD, who shewest thy Tokens, and enlightens the Darkness? There is none like unto thee: with more to the same Purpose. And that when Joshua (†) commanded the Stones to be taken from the River, the Levites cried with a loud Voice, Praise be to him, whose Power is so great. Praise be to him, whom all things obey. Praise be to the GOD of Gods, and LORD of Lords, who governs every thing by his Command, the dry Places, Heaven, Earth, Seas, Rivers, and all that is in them. There is no God besides him, no Kingdom like his Kingdom, and no Power like his Power. There is no Governor beyond his Dominion, nor Emperor beyond his Empire. Let his Name be praised, exalted and sanctified. That when the Waters parted, the Levites said, There is no other Power or Greatness but thine, O LORD of Hosts. And when the Priests stood in the River, they blessed GOD, saying, Praised be he whom all things obey; and that the Levites said the same Words with this Addition, Praised be he, who was pleased of his own good Pleasure thus to act for us.

6. After the solemn Rites of the Circumcision and Passover had been perform'd, Joshua (e) went to take a View of Jericho, and observe, as Generals usually do, the Approaches to it. There he beholds CHRIST JESUS standing before him like a Soldier, who declar'd himself on Joshua's Side, and was as (f) the Chaldee Paraphrase saith, The WORD of the LORD, who fought for Israel. Joshua could not but remember, that GOD had said to Moses, (**) My angel shall go before thee, and bring thee in unto the Amorites, and the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites; and I will cut them off, and that this Angel (*†) is expressly call'd JEHOVAH, or the LORD their GOD. And therefore upon this Joshua pays him all the Signs of Divine Adoration, which he not only approv'd of, but also gave farther Directions for that Purpose, which Joshua perform'd, and (g) afterward advis'd him, in what Manner he should besiege Jericho, by Marching round it once a Day for six Days, and seven Times on the seventh Day, with a Promise that the Wall should fall down flat, and they should take the City without the least Difficulty. These Directions Joshua observ'd, and the Success answer'd his Expectation, which convinc'd them, that it was the Work of GOD and not of Man. Upon this he tells them, that the City must be

The Jews (as in Pirke Eliezer, Chap. 29.) have been of an Opinion, that the Foreskins there thrown together were so many, that being laid together on an Heap, and cover'd with Earth, they made a little Hill. Indeed so many Men might, if they pleased, bring such a Quantity of Earth together, as might make a Hill in any Place. But the Foreskins themselves could contribute little to it. For let us suppose, that each Foreskin took up the Space of a Quarter of an Inch, which is impossible, especially when turn'd into Earth, and that there were eight hundred thousand in all, which is more than can be imagin'd; yet all this would not fill up the Quantity of a Cube of two Feet. For a Line of two Feet contains 96 Inches, the Cube of which is 884736: And if there had been a Million in all, they could only have fill'd up the Cube of two Feet and an Inch, or an equal Quantity in any other Form. utterly destroy'd, with every thing that was in it, and charg'd them to take nothing of it for themselves, lest (saith he) ye make the camp of Israel a curse, and trouble it. He orders the Spies to fetch out Rakab, and all her Relations who were with her, according to the Oath which they had sworn to her; and thus they were sav'd out of the general Destruction. Upon this Joshua (b) adjured them, saying, Cursed be the man before the LORD, that riseth up and buildeth this city Jericho; with this particular Prophecy, that he should lose his eldest Son when he began it, that the rest of his Children should die one after another, and the youngest when the Gates were set up: which was fulfill'd accordingly (i) in the Time of Ahab, and is an Argument not only of a prophetick Spirit in Joshua, but also that the Book of his History was written before that Time.

7. Soon after this Success Joshua sends more Men to view the Country, that they might better resolve what Town to attack next. Upon their return, they pitch upon Ai, three thousand Men are sent to take it, where their Courage fails them, six and thirty are kill'd, and the rest run away to (k) a Place call'd Shebarim, or Breakings to Pieces, because of this shameful Defeat. This put the People into a terrible Consternation, and Joshua express'd his Concern by Falling down before the Ark, with all the Tokens of Sorrow and Humiliation, and Calling upon GOD in the most pathetick Manner. GOD tells him, that one of the Israelites had sinn'd, by Taking such Spoils which he ought not to have meddled with, that he should be providentially discover'd, and all that belong'd to him should be destroy'd. The (*) Eastern Writers tell us, that when they stood before the Sanctuary, and the High Priest was in it with the Urim and Thummim, wherein were twelve Stones with the Names of the Tribes of Israel engraven in them, and when the Tribe, to which the guilty Person belong'd, was call'd, that Stone in which was the Name of that Tribe, chang'd its Colour, and became black; and so it also did, when the Family, and the Household, and the Person were call'd. But Josephus, with greater Probability tells us, that it was (†) discover'd by Casting of Lots, and that by this Method Achan of the Tribe of Judah was taken, who confess'd the Fact, which was found upon him, and he and all those who were privy to it were ston'd with Stones, and his Tent and all his Goods were burnt with Fire, together with their dead Bodies, and a Heap of Stones was rais'd over their Ashes to keep the same in Remembrance. Upon his Condemnation Joshua said, (l) Why hast thou troubled us? The LORD shall trouble thee this day. And for this Reason the Place was call'd, The valley of Achor, or Trouble. And he is call'd Achar, or A Troubler, in (m) Scripture and (n) other Authors. And thus the Prophet Hosea, (o) speaking of the Gospel Times, alludes to this Name, and saith, He will give us the valley of Achor for a door of hope. Troubles and Afflictions shall be sanctify'd for our Good, that we may (p) rejoyce in tribulations, and say with David, (q) Tho' I walk in the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

8. The accursed thing being thus remov'd out of the Camp, GOD (*) encourageth Joshua with a Promise of Success, and adviseth him to lay an Ambush for that Purpose. In the mean Time the King of Ai sends to all the Men in Bethel, who were fit to bear Arms, to come and join him, that they might make a more vigorous Defence, which they readily did, in hope of the same Success which they so lately had. And now Joshua having sent Men to lie behind the City in the dead Time of the Night on the south Side; and having given them sufficient Directions, he sends others toward the west, and he comes with his whole Army on the north and east Sides, as if he would attack the City; the King of Ai makes a vigorous Sally, Joshua and the Army make a feign'd Retreat; upon this the King of Ai sends for all his Forces out of the City to pursue them, who march out in Haste, and leave the Gates open. The Ambuscade on the south Side immediately seize on the City, and make Fires in all the most conspicuous Places, being the Signal which was before agreed on of its being taken. Upon this Joshua marches back with his whole Army on the north and on the east Side, they who set the City on Fire came upon them from the South, and others, who were set for that Purpose, attack'd them on the West, so that seeing the City burnt, and themselves surrounded, their Hearts fail'd them, and they were all destroy'd. The King was taken alive and hang'd, and a large Heap of Stones was plac'd upon the dead Body in Commemoration hereof; and the Israelites had now the Liberty of Taking the Spoil for themselves.

9. The Israelites having now the first Seizure and Possession of the Land (for they had no Share in the Spoils of Jericho) and GOD having given them a Taste of the Performance of his Promise, that they should inherit the Land, it was now a seasonable Time on their Part to engage themselves to him, and to the Keeping of the Law. And therefore Joshua puts an End to this Campaign, having Business of another Nature to do, and marches northward with all his Army unto the Mountains of Gerizim and Ebal, which lay opposite to each other in the Tribe of Ephraim. Moses had given them (r) a positive Command, that when they came into the Land, which GOD had promis'd them, they should set up great Stones, and plaister them with a durable Plaister, and write (s) upon it the Words of the Covenant, by which they acknowledg'd that they held the Land of Canaan from GOD as their great Lord, upon Condition they observ'd his Laws, to which they and their Posterity were oblig'd; that at the same Time they should offer Burnt-offerings and Peace-offerings, and rejoice before the LORD their GOD; and that six of the Tribes should stand near Mount Ebal, who should read the (t) Curses pronounc'd against the Disobedient, and the other six should stand near Mount Gerizim, who should as distinctly read (u) the Blessings reserv'd for the Obedient. All this (x) Joshua perform'd at the End of the Campaign, and so he dismisseth all the People, and they go into their Winter Quarters.

10. In the Beginning of the Winter (y) the Rest of the Kings of the Country of Canaan being thorowly awaken'd with the Sense of their Danger, enter into a League offensive and defensive, and resolve the next Year to bring the Issue to a decisive Battle. In the mean Time the Gibeonites, who dwelt in the neighbouring Country, which afterward belong'd to Judah and Benjamin, being apprehensive that their Country would be next invaded, and that they were not in a Condition to defend themselves, resolv'd to treat with Joshua, and submit to him, hoping by that Means to secure their Lives, and, if possible, their Rights and Privileges. For this Purpose they pretended, that they came from a very far Country, and took all Methods imaginable to induce Joshua and the Rulers to this Belief, and propos'd to enter into a fair Alliance with them, desiring only to be admitted as their Friends and Confederates. Joshua and the Elders being thus impos'd upon, enter into a League with them, and ratify it with an Oath. Joshua finding soon after that they liv'd not far from Jerusalem, and that they were of the same Stock with the Canaanites, sent for some of the chief

Men, and told them, that they had not dealt with him like Men of Truth and Honour. They excus'd themselves upon the Necessity of the Case, and said, that they had no other Way to be safe. Upon this the High Priest (as Josephus (z) tells us) and the Elders were consulted as to the Obligation of the Treaty, who were all positive in their Opinion, that an Oath so circumstantiated and so ratified, was absolutely sacred and inviolable. And therefore they told them that their Lives were safe; but propos'd to them, that they and their Posterity should be Hewers of Wood and Drawers of Water for the Service of the Priests, the Altar, and the Temple, which Conditions they willingly agreed to, and therefore they were afterward call'd (a) Nethinim, or Persons given to GOD and his Service. They were the first Fruits of the Gentiles. They were not absolutely Slaves, but rather a sacred Kind of Servants, being employ'd about the House of GOD, which was in it self honourable, and not a base or contemptible Office. They were very serviceable in Hewing Stones for the Building of the Temple, and Repairing it after it was built, and in Carrying them to those who were employ'd in that Work. In this they serv'd GOD faithfully, even to the Times of Nehemiah, who tells us (b) of a great Number of the Nethinims, who return'd from Babylon to rebuild Jerusalem and the Temple, and (c) GOD relented such Cruelties which were shewn to them, as if they had been offer'd to himself.

11. This unexpected League between Joshua and the Gibeonites breaks all the Measures, which (*) the Canaanites had before concerted; for (d) Adonizedeck King of Jerusalem, expecting that Joshua would march thither with the whole Army, and that his Turn would be next, thought it not proper to delay Time, till all the Forces could come and join him; and therefore he sends to his four neighbouring Kings, that they would come, and march directly to Gibeon, and so take it by Surprise, to be aveng'd of them for what they had done, and terrify others from Doing the like. The Gibeonites hearing of their Danger, send an Express to Joshua for speedy Help, who sets out as soon as possible, and marches all Night from Gilgal; and GOD encouraging him, and promising him Success, he fell upon the Enemy before Gibeon by Surprise, and totally routed them early in the Morning, and when (e) they came to a certain Descent, it is said, that the LORD cast down great hailstones from heaven upon them, and there were more which died of hailstones, than they which the children of Israel slew with the sword. And in Commemoration of this Miracle, the Place and Town adjacent was call'd Beth-horon, or, The House or Place of Anger or Fury.

12. When they were in the Road that goes to Beth-horon, which lies toward the north west of Gibeon, and not so far off but that they could see Gibeon it self, Joshua observ'd the Sun standing over the City, as it would in such a Case about eleven of the Clock in the Morning, and perceiv'd the Moon near her Setting, as it might be about seven Days before her Change, which had favour'd them in their March for near the latter half Part of the Night, and knowing that the Valley of Ajalon in the Tribe of Dan lay west from Gilgal, where the Sun and Moon did usually set, and concluding that in the Space of Time before Sun-set, he could not obtain a compleat Victory, and being encourag'd by a secret Promise from GOD he (f) saith, Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon; and thou moon, in the valley of Ajalon. Accordingly it appear'd to them, as if the Sun and Moon stood still, the diurnal Motion of the Earth being stopp'd for some time, but the Annual Motion of the Sun, Moon and Planets continuing the same. This Story not only gave Rise to that of Phaethon's Guiding the Chariot of the Sun and setting the World on Fire; but the Chinese History speaks of it in such a manner as confirms the sacred Account, and that Noah, when he fled from Ham into the East, was the King of the most eastern Country in his Time, which Country the Chinese attribute to themselves, and so connect their History from thence. As it is natural for Men in things of great Antiquity to enlarge beyond the Truth; so the Chinese tell us, that (g) in the Reign of their seventh Emperor Tao it is reported, that the Sun did not set for ten Days together, and that the Inhabitants of the Earth were afraid, that the World would be burnt; for there were very great Fires at that Time. This happen'd in the sixty seventh Year of that Emperor's Reign, and so it exactly agrees with the Scripture History, as will appear by the following Account.

(f) Joshua 10. 10, 11, 12, 13, 14. It looks as if they had a Proverb about Gilgal to call the Place, where the Sun and Moon did set, The Valley of Ajalon. And therefore Joshua seeing the Moon near her setting, spoke as he apprehended, but not as an Astronomer; For strictly so speaking, the Moon being near the Beginning of Capricorn, with a great South Declination, at that Time might be four and thirty Degrees distant from the West towards the South, but could not, if visible, be less than thirty. (g) Martinii Historia Sinica, lib. 1. pag. 37. (h) Gen. 9. 28. (i) Deut. 34. 7.

So that he died in the twenty second Year of King Solomon's Reign, or the Year of the World 3011. And as from this Time the Lives and Reigns in the Bible were generally of the same Length, as they are at this Day; so they continue the same in the Chinese Histories corresponding to them, as well as in all other Parts of the World.

15. The Sun being seen thus to stand still in China, makes it evident, that it (k) could not be late in the Day, when this Miracle happen'd in the Land of Canaan; for in such a Case, as China lies in the eastern Parts of Asia, the Sun would have been set in those Countries, and then the Consternation would not have been so great, at least they could have been under no Apprehension of the World's being burnt thereby. Besides, from the Reason before-mention'd, we may conclude, that it happen'd about eleven of the Clock in the Morning, because Joshua marching from Gibeon to Beth-horon, and turning back saw the Sun directly over that City, and therefore he said, (l) Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon.

16. The Time of the Year, when this Miracle happen'd, could not be in the Height of Summer, as is commonly suppos'd; because the Sun standing so directly over their Heads, had it been mid-day, must have made the Air so excessively hot, that it would have been impossible for Armies to march, without a second Miracle to cool it. Besides, the Sun in such a Case would have been eighty two Degrees high, and therefore could not be discern'd, as standing over any particular Place at a Distance, but only over their own Heads. Or if it stood over Gibeon, as is suppos'd, it would have been but (m) the third Part of an Hour distant from the South, which would have alter'd its Altitude but one Degree, and is inconsiderable in this Case. And indeed if it had happen'd at Jerusalem (*), when the Sun was on the Equinoctial Point, it would have been as high on the Meridian, as it usually appears at London, (n) about the ninth of May; or if it happen'd at the Time suppos'd, it (o) would have been as high, as it is about the first Day of June in this Age.

17. The Length of Time, in which the Sun stood still, is expressly mention'd in these Words, (p) So the sun stood still, and the moon stayed, and hasted not to go down about a whole day. Now a natural Day containing the Space of four and twenty Hours, and a civil Day containing the Space of twelve Hours, we may suppose, that the shortest of these is here meant. For had it been otherwise, the Heat of the Sun must have been too excessive for Soldiers to pursue the Enemy all that Time. They had march'd all Night, and gain'd a complete Victory in the Morning, and thus they were employ'd for seventeen Hours; so that nineteen Hours more were as much as their Spirits could bear in Pursuing a flying Enemy without a new Miracle to support them. And indeed such a Space was sufficient to destroy the Enemies Army; and there was no Necessity of a longer Time, especially when (q) GOD cast down great hailstones from heaven upon them, and there were more that died of the hailstones, than they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword. And this is imply'd (r) where it is said in Praise of Joshua, Did not the sun go back by his means? And was not one day, or the Time in which the Sun appears, as long as two such Days? And that the diurnal Motion of the Earth was really stopp'd at that Time, and that the Length of the Day was not occasion'd only by a Meteor, which appear'd in the Air (as some have imagin'd) is plain, not only from the Chinese History, but also from (s) the Account, which we have of it in the Scripture, That there was no day like to that either before it or after it, when the LORD hearkned to the voice of a man; because the LORD GOD of Israel fought for Israel. And therefore twelve Hours are allow'd in all the preceding Calculations for this Miracle.

(k) As the most western Parts of China lie about sixty Degrees of Longitude different from Jerusalem; so there must be four Hours distance between each of the Meridians. And therefore if the Sun began to stand still at eleven of the Clock in Jerusalem, this would be three of the Clock in the nearest Part of China, and in the Latitude of 24 Deg. the Altitude of the Sun would be 41 d. 52. m. which might give them dismal Apprehensions. But the most eastern Part of the Country being 85 Deg. of Longitude from Jerusalem, and in the Latitude of 30 Deg. the Sun would begin to stand still there at 4 h. 40 m. in the Afternoon, and the Altitude of the Sun at that Time would be about 18 d. 52 m. And therefore the Sun being so low in those Parts, makes it probable, that the eastern Part of China was not inhabited at that Time.. (l) Josh. 10. 12. (m) Or more exactly 4 d. 48 m. which converted into Time is 19 m. 12". (\*) For the Sun's Altitude at Jerusalem would then have been the Complement of the Pole's Height, or 58 d. 30 m. (n) The Sun's Meridian Altitude at London on the Equinoctial being 38 d. 28 m. will require 20 d. 2 m. of North Declination to make it equal to the before-mention'd Altitude, which happens when the Sun is in  $\gamma$  29. 17. and is in this Age of the World about the ninth Day of May. (o) For the Declination of the Sun being 3 d. 10 m. towards the North, its Meridian Altitude would be equal to what is at London, when it hath 23 d. 12 m. of North Declination, which happens when the Sun is in  $\pi$  21 d. 21 m. and is in this Age of the World about the first Day of June. (p) Josh. 10. 13. (q) Josh. 10. 11. (r) Ecclus. 46. 4. (s) Josh. 10. 14.

18. Tho' it is impossible to demonstrate the Day in which the Miracle happen'd; yet we may conjecture, that it was on Wednesday the eleventh Day of April.

Anno ante CHRIS- TUM 1454. The Sun had then but lately pass'd the Equinoctial Line, and therefore it was early in the Spring for Armies to march. Besides, Joshua said, (t) Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon, and thou moon in the valley of Ajalon. And it is observable, that on this Day, when the Sun might be seen over Gibeon, the Moon was about seven Days distant from her Change, and in the Position already mention'd, being about one Degree and an half high; so that she might be seen, especially since not only the Atmosphere it self, but also the Vapours arising from the Mediterranean Sea, might serve to make her more apparent at that Time.

19. And therefore the natural Account seems to be this: When the Israelites were about to enter into Canaan, they had a positive Command (u) to destroy all the People of the Land, and particularly to demolish all their Idols, cut down their Groves, and burn their graven Images in the Fire. The Canaanites could not but look upon this as a religious War, and therefore it concern'd them to take the utmost Care to get the Assistance of the Gods, which they worshipp'd. Accordingly they could not but spend the Sunday, or eighth Day of April, being the Day of their Sabbath, in all their Acts of Devotion, to implore a Blessing on this their Undertaking, and pray (x) to the Sun, which was particularly worshipp'd on that Day. On Monday the ninth Day they march to besiege Gibeon. The Gibeonites send an Express, which might come to Joshua early on the tenth Day. Joshua immediately marches, and having stay'd a little Time in the Evening to refresh himself, he marches again all that Night, and comes up with them (y) early in the Morning, on Wednesday the eleventh Day, and surprizing them when they did not expect so soon a Visit, he gives them a total Overthrow, and the Sun stands still to make the Victory more compleat. So that GOD declar'd hereby, that the Pagan Worship was vain, that the Sun which they ador'd, had no Power in himself to melt even the Hailstones, which destroy'd them; and that the GOD of Israel could miraculously over-rule their Deities, whenever he pleas'd, to their own Confusion. So that after this Defeat, some of them fled into the southern Parts, and some into the northern; which (z) Joshua perceiving, divided his Army, who pursu'd them to the South, some toward Makkedah, and some toward Azekah, destroying all whom they could overtake, whilst he pursu'd the main Body northward, as far as Beth-boron, which intercepted their Retreat, and made the Conquest of the southern Parts much more easy. The Eastern Writers (a) seem also to make this a religious War; for they say, that at this Time the Watch-Word which they us'd, was (b) that of Moses, The LORD is a man of war, the LORD is his name. And they farther add, that Joshua divided his Army into three Bodies, and caus'd each of them to take a different Rout, whilst he, with those who were with him, took the common Road, and so came up with the Enemy an Hour before the rest, and when they met each other, they cry'd with a loud Voice, Our GOD and LORD is he that fights for us. And GOD shew'd many Miracles that Day for them against the Enemy. So that whenever any endeavour'd to escape by Flight, Fire came down upon them, and burnt them up. (Josephus tells us, (c) that there was a dreadful Thunder and Lightning on that Day.) And there was an Appearance of Horses, which rush'd upon them and destroy'd them, as often as they heard the Voices of the Children of Israel; so that none of the Enemies escap'd after this perfect Victory. The Scriptures mention nothing of Thunder, or such Visions on that Day; and yet it is probable, that such things might happen not only then, but at other Times, since (d) David describes his Victories in the same Manner. The earth shook and trembled, the foundations also of the hills moved and were shaken, because GOD was wroth. At the brightness that was before him, his thick clouds passed, hailstones and coals of fire. The LORD also thundered in the heavens, and the Highest gave his voice, hailstones and coals of fire. Yea, he sent out his arrows and scattered them, and he shot out lightnings, and discomfited them. And after this signal Victory, Joshua (e) sent an Express to Eleazar the High Priest to Gilgal with a Letter, which mention'd all the Benefits conferr'd on the Children of Israel, and all the Miracles and Signs, which GOD wrought upon that Day, that so he might return publick and solemn Thanks for the same; and if any Credit can be given to this Story, this might be (f) the book of Jasher, or, The upright Servant of GOD; which the Scripture mentions, and it might have been preserv'd for some Ages, tho' it is since lost.

(t) Josh. 10. 13. (u) Deut. 7. 5, 6. Deut. 12. 1, 2, 3, 4. (x) That the Canaanites worshipp'd the Sun is evident from the Name of the Town call'd Bethshemesh, or The House or Temple of the Sun, which fell to the Lot of the Tribe of Judah, Josh. 15. 10. 19. After this signal Victory, Joshua (g) took Makkedah, Libnah, Lachish, Gezer, Eglon, Hebron, and Debir, and all that Part of Canaan, which belong'd to the Tribes of Judah, Simeon, Benjamin, Dan, and Ephraim, or (h) all the southern Parts of the Land of Canaan, from Jordan to the Mediterranean Sea, or from Kadesh-barnea even unto Gaza, and all the Countrey of Goshen even unto Gibeon. This was the Effect of the (i) second Campaign, after which the Israelites enjoy'd a settl'd Peace for some Time, and so they all return to (k) Gilgal, where they celebrate their first Jubilee with all possible Demonstrations of Joy and Praise, and this Year they began to compute the Fruits of (l) their land as uncircumcised, which lasted the two following Years; and the next Year after this was (m) the Sabbatical Year, in which all the fruit was holy to praise the LORD withal, and from hence these two Epochas began among the Israelites.

20. This Delay to enter upon any other Expedition abated that Terror, with which the Inhabitants of the Land were seiz'd, insomuch that all the Kings of the North of Canaan, (n) enter into a League with each other to fall upon the Israelites. Accordingly they rais'd a vast Army, which could not easily be number'd, and cover'd the Place where they were encamp'd, as the Sand covers the Sea Shore, so that the Earth could not be seen. And to make it the more formidable, they had a great Number of Horses, whereas the Israelites were all on Foot. They had also so great a Number of Chariots, that Josephus (o) reckons them to be twenty thousand, the Use of which their Ancestors had learn'd in the long Egyptian Wars. And they came, and form'd a Camp at the Waters of Merom, or the Upper Water, a Lake not far from the Fountain of Jordan near Hazor, where Jabin their King and General liv'd. Upon this GOD encourages Joshua with a Promise of Success. Accordingly he did not wait for their Motion, but march'd all Night, and attack'd them as they lay in their Quarters, and little expected the Enemy to be so near them. Thus he kill'd many, and routed all the rest; upon which great Numbers fled to Zidon, and the Sea Coasts, and so (p) made their Escape by Shipping, to all the Shores which lay round the Mediterranean and Ægean Seas, and even to other Parts of Europe, Asia, and Africa, of which (q)

the learned Bochart hath given us a large Account in his incomparable Canaan, and particularly shewn, that the Names of most Places are of Phœnician or Hebrew Extraction. About this Time they set up their (r) two Pillars at Tangier with this Inscription, We are they, who fled from the Face of Joshua the Robber the son of Nun. About this Time they built the City of (s) Carthage, which at first they call'd Carthada, or The new City. And therefore the Story of Dido and Æneas, as mention'd in Virgil, must be false and groundless. For if we place her at this Time, it will be two hundred and fifty Years before the Siege of Troy; and if we place her according to (t) Servius about forty Years before the Building of Rome, it will be almost four hundred Years too late. Neither is it probable, that the Widow of a Priest flying the Country unknown to the King, could carry with her so great a Number of Men to a new Colony, as should undertake to build so great a City; so that she brought not Inhabitants thither, but found them there, and did not so properly build as only repair and enlarge the Town to which she came. She built the Tower, which was call'd (u) Bozrah, or a Fort, in Hebrew; and from thence call'd Byrsa, or a Hide, in Greek; and so occasion'd the fabulous Story, that Dido bought the Place to build the City on with little Bits of Leather mark'd, which was antiently us'd instead of Money. But others tell us, that when she arriv'd on the Coasts of Africa, she was forbidden to tarry there by Hiarbas King of that Country, lest she with her Company might seize on a great Part of his Dominion, and therefore she craftily desir'd of him only to buy so much Ground as might be compass'd with an Ox Hyde; which, when she had obtain'd, she cut it into small Thongs, and therewith compass'd two and twenty Furlongs, on which she built the City afterward nam'd Carthage, and call'd the Castle Byrsa or Hide. All this we owe to the fertile Invention of the Greeks, to make every thing deriv'd from them. Whereas Dido coming from Tyre, knew nothing of that Language: and besides, the old Carthaginian Language was the Phœnician or Hebrew, as appears by the old Remains thereof, which we have in Plautus's Pœnulus.

21. About this Time Cadmus came from Egypt, and brought Letters into Greece. Marshall places him three Years before the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt, and (x) our learned Primate places him four Years before their Entrance into Canaan; and for this (y) he quotes (z) Diodorus Siculus, who saith, that when the strangers were driven out of Egypt, Danaus and Cadmus went into Greece, and Moses into Judæa. However there are others, who place him about seventy Years later. The Poets say, that he left his Country to seek for his Sister Europa stolen away by Jupiter, or he left Asia, and came into Europe; and that the Oracle commanded him to travel into Bæotia, where one of his Retinue was devour'd by a Dragon, as he was drawing some Water out of a Well which Cadmus slew by Minerva's Order, and sowed its Teeth in a Field, from whence sprang an Army of Men, who destroy'd one another except five, who yielded to him at this Time. But they, who seek for Truth in these curious and ingenious Fables, affirm, that Cadmus pass'd into Bæotia, a Province of Greece, at that Time call'd Æole, and kill'd a Prince, who was call'd Dracon or Dragon, sow'd cunningly a Diffension among his Subjects, who would have oppos'd his Establishment, and improving the Disorder, made himself Master of the Country, and gave the Name of Thebes to the first City, which he built, to shew that his Ancestors were of the great City of Thebes in Egypt. He polish'd and civiliz'd the People, and afterward the Distractions of his Family made him end his Life in Illyrium, now call'd Sclavonia. Some tell us, that he was the High Steward to a King of Tyre, or of Sidon; which last is most probable, because Tyre was not built at this Time; and his Wife Hermione, or Harmonia, was a Player on the Flute. The Word Cadmus in Hebrew, signifies One who came from the East, and seems to determine him to have been of the Race of (a) the Cadmonites, which was a People in Palestina, the same with the Hivites, who antiently descended from (b) Canaan the Son of Ham. Harmonia deriv'd her Name from Mount Hermon in that Country. Many of these Cadmonites inhabited (c) Mount Hermon, which was the most eastern Part of the Land of Canaan, and signifies the same, as (d) Tabor lay in, and signify'd, The West. His Soldiers the Hivites are said to be chang'd into Serpents, because the same Word both in Syriack and Arabick, signifies a Serpent. He was the Improver of Brass, and therefore (e) the Stone of which it was made, was call'd Cadmia, and the same Word in the Hebrew Language signifies both Brass and a Serpent. The Reducing his Army to five, might be taken from the different Sense of the Word in Hebrew, which with a little Variation signifies either five, or (f) compleatly arm'd. The (g) Words which signify Serpents Teeth, may also be render'd Spears of Brass, with which Cadmus was the first, who arm'd his Soldiers in Greece. And therefore the learned Bochart (h) thinks it probable, that some Phœnician might write of Cadmus after this Manner, He gather'd together a compleat Army of Men, who were arm'd with Spears of Brass; and another might translate it in this Manner, He made an Army of five arm'd Men, from the Teeth of a Serpent. By his Wife Hermione he had a Son call'd Polydorus, who succeeded him, and four Daughters, who were call'd Semele, Ino, Antionoe and Agave. He went from Sidon to Samothracia, and from thence into Thracia, and then into that Part of Ogygia, which was since call'd Cadmeis, and now Bæotia, from whence he drove the Hyantes into Phocis, and subdu'd the Aones. He first built a Citadel call'd Cadmeia, and then a City call'd Thebes, in both which Places he is said to reign sixty two Years, which well agrees with the Age of Moses and Joshua his Contemporaries. About this Time also his Brother Cilix settl'd in that Part of Asia over against Lesbos, which from him was call'd Cilicia, where he also built a City call'd Thebe Hypoplacia; and soon after his Brother Phœnix settl'd in Bithynia.

22. But that which preserv'd the Memory of Cadmus beyond any Works of Brass was, that he brought into Greece the Use of Letters. As the Eastern Countries wrote from the right Hand to the left; so the first Line in his Time began in the same Manner, but every Line afterward turn'd backward and forward being join'd to each other, in a Manner which they call'd βρεσπιδόν, or like the Plowing of an Ox, which continu'd until Solon's Time, who alter'd it into the Method now in Use not only in Greece, but also in all other Parts of Europe. That Cadmus brought Letters into Greece, is agreed upon by (i) the general Consent of Pagan Authors both Greek and Latin, and also the primitive Fathers, whose Testimonies the learned Bochart hath collected for this Purpose. The antient Letters, which the Egyptians, Phœnicians, Canaanites, Moses and Cadmus us'd, were the Samaritan Character. This is plain from what (k) Dr. Walton observ'd, that there were many antient Shekels, on which these Words, Holy Jerusalem, were written in the Samaritan Character, which must have been coin'd before the Revolt of the ten Tribes in the Time of Jeroboam, since after the Setting up of the golden Calves, they had a different Opinion of those who adher'd to the Worship of GOD at Jerusalem. So that the modern Hebrew Character was brought from Chaldea, at the Return of the Jews from the Babylonish Captivity, where they learn'd both their Language and their Way of Writing. After this some others added other Letters, which they call'd ἑπίσημα, or Marks, which were afterward in Use in Numbering by Letters, so that they were soon excluded from the Letters of the Alphabet, which they call'd ἑσφυσμένα. After this the Greek Language and Character being common in Asia and Africa by the Conquests of Alexander the Great, about three hundred Years before the Birth of CHRIST, the Egyptians laid aside their old Way of Writing, and took the Greek Alphabet in its stead, adding to it some Letters of their own. This they call'd the Coptick or Egyptian Alphabet, being willing to attribute the whole to themselves, because they were suppos'd to be invented by Cadmus, who originally came from Thebes in Egypt. And thus a great Number of the Books in the famous Library at Alexandria were either written in the Greek Language (among which was the Translation of the Old Testament into Greek, which we call The Septuagint Version) or written in the Egyptian Language and Coptick Character lately taken from the Greek. Perhaps the Placing of these Letters in their Order, and opposite to each other, as in the following Table, with some little Variation may be the properest Method to let us see the Antiquities of each, and how they were at first deriv'd from each other.

23. In Comparing of these Alphabets we may observe, First, That the Names are of an oriental Derivation, and consequently that they came from the East into Greece. The Names in Greek signify nothing, but in the Phœnician Language they are very expressive. Aleph, the first Letter, signifies a Captain or Leader; Beth, the second, an House; Gimel, the third, a Camel; Daleth, the fourth, a Door; Vau, the sixth, a Hook; Caph, or Number 20, the Hollow of the Hand; Gnaiin, or Number 70, an Eye; and Shin, or Number 300, a Tooth. And therefore the Hebrews, or Chaldeans, in later Ages, made the Shape of the Letters something like what was represented by the Words. The Letter Beth represents the Floor, Side and Roof of an House; Gimel hath something to represent a Bunch on a Camel's Back; Daleth hath the Side and Lintel of a Door; Vau is a Hook; Caph is hollow, like the Hollow of the Hand; Gnaiin resembles two Eyes, with the Optick Nerves, as joining before they come to the Brain; and Shin represents three Teeth. Secondly, As these Letters were all originally Consonants; so the Vowels added by the Greeks are of Greek Derivation. Epsilon is E short, to distinguish it from Eta; Upsilon is U short, to distinguish it from the Diphthong ou. Omicron is O little or short, and Omega is O great or long. Thirdly, That the other Names of the Greek Alphabet are plainly deriv'd from the Phœnician, which shews that they came from thence; as Alpha, Aleph; Beta, Beth; Gamma, Gimel; Delta, Daleth; E, He; Bau, Vau; Eta, Heth; Theta, Teth; Iota, Jod; Cappa, Caph; Lambda, Lamed, &c. Fourthly, That the Use of these Letters in Numbers was known before they came among the Greek, the Order of both Alphabets being preserv'd by the Addition of the Numerical Letters, where they are omitted. Fifthly, That the Greeks had their final Letters, viz. Theta θ, Rho ρ, Sigma σ, by Imitation of the Oriental Alphabet, as appears in the Hebrew, and more plainly in the Syriack and Arabick Character; and the Latin and English took their final z as still in Use in the black Letter, and their final g from the Greek. Sixthly, That Cadmus brought the Samaritan Character from Phœnicia into Greece. This will plainly appear, if we only observe, that the Samaritans and Phœnicians wrote from the Right Hand toward the Left; but the Greeks wrote from the Left Hand toward the Right; and these Letters, if we invert the Position of them for such a Purpose, will appear to be the same. As α, β, γ, δ; ε, ζ, η, θ; ι, κ, λ; μ, ν, ξ, ο; π, ρ, σ, τ; which is another Argument of the Antiquity of the Samaritan

Character, beside what is taken from the ancient Shekels. And lastly, That Cadmus did not bring the Coptick Letters from Egypt, but the Egyptians had their Coptick Letter from Greece; because in this Egyptian Alphabet there are all the Letters, which Palamedes added to Cadmus's Letters long after his Time, or about the Time of the Siege of Troy.

24. But to return to the History of the Israelites: Their Staying so long at Gilgal on the Banks of the River Jordan, as is already mention'd, embolden'd those, who inhabited the northern Parts of the Land of Canaan, to enter into another Confederacy against them. For (l) Jabin the King of Hazor, which was the Metropolis of the northern Part of the Land, and afterward fell to the Tribe of Naphtali, sent to all the remaining Kings, and to all the scatter'd People in all Parts of the Land to come and join him, that so they might make as great an Army as possible, and put the Issue of all upon one decisive Battle. The vast Army which they rais'd, could not easily be number'd, they cover'd the Place, where they were encamp'd, as the Sand covers the Sea-Shore, so that the Earth could not be seen. To make the Victory more sure, they brought together all the Horse of the Country, which might more easily over-run their Enemies, being all Footmen. Josephus (m) makes this Army to consist of three hundred thousand Foot, ten thousand Horses, and two thousand Chariots. This vast Army pitch'd their Camp at the Waters of Merom or the Upper-Waters, which Josephus calls (n) the Lake Samachonitis from the vast Quantity of Fish in it, that so they might be the better provided both with Provision and Water, until they had all things in a Readiness to march to the Battle. Joshua being under a great Fear, consults the divine Oracle on this Occasion, who encourages him to march and attack them with a Promise of Success. Upon which he marches all that Day, and the following Night, in the same Manner as he march'd to Gibeon, and comes up with them early the next Morning. The Canaanites, who little expected a Visit of this Nature, very probably took them to be a large Reinforcement come to join their Army, and so let them come within their Lines without Opposition, when they, taking the Advantage of the Surprise, destroy'd most of them before they could put themselves in Order of Battle, or could distinguish who were Friends, and who were Enemies, whilst this Lake of Jordan hinder'd their Retreat, and so occasion'd a most entire Victory. In this Confusion some of the Enemy fled westward to Zidon, and eastward to Mizpeh, and accordingly Joshua divided his Forces, and pursued them wherever they fled, killing as many as they could overtake. He cut the Sinews of the Horses, that they might not be serviceable at another Time, and burnt their Chariots. After this he took Hazor, which was the chief Town, slew their King, who began this War, and burnt the City in the Heat of Blood, which prov'd of ill Consequence; for the Canaanites in the next Age rebuilt it, and dwelt in it, and the King thereof afterward was one of their Oppressors. However, as they came to be more cool; so when they took the fortified Towns, they preserv'd them entire, and dwelt in them, and thus they sav'd the Charge and Pains of rebuilding what they themselves had destroy'd. Upon this he destroys the eleven Kingdoms, which were in the North of Canaan, takes all the Towns, and particularly destroys the Anakims, who dwelt toward the South, and subdues those who had begun to put themselves in a Posture of Defence in those Parts. Add thus these seven Summers put an End to all the Wars in Joshua's Time; so that they then enjoy'd the Fruit of all their Labours.

25. The (o) Eastern Writers farther add, that after these Wars there was a great Purification of the Army. This was (p) commanded in Case a dead Person had been touch'd, and (q) was practis'd by the Israelites, after they had conquer'd the Midianites; and therefore they suppose, that it would not be omitted by Joshua, since (r) it is said, that he left nothing undone of all that the LORD commanded Moses. However they describe it after this Manner: A great River descended from the blessed Mountain of Gerizim, which water'd the Plain to which Joshua went with his whole Army. And when the Purification was ended, Eleazar the Priest offer'd Sacrifices for them, and kept the Feast in the most beautiful and perfect Manner that ever was seen. For as yet they were not divided into their Possessions. And when they celebrated the Praises of GOD with Hymns for that Purpose, their Voices were heard afar off. And when this Feast was ended, Joshua and the whole Congregation began to divide the Land for an Inheritance. But as there is no River, which descends from the Mount Gerizim, or the neighbouring Parts; so we must leave the Story as we find it.

26. Toward the latter End of this Summer, Joshua being now ninety one Years of Age, and (s) considering that the Canaanites had yet several Places of Strength left them, which by Art and Nature were almost impregnable, he call'd a general Assembly of the People to meet at Shiloh, where the Appearance was very great, and wonderfully unanimous and chearful. Joshua upon this Occasion summ'd up what he had to say in few Words, and laid the Matter in Hand before them. He gave them a short History of the great things which they had done by GOD's Assistance, as a People, who religiously observ'd his Laws. He told them, how GOD had given them the Victory over the one and thirty Kings, who had the Confidence to take up Arms against them, and had rooted out the Generations of their most mighty Oppressors. But since the Conquest was as yet imperfect, there being many Cities remaining in their Hands, which were better mann'd and fortify'd, and that it would be a Work of Time to reduce them, therefore he thought it more advisable, that Commissioners should be chosen out of every Tribe, Men of approv'd Skill and Integrity, and that their Business should be to take an exact Survey of the Country, and make a full Report of it without Fraud or Delay. The People being highly pleas'd with this Motion, Joshua order'd his Agents to enter upon the Work, appointing them for their Assistants such Men as were well skill'd in Surveying, and so could not be impos'd upon or misled in the Account. He also gave them Instructions not only to survey the Land by Measure, but also to make an Estimate of the Quality and Goodness of each Particular. And thus it is said, that there were ten Men employ'd, according to the Number of the ten Tribes, who were to inherit it, who return'd at the End of seven Months, with such an Estimate as was according to their Instructions. Upon this Joshua call'd Eleazar the High Priest, with the Elders and Princes of the Tribes to his Assistance; and for the greater Impartiality in this Case, he (t) casts Lots, to determine what Part of the Country every Tribe should have. How this was done is not so easily known, tho' it is most probable, that they made as many Lots as were convenient, and wrote upon each of them the Name of some remarkable Place, and put them into the Lap of some principal Person; then they agreed whose Portion should be determin'd by the Lot that should be first drawn; and upon drawing the same gave that Place, and the Parts round it, to that Tribe, (u) according to the Number of the Tribe, and the Goodness of the Land. And thus by common Consent (x) the Lot of Judah was the first Lot. All this was done at Gilgal, where the Tabernacle of the LORD seems to have con-tinu'd ever since its passing over Jordan. Before the Lot was drawn, (y) Caleb makes a Pretension to some Part of the Country, which he went over, when he spy'd the Land forty five Years before, and (z) pleads a Promise, which Moses had given him, tho' the Words themselves might have been spoken in a more general Sense. He also puts it upon this Issue, that GOD assisted him to drive out the Anakims from the fenced Cities which were there; and so he chooseth the Country about Hebron for himself and his Posterity. Joshua agrees to this, and for a farther Confirmation of it, when the Lot was drawn, it plainly appear'd, that this Country belong'd to his own Tribe, and so he was seated among them.

27. When they had by Consent settl'd the Bounds of Judah the royal Tribe, they agreed next to settle the Tribe of Joseph, because Joshua was of the same. And upon this they (a) remove the Tabernacle of the Congregation from Gilgal, and fix it in Shiloh, a Place in the Tribe of Ephraim not far from Jerusalem; so that it was near to Joshua, who was of the same Tribe. Here it continu'd until the Days of (b) Samuel; and the Reason of its being remov'd hither was, because after the Division of the Land it would have been too far for all the Tribes of Israel to go to Gilgal, to perform all that the Law requir'd concerning the Tabernacle: Which was now indispensably to be perform'd, tho' (c) whilst they were in the Wilderness, they did not live by these Rules; and perhaps, whilst they continu'd unsettl'd in the Land of Canaan, they could not observe them. After this they assign the Portions to the rest of the Tribes, and give a Part of the Tribe of Ephraim to Joshua and his Posterity, as before they had given a Part of Judah to Caleb. And then they (d) according to GOD's Direction, appoint six Cities for Refuge to the Manslayer, and eight and forty Cities with their Suburbs to the Levites.

28. The (e) Samaritans, to give the better Colour to their Idolatry, tell us, that the Mount Gerizim, where their Temple stood, was given to Joshua and to his Companion Caleb; where they forget that Caleb's Portion was in the Land of Judah. However they add, that when every Tribe was settl'd, he distributed the Levites to their proper Places, who had no distinct Tribe, because their Business was to take Care of their Prayers, Judgments, Tithes and Sacrifices. That he set principal Judges over the Tribes, who should give an Account to the High Priest of every thing, which was done in their Divisions. After this Joshua built a Fort on the left Side of the Mount Gerizim, where he spent one Day in every Week with Eleazar, another Day with the Surveyers, that he might recal into his Mind the things which had happen'd, and a third with the Princes of the People, that he might inquire into their State; a fourth he devoted to his private Affairs; and the other three Days the Book of the Law was not out of his Hand, but he read therein Day and Night. And this was the Method of his Life, when he neither went to War, nor was engag'd in a Journey. And that which is more surprizing, he built a Temple on the Top of this holy Mountain, in which there was an holy Place, which no Man ever saw but himself and the Priests and Levites.

29. Upon this Joshua dismisses (f) the Soldiers, who belong'd to the Tribes beyond Jordan, approves of their Conduct, thanks them for their Care, blesses them, and gives them Leave to return home. The Samaritans (g) add, that at this Time they eat and drank together, they renew'd their Covenant with each other, that they would persevere in their Obedience to GOD, and Respect for his Prophet Moses, and that they would assist each other without Delay, as Occasion should require. And when they had bound themselves with this Oath, Eleazar the High Priest offer'd Sacrifices for them. That the Princes of the Congregation came together, when they thus parted; and that Joshua (if we can believe them) appoints Nephich to be his Deputy in that Country. Upon this he clothes him with a royal Robe, puts a Crown on his Head, makes him ride on the choicest Horse, whilst a Cryer goes before him with this Oration, This is the King of the two Tribes and an half, the President of Justice, the Director of Affairs, and the General in the Camp. Let his Commands be obeyed. Let his Determinations be conclusive. In all difficult Cases let him desire an Answer from Eleazar the High Priest. And if any one shall contradict his Sentence, or withdraw from his Allegiance, it shall be lawful for any one to kill that man, and the whole Congregation shall be blameless. And then Joshua deliver'd to Nephich his Deputy a Copy of the Law of Moses, and recommended to him the Reading therein Day and Night, telling him, that there were many wonderful and plain Duties therein necessary for the Prolonging of this Life, and Securing a better. After this Joshua allots him two thousand Levites to inhabit those Cities, which were appointed for them, and to exercise all those Offices, which did belong to them alone. Then (as they add) the Flags were display'd, the Trumpets were blown, and Eleazar, Joshua and their Companions rode on Horses, when they took their Leave; and this was such a famous Day (if we will believe them) that the like never happen'd since the Creation of the World. And thus they return'd with joyful and thankful Hearts. And when they, who were on the other Side of Jordan, heard of these things, the whole Tribes came to meet them, and so having tarried together for some Time, Nephthi divided the Country according to the Number of the Inhabitants; and the Levites being settl'd in their Places, spent their Time in Praising and glorifying GOD for all his Benefits contr'd upon them. And then (to use the Words of the same Author) the Children of Israel were completely settl'd in their Tribes, and worshipp'd the LORD, and were accepted of him, and they offer'd Sacrifices, and blessed the People at all the Times appointed; so that all Calamities were remov'd from them, nor were any of their Enemies able to hurt them. They also went three Times every Year to the holy Mountain of Gerizim with various Gifts, and full of Joy and Gladness. Neither were any of their Enemies able to look them in the Face, or do them the least Damage. Thus Joshua, and the Priests, and the whole Army, liv'd in Peace and Quieness for twenty Years, in which Time their Enemies were remov'd far from them, and dispers'd into the farthest Parts of the Earth. Their Neighbours were in Peace with them, and no one acted against them. There was no Kingdom enlarg'd except theirs, nor any outstretch'd Arm but theirs; neither did any Day pass in all that Time without a mutual Correspondence between them.

30. When the Reubenites, Gadites and Manassites came to the other Side of Jordan, they (b) build a very high and large Building in the Form of an Altar. If (as (i) Josephus saith) Joshua erected an Altar with the twelve Stones, which the twelve Princes of the several Tribes brought with them out of the River by his own Order, for a Token and a Memorial to future Ages of the miraculous Separation of the Waters; and if Joshua did offer a Sacrifice on this Altar, they might well conclude, that this would justify their Building another on the other Side of the same River, only to testify, that they were the same People, and own'd the same GOD, and the same Worship. However the Israelites took Umbrage at this, fearing that (k) it was design'd either for the Worship of a false GOD, or at least for the Worship of the true GOD in a false Manner; and therefore they send over Phinehas the Son of Eleazar, with a principal Person out of each Tribe, to argue with them, and find out the Truth, and with a Resolution, that if Occasion requir'd, the whole Army would march and destroy them for their Idolatry. Phinehas argues the Case with them very warmly, and they give him an honest and satisfactory Answer. Upon this they call this (l) Altar Ed, that is, A witness, saying, This altar shall be a witness between us, that the LORD is our GOD. Phinehas was (m) overjoy'd, to find that all things were right, and returning immediately to Joshua, gave him an Account of every thing in the Hearing of the People, who were all greatly pleas'd with the Result of this Embassy, when they saw things brought to so amicable a Conclusion without any Danger of a Civil War, or of Bloodshed. Hereupon they sacrific'd, and gave Thanks to GOD; after which Joshua dismiss'd the Multitude to their several Habitations, and he himself took up his Abode in Shechem.

31. Some of the Eastern Writers add a very romantick Story concerning Joshua, that his swift Conquests, and his Severity towards the Inhabitants of the Land of Canaan, made his Enemies call him (n) The evening or the destroying Wolf. And add, that (o) in his Time there was a King of Armenia the less, whose Name was Shaubek the Son of Hemam, who made a Confederacy with five and forty Kings out of Persia, and Media, as also Armenia the greater, Syria, Sidon, and the Remains of the Canaanites, and with them Japhet the Giant. These by their united Strength raise an Army like the Sand of the Sea, and send a Letter to Joshua, the Style whereof shews it to be written in a much later Age, being worded thus:

We know, O thou evening Wolf, what thou hast done to our Neighbours. Thou hast made our Palaces desolate. Thou hast kill'd, and hast not spar'd. Thou hast destroy'd all with the Sword, both young and old, without Distinction, and hast laid all their Cities waste. Know therefore, that we at thirty Days hence will come into thy Land, and invade thy Possession, even to the Mountain, in which thou worshippest thy GOD, which is call'd The holy Mountain [of Gerizim]. We the forty five Kings, every one of us being guarded with a thousand valiant Men, handling the Bow and Darts, wearing Swords, and skill'd in War [will come]. And with us there is the Giant the Son of Japhet, arm'd with an Engine of Steel, with which he kills a thousand, or at least five hundred Men at a Time. Those whom he brings with him are Kings, guarded with

Be thou therefore ready, and provide thy Instruments of War, lest thou shouldst say hereafter, that we took thee unprovided. Upon this the Elders and chief Men of the Army thought fit to send this Epistle by a fit Embassador, who should number the People, view the Camp, observe their Order, and give an Account of their Condition, and in what Manner they might be attack'd with the greatest Advantage. This Embassador was sent on the tenth Day of the second Month, in the twenty first Year after the Entrance of the Israelites into the Land of Canaan, and came thither on the Day after the great Assembly of the Feast of Weeks began; and he brought the Epistle to Joshua. At this Time he sat upon his Royal Throne, judging the People, condemning some to be beheaded, others to be burnt, and others to be imprison'd. And Joshua commanded, that the Embassador should be brought to him, tho' he refus'd to see him, before he had made an End of Judging the Children of Israel. At last he took the Epistle from his Hand, and read it in the House of GOD, with Fasting, Weeping, and Mourning, and kept it at his own House until the End of the Feast of Weeks, neither would he at that Time make the People sad, tho' he himself laid up the Matter in his own Heart. In the mean Time the Embassador view'd the Multitude and good Discipline of the Army, the Strength and Valour of the King, the Commandments of their GOD and his Power, the Descent of the Pillar of Fire, and its Greatness. But when he beheld the High Priest, he was smitten with a secret Fear, because he never saw any thing like him, nor heard of any such in former Ages. But when the Feast was ended, Joshua gather'd all the People together, and read the Epistle before them. After which he said, *I have fought many Battles. I have subdu'd many Kings, and was never afraid of any of them. But this Accident makes me fear and tremble. And the Congregation was sad, and all their Joints did quake, and their Knees smote one against another, and they hung down their Heads toward the Earth. In the mean Time Joshua had detain'd the Embassador in a private Place, that he could not see the Concern of the People. However the Multitude made this Answer to Joshua, We never yet heard any such thing. We never yet conquer'd any such Person; and we never yet fought with such an Army. But this War is the War of GOD, who is with us, and with our Children, and with thee also, O our King, Keeper and Lord. Thou shalt direct us by the Help of GOD, and as we have obey'd Moses, so will we obey thee. Take thee a

Roll of a Book, and write in a manly Style, and answer our Neighbours these perverse Rebels, with Words as sharp as theirs. Joshua said, Stand still, that you may hear the Form, which I have drawn up, and if you like it, I will send it to them. And all the People answer'd, Open thy Mouth, and let thy Words be understood. Upon which he reads to them the following Letter, In the Name of the LORD GOD of Israel, who weakens the Strong and Proud, and kills the Wicked and Rebels, who separates the Assemblies of Sinners and Robbers, and gathers together the dispersed just and holy Men. He is GOD of Gods, and LORD of Lords, the GOD of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, the LORD, who is a Man of War. Joshua the Servant of GOD, and the holy select Synagogue, the blessed Assembly, the Multitude of the Congregation of the Children of Israel, the Sons of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob saith, There is no Peace to the wicked People, to the Congregation smitten with Plagues, to the Worshipers of Images, and Adorers of Idols. Know ye, that ye have done ill in Waking a sleeping Lion, and stirring up a fierce Lion, by Putting a Sword into his Hand, when he is provok'd. I watching for Justice will render your Deserts upon your own Heads. What Madness hath provok'd you to come into the holy Place, and pollute my Land? Put yourselves in Order, and stir not a Foot from your Place; for after seven Days I will come to you, and kill your strong Men, that there shall be no Possibility of Escaping. You boast indeed, that you have with you five and forty Kings, and every one of these is guarded with a thousand valiant Men. I will not boast, because the Kings of the Earth, but because the glorious Angels are with me; one of which overturn'd Sodom and Gomorrah, another brought in the Flood, and a third divided the World into seventy Nations. The People which are with me being six hundred thousand Men, both strong and valiant, pass'd the Sea with a dry Foot. GOD went before them by Night in a Pillar of Fire, and by Day in a Pillar of Cloud. Twelve thousand of the choicest of them slew the five Kings of Midian, and Balaam the Son of Beor, and all their Males without the Loss of a Man. We have a Priest, whose Name is Phinehas, in whose Hands are the holy Trumpets; so that when he blows in them, all our Enemies fall down before us. Have you not heard, that Pharaoh and all his Multitude were overwhelm'd in the Sea, and we pass'd over as on dry Land? Hath it not been told to you, what we have done to Amalek and his People? Have you not seen what we have done to Sihon and Og, the two Kings of the Amorites? Is it not evident, what we have done to the one and thirty Kings of Canaan?

Canaan? What then? If the Son of Japhet the Giant is with you; yet with us there is the Giant of Giants, and one who is exalted far above all. By this we may see the Bombast Style of the Arabian Writers, and how fertile and formal they are in their Arabian Tales, mentioning the particular Names and Places, with the Year and Day of the Month, and sometimes the Day of the Week. In these Stories their Romantick Inventions, without the least Foundation in Scripture, their Mistakes in Chronology or Geography or both, their Adding new-invented Traditions, or some such like Incoherence, discovers the whole, and makes them even suspected, when they tell the Truth. And by this we may see what Inventions the Samaritans were forc'd to make, to vindicate their Temple in Mount Garizim, in Opposition to the Worship of GOD at Jerusalem.

32. When the Time of Joshua's Death drew nigh, he (p) summon'd the chief Persons of the Israelites to come to him either at Timnath-serah, where he liv'd, or to Shiloh, where the Tabernacle of the Congregation was set up; when he earnestly exhorts them to continue steadfast in the Worship of the true GOD, by a Repetition of his former Benefits, by Promises of future Blessings, if they were obedient; and by Threatning severe Judgments, if they were disobedient. But probably living some Time longer than he expected, and thinking this not to be sufficient, he afterward (q) gives them a short History of GOD's Blessings bestow'd on that Nation, from the Time of Terah the Father of Abraham until that Time, when he spake to them. Upon this Joshua proposeth to them to choose, whether they would serve the GOD of their Fathers, or the Gods of the Heathen round about them, or the Gods of their Country; and when they had chosen to serve the God of their Fathers, he enters into a Covenant with them for this Purpose, which they solemnly promise three Times. Then he ratifies the same, he orders a great Stone to be set up by the Sanctuary as a Witness of it, and writes an Account of the whole Proceedings in the Book, which at this Time goes under his Name in the Old Testament.

33. The Eastern Writers not content with the Account mention'd in the sacred Scriptures, have (r) added, That when the Death of Joshua was near, he call'd together the Children of Israel, and after the Particulars already mention'd, he offer'd Sacrifices for himself and them, and wish'd them Prosperity almost in the same manner as Moses had done before him. And he chose twelve Captains out of the nine Tribes and an half, and try'd them both in the speculative and practical Parts of Learning, and casting a Lot in the Presence of the whole Congregation in a famous Plain, the Lot for the Kingdom fell upon a Man, whose Name was Abil, a Brother's Son of Caleb, of the Tribe of Judah, to whom he gave the Kingdom and the Law, and put the Crown upon his Head. After this he commanded the People to obey him, and commanded him to observe the Directions of the High Priest, to acquaint him with all the publick Affairs, and undertake nothing of Moment without his Direction.

34. After the Covenant made between GOD and the Israelites, Joshua died, being an hundred and ten Years old, and having govern'd the People five and twenty Years from the Death of Moses; of whom (s) Josephus gives this Character, He was a man of political Prudence, and endued also with a singular Felicity of popular Eloquence in Expressing his Thoughts, brave and indefatigable in War, and no less just and dexterous in Peace; and in short, a Person qualify'd for all great Purposes. He was (t) bury'd in Timnath-serah in Mount Ephraim, a City which (u) was given him for an Inheritance for his great Services, which he built, in which he afterward liv'd, and where probably he died; and it is reported, that (v) the sharp Stones, with which he (y) circumcised the Israelites in Gilgal, were bury'd with him. This Place was call'd (*) Timnath-heres, or The Image of the Sun; and the Jews (z) give this Reason for it, because the Image of the Sun was engraven upon his Sepulchre in Commemoration of that famous Day, when (a) the Sun stood still, until he had compleated the Victory. Tho' if the Liberty of a new Conjecture might be allow'd, another Reason may be assign'd, which is this.

35. Among the rest of the idolatrous Worship of the Canaanites, that of the Sun, Moon and Stars was very common, which made GOD (b) caution the Israelites so much against it. In this City there was a great Image of the Sun for this Purpose, and therefore the City was call'd by this Name (as On in Egypt was afterward call'd Helio-polis). Now GOD having commanded the Exod. 20. 4, and Deut. 5. 8. In these two last Places the Word in the Hebrew is חממה from whence comes the Word Timnath. Thus is it also Deut. 4. 12, 15, 16, 23, 25. And therefore these Texts may seem to be more particularly level'd against this Idolatrous Image.

Israelites, that (c) the Names of the Idols should not so much as be mention'd by them, the Reubenites (d) alter'd the Names of those Towns, where the Idols were mention'd; and Joshua, so good a Man, might do the same. And to prevent the ill Effects of this Name, he calls it no longer Timnath-heres, or, The Image of the Sun, but Timnath-serah, or, The Image of Wantonness; and when the Israelites fell from GOD into the Idolatry of their Neighbours, they (e) call'd the Town again by its antient Name.

36. Much about this Time they (f) bury'd the Bones of Joseph, which the Israelites brought out of Egypt. And (g) perhaps this might be one Reason for Gathering the last great Assembly, which was in the Life of Joshua, that they might the more solemnly depose the Bones of this great Man in that Portion of Land, which (h) his Father had given him, rather than in the Cave of Machpelah. And it may reasonably be thought also, that the Bodies of the Sons of Jacob, from whom the rest of the twelve Tribes descended, were brought into Canaan, to be there interr'd, as (i) Josephus relates from an antient Tradition, and (k) St. Stephen confirms it. For tho' Joseph excell'd them all in Dignity, and gave (l) a special Charge about his Body; yet no Doubt every Tribe had as great a Regard for the Head of it, and would be inclin'd to do the same for their Fathers, which Joseph desir'd for himself. Thus (m) when Caleb died, it is reported, that they bury'd him in his Neighbourhood, and that his (n) Sepulchre was well known for many Ages after.

37. Soon after the Death of Joshua (o) died Eleazar the High Priest the Son of Aaron, of whom it is said, that (p) when his Death was near, he did the same which

Joshua the Son of Nun had done before him. He call'd together the Nobles of the Children of Israel, and strictly enjoin'd them Obedience to the Laws of GOD, and blessed them and the Tabernacle, and the Servants of GOD. And taking off his holy Garments, with which he was cloth'd, he put them on Phinehas his Son, and died; and they bury'd him in a Hill that pertain'd to his Son, which was given him in Mount Ephraim, and the whole Congregation of the Children of Israel mourn'd for him, according to the Custom of their Fathers.

38. An Eastern Writer of good Credit (q) saith, that it is reported, that in the Time of Moses that kind of Poesy began, which was call'd Comedy, in which were related the Vices, and scurrilous Expressions of Men, and their Acts which were common to Brutes; and also that there was another Kind of Poesy invented call'd Tragedy, in which were related the Virtues and Praises of Men, and such Deeds which were common to Angels. If these scenick Entertainments were invented in Greece, as the Names seem to imply, being of a Greek Derivation, they must be of later Date, since Cadmus first brought Letters into that Country in the Time of Joshua. Accordingly (r) another places it in his Time. Horace (s) tells us, that Thespis was the first Inventer of Tragedy, which was very mean at first, and grew up to a greater Perfection. But when Thespis liv'd is impossible to determine. The first tragick (t) Writer, whose Writings are extant, is Æschylus, a Greek Poet, who liv'd nine hundred Years after. So that it is probable, that these Entertainments were not invented; but it is certain, that they were not brought to any Perfection until after the Institution of the Olympick Games.

From the Death of Joshua to the Coronation of Saul.

AFTER the Death of Joshua and Eleazar the High Priest, who died about the same Time, Phinehas his Son succeeded in that Office, who held it, as some (a) say, five and twenty, but (b) more probably about fifty Years. Whilst (c) any of those liv'd, who had seen Jordan dried up, the Walls of Jericho fall down, and the Sun stand still, the Israelites kept also to their Religion, and on all Occasions consulted GOD by the High Priest. But when (d) they died, the next Generations grew worse and worse, until national Calamities did frequently bring them to Repentance. Tho' Joshua had conquer'd the whole Land, yet there were many of the old Inhabitants left in Cities, Mountains, and fenced Places, particularly in the Tribe of (e) Judah. Now Joshua having left no Successor, as Moses did, but concluding, that GOD would direct them what to do, and they resolving to root out the Canaanites, one after another, they (f) come to Shiloh, and desire Phinehas to represent their Case to GOD, and beseech his Directions. The Question ask'd was, What Tribe should begin to fight against the Canaanites, who dwelt in their Country, to root them out? And GOD answer'd, that the Tribe of Judah should begin, and be successful against their Enemies. Thus (as (g) Jacob prophesy'd long before) the Hand of Judah was upon the neck of his enemies. He was like a lion's whelp, and went first up from the prey, or from the Dividing of the Country to enlarge their Conquests. The Tribe of Simeon adjoining to the Tribe of Judah, they both join their Forces together to assist each other, and so they (h) conquer the old Inhabitants, and kill ten thousand of them in one Battle at Bezek. They also take Adoni-bezek, that is, the King or Lord of Bezek. And perhaps hearing of his Cruelty to others, they do the same by him, they cut off his Thumbs and his great Toes, that he might be incapable of bearing Arms because of the Loss of his Thumbs, or to run swiftly because of the Loss of his Toes. Upon this he acknowledges, that he had done the same by seventy Kings or petty Princes of that Land, some of which might govern at the same Time, and others might be Kings of the same Places, who successively oppos'd him, and were dethron'd by him. Upon this Adoni-bezek owns the just Judgments of GOD, and adds, (i) As I have done; so he hath requited me.

2. After Joshua had conquer'd the south Country, he spent some Time in Gilgal, and was engag'd in the northern Wars, during which Time the old Inhabitants return'd again, and took Possession of several Cities. He had before taken the King of Jerusalem, and probably his City; but now the Tribe of Judah is forc'd again to besiege it; and (k) upon the Taking thereof, they dispossess the Jebusites, who dwelt there, of all but the strong Fortress on the Top of Mount Sion, which (l) held out till the Time of David. Thus (m) the Towns of Debir and Hebron

(which (n) Joshua had before taken) revolted, and occasion'd some Trouble, before they could be regain'd. Thus the Tribes of Judah and Simeon assisting each other, conquer'd Jerusalem, and the mountainous Country round it, and the south Part near the Wilderness of Paran, and the adjacent Parts; and when these Countries had been gain'd for the Tribe of Judah, they also assisted (o) the Simeonites, and took Gaza, and Ashkelon, and Zephath or Hormah, which afterward belong'd to them.

3. Who was their General on this Occasion is not expressly mention'd either in Scripture, Josephus, or other antient History; tho' without Doubt it was Caleb. He was of the Tribe of Judah, and consequently a fit Person for this Purpose. He was older than any other Person by twenty Years, and yet (p) like Moses, he continu'd in his full Strength and Vigor. He and Joshua were the only remaining Spies, which search'd out the Land, and acted sincerely, and therefore as Joshua was the first General, he had the greatest Right to succeed him; and this might be the Reason that Joshua nam'd no other. He and Joshua were (q) the two only Persons to whom the Israelites gave Inheritances for their signal Services; and as his Inheritance lay unconquer'd in this Tribe, he had the greatest Reason to be active in the Reducing of it. He (r) promises a Reward to the Person who should take Debir, and performs it accordingly. His Name alone is mention'd in all these Wars; and his Son-in-Law Othniel the Son of Kenaz was (s) the first Deliverer of the Israelites from their Oppressors, and seems to succeed Caleb in this Dignity as his nearest and most valiant Relation. The Reward, which Caleb promis'd, was the Marrying of his Daughter, and this was the same, which (t) King Saul afterward promis'd to him that should kill Goliath.

4. But now in Length of Time the Zeal of the Israelites for the Worship of GOD declines, and then they met not with the same Success, which they had at first. But (u) either thro' Sloth or Covetousness, or Distrust of GOD's Power, or more Lenity than the Law of Moses allow'd, they did not attempt those People, who were stronger than ordinary, or being unfaithful to GOD they fail'd in their Attempt, or having some Success only brought them under Tribute. And it is most likely, that they were so affrighted at the iron Chariots, which were in the plain Country, and forgot the Promises, which GOD had given them, that they were willing to make no farther Attempts; and thus the idolatrous People remain'd among them, which was the Cause of all their Misfortunes, and the Children of Judah and Simeon having (as they thought) secur'd their own Country, went no farther to assist the other Tribes, fearing lest there might be more Revolts in their Absence.

5. However some of the other Tribes being encourag'd by this Success of Judah and Simeon, take the same Methods. The Children of Joseph had (x) before complain'd to Joshua, that the Country allotted was too narrow for them; and Joshua had foretold to them, that they should conquer the woodland Country, and the Perizzites, and the Giants, and should drive out the Canaanites, tho' they were very strong, and had Chariots of Iron; so that encourag'd by such a Prediction, they (y) retook Bethel, and enlarg'd their Conquests.

6. But the Condition of the Danites was (z) the worst of all. They could neither expel the old Inhabitants of the Country, nor make them Tributaries; nor so much as possess it together with them. But the Amorites distressed them sorely, by Penning them up in the Cities that were in the mountainous Part of the Country, not suffering them to dwell in the Plain; and they seem'd to be so strong with Chariots of Iron and other military Preparations, that the Danites did not dare to engage them. And to add to their Affliction, they would not let them enjoy all the mountainous Country, but possess'd the three Cities call'd Mount Heres; or, The Mountain of the Sun, Aijalon and Shaalbim. However in the Midst of these Distresses, the Tribe of Joseph came to their Assistance, which brought the Amorites so much under, that these three Cities, and probably all the low Countries which they inhabited, were taken from them, which at last gave such a Check to their Insolence, that they were confin'd to a more narrow Tract of Land than they had at first.

7. However the Amorites still keeping Possession of a considerable Part of the Country, made the remaining Part much too little for the Tribe of Dan, and therefore (a) they send five Men to search out the Land, and bring an Account, in what Part of the neighbouring Country they might enlarge their Conquests. These Spies go to the House of Micah of Mount Ephraim, whose (b) Mother thinking it too much to go so far as Shi-

lob to worship and sacrifice there, had made an Ephod, and a graven and a molten Image, with a Design to worship the true GOD in an idolatrous Manner. At first one of the Sons of Micah was consecrated to be the Priest; and afterward they took in a Levite for this Purpose. Some of these Men being acquainted with this Levite, and finding after some Discourse that he officiated as a Priest, they told him the Cause of their Journey, and desir'd him to inquire of GOD, what Success they should have. The Levite, most probably, feigning an Answer out of his own Head to flatter and please them, assures them of Success; so they came to a (c) Place call'd Leshem or Laish, a City which lay at the Foot of Mount Libanus near the Fountain of Jordan, and finding it to be a pleasant and a fruitful Country, and no Care taken to secure it, they return to their Brethren with the News, and encourage them to undertake the Conquest of it. Upon this six hundred choice Men are appointed to seize it by Surprise. These Men march the first Day to Kirjath-jearim, which lay in the north Part of the Tribe of Judah. On the west Side of the City they lodge the first Night, and from this Accident the Place was call'd Mahanah Dan, or, The Camp of Dan. The next Night they come to Mount Ephraim, where by Force they take away the Levite, and all the Gods which Micah had made, and promise the Levite to make him the Priest to the whole Tribe, which he immediately accepts of, and was wonderfully pleas'd with the Offer. The third Day they come to Laish, where they burn the City, destroy the People, and seize upon the Country. Upon this they build another City, and call'd it Dan, which was the Name of their Tribe. And having so good Success as they had been promis'd, they set up this graven Image, and make this Levite to be their Priest; which idolatrous Worship continu'd there until the Time that the Ark of GOD was taken Captive by the Philistines in the Days of Samuel. Thus Idolatry first began in the Tribe of Dan, and (d) afterward quickly spread into all the other Tribes, as soon as the Elders were dead, who surviv'd Joshua; and this is the Reason that (e) the Tribe of Dan is left out of the Number of the Servants of GOD, whom St. John saw seal'd when he wrote the Revelations.

this Office, according to Marshal about fifty Years. Eutychius in his Annals, allows him but five and twenty
of him, must be in this Year.

Anno

pen'd a great civil War among the Israelites, which almost brought the Tribe of Benjamin to Ruin on this Occasion. The (g) Wife of a Levite of Mount Ephraim having play'd the Whore, run away to her Father to Bethlehem Judah. The Levite went to fetch her back, and lodging at Gibeah, the Inhabitants so abus'd her that she died. The Levite gave this Account to all the Children of Israel. They in a general Assembly resolve to have Justice for the Injury. They prepare for Battle, and at the same Time send Men to the Benjamites, in whose Tribe this happen'd, to demand Satisfaction by Delivering up the Men of Gibeah, who did this Injury, to be put to Death. The Benjamites refuse it, and so a civil War begins. Thus the Israelites having tolerated Idolatry, and neither stirring against Micah or the Danites, this Toleration breeds all Iniquity, so that Gibeah is become as abominable as Sodom. At their first Enterprize they consult GOD, whether they should go against the Benjamites to Battle; but they never ask what Success they should have in it. Accordingly GOD gives them Leave to go up, but gives them no Promise of Success, because he resolv'd to punish them for their Iniquity; so that when they went up against Gibeah of Benjamin, forty thousand of them were slain by that wicked Town, and by the Tribe, which took Part with it, in two several Engagements. Thus did Benjamin ravin like a wolf, a fearless and an undaunted Creature, (h) as it had been prophesy'd of him; and thus did GOD avenge his own Cause against Israel, because Israel would not avenge GOD's Cause against Idolatry. They were very sensible of an Injury done to a Whore in Gibeah; but little regarded as great an Injury done to GOD by the Idolatry of the Danites. After the second Defeat, the Israelites humble themselves in a very solemn Manner: They came to the house of GOD, and wept, and sat there before the LORD, and fasted a whole day until evening, and offered burnt-offerings and peace-offerings before the LORD; and they desire Phinehas the Son of Eleazar, the Son of Aaron, who was then the High Priest, to intercede with GOD for them. Phinehas was without Doubt very zealous in this Case (as he (i) had been before in the Wilderness, in a Case of a like Nature) and pray'd so long before the Ark of the Covenant, till GOD gave them the Promise of a Victory the next Day. This was effected by the same Stratagem, whereby (k)  Ai had been taken before by Joshua, viz. by Feigning a Flight, and ordering Liers to wait to seize on the City, and burn it with Fire, and then to march out against the Enemy, and so to destroy them on every Side, without any Possibility of Retreating. And thus when GOD had us'd Benjamin to execute his Vengeance against Israel for not punishing Idolatry, he then useth Israel as an Instrument to punish Benjamin for not delivering Gibeah up to Justice; and this Tribe is (l) properly become Benoni, or the Son of Sorrow. In this Sense the Prophet (m) tells Israel, that they had sinned from the days of Gibeah. This was therefore near the Time of their first Idolatry. There they stood; and the battle in Gibeah against the children of iniquity did not overtake them, so as to destroy them all, as they justly deserv'd. For the Israelites escap'd with the Loss of the tenth Part of their Army; and tho' the Benjamites were thus destroy'd, yet six hundred Men (n) fled into the Wilderness to the Rock Rimmon, where they continu'd four Months, at the End of which Time the Anger of the Israelites was abated, so that (o) they sent them a Peace, and provided Wives for them, partly by Seizing on those Virgins which were in Jabesh-Gilead, and partly by Seizing on those which danc'd in Shiloh at the Feast of Tabernacles, and so the Tribe was again recruited. And as Shiloh was in the Tribe of Ephraim the Son of Joseph; so (*) the Prophecy of Jacob concerning that Tribe, (as it may be translated from the Hebrew) seems now to be fulfill'd, that his daughters went solemnly even over to the enemy, to repair the hostile Tribe of Benjamin, which otherwise had decay'd for want of Wives. And thus was Joseph like a fruitful Bow, not only in his own Tribe, but also in affording Help to another.

9. It may be question'd, who was their General in this Expedition? And in Answer to this we may reasonably suppose, that it was Othniel the Son-in-Law to Caleb, of the Tribe of Judah. Had Caleb been alive at this Time, he would have exerted his Zeal against those Idolaters, and we should have heard of his Acts on this Occasion. But he being dead, the Government could not otherwise devolve but to so near a Relation, and one who before had (p) signaliz'd himself so valiantly at the Taking of Debir, or Kirjath-sepher. At the Death of Joshua (q) the Israelites asked of GOD saying, Who shall go up for us against the Canaanites first to fight against them. And the LORD said, Judah shall go up. When it is suppos'd that Caleb was made their General, as having the best Title to it of any in that Tribe. And in this Case (r) the children of Israel asked counsel of GOD and said, Which of us shall go up first to the battle against the children of Benjamin? And the LORD said, Judah shall go up first. Had Caleb been living this Question would have been needless; so that we may suppose Othniel his Son-in-Law to succeed him, who was soon after the first Deliverer of the Israelites from a foreign Oppressor.

10. The Numbers in both Armies at this Time may afford us some Speculations. The Number of (s) the Israelites are said to be four hundred thousand Men, and the Benjamites were but (t) twenty six thousand and seven hundred, so that the Odds was almost fifteen to one; and yet this small Army defeated the other in two set Battles, and kill'd more of them than they themselves were in Number, which shews the Power of GOD to raise up a small Army, whenever he pleases to execute his Vengeance. Secondly, It is said, that (u) when Benjamin was defeated, they lost in that Day twenty five thousand and an hundred Men, and (x) only six hundred men escaped and fled into the wilderness; so that there are a thousand Men not accounted for. But this Difficulty ceases, when we consider, that (y) the two former Battles could not be fought without Loss on the Benjamites Side, and the other thousand Men may be suppos'd to have been kill'd on those Days. Thirdly, A greater Difficulty yet remains, for (z) it is first said, that at this total Defeat of the Benjamites, the Children of Israel destroyed of them on that day twenty and five thousand and an hundred men. But when they are distinctly number'd, they appear to be an hundred less. For (a) they trod them down over against Gibeah toward the sun rising. And there fell of Benjamin eighteen thousand. And they gleaned of them in the highways five thousand men, and they pursued hard after them to Gidom, and slew two thousand of them. So that all which fell that day of Benjamin, were twenty and five thousand men, that drew the sword. And yet when this all is so particularly reckon'd up, it wants an hundred of the other Account. To answer this it must be consider'd, that the Number here reckon'd are those which died in the open Field of Battle, either over against Gibeah, or in the Highways, or at Gidom, and they were no more. But beside these, an hundred Men might be left in Gibeah, which were kill'd when the Ambuscade surpriz'd the Town, and this makes up what was wanting in the other Number.

11. And now it might have been thought that such a Judgment would have led them to Repentance; but instead thereof they grow worse and worse. Before, they worshipp'd the true GOD in an idolatrous Manner, but when (b) all that Generation was dead, which came into the Land of Canaan, the rest, who succeeded them, forsook even the Worship of the true GOD, and by Marrying among the idolatrous Natives began to worship their Gods, such as Balim and Ashtaroth; and the Gods of the Nations, which were round about them. When therefore the civil Wars did not reclaim them, GOD was pleas'd to deliver them up to foreign Enemies, and the (c) first whom he rais'd up for this Purpose, was Cushan the Emperor of the Assyrian Monarchy at that Time. The Heathen Historians call him Tentais, who began this Oppression in the fourth Year of his Reign, and reign'd four and forty Years. The Scripture calls him King of Mesopotamia, because that Part of his Kingdom lay nearest to the Israelites, and he probably attack'd them from that Quarter, being also nearest to the Tribe of Dan, where their Idolatry began, that so they might learn their Sin from their Punishment. Josephus (d) affirms him to have been King of the Assyrians. And (e) others think, that these Words may signify the wicked Cushite, such as the Kings of Assyria were, being descended from Cush by Nimrod. And the Chaldee Paraphrase, the antient Syriack and Arabick, translate the latter Word as an Epithet rather than a proper Name. The Prophet Habakkuk (f) by Cushan means either the King or the Monarchy of the Assyrians. The Word Cushan-rishathaim (g) may well be render'd Cushan, King of the two wicked Kingdoms; and the Assyrian Monarchy was like two Kingdoms at that Time; the two greatest Cities in the World; viz. Babylon being the Metropolis of the one, and Nineveh being the Metropolis of the other. And Pliny assures us, that all Mesopotamia was the Assyrians; and we never read that they revolted from them, but devolv'd with the Empire to the Medes and Persians. This King of Assyria forc'd the Israelites to buy their Peace upon hard Terms, for the Space of eight Years, and brought them under Tribute to him, but did not impose Garisons upon them; so that they more easily recover'd their Liberty, when Othniel the Son-in-Law of Caleb appear'd at the Head of them, who so entirely overthrew and routed all his Forces, that he could not recover his Strength to oppress them again, and we read no more of the Assyrians acting in this Manner till the Reign of David.

12. After this the Israelites (b) had no Wars for the Space of forty Years, in which Space of Time Othniel died, and we read not of any Successor. Phinehas the Son of Anno Mundi 2628. Eleazar died also, being suppos'd to have executed the Office of the High Priest for the Space of about fifty Years, and was succeeded in the same Office by his Son Abiezer. His Grandfather the Son of Aaron was call'd Eliezer, or My GOD is my Help; but the Jews declining towards Idolatry, the Name of GOD is omitted, and so he is call'd Abiezer, or My Father is my Help, as if at this Time this was the best Title, whereby to secure the Priesthood.

13. About this Time also (as it may probably be (i) conjectur'd) GOD sent (k) a Famine in the Land to succeed the Sword. So that the same Reason, which formerly oblig'd Jacob and his Family to go into Egypt, oblig'd others also at this Time to remove out of the Land of Canaan. Among these was Elimelech of Bethlehem Judah, who went into the Land of Moab with his Wife Naomi, and his two Sons Mablon and Chilion. This Famine began when Othniel

Anno Mundi 2624. (l) judg'd Israel, and continu'd (m) ten Years, in which Time these two Sons marry'd two Moabitish Women, the Name of the one was Orpah, and the Name of the other was Ruth. Before the Famine was ended, the three Men died, and the Women were left desolate; so that Naomi hearing that there was Plenty in Canaan, resolves to go into her own Country, and leave her Daughters-in-Law behind her. For this Purpose she takes a formal Leave of both. And Orpah with much Persuasion stay'd behind, but Ruth resolv'd to go with her. She left her own Country, Kindred, and Relations, which (if the Jews may be credited) were not only honourable but royal, out of her great Affection to her Mother-in-Law and her Religion, to live with her in the Land of Canaan in a poor and mean Condition. Thus when the Israelites went off to Idolatry, a Moabite's embraces the true Worship of GOD; and when the Jews for their Wickedness were rejected, the Gentiles were admitted into Covenant. Her History alone makes one of the canonical Books of Scripture, and is inserted to prove, that CHRIST sprang out of the Tribe of Judah, and of the Family of David, but by a Gentile Woman (that all Nations might hope in his Mercy) full of Faith and of earnest Desire to enter into that Family; which made her despise the Pride of her own Nation, and choose to live despicably among the People of GOD. Naomi and Ruth came to Bethlehem about the Time of the Passover, for then their (n) Barley Harvest began. Upon their Coming the Inhabitants both wonder'd and rejoic'd to see them, who said, Is not this Naomi, or my pleasant one? To whom she answer'd, Call me not my pleasant one; call me Marah or Bitterness; for the LORD hath dealt bitterly with me, because she came home in a poor Condition. However GOD, who knows how to bring Good out of Evil, shew'd his Providence in this Particular. Ruth's Poverty made her go to gather Corn after the Reapers for her Subsistence. For this Purpose she went to the Field of Boaz, who was a near Relation. Boaz took particular Notice of her; and tho' he was rich and she was poor, yet he was so pleas'd with her Piety and Virtue, that he marry'd her. This Boaz was the Son of (o) Salmon by Rahab, who hid the Spies in Jericho, and Grandson of Nabshon, who was (p) the Prince or Standard-bearer to the Tribe of Judah; and if we admit of twenty four Years between the Entrance into Canaan, and the Birth of Boaz by Salmon; and that Boaz, who owns himself (q) to be an aged Man, was fifty six Years of Age when he marry'd Ruth, this Marriage must happen about this Time. The Year after it, it is probable that he had a Son, whom his Mother call'd Obed, or a Servant, to shew that she was not ashamed publickly to own her poor Condition, when she was thus marry'd; and of his Posterity at a proper Distance King David was first born, and also our blessed LORD and SAVIOUR JESUS CHRIST. Anno Mundi 2635.

14. After the Check given the Affyrian Monarchy, the Israelites return'd again to their Idolatry, with which GOD having been griev'd forty Years, (r) resolves to punish them again, and raised up Eglon King of Moab for this Purpose. He persuades the Ammonites and the Amalekites, who were his near Neighbours, and had an old Grudge against the Israelites to join with him. These marching together destroy the Israelites either by a sudden Invasion or a pitch'd Battle, and (s) possess themselves of Jericho, which tho' it was destroy'd by Joshua, yet it is likely, that they made Fortifications, and plac'd a strong Garison, where it formerly stood, that they might the better keep the whole Country in Subjection. For, as the Country there-about was very fruitful; so they hinder'd all Communication between those on this Side Jordan, and those on the other Side, but what they were pleas'd to allow; and maintain'd a Correspondence with their own People, from whom they could receive more Forces, by having the Command of the Passages over Jordan, and secure their Retreat into their own Country. About this Time Abiezzer the High Priest being dead, is succeeded in that Office by his Son Bukki.

15. Othniel being dead, and the Tribe of Judah not being immediately affected with this Calamity, there was no one of that Tribe who car'd to stir; and therefore the Affliction lasted the longer, even for the Space of eighteen Years, whilst Eglon rul'd as an absolute Master over them, and impos'd what

Taxes he pleas'd upon them. After which the Israelites humbling themselves, GOD rais'd up Ehud a Benjamite to be (t) their Deliverer. He was a proper Person for this Purpose, because his Tribe was the most immediately oppress'd, the Country of Jericho being in it. He was a Man Left-handed, and had made him a short Dagger fit to be conceal'd, but long enough to do Execution; and when the Israelites sent a Present by him to their Oppressor, he return'd back to a Place in Gilgal, where the Moabites had set up their graven Images, which when he saw, his Spirit was mightily stirr'd up in him, and so he went back with a Resolution either to revenge this Affront to GOD, and the Oppression done to his People, or else to perish in the Attempt. Accordingly pretending that he had a private Message to deliver, he was admitted to a private Audience, when taking his Opportunity, he kill'd him with the Dagger, and lock'd the Door after him, that none might know it; and gathering together the Israelites which lay nearest to him, he went and secur'd the Passages of Jordan, that none might escape, and then fell upon the Enemy and destroy'd them all, and so deliver'd his People, that the eastern Part of the Land of Canaan enjoy'd a settl'd Peace for fourscore Years.

16. When all things began to be quiet in the east Part of Canaan, there began a third Oppression in the west and south Parts by the Philistines, who dwelt upon the Shore of the Mediterranean Sea. The Scripture expresseth it thus, (u) In the days of Shamgar the son of Anath, the highways were unoccupied. There were such Robberies, that Men durst not travel in the common Road upon their

Occasions. The travellers walked through by-ways, by which means Commerce was very much obstructed. And the inhabitants of the villages ceased. Men were not safe in their own Houses, which were broke open, if they liv'd in Villages; and therefore they forsook them, and fled to wall'd Towns and fortify'd Places. Thus the Philistines came not in an open Manner, but plunder'd the Country, as Robbers do, and went off with their Booty. Upon this (x) Shamgar the Son of Anath makes for himself an Ox Goad, so contriv'd, that it could kill any Man, and yet not be at other Times suspected as design'd for such a Purpose. Thus following his Plough, when the Philistines made their Inroads, and watching his Opportunity, and assisted with his Servants, he kill'd at several Times six hundred of the Philistines with this Instrument, in the Space of about twenty Years; which Example of his encourag'd others to set upon their Enemies, as Occasion did offer, until they had clear'd the Country of them. About this Time a Son might be born unto Obed, who being an Idolater, his Name is omitted in the Genealogies of Ruth and St. Matthew, together with the two following Branches, and thus Jesse being of the fourth Generation, is mention'd as begotten of Obed. Thus it is said of (y) Hezekiah, that of his sons which should issue from him, whom he should beget, they should take, and they should be carried away captives into Babylon; and yet this was not fulfill'd until the Time of Zedekiah, and there were Manasses, Amon and Josiah between. Thus GOD declares himself to be a (z) jealous GOD, and one who visits the iniquities of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation on them that hate him, and make to themselves a graven image to bow down to it and worship it. And among other Punishments this is one, that their (a) memory shall perish. Thus Zeraiah lost the High Priesthood from the House of Eleazar in the Time of Eli, who was of the House of (b) Ithamar another Son of Aaron, which was restor'd again (c) after three Generations by Zadok in the Time of Solomon. Thus (d) it is said in St. Matthew, that Joan begat Uzziah, and we have a very credible (e) Account, why the Names of Azariah, Joash and Amaziah, whose intervening Lives are mention'd in the Kings and Chronicles, were omitted in the antient Jewish Genealogies, from whence St. Matthew took his Catalogue.

17. The northern Parts of Canaan enjoying Peace, the Israelites in those Parts (f) grow as bad as the rest, and the Idolatry begun by Micah is propagated there. This made GOD angry, and then he raises up Jabin King of the Canaanites, who reign'd in Hazor, to oppress them. There was a (g) Jabin King of Hazor in Joshua's Time, and we may well suppose him to be of the same Race, if not that all these Kings were call'd by the same Name. He oppress'd the Israelites for (h) twenty Years, during which Time no Man dar'd to command them; and therefore Deborah, a Woman of a prophetick Spirit, and of an excellent Judgment, decided all Controversies, and gave Directions upon all Occasions. In these twenty Years there were (i) the same Robberies in the North as had been before in the South; but acted in a more open and hostile Manner. Jabin made Sisera the Captain of his Host, in which there were no less than nine hundred Chariots of Iron, which terrify'd the Israelites in such a Manner, that (k) the Reubenites were so divided in their Counsels, that they staid at home, as if they were separated from their Brethren in their Affections, as they were in their Situation beyond Jordan. The (l) Gileadites would not stir over that River to help their Brethren, tho' they were reputed Men of Valour. The (m) Inhabitants of the Tribe of Dan forsook their Cities, and went to Joppa, and other Sea-port Towns, where they took Shipping, with a Design to flee from the Canaanites, as the Canaanites fled from them in the Time of Joshua. The Tribe of Asher also did the same, and for this Reason did not repair the Breaches in the wall'd Towns, which their Enemies had made. In the Midst of this Distress, Deborah the Prophetess (n) sends for Barak from Kadesh-naphtali, and orders him to gather what Forces he could to oppose this Army, with Assurance of Success. Barak agrees upon this Condition, that she would go with him. Upon this he draws together all the Forces, which were in (o) Naphtali and Zebulun, and (p) as many as Time would permit from Benjamin, Ephraim and Issachar. With these he goes to Mount Tabor, a noble (q) Mountain in Galilee, in the Tribe of Zebulun, and the Neighbourhood of Issachar and Manasseh, which had a Plain on the Top of it call'd Staburium, where the Army might safely encamp and exercise themselves. Sisera having Intelligence of this, takes a long March from Harosheth, passes the River Kishon, and encamps between Taanach and Megiddo, with a Design to march the next Day, and cut off the Retreat of Barak. Upon this Deborah encourages him (r) to march very early, and prevent this March of Sisera by giving them Battle, with a Promise of Success. Barak marches and falls upon the Army, before they had decamp'd, who did not expect so bold a Salley. However he falling upon them before they were aware, struck a Terror into them, and put them into the greater Confusion. Besides, (s) GOD also terrify'd them with a violent Thunder and Lightning, and probably made a terrible Noise of Horses and Chariots rattling in their Ears from Mount Tabor, by the Ministry of his Angels in the Clouds, as he did in (t) the Days of Elisha. The Battle continues all Day, in which the Army of Sisera was routed. The Storm brought a violent Rain, which swell'd the River Kishon. At night the (u) Stars shone very bright, which help'd the Israelites to pursue the Enemy, who coming to this River, and thinking it fordable as it was before, the Storm being at a Distance, they were all drown'd, and the swift Stream carry'd them away toward the Mediterranean Sea. Upon this Barak pursues the scatter'd Army, which had fled the other way, as far as Harosheth their principal City, where Sisera dwelt, expecting to find him there. But he having stay'd so long at Kishon, the (x) Army was so dispers'd, that he met with none in his whole March. Sisera not being safe in his Chariot, flies away on Foot, and very probably in Disguise, but coming to (y) Zaanaim in the Tribe of Naphtali, Jael the Wife of Heber, who at that Time dwelt in Tents like the Rechabites, invites him in, and seems to take Care of him for some Time. But when he was fast asleep, she takes one of the great Pins with which the Tent was fasten'd to the Ground, and strikes it probably thro' both Temples, where the Skull is thinnest, and so fixes him to the Boards, that lay on the Earth, to make a Floor. And when Barak came that Way, she shews him the Place and Posture, in which Sisera lay dead, that so he might see, how the Prophecy of Deborah was fulfill'd, that a Woman should kill the General of their Enemies. This miraculous Victory puts an End to all the Oppressions of the North, so that the Israelites destroy'd this King and Kingdom in such a Manner, that we hear no more of the Name

Office by Bakki his Son. And about this Time a Grandson might be born unto Obed, whose Name is not recorded in the Genealogies for the Reasons already mention'd.

18. But when Deborah and Barak were dead, the (z) Israelites in those Parts fell again into Idolatry ; which provok'd GOD to Anger, and occasion'd the fourth Oppression, from the Midianites, Amalekites and Arabians. These came over Jordan from the East, and oppress all the northern Countries, not only where Jabin had conquer'd, but even to the South as far as Gaza on the Mediterranean Sea. For fear of them, the Israelites fled to the Mountains, and only dwelt in Dens and Caves and fortify'd Places. And in the Time of Harvest their Enemies came and took away all their Corn and Cattle, which reduc'd them to the extremest Poverty. This was their Method for seven Years, after which Time the Israelites humbled themselves before GOD ; and GOD first sends a Prophet to shew them their Sins, and afterward appears to Gideon to encourage him to be their General, with a Promise of Success. Gideon at first modestly declines it, until he was confirm'd by a Miracle, that it should be so. In Commemoration of this, Gideon builds an Altar, and calls it JEHOVAH Shalom; that is, the LORD of Peace, or, The LORD will send Peace. The Night following GOD appears to him in a Dream, and commands him to throw down the Altar of Baal, and build an Altar to the LORD, and offer the Sacrifices design'd for Baal on this Altar, with the Wood of the Grove which he should cut down near the other. This was an extraordinary Act, and nothing but the divine Direction could justify many Particulars in it. Gideon did as he was commanded : Upon this the Inhabitants rose in a tumultuous Manner, and requir'd of Joash his Father, that he should be deliver'd up to Death. Joash vindicates his Son, and saith, If Baal is a God, let him plead for himself, and do himself Justice, and therefore Gideon was call'd Jerubbaal, or Let Baal plead.

19. Upon this the (a) Midianites and their Company pass over Jordan, and encamp in Jezreel in the Tribe of Manasseh, which alarms Gideon to execute his Commission, so that he raises an Army of two and thirty thousand Men out of the neighbouring Tribes of Asher, Zebulun, Nephthali and Manasseh ; but mistrusting his Strength, desires GOD to shew him two farther Miracles for his Confirmation, which was granted, and (b) tho' under the divine Conduct, yet he acted like a diligent and a skilful Commander, marching to the Well of Harod near Gilboa, so as to have the Enemy on the North of him, that if Occasion requir'd he might the better retreat to, or receive Reinforcements from the southern Countries.

20. And now GOD, willing to try Gideon's Faith, (which is particularly mention'd with (c) that of Barak by the Apostle in the New Testament) (d) orders him to send away all that were afraid, by which two thirds of his Army were dismiss'd, and after that, he dismiss'd most of the rest ; so that he had only three hundred with him, that GOD might have the whole Glory of their Deliverance. To encourage him the more, GOD commands him, and a Servant whom he had, to go privately to the Camp of Midian, and hear their Discourse, where he heard one Soldier telling a Dream, and another interpreting it, that it signify'd the Destruction of their whole Army by Gideon himself. Gideon then sure in his own Mind of Success useth a Stratagem to effect it. He orders all his Men to take Lamps in one Hand, and put them in such Vessels as should conceal the Light, and that they should take all the Trumpets which belong'd to the whole Army in their other Hand, and so marches in three Bodies, giving Directions to each of these to do as he did. It is suppos'd, that one of these Companies march'd to the east Side of the Camp, and the other to the south East, and the third to the north East ; and thus Gideon might be in the Middle, that all the rest might see and hear what he did. Thus they came to the Camp in the dead Time of the Night, when they brake their Vessels, that the Light might all appear at once, sounded all their Trumpets, and cry'd aloud, The sword of the LORD and of Gideon. The Midianites hearing so many Trumpets in three several Places at once, and seeing so many Lights, suppos'd themselves to be attack'd by a formidable Army, and so rising in a Fright, and mistaking their Friends for their Enemies, they fell upon one another, till they had put every thing into the utmost Confusion. Upon this Gideon sends for all the Forces to come up, who probably had not march'd far, and as many more as could be got together, some to pursue them, and others to take the Passages of Jordan to prevent their Retreat. They were not able to secure all the Passages of Jordan, but some pass'd over, whom Gideon pursu'd with the three hundred Men, whilst the other Part of the Army destroy'd those who staid behind, took the two Princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb, and when they had kill'd them, they sent their Heads to Gideon;

as a Token that the Victory was complete. And about this Time Eli the High Priest is suppos'd to have been born.

21. As the Language of the (e) Ishmaelites, the Midianites and (f) the Amalekites, who dwelt in Arabia, was originally the same with the Israelites, who (g) all descended from Abraham their common Father; so we may infer, that there was little or no Difference at this Time. Oreb in Hebrew signifies a Crow, and Zeeb a Wolf, and these are very proper Words to represent the Sagaciousness and Fierceness, which ought to be in two such great Commanders. Gideon understood the Words spoken in the Midianitish Camp, and the Midianites understood what his Soldiers cry'd out, without an Interpreter. And therefore we need not wonder at the great Affinity between the Hebrew and the Arabick Languages, especially when we consider, that the Hebrew continu'd in its Purity from the Time of Moses unto Malachi; and the Arabick spoken by the Christians in Asia at this Time, is the same with that which was us'd by Mahomet the Impostor.

22. When (h) Gideon came to Succoth and Penuel, two Towns on the other Side of Jordan in the Tribe of Gad, his Men grew faint in Pursuing the flying Army, and therefore he desires them to give him some Bread for their Refreshment. They in a taunting Manner upbraid him, and bid him first take the two Princes of Midian, Zeba and Zalmunnah, whom he pursu'd, and then they would talk with him. This made him vow Revenge as soon as he had taken them, which he executed accordingly. Upon this (i) the Israelites offer him the Kingdom, and to make it hereditary, which he refuseth, but desireth them to give him the Ear-rings, which they took from the Enemy, which he devoted religiously to the Service of GOD by making an Ephod as a Monument of his Victory, being obtain'd solely by his Mercy, for the Restoring of his true Religion among them. After this Gideon liv'd (k) forty Years; for (l) his Father was alive, when this Victory was obtain'd, and (m) his eldest Son but a Youth at that Time, and Gideon died in a (*) good old Age. He kept them to the Worship of GOD during his Life, but (n) as soon as he was dead, the Israelites fell again to Idolatry, and had this Fancy among others, that (o) GOD would answer them here, where the Ephod was, as well as at his Tabernacle in Shiloh, where he dwelt. In his Time it is probable, that a Great-grandson might also be born unto Obed, whose Name is not recorded in the Genealogies either of Ruth or St. Matthew, for the Reasons already mention'd. In his Time also at the Death of Bakki, Zeraiah his Son succeeded as High Priest, who continu'd in this Office but a little Time, and was probably outed for Idolatry; when the High Priesthood was remov'd out of his Family, and Eli succeeded him, who was of the House of Ithamar. And this may be the Reason that his Name is not mention'd by Josephus. And indeed the Promise (p) of the perpetual Succession to the High Priest's Office was so solemnly confirm'd to the Posterity of Phinehas the Son of Eliezer, for a particular Reason; that we cannot but conclude it to have been some very grievous Sin, which caus'd it to fail.

23. About the Time also of the Death of Gideon, we may well suppose Sanchoniatho to have liv'd. He was the oldest except the inspir'd Writers, of all those whose Works are extant. He liv'd at Berytus, not far from the north Part of Canaan, and it is probable, that his Credit prevail'd with the Israelites to worship (q) Baal-berith, or the God of Berytus, as a God. His Writings are preserv'd in Greek by (r) Eusebius, and were very much made Use of by the shrewdest Antagonist, that ever Christianity met with, even Porphyry the Philosopher. Porphyry places him before Siphoas the King of Egypt, who began his Reign in the Year of the World 2821, and saith expressly, that he receiv'd certain Books from Ferombalus the Priest of the GOD J E V O, or rather J A O. This Ferombalus is allow'd by all to be Gideon, who was call'd Ferubbaal, which is of the same Sense in the Phœnician Language, only after their Custom, changing one b into m, as in Ambubajæ, Sambuca, &c. They call'd him a Priest from (s) his extraordinary Sacrifice, and obliquely to run down the Line of Aaron; otherwise he never officiated, being not of the Tribe of Levi, but (t) of Manasseh. Or rather he might be so call'd from his Making an Ephod in his City of the Spoils of his Enemies, which became a Snare to him and his House, and turn'd the Israelites to Idolatry; and therefore he might be the more respected by the neighbouring Nations, whose Idols the Israelites soon after worshipp'd. And the Books which Sancho-niatho had from him, could be no other but the Books of Moses, which contain the Laws deliver'd by Jehovah. This Sancho-niatho was a profess'd Idolater, and observing that Moses establish'd the true Religion by a short History from the Creation in the Line of Seth, resolv'd to attempt the Establishing of his own by a short History of the Creation in the Line of Cain, and therefore he was forc'd to omit the Flood which destroy'd all that Race. The History, which he wrote, was taken out of the Records at Berytus, (the Town where Sancho-niatho was born) which were fix'd there by Mizraim the Son of Ham, who would not omit that History, because his Mother, or Ham's Wife, was (u) Naamah the Daughter of Lamech, of the same Race. But herein (saith (x) a learned Prelate) was seen the wonderful Providence of GOD, that out of this Eater came forth Meat, and out of the Lion, Honey; and the most considerable Testimonies produc'd by Porphyry against our Religion, were of the greatest Strength to refute his own. For he, being of too great Learning to be satisfy'd with the vain Pretences of the Grecians, made it his Business to search after the most antient Records, to find something in them to confront the Authority of the Scriptures; but upon his Search he could find none of greater Veneration than the Phœnician History, nor any Author contending for Age with this Sancho-niatho. Yet when he had made the most of his Testimony, he was fain to yield him younger than Moses, tho' he supposeth him older than the Trojan Wars. And he goes about to prove the Agreement of Sancho-niatho's History by its Agreement with that of Moses concerning the Jews, both as to their Names and Places, whereby he evidently asserts the greater Truth and Antiquity of Moses's History, when he proves the Truth of Sancho-niatho's by its Consonancy with that. Indeed Dodwell (y) endeavours to prove him to be a spurious Author. It is certain, that the Records of Berytus made Ham to be Chronus or Saturn, and the Canaanites and Egyptians agreed in the same Opinion, because they would have no Nation to be older than their own. But the Grecians and Assyrians took Noah to be Chronus or Saturn. Now Dodwell went intirely away with the Notion of the Greeks, as all the Europeans did in his Time, and so he misapprehended many Passages in this Author, which Bishop Cumberland hath clear'd up and rectify'd, and shewn to be of singular Use for the Settling the Chronology of the most antient Times: and therefore it is very probable, that if so great a Man as Dodwell had rightly understood this Author, he would have spar'd all the Pains, which he took to confute him.

24. As Gideon was call'd Jerubbaal, so he was also call'd (z) Jerubbeseth. The Reason is, because בשת Besbeth or Bosbeth, that is, Shame or Confusion is often us'd (a) in Scripture to signify the Idol Baal; because it made its Worshippers confounded. And thus it is said (b) that Moab should be ashamed of Chemosh.

25. Gideon in his Life time having many Wives, had (c) no less than seventy Children, and another by a Concubine, whom she nam'd Abimelech, or My Father is the King. This Name seems to be given out of Pride and Arrogancy, that she might be look'd upon as the Wife of one, who deserv'd a Kingdom, tho' he did not accept of it; and it is probable, that it afterward inflam'd the Mind of this Son to affect the Royal Dignity. For as soon as his Father was dead, he (d) went to Shechem, the Place of his Nativity, where he prevail'd upon them to make him their King; and then to make himself sure of the Kingdom, he slew all his Brethren, except Jotham who was almost miraculously preserv'd in the common Destruction, and pray'd, that GOD might revenge such barbarous Murders on Abimelech and his Assistants, and cause them to destroy one another, which happen'd accordingly; for they grew jealous and distrustful, and so fell into Dissensions and Discords, and forc'd Abimelech to fly away to save his own Life. As soon as he was gone, the Shechemites make Gael their Commander, who is (e) suppos'd by the Jews to have been a Gentile, and not one of the Jewish Nation, and a known Enemy of Abimelech, who hearing that the Men of Shechem had bid him Defiance, came to offer his Service against him. The Shechemites put themselves under his Protection, whose Aim was to bring them into Subjection to the Canaanites by this Contrivance, and persuade them to receive their Government, as they had so lately revolted to their Religion. However he shew'd his Temper too soon; for he robb'd the Country, and spent the Time in Eating, Drinking, Swearing, Cursing, and Bragging of his own Courage, and Boasting what he would do to Abimelech, if he could catch him. In the Midst of his Jollity, and perhaps being elevated with Wine, he speaks (f) contemptibly of Abimelech, as the Son of a Maid Servant, and of one, who threw down the Altar of that God, whom they then worshipp'd, and that he had set Zebul, one of his Servants, over them to be their Governor; and so he endeavours to persuade them, that if they submitted themselves to any, it would be better to restore the Dominion of the antient Lords of the City, and subject themselves to those who were descended of the Stock of Hamor, whose Son Shechem gave the Town its Name, and who was (f) the King thereof in the Time of Jacob. Zebul, whom Abimelech intrusted with his Concerns in his Absence, gave him Intelligence of all that happen'd, and advis'd him to come with an Army before it was too late. Accordingly, he marches all Night, divides his Army into four Parts, and so besets the City on all Sides. Gael seeing them in the Morning, and being but of a cowardly Temper, tells Zebul in a Fright, that he saw People coming down from the Tops of the Mountains. Zebul ridicules him for it, That he saw (g) the Shadows of the Trees upon the Mountains, and mistook them for Men; however he deliver'd it in such a serious Manner, that Gael believ'd, that he spoke in Earnest. Gael observing them as they came nearer, tells Zebul positively, that they were Men, and that he saw them march in two distinct Companies toward him. Zebul now pulls off his Mask, and upbraids him with his former Hectoring, in this Manner, Where is now thy mouth, wherewith thou saidst, Who is Abimelech, that we should serve him? Is not this the people, whom thou hast despised? And then he challengeth him to go and fight with them, upbraiding him with his Cowardise, unless he now shew'd himself a Man with his Sword, as he had done the other Day with his Tongue. Had Gael been a Man of Courage, he would have left Zebul dead upon the Spot for this insulting Language; however being thorowly provok'd, and finding things brought to Extremity, he march'd out with all his Forces to fight Abimelech; but being a Man of little Courage, and no greater Conduct, his Army was soon beaten, and he was driven back into the City. Upon this Abimelech remov'd to a neighbouring Town, depending on the Conduct of Zebul, and watching his Opportunity to be reveng'd of the Shechemites. Zebul had a Party strong enough to turn out Gael a Canaanite and a Stranger, who had been so unsuccessful, which they did, so that we hear no more of him; but the Misunderstandings between them and Abimelech were so great, that nothing would persuade them to surrender to him; so that he was forc'd to besiege the Town, and when he took it, he beat down all the Houses and Walls, and laid them level with the Ground, and kill'd all the Inhabitants, whom he could meet with. The rest fled to the Temple of Baal-Berith, or The God of Berytus, which Abimelech burnt, and so destroy'd all at once. During the Time of Abimelech's Calamities, (h) the neighbouring Town of Thebez revolted from him; so that being flush'd with Success he besieg'd it and took it, and the Inhabitants flying into a strong Tower, he resolv'd to burn that, as he had burnt the other, tho' not with the same Success; for they had brought up Stones and other heavy Matter, to throw down upon the Heads of those that should come near the Gates. Abimelech not mistrusting this, came to the Gate to set it on fire, when a Woman threw down a Piece of a Millstone on his Head, that gave him his Death's Wound, and his Armour-bearer at his own Request run him thro'. And the People having none to head them, rais'd the Siege, and return'd every Man to their own Houses. By this Example we may see, how GOD revengeth Murder and Treachery, and that no Man should think such things as these came to pass by Chance. For GOD the Judge of all punish'd both Abimelech and the Men of Shechem, according to their Deserts, and made them the Instruments of each other's Destruction. And it is remarkable, that the Curse which Jotham pronounc'd overtook them speedily, even at the End of three Years, after their Crimes were committed.

26. After the Death of Abimelech, (i) Tolab of the Tribe of Issachar succeeds as a Judge in the north and east Parts of Canaan. It is not said, that either GOD rais'd him up, or that the People chose him, and therefore it is probable, that he took upon him this Office of his own Accord. The dreadful End of Abimelech, and those who made him King, affrighted the People from choosing another of their own Heads, and therefore they more easily submitted to one who should set up himself. However the Confusions and Disorders which they were in at that Time, were happily ended by the prudent Management of this Governor. He restor'd again the Purity of their Religion, and abolish'd the Worshipping of Idols, particularly that of Baal-Berith, and this made GOD prosper him so that there was Peace, during his Government, which was three and twenty Years, when he died, and was succeeded by Jair.

Account, and from whence began the famous Epocha among the Greeks, who divide their History into three Parts. First, Before the Siege of Troy, which they reckon'd fabulous. Secondly, From thence to the Olympiads, which they reckon'd uncertain. And thirdly, From the Olympiads downwards, which they reckon'd certain. Dichæarchus places it 436 Years before the Olympiads. But others of the Antients, who are follow'd by all the Moderns (Sir Isaac Newton excepted) place it in the 408th Year before it. Clemens Alexandrinus (k) from Thrasyllus agrees herewith in Placing the Rape of Helena by Paris four Years after the Deifying of Hercules, and Leaving a Blank of so much Space between that and the Trojan War. Eusebius (l) places the Rape of Helena in the eighth Year of Menestheus King of Athens, who had the Command of his own Army the Athenians in that Siege, which was the same Year with the other. The Arundelian Marbles fix it in the same Year, by saying, that the Wars of Troy began in the 13th Year of the same King, and the City was taken in his twenty second Year. (m) Diodorus Siculus, with (n) Dionysius Halicarnassensis, and (o) Solinus, place it in the 408th Year before the first Olympiad. Some of them were so particular as to tell us, that it was taken in the Night between the 23d and 24th Days of the Month Thargelion, or June 11, and 17 Days before the Summer Solstice, tho' the Sun came to the Summer Solstice two Days before its Time here mention'd. And therefore there seems to be no Room left for any farther Dispute.

28. At this Time the Seas were very much infested with Pirates from almost all Nations, who landing on the Shores seiz'd by Force upon all the Women and Cattle that they could light upon, and Carrying them off, either sold them in a distant Country, or kept them for their own Use. And these Practices (as Thucydides tells us) were so common, that no one inhabited near the Sea for fear of being plunder'd. Upon this Tyndareus the Father of Helena, considering the Beauty of his Daughter, caus'd all her Lovers, who were most of the principal Men in Greece, to bind themselves by a solemn Oath, that if she should be taken from her Husband, they would join all their Forces together to recover her. Upon this he left his Daughter Helena to choose whom she thought fit for a

Husband, who accordingly chose Menelaus King of Mycenæ and Brother to Agamemnon. Paris, one of the younger Sons of Priamus King of Troy, upon the Report of her Beauty, came into Greece to see her, where he was kindly entertain'd by Menelaus, but watching his Opportunity, he debauches Helena, and finds Means to carry her off, and also to rob Menelaus of his Treasure. Upon this Menelaus complains of the Injury done him to all the Grecian Princes, and requires the Performance of their Oath. They not willing to cancel so solemn an Obligation, and influenci'd by the Power, Reputation and Friendship of Menelaus, and especially being desirous of Sharing in the Honour and the Plunder of so great an Enterprize, take up Arms against the Trojans. Agamemnon, the Brother of Menelaus, was one of the Principal; for beside his great Dominions in Peloponnesus, he was Lord of many Islands, and very rich in Money; so that when he embark'd for Troy with his own Ships, they were more in Number than those which any other of the Greek Princes had rais'd, and therefore he was made the General of this Expedition. The Fleet (p) consisted of about twelve hundred Sail; but the Ships were not great. For it was not then their Custom to build Ships with Decks, only they us'd (as Thucydides tells us) small Ships fit for Robbing on the Sea, the least of which carry'd fifty Men, and the greatest about an hundred and twenty, every Man being both a Mariner and a Soldier; so that the whole Army may be computed at near an hundred thousand Men. All the Poets, except Euripides, make Paris to sail directly for Troy; but other Historians of better Credit tell us, that Paris in his Return with Helena was driven by Stress of Weather upon the Coast of Egypt, where he was accus'd for this Rape by some of his Slaves, who had taken Sanctuary there. Proteus, who was then King of Egypt, finding upon Examination that the Accusation was true, detain'd Helena and all the Goods taken with her, till her Husband should require them, dismissing Paris without any farther Punishment, because he was a Stranger. The Greeks being unwilling to wage War, if Matters could be compounded by a Treaty, send Ulysses and some others as Ambassadors to Troy, to demand Helena and the Goods, which were taken with her out of Menelaus's House. What Answer the Trojans made is uncertain;

(k) Stromaton, lib. 1. (l) De Præparatione Evangelicâ, lib. 10. cap. 3. (m) Diodorus Siculus, lib. 14. makes the Destruction of Troy to be 780 Years more antient than the 94th Olympiad; so that by subtracting 372, the Number of Years between the Beginning of the Olympiads, and the first Year of the 94th out of 780, the Remainder between them is 408. And in his Preface he makes the Return of the Heraclidæ, which was 80 Years after the Fall of Troy, to be 328 Years before the first Olympiad, both which Sums added together, make 408 as before. (n) Dionysius Halicarnassensis, Antiq. lib. 2. places the Building of Rome in the first of the seventh Olympiad, or 24 Years after the Beginning of these Games, and reckons it 432 Years later than the Fall of Troy; from whence subtract 24, and the Remainder is 408, as before. but whether they could not or would not restore her, it is certain that the Ambassadors return'd back very much discontented with their ill Usage, especially because there were some who advis'd to kill them. In the mean Time Calchas, a Runagate Trojan, sets up to be a Fortune-teller among them, and the Greeks being too much addicted to such Superstitions, resolve to have him as an Adviser, who endeavour'd to divert them from their Purpose with all the troublesome Answers and Amusements that he could think of. He tells them, that the Anger of the Goddess Diana, who withstood their Passage, could not be appeas'd, unless Iphigenia the Daughter of Agamemnon their General, was offer'd up as a Sacrifice to her, which some say was effected; but others tell us, that another Person, who pretended to be a Priest, and had a Kindness for the Girl, told them, that the sacrificing an Hind would do as well, and so she escap'd. After this he told them, that Troy could not be taken unless Ulysses and Achilles went with them, thinking them cunning enough to avoid it, one by Feigning himself mad, and the other by being dress'd in Women's Apparel; then that the first Man, who landed on the Trojan Shore, should be slain; and lastly, that it should be ten Years before the Town could be taken.

29. And now had the Greeks gone to the Siege of Troy, they might have taken it at once, for (q) they were ten Times in Number more than the Trojan Army; but being frighten'd by their Soothsayer, they spent near (r) nine Years in Plundering the neighbouring Islands and Coasts upon the Ægean Shores, whilst some that landed, only block'd up the Town at a Distance. This gave King Priamus an Opportunity to be reinforc'd from Phrygia, Lycia, Mysia, and the greatest Part of lesser Asia. Penthesilea also came with her Amazons, Rhesus from Thrace, and Memnon from Assyria, who join'd him with their Forces. Thus the Trojans were now reliev'd with great Succours, all the Country being drawn into that War by their Commanders, who assisted King Priamus for Money, in which he abounded when the War began, and partly in Respect to him and his Sons, or Hopes of Marriage with some of his many and fair Daughters, and also stirr'd up by the Wrongs which they suffer'd from the Greeks, and also fearing that if the Greeks took that Country first they would not stop there, but in Time take all the rest; so that when Hector sall'y'd upon them out of the Town, he was little inferior to them either in the Number of Men, or the Quality of their Commanders. And that which was worse, there arose an unlucky Difference between Agamemnon and Achilles in the Beginning of the Summer, when Troy was taken. For when great Booties were brought into the Camp, Agamemnon as General having (s) chosen for his Part a Captive Woman, the Daughter of Chryses the Priest of Apollo, Achilles having chosen for himself another in the second Place, then Ajax, then Ulysses, and the rest of the Generals in Order, a great Pestilence arose among the Greeks, which they imputed to Apollo or the Sun, which rais'd up pestilential Fogs, by which the Army was infected, being encamp'd in a moorish Piece of Ground, which was also increas'd by the Army lying too close together, all that had been abroad being now return'd to the Camp, and the Ships being also drawn up into the River within the Fortifications. Agamemnon consults Calchas the Soothsayer concerning the Cause of this Calamity; he being willing to do his Brother Priest a Kindness, answers, that his Daughter's being a Captive was the Cause of it, and adviseth him to restore her to her Father without any Reward, that so the Pestilence might cease. Agamemnon rages at this, and saith, that he alone would not lose Part of the Spoil, but he would take that which had been given to Achilles, or to Ajax, or Ulysses. Achilles defies him, so that he sends Forces for this Purpose; to which Achilles was forc'd to submit, as not able to revenge his Quarrel any otherwise than by Refusing to fight, or to send his Forces. And from this Quarrel Homer begins his Iliads.

30. But the Greeks, encourag'd by their Captains, present themselves before the City without him and his Troops, which occasion'd many Battles, the greatest of which was at the Tomb of King Ilus upon the Plain, and another at the very Trenches of the Camp, where Hector broke thro' the Fortifications of the Greeks, and began to fire their Ships; at which Time Ajax with his Brother Teucer were the only Men of Note that remain'd unwounded, and made Head against Hector, when the State of the Greeks was almost desperate. In the Midst of this Extremity, Patroclus the dear Friend of Achilles not being able to stand neuter any longer, fearing worse Consequences, begs Leave of Achilles to use his Armour, and command his Troops, and so to relieve the Greeks with a fresh Supply. The rest, thinking him to be Achilles indeed, and glad of his Assistance, tho' they were very much wounded, were forc'd to put on their Armour, and with this Assistance they repell'd the Trojans, with great Difficulty and some Loss, especially of Patroclus, whose Body was after another sharp Engagement recover'd by his Friends, and brought back into the Camp, after Hector had taken the Armour of Achilles from him, and carry'd it off.

31. Agamemnon thinking that Achilles would be willing to revenge the Loss of his Armour, and of his dear Friend, concludes that it was now high Time, and a fit Opportunity, to reconcile himself to Achilles, and therefore he sends back Briseis the Captive Maid, with many very valuable Presents, and excus'd his former Behaviour as well as he could. Achilles lays aside all Resentments, and joins them in another Battle, in which he conquers the Trojans; and resolving to be reveng'd of Hector, he singles him out, and pursues him wherever he went, and never leaves him, till he had kill'd him. After which carrying away his dead Body, he makes Holes in his Feet, and thrusting leathern Thongs into them, he drags him shamefully about the Field, and after that sells his Body to King Priamus for a very great Ransom. But this Cruelty and Covetousness were not long unreveng'd; for he was slain by Paris with an Arrow in the Temple of Apollo, who hid himself in a private Part for that Purpose, when Achilles came thither to marry Polyxena the Daughter of King Priamus, with whom he was too far in Love, having slain so many of her Brethren; and his Body was ransom'd for the same Price, that had before been given for Hector's.

32. Homer giving us no Account of the Taking of Troy, Virgil (r) adds, that it was done by a large wooden Horse, in which they inclos'd many of the principal Greeks; upon which the rest set sail to the Island of Tenedos, leaving Simon to persuade them, that it was built upon a religious Account, and that it was necessary for them to take it into the City, which they did by Pulling down a Part of the Wall for that Purpose, and so the Greeks returning on a sudden, and entering at the Breach, open the Horse, seize one of the Gates, and so take and burn the City. But this seems to be a poetical Story, and very unlikely in it self: for either the Trojans might have perceiv'd the Deceit, and kill'd the Princes that were inclos'd in it, which, as it is reported, was what was first propos'd on that Occasion, or they might have left it for some Time without the City, by which Means they who were shut into it must have perish'd for Hunger; and indeed it is unlikely, that they should the very first Day agree upon the Bringing it into the Town, and break down the Walls for that Purpose; and if they had came out alone, they must have been all destroy'd. And if this Horse was, as it is reported, so high and so great, that it could not be brought into the Town thro' any of the Gates, and therefore the Trojans were forc'd to pull down a Part of their Wall to make way for the Greeks to enter, it would have been a needless as well as a desperate Attempt to inclose so many Men; since without their Help there was a Breach made sufficient for the Army to enter at, and then the Surprizing of any Gate by them would in such a Case be to no Purpose.

33. But as Virgil imitates Theocritus in his Eclogs, and Oppian in his Georgicks; so he imitates Homer in his Aeneids. For this Reason he frequently translates several of his Verses at a Time, and imitates his Fancy. His Story of Dido and Aeneas is an Imitation of Ulysses and Calypso in Homer. The Celebrating the Games for his Father's Funeral is the same which Achilles is said to have done for his Friend Patroclus; and Aeneas's Going into Hell is but what Homer fancy'd of Ulysses. As therefore Homer in his Iliads makes Achilles a Pattern of Valour, and in his Odyssees he makes Ulysses a Pattern of Policy; so Virgil makes Aeneas a Pattern for both. In his six first Aeneids he celebrates him for his Piety, Conduct and Affection to his aged Father; and in his six last he celebrates him for his Courage and Abilities in War, and for this Reason he could not bear to mention the least Reflection on his Character; tho' (u) another Author, who might know the Truth as well as Virgil, saith, that Aeneas, Antenor and Polydamus, having taken some Disgust at King Priamus, agreed with the Grecians to betray the City to them, upon Condition that they might retire with their Men wherever they thought fit, provided they did not settle in Phrygia. For this Reason it was concerted, that the Grecians should the Day before set sail to the Island of Tenedos, and return at Night, thereby to bring the Trojans into Security, and so whilst they were sleeping and drinking without Fear or Care, their Enemies were let in at the Scaan Gate, over which there was the large Image of an Horse, which gave the Rise to all this Story. And perhaps Helenus a Son of Priamus might be in the same Plot, which made him find so easy a Reception among the Greeks as to settle a Colony in Epirus, whilst the other two were so hated for their Treachery, that they were forc'd to seek for Settlements at a great Distance from their Neighbours, and thus Antenor made a Colony in Illyrium, and Aeneas, after many Difficulties, Dangers and Repulses, arriv'd with the Remainder of his Company and settl'd in Albania in Italy, and is by Virgil represented as the Beginner of the Roman Empire.

34. As for the Greeks, in their Return home they had almost as much Misery as they had brought upon the Trojans. For Thucydides saith, that by Reason of their long Absence

they found many Alterations when they return'd, so that they were driven by their Neighbours from their antient Seats; many were expell'd their Countries by Faction, others slain soon after their Arrival, and others depos'd from their Supremacy by such as stay'd at home. The Cause of all these Disasters was the Dispersion of the Army; which being weaken'd by the Calamities of a long War, was of little Force to repel Injuries, especially being now divided under so many Commanders of so many different Interests. For at the Time when they should have set sail, Agamemnon and his Brother fell out, one being desirous to depart immediately, and the other to stay and perform some Sacrifices to Minerva. Upon this half of the Fleet remain'd with Agamemnon, and the rest sail'd to the Isle of Tenedos, where when they arriv'd, they could not agree among themselves, but some return'd back to Agamemnon, and others were dispers'd under several Leaders, whilst they all suffer'd by Tempests. Nestor and Pyrrhus return'd safe home, and were slain by Orestes. Idomeneus and Philoctetes upon their Return were soon driven to seek for new Habitations, one among the Salentini, and the other at Petilia in Italy. Agamemnon was no sooner arriv'd, but he was slain by his Wife and the Adulterer Ægystus, who for some Time after usurp'd the Kingdom. Menelaus having long wander'd upon the Seas, came into Egypt (for (x) even there Homer finds him) before he return'd home to Sparta, whither it is not probable, that he might be driven by a Storm, since he might have put into any Port in Greece or the Islands in the Ægean Sea, and been well entertain'd until he could have return'd with Safety, but he rather went thither to seek for his Wife Helena and his Goods, which the Ægyptian Priest told Herodotus, that Paris had left behind him in that Country. Ulysses after ten Years, having lost all his Company, return'd home in a poor Condition, and had much Difficulty to recover the Mastership of his own House. Ajax the Son of Oileus was drown'd, Tenecer fled into Cyprus, Diomedes to King Damius, who was Lord of the Japyges in Apulia. Some of the Locrians were driven into Africa, and others into Italy, all the east Part whereof was call'd Magna Græcia, because of the vast Multitude of the Towns which the Greeks were oblig'd to build on those Coasts. And they were so numerous in the Island of Sicily, that the Greek was the native Language of Theocritus the famous Poet, who was born there. Thus as GOD had a little before punish'd the Partizans of Abimelech, and the Inhabitants of Shechem, for their mutual Robberies, Perfidiousness and Murders; so now he punish'd both Greeks and Trojans for the same Reason, which occasion'd the fuller Peopling of more distant Countries by these new Inhabitants. And thus in Process of Time, they pitch'd upon the Taking of Troy as an Epocha in which they might all agree in their Chronological Accounts wherever they were dispers'd; and their Unanimity herein is an Argument, that they could not be mistaken in the real Time.

35. From the Account of this Siege in Homer, and other Authors, (y) we may observe, that it was the Custom of those Wars, that when they had kill'd an Officer of Distinction, they would strip him, and carry away his Body, that they might have a good Ransom to redeem him. In this Case they little regarded the common Soldiers, who all fought on Foot, slightly arm'd, and commonly follow'd the Success of their Captains, the Chief of which rode not on Horses, but in Chariots drawn by two or three Horses, which were guided by some faithful Friends of theirs, who drove up and down the Field as they were directed by their Captains, who by the Swiftness of their Horses presented themselves where Need requir'd, and threw first their Javelins, and then alighting fought on Foot, retiring into the Ranks of the common Soldiers, or else returning to their Chariots when they saw Cause, they began again with new Darts as they could get them, if the old ones were lost or broken. Their defensive Arms were Helmets for the Head, Greaves of Brass for the Shoulders, Breast-Plates, Boots of Brass or other Metal, and sometimes a Coat of Mail, and Shields commonly made of Skins of Leather one over another. Their offensive Weapons were Swords or Spears and Battle-Axes, when they were near; and Stones, Javelins and Darts, with Bows and Arrows, when they fought at any Distance. Sometimes their Chariots were made of Iron, and had Swords or Scythes fasten'd on the Sides of them to cut down the Enemy. The Use of the Chariots (beside the Swiftness) was to keep them from Weariness, to which the Commanders were most subject, because of their Armour, which was made heavy in Proportion to the Strength of them that wore it, and also that from thence they might throw their Javelins down upon the Enemy with a greater Violence. They carry'd but few of these Weapons into the Field at once; so that they were often forc'd to return to their Tents for more, when these were spent. They also had but one Suit of Armour; every Officer carry'd his own Compleat, and was distinguish'd by the Crest according to his Dignity, and known particularly from the rest by some Device upon the Breast-plate. If any Piece was lost or broken, every Man was oblig'd to repair his Loss with the like, if he had taken any such from any Captain, whom he had slain or stripp'd, or to buy of those who by this Means had some to spare. So that when Achilles had lost his Armour, which  Hector had taken from the Body of Patroclus, he was forc'd to tarry the Making of new, before he could go to Fight, tho' he very much desir'd it to revenge the Death of his dear Friend.

36. But to return to the Scripture History.

Anno

2837. Upon the Death of Tolab, Jair a Gileadite of the Tribe of Manasseh, was (z) made the Governor of the Israelites. He was the first Judge, that was rais'd up from among those who liv'd beyond Jordan, and seems to take more Care of the Aggrandizing of his Family than of the Interest of Religion. He had thirty Sons, whom he made to ride on thirty Ass Colts, according to the (a) Custom of the noblest Persons, not only in Judea, but also in Arabia, and other Countries even among the Romans. And it is very probable, that they were order'd by their Father to ride a Circuit up and down the Country, and to minister Justice according to the Law, as (b) Samuel did, when he judg'd Israel. He had thirty Cities, of which (c) they were the Governors, which were afterward call'd Havoth-jair, or The Villages of Jair, to keep his Name in Remembrance. He is (d) suppos'd to be of the Posterity of that Jair, who (e) call'd the Cities which he took in Argob by his own Name, and he is (f) call'd Bedan to distinguish him from the elder Jair. And these Cities lying in the same Country, where the other antient Cities lay, were very probably distinguish'd from the other by some such Addition as this, The new Havoth-jair. He (g) kept the Israelites in Peace in the Beginning of his Reign; but for want of a due Care for the Worship of GOD, fresh Troubles began, which lasted all his Lifetime; for they (h) were worse now than

Mundi 2841. ever. They laid aside all Concern for the true GOD, and worshipp'd not only Baalim and Ashtaroth, as they had frequently done in former Times, but they also added the Worship of new Gods, particularly those of Syria, as Dagon, Moloch and Tammuz, and also the Gods of Zidon, Ammon, Moab and the Philistines. This made GOD angry, so that he rais'd up the Philistines and the Ammonites, two of the Nations, whose Gods they chose to serve, to oppress them in a grievous Manner, beginning both in the same Year, the one invading them on the West and South, whilst the other invaded them on the East and North. And tho' Jair held the Government, yet their Oppressions and Vexations grew intolerable, and they not only afflicted his own Country, but they also pass'd over Jordan to fight openly against the Tribes of Judah, Benjamin and Ephraim, and make them also feel the Weight of their Power. At the same Time the Philistines made Ravages in the Countries of Zebulun and Asser, and the rest of the Tribes that lay on the western Coast.

37. In the Midst of this Distress the MES-SIAH; the WORD or Angel of the LORD appears (i) to the Wife of Manoah of the Tribe of Dan, who at that Time was barren, and tells her, that she should have a Son, who should begin to deliver the Israelites out of the Hands of the Philistines, tho' he should not live to complete their Deliverance, and gives her particular Directions, how she should manage both her self and him. She tells her Husband, who desires also to see him, which was granted, and he gives him the same Directions, and miraculously shews that he was no human, but a spiritual Substance. She did as she was order'd, and when her Son was born, she call'd his (k) Name Sampson, which Josephus saith, signifies strong or powerful, the Reason of which is suppos'd to be, because this Word signifies the Sun, which is a Body of mighty Force, and as the Word imports, is a Servant to us, in Administring to us both Light and Heat, and Dispersing those Vapours, which would otherwise annoy us.

38. And as the strongest Man, so the greatest Prophet, even Samuel, was born about this Time of a barren Woman. The Time of his Birth must be reckon'd backward from the Finishing of the Temple, First, By Supposing him to die within two Years before the Death of Saul, according to the general Opinion; and secondly, Supposing him to be about the Age of Eli, or (l) ninety eight Years when he died. Of Eli it is said, that (m) he was very old, and his eyes were dim, that he could not see, and Samuel (n) is describ'd as an old man, and covered with a mantle to keep himself warm. So that the Time may be nearly computed thus.

According to this Account he was sixty Years old when he anointed Saul, which may well agree with (p) the Description of him at that Time, that he was old, and made his sons judges over Israel, and yet he liv'd eight and thirty Years longer.

From hence it will appear, that the Judges mention'd in the north and east Parts of Canaan were contemporary with Eli, and that the last of them died the same Year with him; so that Samuel immediately after rul'd over the whole Country.

39. But to proceed in the Story of his Birth. His Father's Name was (q) Elkanah, the Son of Jeroham, the Son of Elibu, the Son of Tobu; so that (r) he was a Levite of the Family of the Kohathites; and therefore he could not be a Priest by Descent, much less the High Priest, as some have imagin'd. The Place of his Birth was Ramathaim Zophim, and call'd in the New Testament (s) Arimathea, where Joseph liv'd, who bury'd CHRIST. The Word (t) Ramath signifies an High Place, of which Ramathaim is the Dual Number, because it was built upon two Hills, which made it appear like a double City. The Title of Zophim or Watchmen seems to be added to it, because it being in a High Place there was a Watch-tower in it, where Men were set to observe who came thither from all Parts round about it. Others think, that it was so call'd because here was a School of the Prophets, who were wont to seat themselves in such Places as were remote from Company, and so more fit for Contemplation. And thus the Chaldee Paraphrase renders it, A Man of Ramathaim, a Disciple of the Prophets, who are (u) frequently call'd Watchmen. His Father and Mother seem to have had the early Advantage of a pious Education, and therefore the one was call'd Elkanah, or The LORD hath possessed him, and the other was call'd Hannah, or Gracious. Neither was it in vain, for their Piety was conspicuous in Going every Year to worship, and offer Sacrifices to the LORD in Shiloh, where the Tabernacle now was, and where the Sacrifices were to be offer'd, and no where else; and this was more easy to be done, because his House in Ramathaim in the Tribe of Ephraim was not above seven Miles Distance. This Hannah was his beloved Wife tho' barren, and therefore he took another call'd Peninnah, who bore him Children, and for this Reason (x) she set her self insolently against the other. This turn'd her Feasting into Lamentation, so that she spent her Time in Prayers and Tears, begging GOD to give her a Son, and promising with her Husband's Consent to devote him to his Service. Eli mistaking her Devotion, thinks she was drunk, and reproves her for it. She with a great deal of Humility excuses herself, and owns in general, that she requested a Favour from GOD, which Eli also pray'd to GOD to grant, and so she went home with an Assurance, that her Petition should be heard. Some of the (y) Jews fancy, that this was the very Day, when Eli was made Judge over the Land, because of the (z) Hebrew Text, which runs thus, And Eli sat upon his throne. And if this happen'd to be on the Feast of the Passover, as in all Probability it was, so that Samuel was born in the Beginning of the following Year, it will exactly agree with the former Computation. When he was born, his Mother call'd his Name (a) Samuel, giving this Reason, Because I have asked him of the LORD. When the Child was wean'd, she brings him to Eli, confesses that this was the Child for which she formerly pray'd, and adding, that because GOD had given him thus to her, she would devote him again to GOD, and to his Service as long as he liv'd. Eli well knowing the Piety of his Parents, and that he was the Son of the Mother's Prayers and Tears, took a particular Fancy for the Youth, and admitted him to attend the constant Service of the Tabernacle, and the Mother having compos'd a Psalm of Thanksgiving suitable to this Occasion, returns home with the utmost Satisfaction.

40. At this Time (b) the Israelites in the North and West humble themselves before GOD, confess their Sins, and pray to him for Deliverance from the Ammonites. GOD puts them in Mind of their former Deliverances, which he gave them, and their Ingratitude to him, and threatens to deliver them no more, but sends them to the Gods whom they worshipp'd, for their Assistance in this Extremity. They continue to humble themselves, and implore his Mercy, and put away all their Idols, insomuch that he resolves to deliver them. But Jair being either old or unactive, nothing was done in his Life-time; neither did they think it adviseable to depose him, and set up another until the Time of his Death, when a fit Opportunity presented.

Anno Mundi 2858. For probably upon the News of the same, (c) the Ammonites publish'd a Proclamation requiring all their dispers'd Troops, which were ravaging the Countries of Judah, Benjamin and Ephraim to return back to their Camp on the other Side of Jordan. Upon this they encamp in the Country of Gilead, with a Design, as (d) is suppos'd, to lay Siege to Gilead it self, the chief City of those Parts; by the Taking of which, they hop'd to be Masters of all that Country, and then with greater Forces to go over Jordan again, and conquer the other Tribes before-mention'd.

41. The Inhabitants on the other Side of Jordan being sensible of this Attempt, and that they had but one Chance for their Lives and Liberties, (e) assemble themselves together, and encamp at Mizpeh, a Town in the half Tribe of Manasseh; so that Necessity revives their antient Courage, and they seem to take a Resolution either to drive the Ammonites out of the Country, or to perish in the Attempt; which they perceiving, and finding their Army much weaken'd, retreat to raise more Forces, and wait for a more favourable Opportunity. In the mean Time the People of Gilead, who were more nearly concern'd in this Matter, as lying next to the Enemy, enter into a Consultation, who they should choose for their Leader, since Jair was dead, and resolve, that whoever would undertake it, should be the Head over the Gadites and Manassites. And it is very probable, that they consulted GOD about it, who directed them (f) to send for Jephthah the Gileadite one of their own Country-men, who was a warlike Person of good Courage and Conduct, who liv'd upon the Borders of the Ammonites, and had gather'd together a small Army, with which he made frequent Incursions upon them, and got what Booty they could for their Subsistence. The Israelites send Messengers to him, and offer him the Command of the Army. He accepts of it upon Condition, that if he was successful, he should be their Governor as long as he liv'd, which they consented to, and solemnly ratify'd. In the mean Time the Ammonites had recruited their Army, and resolve once more to enter the Country in an hostile Manner. Jephthah willing to compose the Difference, acts as their Supreme, and sends Embassadors to know what was the Ground of this Quarrel, or for what Reason this Invasion was design'd? The Ammonites return this Answer, that it was because the Israelites had taken away their Land, when they came out of Egypt. Jephthah denies it, and sends them Word again, that the Israelites only took the Land of Sihon King of the Amorites, and Og the King of Bashan. But they had (g) a strict Charge not to meddle with any of the Country which belong'd to the Children of Lot. And their Conquest gave them as good a Title to that Country, as the Moabites and Ammonites had to the other; for they possess'd it formerly, the one by (h) Driving out the Emims, and (i) the other by Driving out the Zamzummins. 'Tis true, that Sihon King of the Amorites had taken a great (k) Part of the Country of Moab, which lay near Jordan, and was therefore call'd (l) the Land or the Plains of Moab. So that either Conquest was a good Title or not. If it was a good Title, the Israelites took it not from them but from the Amorites. If it was not a good Title, the Ammonites ought to restore all the Land that they dwelt in, since they had no other Title to it. At last he tells them, that they had been (m) in Possession of the Country for three hundred Years; so that it was theirs by a long Prescription, especially since no one laid Claim to it in all that Time, and so he appeals to GOD to do Justice, whilst they had recourse to Arms for no other Purpose.

Time of Jephthah to be when Eli was the High Priest. The Israelites had conquer'd Sihon the King of the Amorites, and Og the

Anno Mundi 2552. King of Baschan, in the Year before they came into Egypt, as hath been already mention'd; so that from thence this Epocha must begin. Most

Chronologers (n) make the Time to be something less. Marshall in his Tables makes it to be the exact Distance, but according to this present Computation, it is seven Years more. In this Case such a round Sum will admit of some Latitude of Expression, and the Argument will be stronger if it is more, than if it is less. According to this Computation, there are eight Years between the Death of Samson and the Death of Eli, whilst we hear nothing of the Philistines; and it is not probable, that they would be quiet any longer, since Samson did only (o) begin to deliver the Israelites from them, and at his Death left no Army to make Head against them. Besides, this Computation makes the Judges in the North to end at the same Time with the Death of Eli, and so paves the Way the better for Samuel to succeed in the Government of the whole.

43. When Jephthah went out to fight against the Children of Ammon, he (p) vow'd a rash Vow, which many think was the Occasion of the Sacrificing his own Daughter. The (q) Jewish Commentators are generally of another Opinion, and interpret it thus, If GOD would deliver the children of Ammon into his Hands, then whatever came out of his House to meet him, should either be devoted unto GOD, or it should be offer'd for a burnt-offering. And the Particle in the Hebrew Language will admit of such a Construction. He seems to be a Man of a religious Temper, made a Conscience of Observing it, and therefore would vow no unlawful thing; for a Dog or a Swine might have come out to meet him, which was an Abomination, and the Sacrificing his own Daughter to GOD, as to the Idol Moloch, would have been worst of all. However he obtain'd a complete Victory, and at his Return his Daughter, who was his only Child, came out to meet him; and therefore in this Case some suppose, that he did not sacrifice her, but devoted her to the LORD by a perpetual Virginity. For First, if he had sacrific'd her, the Scripture would without Doubt have censur'd it as a very wicked and inhuman Act. Secondly, In such a Case he would not let her go up and down upon the Mountains for two Months; for he might suppose, that she would never have return'd, and then he could not have done as he had vow'd. Thirdly,

If she had gone upon the Mountains, it would have been to bewail her untimely End, whereas all that she propos'd was to bewail her Virginity. And Fourthly, the sacred Story seems to favour this Interpretation: That at the End of two Months she return'd to her Father, who did with her according to his Vow, that he had vow'd, the Consequence of which is immediately added, And she knew no man. This was a great Trouble to Jephthah, because by this Means his Family was extinct, and he had no Issue to inherit his Estate, or keep his Name in Remembrance.

44. Jephthah returning out of the Country of Ammon, where his Battles were fought, flush'd with Success, met with some Disturbance at Home; for (r) the Tribe of Ephraim pass'd over Jordan to pick a Quarrel with him, because he did not send for them to join the Army and share in the Victory, threatening to burn him and his House with Fire. Jephthah endeavours to pacify them with good Words; but when this would not do, he fell upon them, gave them a total Overthrow, sent some of his Forces to take the Passages of Jordan, and intercept their Retreat, where they were known by their Speech and then kill'd; so that two and forty thousand of them lost their Lives in that Day, and very few escap'd to bring home the News. After which he spent the rest of his Days in Peace. He (s) Anno Mundi 2863. rul'd the Israelites six Years in all, and was honourably bury'd in his own Country.

45. About the latter End of Jephthah's Government, we may suppose Jesse the Father of David to have been Anno Mundi 2862. born, by Allowing seven and fifty Years between his Birth and the Birth of David, as in the preceding Examples of the same Genealogy. This will appear the more reasonable, when we consider, that David being (t) seventy Years old when he died, was born in the tenth Year of Saul's Reign, and Jesse his Father (u) went for an old man in the Days of Saul; so that his Birth may be thus nearly computed.

46. After the Death of Jephthah, (x) Ibzan, who is generally suppos'd to have been born and bury'd in Bethlehem-Judah, succeeded him in the Government of the north and east Part, and very probably might act under Eli in the civil Government of that Tribe. After he had govern'd the People seven Years, he was (y) succeeded by Elon of the Tribe of Zebulun, who govern'd them for the Space of ten Years, and was succeeded by (z) Abdon, who was of the Tribe of Ephraim, and govern'd eight Years, and died at the same Time with Eli the High Priest. In the Life Time of these Judges there was nothing remarkable done in the north and east Parts of the Land of Canaan; so that the Scriptures only mention those which succeeded Jephthah, and the numerous Issue of some of them, to shew that their Government at that Time was not hereditary.

47. However in the fifth Year of Ibzan, Samson now begins to act in the south and east Parts of the Land of Canaan. He was guided (a) and directed by a particular Providence, and by the great Acts which he did, GOD made it appear, that it was not for want of Power, that he suffer'd his People to continue so long under the Oppression of the Philistines. He was able (b) to make good his Promise, that one of them should chase a thousand, and two should put ten thousand to flight; but their Forsaking him was the Cause of his Forsaking them. However GOD being willing now to fulfil his Promise, that (c) Samson should begin to deliver Israel out of the hand of the Philistines; an Occasion for this Purpose offer'd it self in due Time. For he (d) went to Timnath, a City of his own Tribe, where he fell in Love with a Philistine, intending to make her his Wife; and being betroth'd to her, he (e) the next Year went to consummate the Marriage: when he proposes a Riddle to thirty Men of the Philistines, and lays a Wager of thirty Pieces of Linnen, and thirty Suits of Apparel, that they should not tell the Meaning of it. They fearing to lose the Wager, prevail on his Wife by Promises and Threatnings to persuade Samson to tell it her, upon which she tells it to them. This enrages him so, that he goes to Askelon a City of the Philistines, where he kills thirty of them, takes their Spoil, and so pays what he had lost. Upon this he leaves her in a Rage, and goes to his Father's House; and during his Absence his Wife was given to one that was at the Wedding, who probably was the Governor of the Feast, and (f) so acted as the Friend of the Bridegroom; so that here was an Affront of the highest Nature knowingly and wilfully committed against him. The (g) next Year, when his Anger was over, Samson intending to be fully reconcil'd, goes to visit his Wife, and carries with him a Kid, which was delicious Fare in that Country, intending to be merry together; but finding how he was serv'd, he resolv'd to be reveng'd for the Injury. For this Purpose (h) he caught three hundred wild Animals, and tying them Tail to Tail, he put a burning Torch between two Tails, and let them go into the Fields of the Philistines, by which Contrivance he burnt up their standing Corn with the Vineyards and Olive-Trees. The Philistines hearing who did this, and upon what Provocation, burn Samson's Father and his Wife with Fire, which probably was done by Burning their House over their Heads. Samson seeing this, breaks out into (i) an Expression, which in the Hebrew is very obscure, and seems (k) to shew him in a violent Passion, and perhaps the best Way to explain it is thus: If ye shall do after this Rate to those who are less guilty, what will you do to me, who am the greatest Aggressor? But to prevent this I will take my revenge upon you for this Fact, and after that I will forbear. And accordingly he slew a great many of them, and went and dwelt in the Top of a Rock call'd Etam in the Tribe of Judah, where the Ascent was so narrow,

There are some who make a Difficulty of this, which is well clear'd up by Pool in his Synopsis Criticorum, and Bishop Patrick, who proves from Bochart, that this Country abounded with Foxes, from whence several Places had their Names; as Hazar-shual, or, The Gate of the Fox, in the Tribe of Judah, and Shaalbim or Shaalabbim in the Tribe of Dan, Josh. 19. 42, and Judg. 1. 35. And that under this Name may be comprehended a Creature very much like a Fox, call'd Thos, which go together in Herds, so that two hundred (as good Authors report) have been seen in a Company together. Besides the Word שועל, Shugal, or a Fox, will comprehend other Animals, and perhaps all wild Beasts of Prey of the same Bigness. The Word שָׁגָל, Shagál, in the Perlick, signifies also a Beast call'd a Jackall in our English, which seems to be deriv'd from the other Language; and this was also a Beast very common in Asia. As for a late Opinion, that three hundred Five-brands is meant thereby, it would solve the Difficulty, if it could be prov'd; but there is no Ground for it in the Oriental Languages. (i) Judg. 15. 7. The Words in the Hebrew are Elliptical, and literally run thus: If you shall do like this,—but I will be aveng'd on you. (k) Many such like Instances might be taken from the Hebrew Bible, I shall only mention one, Gen. 25. 30. Esau said to Jacob, Feed me, I pray thee, with that red, that red, that, that.

that only one Man could go abreast, as we call it. The Philistines (l) were now upon the Point of Declaring War against this Tribe. They pleaded for themselves, that they liv'd quietly, and paid their Taxes, and therefore they hop'd, that they should not be punish'd for Samson's Fault; but it was answer'd, that nothing could discharge them of Samson's Guilt, but the Delivering up of Samson's Person. Upon this they draw together three thousand Men, and treat with Samson on this Occasion. Samson delivers himself up to them, on Condition that they would do him no Hurt. They resolve to surrender him up to the Philistines, and bind him for this Purpose. When he came near them, the Cords, with which he was bound, were miraculously dissolv'd, so that he cast them off from his Arms; and providentially finding a fresh Jaw-Bone of an Ass, he uses it as a Weapon, and kills a thousand Men, and from this Accident the Place was call'd Lehi, or A Jaw-bone, and sometimes Ramath-Lehi, or, The Lifting up, or Cast-ing away of the Jaw-bone. Being very thirsty with the long Fight, he prays to GOD to relieve him, and immediately (m) there gushes out a Stream of delicious Water from the neighbouring Place, where it is probable, that they afterward built a Well, and that the Water continu'd, for the Place was call'd En-hakkore, or, The Well of him that pray'd. After this (n) Samson made nothing of the Philistines, but went publickly to a Town of theirs call'd Gaza, and took up his Lodgings there in a common Inn. The Governor of the Town having Notice of it, sets Guards and Spies at the Gates to watch him, which Samson hearing of, he rises at Midnight, and takes the Doors, Frames, Locks, Bars and Hinges of the City Gate out of the Wall, and carry'd them on his Shoulders to a Hill near Hebron, and there he left them.

48. The Actions and Dangers before-mention'd, which happen'd to Samson, made the Philistines afraid of him, and made him not willing to expose himself among the Philistines, so that nothing remarkable pass'd for many Years. At last (o) he fell in Love with a Woman in the Valley of Sorek in the Tribe of Judah. The Name in Hebrew signifies a choice Vine, and it was remarkably famous for that Fruit. It was but a Mile and an half from Eshcol, from whence the Spies brought a Cluster of Grapes for a Sample of the Fruitfulness of the Country. This Woman was treacherous to him, and for the Promise of a great Reward allures him by many Intreaties to discover the Cause of his great Strength. He confessing that he was a Nazarite, and under GOD's Protection whilst he observ'd his Vow, (which was not to be shaven) but no longer, she caus'd them to cut off his Hair in his Sleep. Upon this the Philistines seize him, put out his Eyes, confine him to Prison, and force him to grind for a Maintenance. After some Run of Time, the Philistines meet to offer a Sacrifice to their GOD Dagon, giving him the Glory, and saying, Our God hath deliver'd Samson our enemy into our hand. Upon this they send for Samson out of the Prison-House to mock at him, and to speak reproachfully of the true GOD for his sake. This puts Samson in a Rage, so that he resolv'd to destroy them, tho' he perish'd in the Attempt; and having Hold of the Pillars, on which he seem'd to lean, he prays to GOD to assist him. GOD, to vindicate his own Honour, enables him to pull down the Pillars, on which this (p) Idol Temple stood, by which Means he destroy'd all the Philistines who were in the House, and upon the Top of its flat Roof to the Number of three thousand in all.

49. Thus died Samson, of whom (q) Josephus gives this Character: He was a Man of wonderful Strength and Courage, and to his immortal Honour, he employ'd his utmost Force to the Confusion of his Enemies. It is true, that it was his Misfortune to be inveig'l'd by Women; but he had also other excellent Qualities, which deserv'd eternal Memory. His dead Body was under the Care of his Kindred, who bury'd it honourably among the Sepulchres of his Fathers.

50. It is observable, that when (r) Eli the High Priest was very old, he dwelt with the Ark at Shiloh in the Tribe of Ephraim, and that the Philistines at that Time did most grievously oppress the Israelites; and also that (s) Abdon the last of the Judges was of the City of Pirathon in the same Tribe, and not above twenty Miles distant toward the River Jordan, where he seems to have seated himself, that he might have a watchful Eye over the Ammonites, and so prevent their Coming any more into the Land of Canaan. He was the only Person of that Tribe, that judg'd Israel since the Time of Joshua; and seems to have been chosen by the Approbation of Eli the High Priest, that so he might command over all in Military Affairs, and being near together, they might mutually consult and assist each other, as Occasion requir'd. At this Time Eli appoints his Sons Hophni and Phinehas to officiate as Priests in his stead. These were notoriously wicked, in such a scandalous Manner that they deserv'd Death, and nothing less could appease the Wrath of GOD for their Offences. Eli reproves them for it, but too gently. His Words were too mild, and he deliver'd them in too mild a Manner, for (t) he seems not so much as to frown upon them when he reprov'd them; however he did not suspend them from the Office of the Priesthood, until they did reform. This brought in a general Corruption of Manners, and therefore GOD resolv'd to enter into Judgment for the same. But before he strikes, he

(u) sends a Prophet to Eli, to reprove him for the Sins of his two Sons, and to foretel the Punishments which should happen for the same, that GOD would take all Power and Authority from him and his Family, that his Posterity should die in their full Strength, and he should behold the Tabernacle depriv'd of the Ark; that his two Sons should die in one Day; and the Children of those who were so wanton, that they could not be content, unless they had the choicest Parts of the Sacrifice for their Portion, should fall into so low a Condition, as to beg their Bread. However in the Midst of Judgment GOD remembers Mercy, and adds, (x) I will raise me up a faithful priest, that shall do all that is in my heart, and in my mind, and I will build him a sure house, and he shall continue for ever. This in the highest Sense belongs to none, but to our LORD JESUS CHRIST, who offer'd himself to the Father for us, and is our great High Priest for evermore. However it seems to be meant also of Zadok, who (y) was anointed by King Solomon in the Room of Abiathar, and whose Posterity continu'd in that Office until the Captivity. And it is so worded, that they who liv'd before the Accomplishment, might easily mistake it as spoken of Samuel, and therefore be the more zealous for his Advancement. This not working a Reformation, GOD declares the same to Samuel in such a Manner, that Eli could not but know, that it came from him, and therefore was more inquisitive after it; upon which Samuel told him the whole Account. And Eli with an humble Resignation adds, (z) It is the LORD; let him do what seemeth him good. Josephus (a) supposeth this to have happen'd when Samuel was about twelve Years of Age, because (b) at this Time he was call'd a Child; but since the Word may signify a Person of thirty Years of Age, (as hath been already mention'd) it may not be improper to fix it to that Time, that so the Prophecy may be the nearer to its Accomplishment. However (c) after this Samuel was in very great Esteem as a Prophet among all the People. There were many manifest Tokens that GOD favour'd him. The Chaldee Paraphrase saith, that The WORD of the LORD was his help. He foretold many things by divine Inspiration, and the Accomplishment of them prov'd him to be a Prophet. And GOD revealing more and more of his Mind to him, the whole Country of Judea, from one End to the other, knew that Samuel was intended to be a principal Prophet among them. Thus did GOD reveal himself to Samuel in Shiloh, not by Dreams and Visions only, but by an audible Voice. He was rais'd up to be a publick Instructor and Governor of the People, and tho' there had been others in the Land of Canaan, yet they were not with so high an Authority and publick Approbation. And therefore St. Peter, (d) mentioning the (e) famous Prophecy of Moses concerning CHRIST, adds, All the prophets also from Samuel, and those that follow after, as many as have spoken, have likewise foretold of those days: As if he was the first eminent Prophet, whom the LORD had rais'd up to them after Moses. Nay, Samuel seems visibly to have seen CHRIST himself. For (f) it is said, that The LORD revealed himself unto Samuel in Shiloh by the WORD of the LORD, even by that WORD, which (as (g) St. John saith) was in the beginning with GOD, and was GOD, and afterward was made flesh, and dwelt among us. And therefore as Samuel saw him so clearly, and receiv'd many Revelations from him, it cannot be doubted, but that he spoke of him. And (h) the Jews tell us, that in the Days of Eli the Word of the LORD was scarce, and Visions were seldom: But when Samuel appear'd, he not only was ready to instruct every one that came to him, but he also set up the Colleges of the Prophets, who were afterward settl'd in several Parts of the Country for the better Preserving and Propagating the Knowledge of GOD among the People, so that many of the Israelites by his Means were endued with the same Spirit; and its Influence, which descended upon Samuel in Shiloh, reached unto others (because of its Abundance) who were dispos'd to receive it.

51. Our (i) learned Primate is of the Opinion, that Samson having slain so many of the Philistines at his Death, the Israelites were encourag'd to act offensively against them, believing and hoping that now the Deliverance, which (k) was foretold to be begun by him, should be completed. They might remember the Prophecy in their Favour, which they were apt to do; but they forgot the Prophecy of Samuel, which was against them; and their Forgetfulness thereof, was the Cause that it was fulfill'd. And the Israelites being quiet in the northern and eastern Parts, it is probable, that those in the south and west Parts send for Abdon from Pirathon to join him with all his Forces.

Anno
Mundi
2888. Accordingly they march to a Place, which was afterward (l) call'd Eben-ezer for a particular Reason. The Philistines hearing this, march to Aphek, a Place in the Tribe of Judah, upon the Borders of their own Country. But a Battle happening, the Israelites lost four thousand Men; and consulting together what they should do, they resolve to send for the Ark from Shiloh, as if they could confide in GOD's Help, when they liv'd in open Disobedience to his Commands. But this being done without any Warrant from GOD, provok'd him, rather than procur'd his Presence among them. Eli sends his two Sons, Hophni and Phinebas, with the Ark. Josephus saith, (m) that Eli parted very unwillingly with the Ark from the Tabernacle; but when he could not help it, he charg'd his Sons, who went along with it, rather to lose their Lives, than suffer it to be taken. The Philistines resolve now to fight the more desperately, and so in the next Battle they kill thirty thousand Israelites, and probably Abdon their General, and also the two Sons of Eli, as had before been prophesied, and also take the Ark of GOD, and carry it off; so that the Army being totally routed, and having no one to head them, did not retreat to the Camp with an Intention to renew the Fight, as they did before, but fled every one to their own Home. Eli hearing the News, tho' he was a very indulgent Father, yet he was highly commendable in this, that he was not so much affected with the Slaughter of the People, and the Death of his Sons, as with the Loss of the Ark; which when he heard he fainted away, fell from his Seat, and so broke his Neck and died. He was a Man too indulgent to his Children, tho' otherwise adorn'd with many good Qualities, and had a great Regard for the Welfare of the People both in Church and State; and therefore tho' GOD punish'd his Fault, yet he seems to reward his other Virtues, in that his Sons succeeded in the Priesthood for three Generations.

52. When the Wife of Phinebas (n) heard, that her Husband and her Father-in-Law were both dead, and the Ark of GOD was taken, she fell in Travail of a Son, and liv'd long enough to call him (o) Ichabod, that is, Where is the Glory? or, There is no Glory. The Reason of which Name she gives in this dying Speech, The Glory is departed from Israel, for the ark of GOD is taken. She had also another Son, call'd (p) Abitub, who probably died before his Father and Grandfather, because there is no mention made of his Acting as High Priest, and indeed there is no Notice taken of him, than as the Father of Abijah and Abimelech, who succeeded each other in this Office, when Saul was King over Israel. Their Names were given them, when their Relations were in Prosperity, and shew them to be of aspiring Tempers, the one signifying, The LORD is my Brother, and the other, The King is my Brother. However they being under Age to officiate at the Death of their great Grandfather Eli, and no one else caring to act, and the Judge in the other Country being dead, and Samuel being respected as a very great Prophet, was by Consent of all to act (q) as High Priest, and as Judge in all the Land; and in his younger Years took a Circuit every Year for this Purpose; and living at other Times at Ramah in the Tribe of Benjamin, he builds an Altar in this his Place of Residence, because after the Destruction of Shiloh there was no Declaration made by GOD, where he would have the Ark to be fix'd. And he thought it not proper, when they consulted about publick Business for the Good of the People, they should depart without a publick Invocation of GOD's Blessing and Direction, and Offering of Sacrifices for that Purpose.

53. In the mean Time the Philistines carry the (r) Ark of GOD in Triumph to Ashdod, which seems to be their chief City, lying in the Middle of their five Principalities, and having a famous Temple, to which the Country resorted to worship their GOD Dagon, an Idol, the upper Part whereof was like a Man, and the lower Part like a Fish. They bring this Ark into the Temple, and set it before Dagon like a Captive before the Conqueror; but when they came in the Morning, they found Dagon fallen down in a Posture of the most humble Adoration. This they look'd upon as a mere Chance, and so set him again in his Place; but when they came the next Morning, Dagon was fallen down again, with his Head and Arms broken off, and only the fishy Part left before the Ark, the others being thrown at a great Distance, to shew that this Idol had neither Wisdom nor Strength. Immediately upon this GOD smites the Men of Ashdod with a Pestilence, of which many died; and the rest were afflicted with a violent bloody Flux, which brought them so low, that they were in daily Fear of Death. Thus the Psalmist saith, (s) He smote his enemies in their hinder parts, and put them to a perpetual shame. After this they carry the Ark to Gath, and then to Ekron, who were also punish'd with the same Diseases. At other Times they send the Ark into the Country Villages, and therefore the Hebrew (t) expresses it thus, The ark of the LORD was in the field of the Philistines; but this did not answer their Expectation, for a great Number of (u) Mice came up out of the Earth, and made a very great Waste in all their Fields. Thus they try all Methods for the (x) Space of seven Months to keep the Ark among them, but to no Purpose. So that at last (y) upon mature Deliberation they agree together to send home the Ark, and send with it fit Presents, even golden Images of the Parts afflicted with the Flux, and of the Mice which destroy'd the Country. These they put into a Coffer, and place it on the Side of the Ark. And then they resolv'd to try an Experiment, to know whether the GOD of Israel had smitten them or no, which was this: They make a new Cart, and tie two milch Cows to it, which had never been yok'd before, keep their Calves at home, and set the Cows (as Josephus saith) in a Place where three Ways met, without any Guide, concluding, that if they went directly into the Israelites Country, and carry'd the Ark of GOD to its proper Place, it was he who afflicted them, or otherwise their Misfortunes arose from some other Cause. The Cows immediately took the Road to the Israelites Country, lowing as they went, and the Lords of the Philistines follow'd them, to observe them, till they came to Bethshemesh, a Town in the Tribe of Judah, and in the Confines of both Countries, and (z) a Town which belong'd to the Priests, whose Business it was to take Care of the Ark, and there they stood near a great Stone, which seems to have been the Boundaries of the two Countries. It happen'd that the Inhabitants were reaping their Wheat Harvest, which being about Whitsontide, shews that the Victory of the Philistines, being seven Months before, was at the latter End of the former Year. The Inhabitants flock together with great Joy on this extraordinary Occasion, and offer Sacrifices of Thanksgiving; and seeing the Presents in the Coffer on the Outside, were willing to see, if any thing was either plac'd within or taken away. This Fact was (a) positively forbidden, not only to the common People, but also to the Levites. But their Curiosity made them forget their Duty. The Philistines were (b) immediately deliver'd from their Diseases, and the Plague of the Mice; and at the same Time the Joy of the Israelites was soon turn'd into Mourning, for GOD punish'd them for their Presumption. Our Translation tells us, (c) that GOD smote of the people fifty thousand and threescore and ten men, which is a greater Number than those, who were slain at their total Defeat. And as the Jews look on Bethshemesh but as a Village, so it is strange, that such a Number of Men could be brought together so soon in such a Place, and so near the Enemies Country. The Words in the Hebrew run thus, He smote of the people threescore and ten men, fifty thousand men. Josephus (d) takes it to be threescore and ten men, and leaves out the fifty thousand. Another Jew expounds (e) it thus, Together with the

(s) Psal. 78. 66. (t) 1 Sam. 6. 1. (u) 1 Sam. 6. 4, 5, and Septuagint and Vulgar Latin on 1 Sam. 5. 6. So also 1 Sam. 6. 17, 18. (x) 1 Sam. 6. 1. (y) 1 Sam. Chap. 6. (z) Josh. 21. 13, 14, 15, 16. Chap. 2.* (d) Ibid. (e) Abarbinel on 1 Sam. 6. 19. *The Words in the Hebrew run thus, threescore and ten men, fifty thousand men, and therefore so great a Number is made by an unwarrantable Transposition of Translators, occasion'd by the Method in the Oriental Languages of Placing the lesser Number first, and the greater afterward, and also repeating the Substantive twice, of which sufficient Examples may be seen in the Hebrew Bible in Gen. Chap. 5. The Reason of this is taken from the Arabick Language, where The Cardinal Numbers from three to ten, and above 99 govern their Substantives in the Genitive Case, but from ten to an hundred govern them in an Accusative Case; and the Numbers from three to ten will have a Substantive plural, the rest only a Substantive singular. Thus also in Latin, Decem millia virorum & centum viri. So that in Arabick, when the Substantive alters its Case or Number it is repeated, and the same Method is observ'd even in the other Oriental Languages, which have no Cases. But in all these Examples there is a Copulative to join the last Numbers with the first, which is not here in the Hebrew Text before us, and therefore such a Transposition cannot be justify'd by any such Rule; so that we are left at Liberty to seek for any Interpretation, especially such an one, as may be consistent with the Opinion of the antient Jews. The learned Bochart therefore translates it thus, He smote of the People threescore and ten men, that is, fifty out of a thousand Men. Which Translation is made, if instead of Supposing that there is an Ellipsis of the Conjunction Copulative And, we only suppose an Ellipsis of the Word Out of, as there is in Exod. 19. 12. Exod. 36. 8, 19, 34, 35, &c. Josh. 10. 13. 2 Sam. 23. 24. 2 Kings 17. 24. And then the Sense will run thus, There were fourteen hundred People, who came together on this Occasion from Bethshemesh and the neighbouring Parts. Of these GOD smote seventy Men, that is, fifty out of a thousand, or one in twenty, for Looking into the Ark which caus'd a general Lamentation among the rest.*

seventy men of Bethshemesh he smote in all seventy thousand Men because of the Ark, thus including those who died among the Philistines. Another Interpretation, which seems to be the best, is (g) this, He smote threescore and ten men, fifty out of a thousand men. GOD was so indulgent, as not to slay all that were guilty, but only seventy of them, observing this Proportion, that out of a thousand Offenders he smote only fifty Persons, that is, a twentieth Part; and thus out of fourteen hundred that deserv'd Punishment, he smote only seventy. This puts the Inhabitants of Bethshemesh into a Consternation, and therefore they send to the Men of Kirjath-jearim, a strong City in the Tribe of Judah, which stood upon an Hill, to fetch it thither, where they thought it might be secure from any IncurSIONs of the Enemies. The Men of Kirjath-jearim receive it with the utmost Respect, expecting a Blessing would follow them on this Account, and set apart some Levites to attend it according to GOD's Direction. It could not be carry'd to Shiloh its antient Seat, because the Philistines had destroy'd that Place, and the Tabernacle upon the Death of Eli was remov'd from thence to Nob, where it remain'd till the Death of Samuel. And after his Death it was carry'd to Gibeon. All which Time the Ark was at Kirjath-jearim, till David brought it first into the House of Obed-edom, and then into his own City. After which the Tabernacle remain'd at Gibeon, till Solomon's Temple was built, for (h) there we read, that Solomon sacrific'd after the Death of David, because the Tabernacle remain'd there.

54. The Taking of the Ark had a different Effect on the Philistines and on the Israelites. The Philistines were struck with such a Terror, and Veneration for the GOD thereof, that they stirr'd no more to improve the Advantages of the Victory which they had thus gain'd, so that (i) all was quiet for twenty Years. The Israelites grew into a greater Contempt of Religion, because GOD had (k) deliver'd his glory into captivity, and his strength into the enemies hands, and perhaps being afraid to fetch the Ark from Kirjath-jearim, they fell again into Idolatry. The High Priest being under Age could not act, and no one car'd to act in his stead; and it was also uncertain where he should act, the Tabernacle being in one Place and the Ark in another. In the mean Time Samuel acts as a Judge over all Israel, and (l) goes a yearly Circuit for this Purpose in the Tribes of Benjamin and Judah, and very probably into more distant Parts. However after (m) the Space of twenty Years, the Philistines now beginning to recruit their Armies, and the Israelites were awaken'd by a Sense of their Danger to a Sense of their Duty, and began to seek the Favour of GOD, and lament their Apostasy from him. And when they were assembl'd at some solemn Festival, or perhaps summon'd to attend, Samuel exhorts them to put away all their Idols, and resolve to serve GOD only, promising that he would pray to GOD for them, and they should be deliver'd from their Enemies. They did according as they were directed, and observ'd a solemn Day of Fasting and Humiliation for that Purpose; and then they (n) pour'd out Water, as they us'd to do on the Feast of Tabernacles, to testify their joyful Sense of GOD's Mercy. The Philistines imagin'd, that the Israelites met to consult about a War, and therefore resolv'd to surprize them, before they were prepar'd. The Israelites hearing of this, desire Samuel to pray for them, who accordingly offer'd (o) a Burnt-offering to make Reconciliation for the People. At the same Time (p) the Philistines invade them from the South, and (*) the Tyrrians from the North, so that their Distress seems greater than ever. But GOD, who shews his Power in our greatest Necessities, (q) sent a terrible Storm of Thunder and Lightning, which kill'd many of them, and affrighted the rest, and (as (r) Josephus saith) there was a violent Earthquake, and the Earth open'd in several Places, and swallow'd up some of them. So that the Israelites having Samuel for their Captain, pursu'd them, recover'd their Towns, and so dishearten'd them, that they made no other Attempts of this Nature in Samuel's Time. This Victory was the more remarkable, because it was in the same Place where they had been defeated twenty Years before. Upon which Samuel sets up a Pillar for a Memorial of it, and calls it (s) Ebenezer, or The Stone of Help, saying, Hitherto hath the LORD helped us.

55. Samuel being now sixty Years of Age, he (t) appoints his Sons to be Judges in the southern Part of the Country, whilst he took Care of the North. But his Sons not acting sincerely, the Elders were dissatisfy'd with their Proceedings. Samuel complains of this to GOD; GOD permits them to have their Humour, but orders Samuel to tell them the Miseries of an arbitrary Government. The People persist in their Resolution of having a King, and GOD's Providence brings Saul to Samuel, and acquaints him, that he was the Person appointed for this Authority, and treats him with a suitable Respect, gives him an Account of it, anoints him accordingly, and to confirm him herein, he mentions several Particulars, which afterward came to pass. It is observable, that Saul was anointed with (t) a Vial of Oil, a small Quantity, to shew that his Kingdom should continue but a little while; but David was anointed with (u) a Horn, a larger Quantity, to shew that his Kingdom should continue from Generation to Generation. Saul keeps this as a Secret, and acts with a great Deal of Modesty. But soon after Samuel appoints, that they should cast Lots publicly for this Office, and the Lot fell upon him, when he was not there. However they send for him, and when he was among them, he was taller by the Head than any of the rest; upon which there was a great Acclamation, wishing him Prosperity. But Saul declines all Acting as their King, until the following Accident happen'd, that he could not avoid it.

From the Anointing of Saul to the Dedication of the Temple by Solomon.

THE Philistines being quiet in the south and west Parts of Canaan, (a) Nabash the King of the Children of Ammon makes War again with the Israelites, which was the Occasion that they desir'd a King, that (b) might fight their battles; and (as (c) Josephus saith) within a Month after Saul was chosen King, Nabash lays Siege to Jabesh-gilead, a Town on the other Side of Jordan, in the half Tribe of Manasseh, and near his own Country. The Inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead being reduc'd to the last Extremity, propose to surrender on Terms: Nabash in an insulting Manner proposeth no other Terms, but to put out their right Eyes, and that this Punishment should be a standing Monument of Reproach to the Israelites, to shew that there was none who could relieve them. They desire seven Days Time to send for Assistance, which was granted, upon a Supposition that none could be had. The Messengers come to (d) Gibeah, the Place where Saul was born and bred, and where he liv'd, and they bring the melancholy News. Saul feels an extraordinary Impulse on him to raise an Army, and sends to all the Israelites to join him, with severe Threatnings if they did not. The People join him according to his Desire. Upon this he marches, and coming unawares upon the Enemy, he gives them a total Defeat, raises the Siege, and immediately the Israelites at his Return over Jordan declare him to be their King in a very solemn Manner. And soon after this, Samuel (e) testifies his Innocency and Integrity in the Execution of his Office, and seems to act no more as a High Priest, not being of the regular Line, and so he is succeeded in that Office by (f) Abijah the Son of Ahitub, and Grandson of Eli in the Line of Ithamar the Son of Aaron.

2. A (g) Year having pass'd between the Time that Saul was anointed to be King over Israel, and the Time when he obtain'd the Victory over the Ammonites, and so was confirm'd in the Kingdom, he reign'd two Years longer free from the Yoke of the Philistines. But when these other two Years were ended, the Philistines got the upper Hand again, and very much clip'd his Power and Authority. At this Time Jonathan the Son of Saul had the Command of a thousand Men, with which he destroys a Garison of the Philistines, which was in Geba in the Tribe of Benjamin, and oppress'd them very much. The Philistines resolve to be reveng'd for this, and gather together their whole Army, consisting of a vast Number, as appears only from this, that they had (h) thirty thousand Carriages to carry their Baggage, Arms and Provision with them. We indeed translate it Chariots, but the Word in the Hebrew signifies any thing that is drawn upon Wheels, or otherwise, it would be impossible that the Number could be so great. The Army of Saul hearing of such vast Preparations, were very much terrify'd. Many of them hid themselves in Lurking Holes, others fled beyond Jordan, and the rest knew not what to do. Saul went with his Army to Gilgal, according as (i) Samuel had before directed him. His Words are these, Thou shalt go down before me to Gilgal, and behold I will come down unto thee to offer burnt-offerings, and to sacrifice peace-offerings, seven days shalt thou tarry, till I come to thee, and shew thee what thou shalt do. Some think the Words seven days ought to be join'd to what went before them, and that Samuel intended to offer Sacrifices so long. And indeed the Words (k) in the Hebrew may be thus render'd, And he tarried seven Days, instead of the Time until the solemn Feast which Samuel had appointed. And then it was an absolute Command to tarry till he came without Limitation. However if these Words related to the latter Part, Saul ought to have tarry'd till the Day was past, but instead of Tarrying for Samuel, he offer'd a Burnt-offering himself. For this Samuel reprov'd him, and told him, (l) that his Kingdom should not continue; and from this Time he seems to be in a distressed Condition, and to have lost that Authority which he had before, for his whole Army was (m) reduc'd to six hundred Men, so that he could not look his Enemies in the Face. In the mean Time the Philistines went out in Companies, and ravag'd the Country, and were so absolute, that they would (n) not suffer any Smith to dwell in the Land, so that the Soldiers had no Swords nor Spears wherewith to act offensively, Saul and Jonathan only excepted.

3. In the Midst of this deplorable State, Jonathan by an extraordinary Impulse from GOD (o) goes with his Armour-Bearer alone, attacks a Garrison of the Philistines, and kills twenty of them in a small Spot of Ground, which a Yoke of Oxen could plow in one Day; the rest seeing this Slaughter, and concluding the Number of the Enemy to be far greater than they were, mistook their Friends for Enemies, and so destroy'd one another. Thus they had an Opportunity to arm themselves with the Plunder of the Field, and for this Reason (p) the Deliverance of the Nation is ascrib'd to him. How long this happen'd after Saul fell under GOD's Displeasure by Sacrificing, is not expressly mention'd; but there is this Reason to think, that the Distance was not great, because (q) the Number of his Army at both Times was exactly the same, consisting only of six hundred Men, and therefore it is probable, that they had only march'd from Gilgal to Gibeah, where they lay strongly intrench'd in a very advantageous Post, for Fear of being forc'd to a Battle. However this Success of Jo- nathan gave Saul an Opportunity of Recovering (*) his former Authority and Government, so that (r) the next Account which we have of his Army, is, that it consisted of two hundred and ten thousand Men; and whilst they were thus recruiting, he fights against all his Enemies one after another, the Moabites, the Ammonites, the Edomites, the Syrians of Zobab, the Philistines and the Amalekites, and was very successful in all his Enterprizes, delivering the Israelites from their Oppressors, tho' he was not able utterly to root out any of them; which made them enter into (s) a new Confederacy against the Israelites in the Reign of David.

4. About this Time the Reubenites on the other Side of Jordan also begin to enlarge their Conquests. They (t) raised an Army of four and forty thousand Men, so that it is probable, that the other Tribes on that Side of Jordan were concern'd in the Expedition, only the Reubenites being the most numerous, and descending from the eldest Son of Jacob, commanded the rest. They made War with the (u) Hagarens, who are also call'd Ishmaelites, as descending from Ishmael the Son of Hagar by Abraham. When their Stock was very much increas'd, so that they had not Pasturage enough for them, they resolv'd to enlarge their Country toward the East, and conquer'd these Ishmaelites, who were settl'd in Arabia-deserta, as far as the Entrance of that Wilderness which reaches to the River Euphrates, which they accordingly effected, and dwelt in their Land until the Time of their own Captivity by (x) Tiglah-pilezer King of Assyria. But the Victory was not so cheap as they expected, for the Ishmaelites who dwelt nearest to them, having Notice of their Coming, send to their Neighbours (y) Jethur and Naphish, and Kedemah or Nadab, who were all descended from the same Father, but were before divided into little Kingdoms, to come and join them against a common Enemy; so that when the Reubenites expected only to fight against one, they were oblig'd to fight against them all. It seems that they consulted GOD, before they went upon this Expedition, and he encourag'd them to undertake it, and assisted them in it, so that they had all the Success, which they themselves could desire. However the Ishmaelites fought stoutly at the first Onset, and were too hard for the Israelites, which made them pray to GOD most earnestly in the Midst of the Fight, representing to him the pious Confidence which they plac'd in his almighty Power, and not in their Arms and warlike Skill. Upon this GOD gave the Israelites an intire Victory, induing them with extraordinary Courage, and daunting their Enemies. The Israelites took all their Cattle and Booty, and an hundred thousand Captives of all Sorts, some of whom they sold, and others they employ'd about their own Business ; and so they possess'd that Country, until they were carry'd Captive by

(z) Pekah the Son of Remaliah. In the same Manner the (a) half Tribe of Manasseh dwelt on the other Side of Jordan. They were
(b) first possess'd of all the Kingdom of Og in Basban, from whence they extended their Territories unto the northern Parts of that Country. But the Gadites could make no Conquests, having the Reubenites on the South, the Manassites on the North, and the Desarts of Arabia on the East.

5. Soon after this David was born to Jesse, the Time of whose Birth may be thus computed.

6. The Israelites having thus bestir'd themselves on every Side, and got the better of all their Enemies, enjoy'd a settl'd Peace, so that we have no farther Account of their Actions for many Years. After this (e) Samuel by GOD's Direction orders Saul to destroy the Amalekites, for their severe Usage of the Children of Israel at their first Coming into the Wilderness. For which Reason GOD himself had (f) made a Declaration of a perpetual War against them, and after that (g) renew'd it at their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, with a Charge not to forget it, and now order'd it to be put in Execution.
Saul goes upon this Expedition, but contrary to his Orders, he spares the Cattle and other things of Value, and Agag their King, who was afterwards slain by Samuel's Orders.
This so displeas'd GOD, that he declar'd that the Kingdom should be taken from Saul, which was a great Affliction to Samuel for some Time, especially because GOD had not as yet declar'd, who should succeed him.
Upon this GOD (h) commands him to go to Bethlehem, and there privately to anoint David to be their King. After this (i) David was endued with a Spirit of Prudence to behave himself wisely on all Occasions, a Spirit of Courage, so that he dar'd to fight with a Lion and a Bear, and a Spirit of Prophecy, in which he was very eminent, and so completely qualify'd to be their King. On the other Hand, (k) Saul grew melancholy, ti-morous and suspicious. He started when there was no Danger, and thereby became very unfit for Business. He was sometimes furious and distracted, always full of Anxiety and Solitude of Mind. His Courtiers and probably his Physicians perceiving this Disorder, (l) advise him to the Use of Musick ;

upon this David is sent for as a fit Artist for this Purpose, who seems to have but one
(m) Opportunity to try the Experiment, which succeeded according to Expectation. For immediately upon this the Philistines (n) bring their Army into the Field, so that the next Time Saul saw David, he
(o) did not know him.

7. From this and several other Examples among the Jews and Greeks, there are many of the Opinion, that their Musick did far exceed the best of our modern Compositions.
But this is much easier said than prov'd ;
and it is a difficult Matter to guess in what Manner it was perform'd. We know very exactly the Measures which the Greeks us'd in their Poetry. We know that they formerly sang their Verses, and that they have written (p) upon this Subject, of which there remain some Tracts ; but all this hath not prevented its being lost, insomuch that it is impossible for us to know, what Airs they gave to the Odes of Pindar, and their Scenick Poets ; only that they sang the same Tune in their Στροφῆ, Strophe, or when they turn'd to the Audience on the right Hand, then in their Ἀντιστροφῆ, Antistrophe, when they turn'd to the left Hand, and then in their Ἐπὸδος, Epodos, when they turn'd to the Middle of the Audience ; and therefore tho' they took Verses which consisted of any Number or Quantity of Syllables as they thought fit, yet in their several Repetitions they were confin'd to the same again without Variation.
But the Jewish Musick being of a much more early Date, being not particularly describ'd by any Author, and the greatest Criticks in the Hebrew Language not agreeing concerning their Poesy, it is much more difficult to guess at their Musick. For this Reason Boe-

thus in his Treatise on this Subject, tho' he speaks at large of that which was us'd among the Greeks; yet he wholly omits to mention any thing of the Jews. For this Reason (q) the famous Kircher, a Man so eminent in all Parts of Oriental Learning, tho' he describes the Form of all the Jewish Instruments, yet he tells us nothing of their Tunes. And when he propos'd several Notes to answer (as he thought) the Accents in the Hebrew, yet lest it might be mistaken for an Essay of this Nature, he stiles it, The modern Musick of the Hebrews. And (r) a very learned Author of our own Nation saith, It is certain, that the Jews had a set solemn Way of Musical Service; but how to be compar'd unto, or drawn up to any Correspondence with our Ways, I doubt (and more than so too) whether any Man is able to perform it. And therefore the Reader will excuse a Digression on this Subject.

8. Monsieur Le Clerc (s) tells us his Opinion in general Terms in these Words, If we should say, that the Musick of the antient Hebrews was not very regular, it is not improbable. They were a Nation entirely given to Agriculture, who had neither Theaters nor publick Diversions after this Manner. All the publick Use which they made of their Musick, consisted in Singing of sacred Hymns, which David instituted, and nothing obligeth us to think, that this Musick was harmonious and methodical. We know, that at this Day the Jews sing very confusedly in their Synagogues, and they read the Scriptures in Singing, be it Prose or Verse. The Mahometans sing their Alcoran, which ariseth from its being full of Verses. The Prose of the Hebrews hath some too, and it is perhaps for the same Reason, that the Jews sing their Bible Time out of Mind, tho' they know not wherein the Poetry consists.

9. But Kircher (t) on the other Hand thinks, that it was an exact Musick, and gives his Opinion at large in this Manner, There is no Doubt, but that the Musick of the Hebrews was most perfect in the Time of David and Solomon. For since David acted the Part of a Musician from a Child, and was wonderfully affected with it, it was impossible, that when he was rais'd to the highest Degree of Honour, he should not promote it to the utmost. And as we ought to believe, that Solomon was instructed of GOD in the Knowledge of all other things, so also of Musick. For I do not see how that divine Building could be so compleatly made, according to all the Rules and Numbers of harmonical Proportion, without the greatest Knowledge and Skill of Musick.

Certainly all the Vessels of the Temple were plac'd in a wonderful Order, and especially the Musical Instruments were made with the most exquisite Art, and fram'd with the greatest Variety and Wisdom; and he only can be ignorant hereof, who doth not understand the Order and Disposition of every thing, which occur'd in this divine and wonderful Fabrick. Josephus (u) tells us, It is most certain, that Solomon made four hundred thousand Instruments for the Use of the Choir. From whence it naturally appears, that the Musick of Solomon exceeded ours by many Degrees. Neither is it probable, that such an innumerable Parcel of Musical Instruments, made by the greatest Skill, should serve only for the Producing of some rude and inartificial Sounds, but we must believe, that it did equal the chief of our Instruments, and the Art of our best Organists. There was certainly a wonderful Order of Songs and Chanters, a wonderful Distribution of the Singers, and a wonderful Agreement of Words fitted to harmonious Notes. Neither is it likely, that all the Instruments of one Choir did perform their Parts in Unison, but that they made a various Harmony with an admirable and an ingenious Contexture of the upper Parts with their respective Basses.

10. The Reasons alledg'd by so learned an Author do fully prove, that the Musick of the Hebrews was not so mean, as Le Clerc would have it. But it is not probable, that it came near to that Perfection, where-with this Science hath been improv'd in this last Age.

11. For first, It is not probable, that they had any Divisions of many Notes to a Syllable, any Fuges or Repetitions of Words; but that they plainly sang the same Words, as they lay before them in the Psalms. These may be justly reckon'd some of the Graces of our present Musick, but if they had been in Use among the Jews, they would have render'd the Service so long, that it would have been a Weariness to perform their ordinary Tasks, or especially their solemn Musick on extraordinary Occasions. The Jews had their daily Sacrifices, and Burning of Incense. They had their morning and evening Prayers. They read in their Synagogues out of the Law of Moses every Sabbath Day, so as to read over the five Books every Year. They had also Lessons out of the Prophets, and none of these things were to be left undone. And as to their Singing, they had a Custom at the Passover to sing the 113th Psalms, with the five following, which they call'd The great Hallelujah. They had a set Psalms for every Day in the Week, and on the Sabbath Day; and beside the Psalm for the Day, they sang Part of Deut. 32, and Exod. 15. There was also an Ascent of fifteen Steps or Stairs in the Temple between the Womens Court and the Mens at the Gate of Nicanor; and upon those Steps did the Levites sing the fifteen Psalms, which immediately follow'd the hundred and nineteenth, upon each Step one, at the Feast of Tabernacles, whence (u) each Psalm is call'd שיר המעלות, A Song of Degrees, or Steps; so that if their Musick had been lengthen'd by these Additions, and Improvements which later Ages have made, it would have been a very tedious Service, and have requir'd more Time, than could have been allow'd for the Performance thereof.

12. Secondly, It is probable, that they had but one Part. For tho' there is mention, (x) that Solomon had men singers and women singers, and (y) that the sons of the Levites join'd with them in Singing; yet they might only sing the same Part in an Octave above the Men, as the Women and Boys naturally sing in our Country Churches, and therefore they wanted the Harmony of a Consort, or several Parts at the same Time, which is the Glory of all Musick. If we should suppose, that they had the Accents to guide them, yet these, being the same both for Men and Boys, could not intend a Variety of Parts. It seems impossible, that there should be any such Composition without the Knowledge of the Gammut, which is the Ground of all Musick, in which the seven Letters do readily shew us the Concords and Discords in every Octave; and this was first invented by Guido Aretinus, about the Year of our LORD 960. Accordingly St. Augustine in the first Tome of his Works, writes no less than six Books concerning Musick, but not a Word concerning any Variety of Parts, of which he could not but have taken Notice, had it been known either in or before his Time.

13. But lest it should be thought, that they had Variety of Parts in the first Temple, and lost the same at the Captivity, there seems (z) to be Mention of the Contrary. It came to pass, as the trumpeters and singers were as one, to make one sound (in Hebrew אחר קול one Voice) to be heard in praising and thanking the LORD, and when they lift up this their voice with the trumpets and cymbals and instruments of musick, and praised the LORD, saying, For he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever, that then the house was filled with a cloud, even the house of the LORD. Where we may observe, that this אחר קול one Voice or Part, is mention'd as the greatest Excellency of the Jewish Musick, and therefore it had not as yet arriv'd at a greater Perfection.

14. To this it may be objected, That the Greeks had their Scale of Musick, their Διαπύρτε, their Διαπασών, &c. and consequently their Musick of many Parts. In Answer to which it may be said, that tho' we find Mention of several Distances in Musick among the Greeks; yet they seem rather to be Leaps in a single Part, than Concords in Composition. The Distances talk'd of among the Greeks are (a) the second, the third, the fourth, the fifth, and the eighth. Now if these were design'd to signify the Concords, it was ill done to place the fourth, and worse to place the second among them; or if such were admitted, it is a Wonder, that the sixth (which is known to be a Concord) was refus'd. But if these were us'd to shew the Distances, by which a Voice may rise or fall, it is no Wonder, that they left out the sixth and seventh (being Distances not to be us'd without better Judgment and Design than those Times would admit of) and mention'd the rest as common in their Musick.

15. The Scale of Musick among the Greeks consisted but of fifteen Notes, or the Distance of two Octaves; the first from their πρῶτα βαρυμένῃ (which was the Key of their Musick, and always their lowest Note) to their μέση, or Middle Note, and the other from their μέση, or Middle Note, to their ὑπερβολαίῳ, or Highest Note; by which they only design'd to shew the utmost Extent of a single natural Voice; and their seven Moods so much talk'd of, were no more than the seven (b) different Methods of Altering their Flats and Sharps plac'd at the Beginning of a Lesson, or (as we call it) the Alteration of the Mi, which they therefore call'd μεταβολὴ κατὰ τόνον. Besides, the Names of their Notes in the upper Octave have no Affinity with the Names in the other. Whereas the Scale invented by Guido Aretinus consisted of twenty Notes (tho' our modern Composers in many Parts often exceed the Scale both above and below) and the Notes in every Octave begin with the same Letter, that we may thereby more readily compute the Concords and Discords. And lastly, Had there been a Composition of many Parts among the Greeks, the learned Dr. Wallis, who took so much Pains herein, and was most curious in Finding out such Difficulties, would, no Doubt, have met with some Footsteps thereof; but instead of any such Discovery, he (c) plainly tells us the contrary.

16. It may also be objected, That (d) the Chaldeans had their סִמְפוֹנִיָּה, a Word plainly deriv'd from the Greek συμφωνία, or Symphony, which supposeth many Parts; and if it was so in Chaldea, we may conclude it to be the same in the Land of Canaan. But to this it may be answer'd, that the Word συμφωνία in Greek, from whence the Chaldee Word is deriv'd, doth not signify a Consort, but rather something else founding with the Voice, σὺν φωνῇ, which is equally true of Instruments founding in Unison; and accordingly in our Translation we render it a Dulcimer; and it is observable, that (e) the Jewish Commentators (who are the best Judges of this Matter) do all expound it of Instrumental and not of Vocal Musick, and may therefore properly signify Instruments join'd with the Voice. This Josephus (f) allows to be the Method of David, when he was with Saul, and that he sang Hymns and Psalms to the Harp, and this may be what the Septuagint (g) calls ψαλμοὶ ὀργανῶν, a Psalms, or Singing with the Organ. Like to this is that Expression (h) of Solomon, He had musical Instruments, and that of all sorts: In Hebrew שָׂרָה וְשָׂרוֹת. Where we may observe, that these two Words are the same, only one is in the singular Number, and the other in the plural; and as they are deriv'd from the Verb שָׂרָה to destroy, they may signify such an instrumental Musick, which, when join'd to the Voice, will destroy the Words, that they cannot so clearly be understood. And therefore we are only told, (i) that Solomon had sometimes vocal Musick alone, as men singers and women singers, and sometimes סִמְפוֹנִיָּה a Symphony of Instrumental Musick in Unison added to it, sometimes שָׂרָה, one only Instrument, and sometimes שָׂרוֹת, or many join'd together at the same Time. And (k) the Servants of Saul, who would certainly have had the best which could have been procur'd, did not think of having many together, but only a single Person, who was skill'd in this Science.

17. If it is ask'd, How this Musick came to be so famous? It may be answer'd, First, That it was not famous, especially if we compare it with the modern Improvements. The Greeks tell us strange but (l) false Stories of their Musicians; but the Scriptures, not being us'd to such romantick Expressions, affirm, that (m) the ear is not fill'd with hearing, and that (n) singing of songs to an heavy heart will avail little. So that we may suppose, that they had not the full Sound of the three Concords to the Bass, as we have in our Composition of four Parts, neither could they always move the Passions thereby, and therefore it was not so famous as we are apt to imagine.

18. But Secondly, Tho' it came not nigh the Perfection of Musick in this Age, yet it was famous, because it far excell'd all the rest in the World. Musick, as well as all other Arts and Sciences, hath been wonderfully improv'd. Let us look back within the Memory of Man, and we shall scarcely find a Division of many Notes to one Syllable us'd in Composition, and (o) a great Master in his Time disapproving of it. Let us look back from thence to the Time of Queen Elizabeth, and there we find Morley the chief Musician of his Age mentioning several Moods of Time, which are now known to be immusical, and the Notes prick'd without Bars, as if they knew no Time at all. The Age before him had no Points or Fuges; before that all the Notes in the upper Parts were of an equal Length with those in the Bass, and for this Reason all musical Composition was call'd Counterpoint. In the tenth Century the Gammut or Scale of Musick was scarcely invented. Before that St. Augustine treats thereof as if it was only a graceful Pronunciation; and if we look but a little farther back, we have still more Reason to believe, that such a Performance, which would not now be admir'd, might then be reckon'd extraordinary. And therefore the Method by which Saul was cur'd, might probably be this: David's (quantum quidem ego persentio) nonnisi unius (ut jam loquimur) Vocis: ut qui in eâ fuerit contentus, in Sonorum sequelâ spectaretur, quem nempe faceret Sonus antecedens aliquis cum sequente. — Ea verò, quæ in hodiernâ Musicâ conspicitur, Partium (ut loquuntur) seu Vocum duarum, trium, quatuor, pluriumve inter se consensio (concinentibus inter se, qui simul audiuntur, Sonis) Veteribus erat (quantum ego video) ignota. — Continuarum (ut aiunt) Partium (ut sunt apud nos Bassus, Tenor, Contratenor, Discantus, &c.) alterâ alteri succinente; aut etiam Divisionum (ut loquuntur) seu Minuritionum cantui tardiori concinentium, ego in Veterum Musicâ vix ulla vestigia (haud certa saltem) deprehendo. playing on the Harp might make Saul attentive to the Musick, as something very curious, and it might also cheer his Spirits. Then he might add such Words in Singing, as might be proper for such a Purpose, with the greater Success, and thus (p) Josephus tells us, that he sang Hymns and Psalms upon his Harp. But above all, it was GOD alone who gave a Blessing to his Endeavours, otherwise he could not have been more successful at this Time, than he was (q) at another.

19. Immediately upon this a sudden Occasion happen'd to employ Saul's Thoughts another Way; for (r) the Philistines brought their Army into the Territories of the Israelites, and pitch'd in a Place of the Tribe of Judah, call'd Ephes-dammim, or The Coast of Blood, which probably was so call'd from the total Overthrow of their Army at this Time. The Israelites encamp upon an opposite Mountain with a Valley between them, so that they might fight at any Time, if both were resolv'd upon a Battle, otherwise they had taken the Advantage of the Ground, that neither could be forc'd. Goliath the Giant, and Champion of the Philistines, comes every Day into the Valley, and challenges to fight with any one of the other Army. This continu'd (s) forty Days, during which Time both Armies remain'd in the same Camp. His (t) great Bulk frightens them all. Jesse sends David by a special Providence to see his three Brethren, who declares his Readiness to fight with this Giant. David having been anointed so privately, that none of his Brethren, but only his Father Jesse knew it; his eldest Brother was very angry at him for his Boldness. However he persists in his Resolution even before Saul. Saul tells him, (u) that he was not able to fight with him, for he was but a Youth, and the (x) Philistine disdain'd him for the same Reason, and makes no Doubt of killing him immediately. But great Boasting is not always successful. There is (y) a GOD, who gives victory to kings, and not only delivered David his anointed servant from the peril of the sword, but also enabl'd him to take off the Head of this Giant, and bring it with him into the Army. Upon this the Philistines quit their strong Camp, and run away, and the Israelites gain an intire Victory over them, and pursue them into their own Country. David on this Occasion shewing himself a Soldier, a Tent was provided for him, and at the Return from the Victory, the Armour of Goliath and his Sword was given to David, who lodg'd it there for some Time; and when the Tent was taken down, it was deposited in the Tabernacle to remain there as a Monument of this Victory. Upon this David composeth the ninth Psalm to praise GOD for his Mercies. Accordingly (z) the Title is translated by some, To the chief Musician upon the Death of the Champion; and the Chaldee Paraphrase interprets it thus, Upon the Death of the Man, that came out between the two Armies.

20. It may seem strange, that Saul should not know David, who had so lately attended upon him at Court; and that Abner also could not tell who he was. To solve this some observe, that (a) he doth not ask, Who he was? but Who was his Father? having before (b) promis'd to make his Father's House free in Israel. And therefore tho' he might remember him, yet he might forget his Family. However it is possible, that Saul might not know David; for in such a Multitude of Business as Kings have, and among so many new Faces, which they see every Day, it was easy to forget a Man, whom he had probably seen but once before, when he was craz'd, and had a Distemper in his Head, as Saul had. David also came now in another Kind of Habit, than when he was sent for to wait on Saul at Court; for he (c) was cloath'd as a Shepherd in a rustick Dress. He appear'd then in the soft Airs of a Musician, and therefore was the less suspected to come now as a Champion.

(p) Jewish Antiq. Book 6. Chap. 9. (q) 1 Sam. 18. 10, 11. 1 Sam. 19. 9, 10. (r) 1 Sam. 17. (s) 1 Sam. 17. 16. (t) His Height is describ'd 1 Sam. 17. 4. to be six Cubits and a Span; so that as a Cubit is reckon'd to be 21,888 Inches, and a Span 10 Inches, he was 11 Feet and 9 Inches high. The Anakims who fled to Gath, Josh. 11. 22, 23. were a Race of Giants, Num. 13. 28, 32, 33. Deut. 9. 1, 2. and this Goliath of Gath exceeded them all in Stature. And as the common Size of Men is but half so high; so if every Part was proportionable to his Height, as probably it was, the Weight of his whole Body, or of each Limb, must be to others, as the Cube of 2 is to the Cube of 1, or eight Times as much, and consequently his Head was a sufficient Burden for a Man to carry. The Weight of his Armour seems proportionable to his Bulk. The Weight of his Coat of Mail, Verse 5, was 5000 Shekels of Brass; so that as a Shekel weigh'd about half an Ounce of our common Weights, 16 of which goes to the Pound, it weigh'd about 156 Pound and a Quarter. The staff of his spear, Verse 7, was like a weaver's beam. The Spear's Head, ibid, weigh'd 600 Shekels, or 18 Pound and 3 Quarters. Hence the Weight of his whole Armour hath been thus computed. The Spear's Head 18 l.  $\frac{3}{4}$ . The Staff of the Spear 18 l.  $\frac{3}{4}$ . The Helmet 15 l. The Shield 30 l. The Coat of Mail 156 l.  $\frac{1}{4}$ . The Sword 4 l.  $\frac{1}{4}$ . Total 243 l. So that his Proportion of Strength and Stature being as 8 to 1, it would be equivalent to a Coat of 32 l. Weight for a common Person in this Age. (u) 1 Sam. 17. 32. (x) 1 Sam. 17. 42. (y) Psal. 144. 10. (z) The Title Upon Moth Labben is by many interpreted, Upon the Death of him, who came between, taking the Word בן for בין between, which if form'd like a Noun makes in the plural Number בניין, and thus 1 Sam. 17. 4. he is call'd, A Champion in our Translation, but in the Hebrew איש בין, or One of the two, who came between the two Armies. See Lightfoot, Vol. 1. Page 55, who translates it, Upon the Death of the Champion. (a) 1 Sam. 17. 55, 56, 58. (b) 1 Sam. 17. 25. (c) 1 Sam. 17. 40.

And as for Abner, he being a military Man, and much abroad, might not have seen David, when he was at Court; or perhaps knowing that his three eldest Brethren were in the Army, and that David was not among the Number, tho' they both might know his Face, yet they could not call him to mind, as not expecting to see him at that Time.

21. The Age of David at the Time of this Victory may be thus computed. First, It appears by the Story, that it was in the latter End of the same Year when he was anointed. Secondly, It was (d) forty Years before the Conspiracy of Ab-salom, and this Conspiracy was eight Years before his Death, as will appear in its proper Place. As therefore David liv'd (e) seventy Years in all, so if eight and forty is taken out of them, it will appear, that he was two and twenty Years old at this Time, when (f) he was call'd a Youth, and a Stripling, and yet was of an Age to undertake so great an Exploit.

22. Jonathan the Son of Saul, hearing of and seeing the (g) Behaviour of David, took an intire Affection to him, and was his Friend for ever after, according to the utmost of his Power, in all his Difficulties. Saul also takes him into his Family, whereby their Acquaintance was increas'd. But this lasted not long; for as they went to Jerusalem, where David (h) plac'd the Head of Goliath as a Monument of the Victory, the People came out to meet them with various Instruments of Musick, singing a short natural Rhythme, Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands. This Preferring of David before Saul made him jealous. So that being in one of his Fits, and David playing on his Musick to relieve him, he had certainly kill'd David with a Javelin, if he had not avoided the Blow. Saul now removes him from Court, and makes him Captain over a thousand Men, with a Charge to act bravely, and promising him that upon the same he should be his Son-in-Law, as he had offer'd before to him, who should kill Goliath. But when all things were perform'd on David's Part, and the Time of Marriage was come, she was basely given to another. Michal, Saul's Daughter, falls in Love with David, and Saul consents to the Match, on Condition, that he kill'd an hundred of the Philistines, expecting that he would be kill'd in the Attempt. David kills two hundred and escapes; so that the Match was now consummated, which could not be avoided. David's Success makes Saul still more jealous, so that (i) he speaks to his Son Jonathan and his Servants to kill David. Jonathan intercedes for David, and makes up the Difference. David is more successful in the Wars, which makes Saul the more raging, and he endeavours to kill David with a Javelin in the same Manner as before; and after this he sends Messengers to his House to kill him. Upon this David composeth (k) the fifty ninth Psalm. GOD hears his Prayers, and his Wife contrives a Method for him to escape. David upon this goes to Ramah, and dwells with Samuel. Saul sends Men to kill him there, but they failing in their Design, he goes himself, but to as little Purpose. David finding that he could not be safe at Ramah, takes the Opportunity, whilst Saul was there, to go to Gibeah, where Saul liv'd, and (l) consult with Jonathan about his Safety. Jonathan promises to sound his Father's Temper, and discover it to him, which he did with the Hazard of his own Life. For this Purpose they met at an appointed Time, at a Stone (m) call'd The Stone Ezel, or, The Stone of Travelling, which is suppos'd to have been set up, where several Roads met, to direct Travellers in their Way, and therefore a fit Place from whence David might make his Escape if he had been discover'd, there being also many Bushes near, (n) where People might hide themselves. Here Jonathan discovers to David his Father's Resolution to kill him. So that he is now forc'd to a perpetual Banishment. Soon after this Jonathan had a Son, whom he call'd Mephibosheth. This seems to be the Name by which he was call'd in private, tho' to avoid Saul's Anger, he was publickly (o) call'd Meribbaal. The Time when he was born is (p) plainly mention'd, Jonathan, Saul's son, had a son that was lame in his feet, and was five years old when the tidings came of Saul and Jonathan's Death out of Jezreel, and his nurse took him up and fled; and it came to pass, as she made haste to flee, that he fell, and became lame, and his name was Mephibosheth. That it happen'd at the Time of these Transactions, is evident from the Name, which signifies From the mouth of Shame, or Because of the shameful Words pronounced by the Mouth, occasion'd by the reproachful Language of Saul to Jonathan, when he call'd him (q) a perverse Rebel; for upon this (r) Jonathan arose from the table in fierce anger, and did eat no meat the second day of the month; for he was griev'd for David, and

23. David now flying from Saul, comes (s) to Nob. This was a Town in (t) the Tribe of Benjamin; and as some Part of Jerusalem lay in that Tribe, so there are some, who have taken it for Jerusalem. It is probable, that Saul brought the Tabernacle thither, because it lay in his own Tribe; and tho' it is not reckon'd among the Cities of the Priests, yet the Priests resorted thither in great Numbers, and settl'd there because of the Tabernacle; and therefore it was afterward call'd, (u) The city of the Priests. It was near Jerusalem, because it may be suppos'd, that David put the Head of Goliath in one Place, and his Armour in the other at the same Time. So that David chose to fly thither on a sudden, expecting to have most Friends there, and particularly intending here to recommend himself and his Cause to GOD, and beg his Assistance and Protection. Ahimelech was the chief Person there at this Time, and tho' he is no where call'd The High Priest, but only (x) The Priest; yet being (y) the Son of Abitub, who was (z) the Son of Phinehas the Son of Eli, he is generally suppos'd to be the Brother of Ahijah, and he being dead, to have succeeded him in the High Priesthood. David prevails with Ahimelech to fetch Bread for himself and those who were with him, and also the Sword of Goliath, which he had by him. But (a) seeing Doeg an Edomite there, who being a Proselyte to the Jewish Religion, was made chief Shepherd to Saul, and very careful to discharge his Duty, (fearing his Master's Displeasure, as (b) his Name seems to imply) David flees from thence in a great Hurry, knowing that he should certainly be discover'd.

24. As this Fact is mention'd to be when Ahimelech was the High Priest; so the Jews take Occasion to cavil at our SAVIOUR's (c) Words, where he speaks of it as happening when Abiathar was the High Priest, who can only be suppos'd to succeed in that Office, when Ahimelech his Father and the rest of the Priests were slain by King Saul; so that it happen'd before his Time. In Answer to which, It is not said, In the Days when he was the High Priest, but In the Days when he liv'd, who was once the High Priest. The Words in the Greek admit of a much greater Latitude in Expression, than as they are found in any Translation, and may be better render'd, About the Time of Abiathar the High Priest. The Expression is exactly the same with this (d), Josias begat Jechonias and his Brethren, about the Time that they were carried away captive to Babylon. And yet it is evident, that there was a much greater Space of Time from the Birth of Jechonias and his Brethren to the Captivity, than there is from the Time that David came to Ahimelech, to the Time when Abiathar succeeded his Father as the High Priest.

25. David not thinking himself safe in Saul's Dominions, (e) flees in a Hurry to Achish King of Gath whom he might rather expect to have been his bitter Enemy than a real Friend. For this was the City of Goliath, whom he had slain, and whose Sword he had now about him. But perhaps he thought he should not be known, or he knew Achish to be a very generous Person, or being now in Disgrace with Saul, he thought the Philistines might take him to be Saul's Enemy, and that he would engage with them against him. Achish for some of these Reasons receives him kindly. But the Philistines discover who he was, set Achish against him, and repeat the very Verse, which the Israelites had before sang in his Honour. This puts David into a great Surprise, that he could think of no Way to escape, but by Counterfeiting himself to be speechless and out of his Wits, or like a natural Fool that never had any. He made Marks upon the Doors, and let his Spittle fall down on his Beard, and manag'd himself so, that Achish believ'd all to be real. In the Midst of this he pens the fifty sixth Psalm, which Title we literally translate, Upon Jonath-elem-rekokim, but (f) may be render'd thus, Concerning the Oppression of the dumb one among Men afar off, when the Philistines took him in Gath, and perhaps he pens the thirty ninth also, in which he more plainly expresses his Dumbness, and his Danger of Death, and earnestly prays to GOD to spare him for a little while. Achish blames his Officers for bringing such a mad Man before him, and turns him away, which was what David wanted. Upon his Departure he composeth the thirty fourth Psalm, praising GOD for so great a Deliverance, and exhorting others by his Example to fear him, and put their Trust in him. This Psalm is an exact Acrostick, each Verse beginning with the respective Letter of the Hebrew Alphabet, of a most admirable and exact Composure, and perhaps design'd so, to shew to the World, that his Distraction was only counterfeit.

26. David (g) having been thus miraculously preserv'd, goes away from Gath, to the Cave of Adullam, which was (h) a strong Hold in the Tribe of Judah, and it being his own Tribe, he might hope to find some Friends there. Here he makes the hundred and forty second Psalm, as it appears by the Title. And in his (i) Prayer at this Time he complains how low he was now brought, that there was none would know him, nor any one to take Care of him, that he was in this Cave as in a Prison, and if GOD would deliver him out of this miserable Condition, then the Righteous would resort unto him. Now (k) GOD hears his Prayers, and sends his Friends and Kindred about him to be his Comfort, and several others to be his Guard. Among the rest were (l) some Gadites, who came from beyond Jordan, and the Prophet Gad among them; so that David hath now an Army of four hundred Men, and a Prophet to instruct them. He had not been long there, before (m) the Philistines march with their Army into the Tribe of Judah, and encamp in the Valley of Rephaim on the north Side of the Cave, and not at a great Distance. The Philistines coming in the Time of Harvest, destroy all the Corn, and tho' they secur'd him from Saul, as lying between both; yet they very much streighten him for want of Provision. The Weather being at this Time very hot, he said to some about him, (n) how glad he should be, if he could have a Draught of Water out of the Well near the Gate of Bethlehem, little thinking that any one would hazard their Lives on such an Occasion. However Abishai the Brother of Joab, Benajah the Son of Jehoiada, and another Person, whose Name is not known, break thro' the Army of the Philistines, draw of the Water, and bring it to him. But now he look'd upon it no longer as Water, but as the Blood of those Men, who fetch'd it with the Peril of their Lives. And because the Blood of every thing belong'd to the LORD, and was proper to be offer'd to him, therefore he pour'd it out, as the Blood of the Sacrifices was pour'd out on a solemn Occasion. The (o) Moabites being at this Time Enemies to

Saul, David (p) applies to them that he might leave his Father and Mother in their Country during his Troubles, which was readily granted. And the Prophet Gad (q) advis'd him to retreat more southward toward the Forest of Hareth, not only because he might have Plenty of Provision, but the Providence of GOD so order'd it, that he might be near at Hand, upon an Occasion which soon offer'd it self, by which he might do his Country a very eminent Service.

27. For the Philistines having destroy'd the Harvest, in their Return home (r) besiege Keilah, a (s) Town in the Tribe of Judah, and carry off the Corn, which was in the neighbouring Stores. David enrag'd at this, inquires of Gad if he should attempt to raise the Siege. Gad from the Mouth of GOD encourages him in his Intention, with a Promise of Success. Upon this (t) David gains an intire Victory over them, takes the Plunder of the Field, and dwells in the City. When Saul (u) heard that David was discover'd, and the Men that went with him, he said, GOD hath delivered mine enemy into mine hand, for he is shut in by entering into a town, that hath gates and bars. Upon this he gathers together his Army to besiege Keilah, but before he marches he complains, that (x) his Subjects were not faithful to him on that Occasion, but sided with his Enemy, tho' he could give no particular Account of it. Doeg then tells him what he saw, when David came to Nob to Abimelech the High Priest, but represents his innocent Intentions, with all the false and aggravating Circumstances that he could imagine. Saul sends for Abimelech, and charges him with it; Abimelech excuseth himself, owns the Fact, but pleads his Innocency. Saul would admit of no Excuse, but commands Doeg to slay him and all his Relations, who were of the Family of Eli, so that eighty five Persons perish'd on this Occasion, as had been foretold, first by (y) a more antient Prophet, and then (z) by Samuel. But not content with this, his Rage carried him so far, that he destroy'd the whole City of Nob, (a) both men and women, children and sucklings, and oxen and asses with the edge of the sword. Josephus saith, that (b) on this Occasion Doeg with a Band of Ruffians like himself, kill'd three hundred and eighty five Persons, sparing neither Age nor Sex, and laid the whole Town in Ashes. At this Time he (c) flew the Gibeonites, who serv'd as (d) Hewers of Wood and Drawers of Water for the Priests and the Tabernacle, so that his Zeal to root out such Strangers transported him to violate a solemn Oath, and perhaps to vindicate it, when it was done. Besides, we may also suppose, that (*) he was very jealous of the Affection, which the Israelites had for David, and therefore he mistrusted, that if he did not make a severe Example, they would all revolt from him. And as (†) Jealousy is the Rage of a Man; so (*†) his Jealousy for the children of Israel and Judah transported him far beyond his Zeal for GOD in the Case of the Amalekites. For then, when he had an absolute Command to destroy all, he spar'd some; but here, when he had no Liberty to destroy any, he spar'd none. He destroy'd the Priests, and GOD answer'd him no more by Urim and Thummim. He destroy'd the Gibeonites by Sword, and after that he perish'd by the Sword, and many of his Posterity died for the (e) Fact. David hearing this, pens the (f) fifty second Psalm, in which he prophesies the utter Destruction of Doeg and his Family, which probably happen'd upon Mount Gilboa, when he and his Relations might all be near to Saul in the Battle, and so they perish'd together.

28. Abiathar the Son of Abimelech (being (g) left by his Father to keep the Sanctuary, when he and the rest of the Priests went to wait upon Saul) hearing of this Slaughter, took the Ephod, unto which the Urim and Thummim with the Breast-plate were annex'd, and carries it to David to Keilah: David laments the Misfortune; owns it to be upon his Account, and promises to protect him; so that he had afterward both a Prophet and a Priest, and could the better know the Will of GOD upon all Emergencies. Saul having now got his Army together, (h) pretends to go against the Philistines, but his real Design was to go against David to Keilah, of which David having some Notice, consults GOD by the Means of Abiathar and the Ephod, and being thereby inform'd, that Saul intended to come thither, and that the Inhabitants would be so ungrateful as to deliver him up, and having by this Action increas'd his Army, that they were at this Time six hundred Men, he marches into the Wilderness of Ziph, where he could better defend himself than in an open Country. Jonathan (i) without fearing his Father's Displeasure, comes thither to him, comforts him, and renews their League of Friendship between them. The Ziphites (k) apply to Saul, tell him that David was among them, and promise to assist to the utmost of their Power to apprehend him. Upon this David pens the fifty fourth Psalm, in which he prayeth to GOD to be deliver'd from them, and (l) disappoints their Design, by Going into a remoter Part of the Wilderness of Maon. Saul having now Intelligence where David was, pursues him thither, so that there was only a Mountain between them; when Saul's Forces being far more numerous, were divided into several Parties to encompass the Mountain, that it might be impossible for David to escape. David observing their Motions, flees away with the utmost Haste; and when there was but a step between him and death, an Express arrives in the Camp to desire Saul to retreat with all his Forces, for the Philistines had invaded the Country. Upon this Saul march'd off, and David escap'd; and from this remarkable Accident the Place was call'd Selah-hammahlekoth, or The Rock of Divisions, which parted both the Armies. It being now the latter End of the Year, David takes up his Abode in the Wilderness of Engedi, which Name signifies some remarkable Well, where the Goats were water'd. It was a barren, craggy, bushy Place, where (m) none but wild Goats liv'd, and not far from the Dead Sea. Here he pens the sixty third Psalm, where from his being in a dry and thirsty Land, where no Water could be met with, he takes Occasion to mention his Thirst after GOD, and to appear in his Sanctuary. And praising him for his late Deliverance, he expresseth his Confidence, that he should be preserv'd for the Future.

29. The next Year the Philistines having retreated, Saul (n) marches again in Pursuit of David. David mov'd by a particular Providence, comes to a Cave with his Men, some (o) of which were very large in those Parts, and it happening to be in the Country where Saul and his Army march'd, Saul went in to rest himself in the Heat of the Day, little suspecting that David would tarry in the high Way to those Rocks, where he was going to seek for him. David and his Men could see Saul coming in by the Light at the Entrance of it, but he could not see them, because it was dark in the remoter Parts. Saul lying down to sleep, David's Men would fain have kill'd him, but he would not suffer it. However he cuts off the Skirt of Saul's Robe, to shew that he had him in his Power; and when Saul was gone to some Distance, David cries after him,

(*) The Word קנאה, 2 Sam. 21. 2, which is there translated Zeal, signifies also Jealousy. Thus Exod. 20. 5. GOD is call'd אל קנא, A jealous GOD. (†) Prov. 6. 34. (*†) Thus 2 Sam. 21. 2. the Words run thus, בקנאתו לבני ישראל ויהודה, In his jealousy for the children of Israel and Judah. (e) 2 Sam. 21. 3 to 12. (f) Psal. 52. 5, 6, 7. and shews him his Skirt as a Token of his Innocency, with the most moving Language on that Occasion. This turn'd Saul's Heart for the Present. And this Providence made Saul acknowledge, that David should be King, and only desir'd him to swear, that he would not destroy his Family, which he readily did. And so Saul went home with his Army, and David return'd to the strong Holds of Engedi, not thinking himself safe in the open Country, for Fear of Saul's Inconstancy. On this Occasion he pens the fifty seventh Psalms, in which he complains of his frequent Dangers, and praiseth GOD for so great a Deliverance; and he entitles the Psalm Al-tashchith, or Thou shalt not destroy, to put him in Mind of his Oath on this Occasion, notwithstanding the Provocations mention'd in this Psalm to the contrary.

30. The next Year (p) Samuel dies, which is (q) suppos'd to have been about two Years before the Death of Saul. However he had liv'd long enough to have known (r) Saul's owning David to be a King, according to his own Prediction. David losing so good a Friend, thought it not safe to stay in those Countries, but (s) goes to the Wilderness of Paran in the southern Parts of Judea near to Arabia, into which he might soon flee, if there was Occasion, where he stays for (t) a considerable Time. This was the antient Habitation of Kedar, the (u) Son of Ishmael, and his Family. Here also David penn'd the hundred and twentieth Psalms, in which he shews, how fresh the Calumnies of Doeg continu'd in his Memory; so that he complains of his Misfortunes (x) to be constrain'd to lead a wandering Life, and at last to have his habitation among the tents of Kedar. When David (y) was in the Wilderness of Maon, he was very kind to (z) Nabal a wealthy Man, who liv'd in those Parts; and now being in Distress, and (a) hearing that Nabal had a great Feast at the Time of his Sheep-shearing, he sends some of his Men, in the most submissive Manner, to beg a Part of it. Nabal answers them with the utmost Contempt, and gives them a peremptory Denial. The Word (b) Nabal signifies a Fool, and he plainly shew'd himself so to be. In (c) Hebrew he is said to be a Calebite, and as the Word כלב, or Caleb, signifies a Dog, so it hath been thought to signify his dogged Temper and Disposition. David being in a Rage, rashly vows in Revenge to destroy the whole Family. Abigail, Nabal's Wife, hearing of his Churlishness, carries to David an acceptable Present of what he wanted; which David receiving, and now remembering his Rashness, blesteth GOD, that by this Providence he was restrain'd from Doing what he intended. On this Occasion we may suppose that he penn'd the fourteenth and fifty third Psalms. In which he laments his being in Exile, and prays for a Deliverance. And tho' there are other (d) Words to signify a Fool, yet in both Places the Psalmist seems to point at him by Name thus, Nabal hath said in his heart, There is no GOD. At this Time he also pens the fifty eighth Psalm, which he intitles Al-tashchith, or Thou shalt not destroy, as referring to his not Destroying Nabal, whom he had threaten'd, and yet at last rejoicing that he destroy'd him not. He blames (e) in this Psalms the Venomousness of Nabal's Tongue that had revil'd him, and (f) the Deafness of his Ears, that would not hearken to the Voice of his Messengers, tho' they deliver'd their Message in the most prudent Manner. He prophesieth, (g) that GOD should suddenly take him away as with a Storm, before the Pots, set on the Fire for the Entertainment of the Sheep-shearers the next Day, should feel any Heat from the Fire set under them to boil them. And (h) according as he was lively and in Prosperity, so the Wrath of GOD should seize him like a tempest. This Prophecy was exactly fulfill'd, for the Morning after, and probably before they were out of Bed, however before they began to prepare the Entertainment for the following Day, his Wife Abigail told him all that had happen'd; and as soon as Nabal heard of his Danger, he fainted away, and was as cold as a Stone, being still apprehensive that it would fall upon him; so that he died in ten Days. Soon after this David (i) takes Abigail for a Wife, by whom (k) also he had a Son.

Thus shall ye say to him that is lively, which our English hath well express'd, To him that liveth in Prosperity. So David saith to Saul, 1 Sam. 18. 18. וְיָחִי מִשְׁפַּחַת אָבִי, And what is the Liveliness or Prosperity of my father's tribe. And כָּמוֹ being doubled like כָּמוֹ shews a Similitude or Proportion, as 1 Kings 22. 4. 2 Kings 3. 7. Isai. 24. 2. and Hof. 4. 9. (i) 1 Sam. 25. 39 to 43. (k) 2 Sam. 3. 3. 1 Chron. 3. 3.

31. David being successful by such a wealthy Match, with the Addition of many Relations, ventures to advance with his Army as far (l) as the strong Hold of Hachilah. But the Ziphites, who lay near him, and were always his Enemies, give Saul Intelligence of this, who forgetting that he ow'd his Life to David, now marches with an Army to kill him. Saul being near, David goes to a Place, where he might observe the Situation of the Army, and after that agrees with Abishai, who before had brought him the Water from Bethlehem, to go in Disguise among them in the dead Time of the Night. Thus they come to Saul's Tent, at a Time when he and his Guards were all fast asleep. Abishai would have kill'd Saul, but David prevented it, and only took away the Spear and a Cruise of Water, which was near him, to shew what they could have done. This David shews to Saul at a Distance the next Day, which so turn'd his Heart, that he went back again to Gibeab, without doing any farther Mischief. And David return'd to his former Camp.

32. After some Space of Time, David, finding that Saul was his Enemy, and that the Ziphites gave him a constant Intelligence, resolv'd to tarry no longer in the Country, but (m) went with his Men to Achish the King of the Philistines, who dwelt at Gath. Achish receives him, and protects him, where he stays (n) a Year and four Months, and grew more and more in his Favour, insomuch that (o)

Achish gives David a Town call'd Ziklag to dwell in, which became the peculiar Inheritance of David and his Successors, and (p) resolving to make War with the Israelites, he intended to take David and his Men with him in the Army. And having gather'd his Army together, he pitch'd in Shunem (q) in the Tribe of Issachar, and Saul got his Army together to oppose them, and pitch'd in Mount Gilboa, from whence having a Prospect of the Enemy, his Courage fail'd him, when he saw how numerous the Philistines were, and heard that David was among them, and reflected on all the Evil that he had done him. Upon this Saul takes all the Methods possible to know the Will of GOD in this Juncture, but having no Answer, he applies to a (r) Witch, which unlawful Practice was attended with a heavy Sentence, that the whole Army should be routed, and Saul and his Sons should be all slain in the Battle. The Philistines marching toward the Enemy, their (s) Generals observ'd David and his Men in the Rear with their King, which gave them a great Uneasiness, lest they should side with their own Countrymen in the Battle, and do them more Mischief than an open Enemy, and therefore with some Difficulty they prevail upon Achish to send them all home. Thus GOD deliver'd him out of a very great Strait, either of being an Enemy to his Country, or false to his Friends and to his Trust. And by the same good Providence he was sent back to rescue his Wives, and the Wives and Children of his Men, who were taken Captives.

33. When Saul was order'd by GOD (t) to destroy the Amalekites, and blot out their Name from under Heaven, he sent to the (u) Kenites to depart out of the Country, and gave a good Reason for his Clemency: This Departure gave an Opportunity for the great Numbers of the Amalekites to depart out of the Country, and others to hide themselves; so that tho' Saul destroy'd all that he could meet with, yet he did not destroy them all, but after his Retreat they also return'd into a Part of the Country. When (x) David was with Achish, he frequently invaded and plunder'd these Inhabitants, who hearing that David was now gone with Achish against the Israelites, take this Opportunity to be reveng'd. Accordingly they (y) burn the Town of Ziklag, which belong'd to David, take away all the Goods and Plunder, and carry off all the Women and Children, intending to sell them for Slaves, or keep them as such. So that David returning home finds no Home at all. His Men were ready to stone him for the Loss of all that they had, and the whole Blame was laid at his Door. Upon this he consults GOD by the Mediation of the High Priest, who encourages him to follow them, with a Promise that he should recover all. In their March they meet with an Egyptian, who was left behind when the Army went off. By his Guidance David surprizes the Army, when they least expected it, and gain'd an entire Victory, and taking his Share of the Booty, sends Presents to those Places who had been kind to him in his Banishment, and help'd to maintain and protect him. And he was still desirous to oblige them, that they might more readily receive him, when the Time of the Promise came, in which he was to enjoy the Kingdom.

34. About the same Time (z) there happen'd the last and fatal Battle to Saul. The Battle seems to have begun in Jezreel, where the Israelites were routed, and maintain'd a running Fight, till they came to the Mountains of Gilboa, and here having the Advantage of the Ground they rally again, but with as little Success as before. Saul and his Sons (a) did all that was possible for brave Men to do; but the Philistines aiming wholly at them, they were over-power'd with Numbers, and as they cut off one Party, another came upon them; so that Jonathan and two other of Saul's Sons were kill'd upon the Spot, and the whole Army was put into Confusion. Saul defended himself as well as he could, but the small Party which remain'd with him, being broken to Pieces by the Philistines Darts and Arrows, he found himself so weaken'd with his Wounds and Loss of Blood, that he was not able to do Execution upon himself. The (b) Coat of Mail being made of many small iron Rings, not only hinder'd him from running away, but when he fell on his own Sword, it went into one of these Rings, that it could not kill him, and was so fasten'd there, that he could not draw it out to give another Wound. Saul had before call'd to his Armour-Bearer, whom the Jews take to be Doeg, to kill him, but he refus'd it. And after that observing a young Man an Amalekite near him, he desir'd him to perform this Office for him, which he did without Delay, and taking his Crown and Bracelets, he carry'd them off. When the Armour-Bearer saw that Saul was dead, he laid violent Hands on himself. And, (as Josephus saith) there was not one Man of the King's Guard, that out-liv'd his Master' and so Doeg and his Family perish'd together.

35. The next Day after the Battle, the Philistines coming into the Field to view the Dead, find the Bodies of Saul and his Sons among the rest. They take off their Armour, cut off their Heads, and send Expresses to every Place to carry the News of the Victory. They send their Armour to the Temple of Ashtaroth, put their Heads in the Temple of Dagon, and (c) expose their Bodies upon Gibbets in the most ignominious Manner under the Walls of Bethshan, now call'd Scythopolis. The Inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead retain'd a grateful Sense of what Saul had done for them, when he deliver'd them from (d) the Insults of Nabash, who threatned to put out all their right Eyes; and therefore hearing of this Indignity, a Party of their best Soldiers march'd all Night, and took their Bodies from the Gibbets, carrying them away to their own City, where they gave them a publick and an honourable Interment, and spent seven Days in Fasting and Humiliation on this sad Occasion.

36. This Battle with the Philistines happen'd when David was pursuing the Amalekites, upon which he (e) returns to Ziklag, probably giving the necessary Orders to rebuild it. He had been there but two full Days, before the Amalekite, who kill'd Saul, brings the Crown and the Bracelets to David, with the News that Saul and Jonathan were dead, expecting (f) a great Reward for his Intelligence; and to assure David of the Truth hereof, he tells him, that he kill'd Saul with his own Hand, and the Manner of it. David ask'd him twice who he was, and he answer'd, that he was an Amalekite, which was an aggravating Circumstance, because his Countrymen had lately done David and his Men so much Mischief, and he was but just return'd from Taking his Revenge on them. David, tho' (g) he once wish'd that Saul might fall in Battle, was surpriz'd to find that it was really so. He could not but think, that what happen'd to Saul now both as a King and a General, might happen to him at another Time. And therefore he orders this Amalekite to be immediately slain, to shew his Dislike of the Fact, and to deter others from being guilty of the same. And as the Egyptians penn'd a lamentable Ode call'd Maneros, to lament the untimely Death of their first King Mizraim; so David pens another of the same Nature to lament the Death of their first King Saul, in which he gives him the Character of a brave Warrior, and shews at the same Time the great Affection which he had for Jonathan, and the great Concern for the Loss of him.

37. Upon this grand Accident David (h) being willing to take GOD's Advice and Direction, and resolving to do nothing without it, enquires by Abiathar the High Priest (as he had often done before) whether he should go up into the Tribe of Judah his own Tribe, and where he had most Friends, that so he might take Possession of the Kingdom. GOD encourages him to go up, and particularly directs him to Hebron, an antient and principal City of that Tribe, where People might more conveniently and easily resort to him. Here the principal Persons of that Tribe come to him, and unanimously make him their King. Upon this he (i) sends Messengers to the Inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead, which lay on the other Side of Jordan, in the half Tribe of Manasseh, to thank them for their Kindness to the Family of Saul, to assure them of his Protecting them against the Philistines, informing them that the Tribe of Judah had made him their King, and exhorting them to declare for him. To prevent this, Abner the Captain of Saul's Army, having a Zeal for the Family, goes with Ishbosheth, Saul's Son, over Jordan to Mahanaim, which lay in the neighbouring Tribe of Gad, and there he proclaims him King over all Israel. The Men of Jabesh-gilead not declaring for David, as might have been expected on this Occasion, Ishbosheth (k) reigns two Years before there was any open Hostility between him and David. Ishbosheth was an unactive Prince, and unfit to command, and David was willing to wait and see how GOD would dispose of things in his Favour. At the End of two Years Abner takes the Administration of the Government upon himself, and begins the War, and therefore the Scripture doth not reckon the other (l) five Years and six Months as a Part of Ishbosheth's Reign, because he had only the Name of a King, but no Authority at all. In this War (m) David had always the better, and many of the Israelites fell off to him, which continually added to his Strength, and weaken'd the House of Saul. Abner resolves to begin the War in Hope of making himself absolute if successful; and for this End he marches with all his Forces, and passes over Jordan into Country of Benjamin his own Tribe to raise Recruits, and secure the Passes. Joab was then the Captain of David's Army, and hearing of this, marches to Gibeon, where Abner lay, and the Armies being in Sight of each other, Abner (n) challenges Joab to fight in the Beginning of the Day, hoping that by the Length of the Battle his Victory would be more complete. His Words are these, Let the young men arise, and play before us. Joab had too much Courage to refuse it, and returns a suitable Answer. Abner sends twelve Men over to begin Hostilities, and Joab sends as many more to answer them. These furiously engage with each other, and many of them were kill'd on both Sides. The opposite Armies seeing this, advance to the Relief of their own Men, so that there was a furious Fight the rest of the Day. And from this Battle the Place was afterward call'd Helkath-hazzurim, which signifies, The field of strong Men as hard and firm as Rocks or Flints. Abner being beaten retreats, and Asabel follows him to kill him, or take him Prisoner. Abner knowing him desires him to forbear, and at last tells him, that he must be forc'd to kill him against his Inclinations. Asabel confiding in his own Strength, and refusing the Offers of Peace, was slain by Abner for his Rashness, and the rest of the Army tarrying to take Care of the Body, gave Abner Time to retreat to a rising Ground, by the Advantage of which he was secure from any farther Attack, and from thence he speaks to Joab to forbear the Destruction of his Countrymen, who were descended from the same Father, and worshipp'd the same GOD. Joab lays the Blame upon Abner's Challenge, and protests with (o) an Oath, saying, If thou hadst not said what thou didst say in the Morning, Let the young men arise, and play before us, surely the people had gone away every one of them from his brother, and there had been never a blow struck, but thou didst provoke it. After this Joab retreats immediately with his Army, and upon a Review, he finds that he had lost twenty Men in all, but had kill'd three hundred and sixty of the Enemy; so he buries Asabel in Bethlehem, and then marches back to David to Hebron, whilst Abner and his Men repass the River Jordan, and go to Ishbosheth to Mahanaim.

38. What past in the following Years is not recorded; but in the last Year of the Wars Ishbosheth very (p) imprudently chargeth Abner with Lying with his Father's Concubine. Anno Mundi 2656. This puts Abner into a great Rage, so that he revolts to David, and brings over most of the Tribe of Benjamin with him. Abner comes to David with an Assurance of his Fidelity. David entertains him with great Respect, and they agree upon Methods to bring all the Tribes of Israel in Subjection to David, and Abner departs to put the same in Execution. Joab hearing of this, and being jealous of being supplanted by Abner, endeavours to alienate the good Opinion of the King from him, but to no Purpose, and being also willing to revenge the Death of his Brother Asabel, he sends Expresses to call him back unknown to David, as if David had farther Business with him. Joab takes him aside pretending to speak with him privately, and kills him. David hearing of this, causeth Abner to be honourably bury'd, and attends himself upon the Ceremony. He fasts and laments for this Accident, asserts his Innocency, curses Joab for the same, and declares, that it was out of his Power to punish Joab the Murderer for this Crime, because his Kingdom was not as yet confirm'd. He was but newly call'd to it without any hereditary Right to such an Authority, which made it more uncertain, than if it had been of a longer Date. Joab had also been faithful to him in his Adversity, was an excellent Soldier, and had a great Power among the military Men; which made it very necessary for David to defer his Punishment till a fitter Opportunity, which was executed by (q) Solomon after the Death of David by (r) his particular Order.

39. The Death of Abner did very sensibly (s) affect the People of Israel. Ishbosheth was concern'd, having lost his Supporter and Defender, and not knowing whom to trust, after Abner had forsaken him. The Israelites were also concern'd, wishing well to David, and finding that by his Death the Treaty was broken off, and having none to manage it with that Authority and Prudence as Abner had. However it was not long before a sudden Revolution happen'd; for

(t) Baanah and Rechab, who seem to be Captains of Ishbosheth's Life-guard, contriv'd to murder him, as he was lying upon his Bed in the Heat of the Day, and brought his Head to David to Hebron. David, who would neither do nor suffer any ill thing to be done to gain the Crown, orders them to be kill'd, and expos'd as publick Traitors, and that Ishbosheth's Head should be honourably bury'd in Abner's Grave. Upon this (u) all the other Tribes of Israel send Ambassadors to David, to own him as their King, and so agree that he should govern them justly and kindly, and they would obey him sincerely and faithfully. There seems to be a Difficulty (x) of six Months in the Computation of David's Reign. For it is said, that he reigned forty years, that is, In Hebron he reigned over Judah seven years and six months: and in Jerusalem he reigned thirty and three years over all Israel and Judah, which make forty years and six months in the whole. But the Meaning of it seems to be thus: It was seven Years between the Time that David was made King over Judah at the Death of Saul, and when he was made King over Israel at the Death of Ishbosheth. Whilst he was King over Judah, the greatest Part of his Residence was at Hebron; and whilst he was King over Israel, the greatest Part of his Residence was at Jerusalem. But from the Time that he was made King over Israel, he tarried six Months at Hebron, which was till the Beginning of the following Year, before he went to take Jerusalem, which was his first warlike Enterprize. For being inform'd, that the Jebusites were in Possession of the Fort of Zion, which was (y) the most noble Part, and commanded the rest of the City, he resolv'd to besiege it. The Jebusites imagin'd their Fortrefs to be so impregnable, that they treat him (z) with the utmost Contempt and Scorn. They set the Blind and the Lame upon the Walls, and say to him, Thou shalt not come hither, but the blind and the lame will drive thee away. The Blind and the Lame (a) repeat the same opprobrious Language, and say of David, He shall not come into our house. David was so angry at this, that he makes a Vow to this Effect, (b) Whoever goes first, and smites the Jebusites, and throws down into the ditch, that was under the Wall, the blind and the lame, which David hated, he shall be the captain general over the whole army. Joab hearing this storms the Fort, and was the first that took it; and therefore tho' David might before have resolv'd to dismiss him for the Murder of Abner, yet now he was oblig'd for the Sake of his Promise to confirm him in the Government. After this David dwelt in this strong Hold, and call'd it (c) The City of David. But this Place being not big enough to contain the whole Court and all his Guards, and others who had Occasion to resort thither, he builds round about it for his own Conveniency, whilst Joab repairs and fortifies the rest of the City for the Conveniency of his Subjects. About this Time David pens the eighteenth Psalms, being now deliver'd from the Family of Saul, and reserves it to be constantly us'd upon the Occasion of his other Victories, as may appear from the Title.

40. Abibalus having very lately set himself up to be the King of Tyre and Sidon, and the adjacent Country; and hearing how prosperous David was in all his Affairs, concludes, that a mutual Alliance might be for the Advantage of both the new Kingdoms; and very probably fearing lest David should endeavour to attack him (this being a Part of the Country possess'd like the rest by the Posterity of Canaan the Son of Ham) he (d) takes the Opportunity of David's Building to send him an acceptable Present of Cedar-Trees, and Carpenters and Masons for this Purpose. David takes this very kindly, and accordingly an intire Friendship continu'd with them as long as they liv'd; so that he never assisted the Philistines against David, and David never disturb'd him in the quiet Possession of his Dominions. Before this Time he had chang'd his Name to Hiram, that so it might be the standing Name for him and his Successors, as Pharaoh, and after that Ptolomy in Egypt, Abimelech among the Philistines, and Cæsar among the Roman Emperors. The Name in their Language (e) signifies, He lives, that is exalted, or Let him live who is exalted, or Let the

41. The Philistines, hearing that David was made King of Israel, (f) endeavour to raise a large Army to suppress him, which they might be two Years in Raising; but finding that David was employ'd in Fortifying Jerusalem, and had made a League with Abibalus, or Hiram King of Tyre, they thought it not proper to defer Hostilities any longer, so that they march to the Valley of Rephaim or (g) Giants, which lay west from Jerusalem, not far from it, in the Tribe of Judah. David asking Counsel of GOD, was encourag'd to march against them with the Promise of a Victory, which he obtain'd, and saying, The LORD hath broken forth upon my enemies before me, as the breach of waters; the Place was afterward call'd Baal-perazim, or The Master of Breaches. Josephus tells us, (h) that Syria and Phœnicia, and several other warlike Nations were all engag'd in this Confederacy, which cannot be meant of Abibalus or Hiram, but of such Phœnicians as would not submit to him, and therefore join'd with the Philistines first to subdue his Ally, and then to subdue him, before his Government could be settl'd. The Year after the Philistines bring (i) three Times as many into the Field, and depending on their Numbers encamp in the same Place. David consults GOD again, who adviseth him to fetch a Compass round to a Wood of Mulberry-Trees, where the Enemy could not suspect them to be; and when he heard a Sound like an Army marching, then he should march after it. This Noise affrighted the Philistines, and caus'd David to obtain a more complete Victory; so that he pursu'd them to Gazer, a Town upon their own Borders.

42. The Year after this, David finding no Shew of any farther Hostilities, resolves (k) to bring the Ark of GOD from Kirjath-jearim to settle it in an honourable Place near to himself, and for this Reason he appoints thirty thousand Men to be a Guard to it, in Case the Enemy should attempt to surprize them. Thus the Ark (l) was brought to Jerusalem, David himself marching foremost, and a Multitude of People following him, glorifying GOD with sacred Hymns and Psalms, and other delightful Airs, after the Fashion of the Country, and dancing all the Way as they went to the Sound of Harps, Cymbals, and other musical Instruments. It was now near seventy Years, since they had carry'd the Ark from Place to Place, and such a Disuse made them forget the Manner of it, which ought (m) to have been carried upon the Shoulders of the Kohathites, and no Wagons were allow'd to them for this Purpose, but only Staves thro' the Rings of the Ark, and it (n) ought to have been cover'd by the Priests so as not to have been seen. But these Mistakes occasion'd another; for when they came to a (o) threshing Floor, call'd The threshing floor of Nachon, or a Stroke, and also (p) The threshing floor of Chidon, or Destruction, Uzzah seeing the Ark shake, when they march'd along, and distrusting the Providence of GOD as able to support it, took Hold of it to prevent its Falling; upon which he was punish'd with immediate Death. This gave Occasion to the two former Names. And David also call'd it Perez-Uzzah, or The Breach upon Uzzah, thereby to put the Levites and all others in Mind of their Duty. Upon this Occasion David useth the sixty eighth Psalms, beginning with the Words which Moses had (q) appointed to be us'd, whenever the Ark was to be mov'd. David being afraid of farther Displeasure from GOD, leaves (r) the Ark in the House of Obed-edom, where it continues three Months. Obed-edom treating the Ark with all the Reverence due to it, was exceeding prosperous in all his Affairs, which encourages David to bring it to Jerusalem. On this Occasion David composeth the hundred thirty and second Psalms. In which he saith, (s) Arise, O LORD, into thy resting-place, thou and the ark of thy strength. And (t) then he adds, that We the Neighbours of Bethlehem, heard of the Ark in Ephrata their own Country, we found it in the fields of Jear or one of the Woods, from whence the City was call'd Kirjath-jearim, or The City of the Woods. There it was before, but (u) now the LORD hath chosen Zion, he hath desired it for his habitation, saying, This is my rest for ever, here will I dwell, for I have desired it. And (x) he also prays, that GOD would fit and sanctify the Priests for the present and future Service of the LORD, and that he will accept of the Face of his Anointed, so that there may be no more Breach among them, as there was at Perez-uzzah.

43. When David had remov'd the Ark with all the Tokens of Joy and Praise, he plac'd it in (y) a new Tent, that he had made for it in Jerusalem, and began to settle a daily Service to be perform'd. For this Purpose he pens Psal. 96, 105, and 106, of which Ezra gives a short Account in the (z) Book of Chronicles; and that there might be a daily Portion of them, it is probable, that to these he added many more, such as Psal. 91, 93, 95, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 103, 121, 122, and 92, which is intituled A Psalm or Song for the Sabbath Day. And Michal the Daughter of Saul despising David for his Piety and Zeal on this Occasion, was (a) punish'd with Barrenness from that Time as long as she liv'd.

44. In Comparing the History of these Times, as it is recorded in the second Book of Samuel and in the Chronicles, there seems at first View to be several Difficulties. First, In the Catalogue of David's mighty Men. Of these three are (b) reckon'd to be the principal, three of a second Rank, and thirty more of an inferior Order. The first of these call'd by Name Adino the Eznite. In Chronicles he is (c) call'd Jashobeam, or he that sits with the People to shew his Office; and in Samuel he (d) is describ'd by a like Title, which we translate in English, He that sate in the seat as a Judge among the People, and chief of the captains. He was the immediate (e) Son of Zabdiel. In Samuel he is call'd the Tachmonite, and in Chronicles the Hachmonite, (f) both which Words retain the same radical Letters more plainly in the Hebrew than in any other Translation, and differ only by the Addition of a single Letter in the Beginning, as it is usual in that Language. The Word (g) in either Place may signify a wise Man, a Man of Learning, and given to Study; and then if it is taken as a common Name, all this Difficulty will be remov'd. In Samuel (h) it is said, that he lift up his spear against eight hundred men, whom he slew at one time, but (i) in the Chronicles, He lift up his spear against three hundred slain by him at one time. To reconcile this some say, (k) he lift up his spear against eight hundred men at one time, and slew three hundred of them. Others, (l) After he had slain three hundred he was so little tired, that he slew as many more as made up eight hundred. Others, (m) he slew three hundred with his own hand, and thereby routed the enemy, and put them to flight, in which five hundred more were kill'd in the pursuit. But when we consider, that (n) the Word in Hebrew will signify either to be kill'd, or to be wounded by a Spear or Sword, perhaps we may reconcile it thus, He lift up his spear against eight hundred men, which were either kill'd or wounded, three hundred of them were kill'd at one time, and the rest were wounded. And thus the Word may be taken in a different Sense in the different Texts. However the Jews reckon, (o) that these were two different Actions. He kill'd three hundred at one Time, and eight hundred at another. This, if admitted, reconciles both, and it is impossible to prove the contrary. The next was (p) Eliezer the Son of Dodo the Abothite, of Bethlehem, and (q) a Benjamite. He seems (r) to have contracted an Intimacy with David at Ephes-dammim, when (s) he slew Goliath the Giant, and to have been always after that his faithful Friend. He seems also to have signaliz'd himself at (t) the Battle at Keilah, (u) challenging the Philistines to fight, and killing so many with his own Hand, that he dishearten'd the rest, so that David's little Army of four hundred Men had nothing to do, but to pursue the flying Enemy. The (x) third was Shammah the Hararite. He join'd with the other, when the (y) Philistines first pitch'd at Ephes-dammim. For at the Beginning of the Encampment, the Philistines sent out a Troop to forage, who coming to a Ground (z) half full of Barley, and half full of Lentiles, that they might carry it off, these two, when the rest fled away, (a) stood in the Midst of the Ground, and defended it, and kill'd so many of the Philistines, that a strong Party of the Army took Heart and join'd them, and obtain'd such a Victory, that the Philistines would not venture at a pitch'd Battle, but only sent out Goliath to challenge any single Person. And it is probable, that such a valiant Act done by a handful of Men under the Command of these two, being fresh in the Memory of the Philistines, so dishearten'd them at the Death of Goliath, that they had not Courage to venture a general Battle, but (b) ran away at once. The first of the secondary three was (c) Abishai the Brother of Joab, who kill'd three hundred Men in one

Engagement with his own Hands, perhaps at the Battle at Keilah, the Success whereof made him so readily afterward (d) offer himself to go down with David to the Camp of Saul, when they took away the Spear and the Cruse of Water which was at his Head. The next was (e) Benajah the Son of Jehoiada, who is said to have done many famous Acts, probably with David also in the Wilderness. He slew two fierce and valiant Moabites, which seems to have been at one Encounter. And it is probable, that when (f) David went to the Cave of Adullam in the Depth of Winter, and in a snowy Day, Benajah went first into the Cave, where he found a Lion that had took Shelter there to defend himself from the Severity of the Weather, who being hungry for Want of his Prey, and seeing Benajah there, came with open Mouth to devour him. But such was his Courage, that he slew the Lion, and so prevented any farther Mischief. At another Time (g) he slew an Egyptian (h) nine Foot high, who (i) like Goliath had a Spear, the Staff of which was like a Weaver's Beam. And he went down to him with such a Staff, as Men usually walk with, and pluck'd the Spear out of the Egyptian's Hand, and slew him with his own Spear, which shew'd him to be a Man of great Strength and Courage, and very dextrous and expert in Military Affairs. Who the third of this Number was, is not expressly said, either in Samuel or Chronicles; but perhaps it might be (k) Adina the Son of Shiza, who was a Captain of the Reubenites, and had thirty Men with him. In Reckoning also the other valiant Men, there is a great Deal of Difference. In Samuel there are only thirty, but in the Chronicles they are seven and forty. But the Reason is this, the Book of the Chronicles gives an Account of the (l) Chief of the mighty men, which David had, who came from all Parts of the Land to make him King, with such Forces that they could raise, and so when they had done what they intended, many of them were disbanded again, and went to their respective Habitations. But the Book of Samuel gives an Account of those, who were with him in the latter Time of his Reign, and had serv'd him in the Army, and so their Number might well be lessen'd. In these two Catalogues the Names are generally very different, but some of them are the same. And there is also a very good Reason for this: One (m) Catalogue was taken soon after David was made

King over all Israel, the (n) other but a little while before his Death; so that there is a Space of thirty Years Distance. After these thirty Years some might be alive, and some dead and others put in their Places, and then of Course there must be an Alteration. And in (*) Samuel only Urijah might be mention'd among those who were dead, because a remarkable Part of the preceding Story depended on him. Besides the Book of Samuel reckons up these six mighty Men, and adds by Name thirty more, and concludes at last, (o) that they are thirty and seven in all. But we are not told that all their Names are express'd. Joab is left out, who was their General, and if we add his Name to the rest, they will be thirty seven in all. He was a great Man, and inferior to none of these. But he had stain'd himself by the base Murder of Abner and Amasa, which is generally suppos'd to be the Reason, why he had not the Honour to be put into the Number of those Worthies, who serv'd David.

45. There seems also to be some Difficulty occasion'd by the different Order in which these former Stories are plac'd in these Books: The Book of (p) Samuel first mentions the Story of Hiram's Kindness and Respect to David, of David's Children, and of two Battles with the Philistines, and then it relates the Fetching up of the Ark. But the Book of (q) Chronicles first relates the Fetching up of the Ark, and then those Stories of Hiram's Kindness, David's Children, and the Philistines Battles. For the Methodizing therefore of these Stories into their proper Time and Order, they are to be taken thus.

David (r) consults with the Captains of thousands, which had came to him to Hebron, and had gone with him to Jerusalem, about the Fetching up of the Ark. This is but a Consultation and an Agreement about the Matter; but the thing is not yet done, because all Israel is first to be sent to about it, and a Time to be appointed, when they shall come in. Upon this the Companies now present depart to their own Houses, till the Time appointed comes for that Purpose.

When (s) the Israelites were departed every one to their own Houses, Hiram or Abibalus King of Tyre, hearing of the great Solemnity of David's Coronation, and of the Taking of Jerusalem, sends betimes to enter into a League with him, and presents him with Cedar and Workmen to build him an House. Upon this the sacred Text relating David's Settlement and Prosperity, reckons up David's Marriages and Children, and reckons them up all together, tho' they were born in several Years.

In this Space of Time, between the People's Departing from David's Coronation, and their Meeting again to fetch up the Ark, David being now left of those Multitudes, and Jerusalem not yet fully fortify'd, the Philistines come twice to the Valley of Rephaim, which lies under Jerusalem, to disturb him in his Building, and, if possible, to deprive him of his Throne. But instead thereof he gains two Victories over them, and so he goes on to finish what he intended.

And (t) when he had thus finish'd his intended Buildings, he fixes a Day for the solemn Bringing up of the Ark to Jerusalem, and the People meeting at the Time appointed, perform it with all the Demonstrations of Joy and Satisfaction.

46. David having (u) a stately House of Cedar built him, reflects upon the Meanness of GOD's Habitation in Comparison of the Splendor of his own, and therefore resolves to build a more magnificent Fabrick for GOD to dwell in, and communicates his Design to Nathan the Prophet. Nathan at first approves of it, but the following Night was commanded to forbid it, but with an Assurance, that GOD accepted of his sincere Intentions, and promis'd that his Son should succeed him, and build him a Temple, that his Posterity should reign for many Generations, and (x) the Throne of his Kingdom should be established for ever, which Words if taken in their full Extent, can belong to none but to CHRIST himself. It is probable, that David himself took it in this Sense, and therefore he (y) penn'd the second Psalm to testify the same, and to comfort himself thereby, that the Rage of all his Enemies round about him should be unsuccessful, and he might also compose the 16th, 110th and 118th Psalm at this Time, which speak to the same Purpose. It is certain, that he was very much transported at this News, as (z) his Confession and Thanksgiving in the Temple sufficiently shews; and as Nathan had (a) told him, that his own Son should sit upon his Throne; so he might also compose soon after the 72d Psalm, to pray to GOD for him, and also to prophesy of the MESSIAS, who should be born in a distant Generation, or (b) a great while to come. In his Thanksgiving in the Temple he saith, (c) And what can David say more to thee? and at the End of the other Psalm it is added, (d) The prayers of David the son of Jesse are ended. After so clear a Manifestation of CHRIST to him, there was nothing more that he could desire.

47. It being also reveal'd unto David at this Time, that the Son who should succeed him, (e) should be call'd Solomon, or Peaceable, because GOD would give peace and quietness to Israel in his days, that he might the better build such a Temple, David now resolves to subdue his Enemies on every Side, to disable them from giving any future Disturbance. Of these, the first which he begins with, is the Philistines:

They had invaded him (f) twice in the Beginning of his Reign, and now he invades them, and (g) takes from them the famous City of Gath, being the Residence of their Kings, and the Country round it. It was at this Time call'd (h) The Bridle of Ammah, because it stood upon a Mountain call'd Ammah, and was a Bridle to curb the Tribe of Judah, and keep them in Obedience. Upon this all the neighbouring Countries enter into a Confederacy against David, as if they would destroy him at once. This occasions his Penning the eighty third Psalm, which he delivers (i) to Asaph, the chief of the Singers at the Tabernacle, to be us'd in their constant Service, in which he complains to GOD of their Conspiracies, and prays to him against them. For (k) he saith) they have consulted together with one consent, they are confederate against thee. The tabernacles of Edom, and the Ishmaelites toward the South of Judea, the Moabites, and the Hagarenes, or the Ishmaelites on the East, Gebal and Ammon, and Amalek; the Philistines, with the inhabitants of Tyre. But above all the Assyrian Monarchy was also join'd with them, and was as an arm to the children of Lot, the greatest Support to the Moabites and Ammonites, and that on which they did chiefly depend, their Armies coming from Babylon and Chaldea for this Purpose. Upon this he immediately marches against (l) the Moabites (for his Case would not admit of a long Delay) and obtains a signal Victory, according to the Prophecy of Balaam, that (m) a Scepter should arise out of Israel, and should smite through the princes of Moab. And having taken a Survey of every Part of the Country, he levels their strong Holds and fortify'd Places with the Ground, dividing the Country into three Parts, condemning two of them to be destroy'd, and preserving the third, that it might not be quite dispeopl'd, because they were the (u) Offspring of righteous Lot the Brother of Abraham. This he calls (o) the measuring of the valley of Succoth. Neither can we suppose, that he would have exercis'd such Severities against the other two Parts, if it had not been to terrify the other Nations from joining with the Assyrian Monarchy against their Neighbours. Immediately after this, he (p) falls upon the Ammonites, the (q) other Branch of Lot's Posterity, and conquers them. Whether he us'd the same Severity upon them, as upon the Moabites, is not recorded, and it is most probable, that he did not. However it is certain, that he took (r) very valuable Spoils from all these Countries, and dedicated them, with all the Presents that were given him, for the Use of the Temple, which was afterward to be built.

48. David by the Conquest of the Moabites and Ammonites having cut off all Communication between his Enemies in the South, and those in the North, he proceeds to enlarge his Conquests toward the North, fearing that the Part of the Assyrian Monarchy, which lay near Nineveh, should pass over the Euphrates, and invade his Country, and probably calling to Mind (s) the Promise, which GOD had made to Abraham, that he would give unto his seed the whole land from the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates, he thought this a fit Time to take Possession of it, and (t) to establish his dominions in that Country. And if he was afraid of the Assyrian Monarchy on that Side, it is plain, that his Fears were well grounded. For (u) those of Aram-naharaim, or the Syrians of Mesopotamia, who were subject to that Empire, passed over the Euphrates, and gave him (x) a terrible Battle. And as soon as he had conquer'd them, the (y) Syrians of Zobah under the Command of Hadadezer their King came upon him; so that in a second Battle David conquer'd them also, who if they had been join'd together, must without an extraordinary divine Assistance have been too hard for him. In this Battle David takes from (z) Hadadezer twenty thousand footmen as Prisoners, and a thousand Chariots, and seven thousand horsemen, that attended them, seven to a Chariot. He cuts the Sinews of all the Horses except seven hundred, which he reserves for the Use of an hundred Chariots. Upon this the (a) Syrians of Damascus come to succour Hadadezer their Neighbour, and David in another Battle slew two and twenty thousand Men, which facilitated the Conquest of their Country, so that David put Garisons in that Part of Syria, which lay between Libanus and Antilibanus, the chief City whereof was Damascus, situated in a pleasant Part of the Vale, which was plentifully water'd by five Rivers, the two principal of which descended from Mount Hermon, and are (b) call'd Abana and Pharpar; the first of these runs thro' the City, and divides it into two Parts, and the other runs by the Walls.

49. At this Time (c) Rezon the Son of Eliodab was a considerable Officer in Hadadezer's Army, who finding the Victory inclining on David's Side, revolted from his Master, and gathering as many as he could together, he makes himself their Captain. And it is probable that he liv'd after the Manner of the Arabians by Plunder and Robbery all the Days of David, and the greatest Part of Solomon's Reign; until he, doting upon strange Women, minded not the Defence of his Conquests. This Rezon observing, took the Advantage of it, and so he got again the Possession of Damascus, and the neighbouring Country, and reign'd as a King over them, insomuch that he and his Posterity were bitter Enemies to the Family of David.

50. David having extended his Conquests in the North to the utmost Limits of the promis'd Land, endeavours after this to enlarge them toward the South. And the first that he encountered with, in all Probability, was the Philistines, his old implacable Enemies. Here also (d) happen'd a very sharp Battle, in which David was so beset, that his Spirits were quite tir'd; which Ishbi-benob one of the Race of the Giants perceiving, he resolv'd to take the Advantage, and kill David. He was so strong, that his usual Spear weigh'd 300 Shekels, or almost nineteen Pound Weight, and he had certainly kill'd him, if Abishai had not came in seasonably to his Relief, who seems (e) to have conquer'd this Philistine, and have brought him down, but left it to David for his Honour to give him the last and fatal Stroke. Upon this the Generals oblige David (f) with an Oath to go no more into any Battle against their Enemies, lest he should be kill'd, and his Subjects, might lose the Happiness which they enjoy'd under his Administration.

51. The Edomites finding David engag'd in a War on the West Side of Judea, attack him on the East. David labouring under such Difficulties, was not willing to go far from the Army, that he might be ready to give his Advice upon any Emergency. Joab (g) marches as their General, and attacks the Edomites in a Place call'd, The Valley of Salt, lying in the Country of Idumea, where he kills twelve thousand of their Men; but hearing that the Philistines were rallying of their Forces, he leaves Abishai his Brother to command in chief upon the Field of Battle, and marches with as many Men as he thought convenient against the Philistines. And David pens the sixtieth Psalms in Commemoration of this first Victory. Joab marching with the utmost Expedition against the Philistines, comes up to them in the Tribe of Ephraim, where another Fight happen'd, Gob being on his right Hand and Gezer on his left, and therefore (h) the Battle is said to have been fought in both Places. In this Battle the Israelites seem to have had the Advantage, tho' there is nothing particularly related of it, only that (i) Sibbechai the Hushathite, who was (k) one of David's Worthies, slew Saph, who was of the Race of the Giants. The Edomites finding that the Army was divided, send for (l) all the Syrians in the neighbouring Country of Arabia, and having thus recruited their Army, they fall upon Abishai, who was encamp'd with his Army in The Valley of Salt, but without that Success which they expected. For Abishai in that Battle kills (m) of the Syrians and Edomites, who were thus join'd together, eighteen thousand Men. Upon this they put Garisons in (n) all the Country of Idumea, and the Edomites became Servants to David, according to (o) the antient Prophecy, that the elder brother should serve the younger. And the Army marching back into their winter Quarters, David join'd them, and appear'd at the Head of them, so that (p) he was much extoll'd at his Return; for tho' he was not in the Army at the Time of the Engagements, yet as he was their King, and near at hand to give Directions, and returning with the rest, whatever was done by Joab and Abishai, was ascrib'd to him.

52. In this long Campaign, (q) which lasted six Months, Joab exercis'd great Severities against the Edomites, and after the second Battle, when he had march'd back again from the Philistines, and had given an honourable Interment to those of his own Soldiers, who were slain in the second Battle under Abishai, he destroys every Male that he could meet with, thereby effectually to prevent another Revolt. But it was impossible to destroy them all, some fleeing away and others hiding themselves. Among those who fled there was Hadad the Edomite, one of the royal Family, who being very young, some of his Father's Servants hid him, until they had an Opportunity to flee to Midian, from whence they send to Egypt to know if Pharaoh would give them Entertainment and Protection. Pharaoh invites them not only to come into his Kingdom, but even to his Palace; where he assign'd him an House, and kept a Table for him, that he might want for nothing. And to shew his great Esteem, Pharaoh gave him to Wife the Sister of his own Wife, by whom he had a Son that the Queen was extremely fond of, as if it had been her own. And this so strengthen'd his Alliance with that Court, that it enabled him afterward to give Solomon a Disturbance, when he least expected it, and so regain'd the Country of Edom.

53. The next Year there seems to be (r) another Battle with the Amalekites, who were the stoutest Soldiers of all the Idumeans, and might attempt to regain their Country; but not being assisted by the rest of their Countrymen were brought again more easily under Subjection; and they were now so severely beaten, that we hear no more of them as a distinct Tribe from the rest of the Idumeans. And there seems to be another Battle with the Philistines, when (*) Elhanan the Son of Jair, and Grandson of (s) Dodo a Bethlehemite, ther of David's Worthies, slew Lahmi the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the staff of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. And the following Year there seems to be another Battle at Gath between the Israelites and the Philistines, at which Time there was (t) a man of great stature, who had on every hand six fingers, and on every foot six toes, and was of the Race of the Giants; and when he defied Israel, Jonathan the son of (u) Shammah the third Son of Jesse, and the brother of David slew him. So that David being successful in so many Victories, and having conquer'd the Philistines, Idumeans, Amalekites, Moabites, Ammonites and Syrians, he extended his Kingdom not only from (x) Sibor the River of Egypt, but also northward as far as (y) Hamath, and even to the Euphrates, which was (z) the utmost Bounds promis'd by GOD to Abraham and his Seed, and (a) wholly possess'd only by David and his Son Solomon.

54. David having now ended his Wars, begins to consider what (b) Obligations he had to Jonathan the Son of Saul, and inquires what Posterity was left behind him, and finding only Mephibosheth his Son, who was now three and twenty Years of Age, and had only (c) a young Son call'd Micah, David sends for the Father (and probably for both) assures him of his Kindness, restores him all his Lands, and entertains him at his Table, as long as he liv'd, like one of his familiar Friends and Acquaintance.

55. Nabash the King of the Ammonites dying, David resolv'd (d) to shew Kindness to the Son, who succeeded, for the Sake of former Obligations from the Father. This Nabash liv'd to a great Age, and came very early to the Throne. It was now eight and fifty Years, since he laid Siege to (e) Jabesh-gilead, threaten'd to pluck out one of the Eyes of all the Inhabitants, and his Army was totally routed by Saul. This made (f) Saul afterward oppress the Ammonites, and therefore it is probable, that when David was persecuted by Saul, Nabash might assist and relieve him, that thereby he might embarrass Saul's Concerns the more. And this might be the Reason, that David, when he conquer'd the (g) Ammonites, did not use them so severely, as he did the Moabites. David now sends Messengers to Hanun the Son of Nabash to comfort him for the Loss of his Father, and to assure him of his Friendship. The Counsellors of Hanun well knew, that David (h) had fought lately against their Country, and therefore they could not imagine, that he acted sincerely in this Affair, but that he (i) rather sent Men to observe where the City was weakest, and might be most easily assaulted and taken. Upon this Supposition the King treated these Ambassadors in the most ignominious Manner; and being (k) inform'd how heinously David resented this Usage, he raiseth an Army with the utmost Expedition, and for this Purpose he hires from the Syrians of Zobah twenty thousand Footmen, and from the (l) Men of Tob twelve thousand Men, or thirty two thousand in all, with (m) a proportionable

Number of Chariots, and from (n) the King of Maacah a thousand Men. These pitch'd in (o) Medeba, a Town in the Country of the Amorites (who perhaps might be Confederates with them at this Time) near the Tribe of Reuben. David being now under (p) an Obligation not to go into the Army himself, did not think it prudent to stay, till they assaulted him in his own Country, but he sends Joab, Abishai, and all the Army to invade theirs. The Ammonites drew up their Army before Rabbah, the Metropolis of their own Country, and Joab marches directly against them. Upon this the other Army march from Medeba, come behind him, and intercept his Retreat. Joab finding a Necessity of Fighting, being now press'd both in Front and Rear, divides his Army into two Parts, commands one himself, and gives the Command of the other to his Brother Abishai, with Directions, that if Occasion requir'd, the Army which was worsted should upon Notice be reliev'd by a Detachment from the other. Joab, with the principal Men of the Army, begins the Attack upon the Syrians, who could not so easily escape him, having the Waters of Nimrim behind them. He routs them with little Difficulty, being mercenary Men, and having no Regard to the Cause for which they fought; and the Ammonites principally relying on them, and seeing them run away, retire into Rabbah, and so secure themselves, the Season of the Year being so far spent, that it was too late to begin a Siege. Hadadezer the King of the Syrians fearing that David would fall upon him for Assisting his Enemies, resolves to be beforehand with him, and levies a new Army, consisting (as (q) Josephus saith) of eighty thousand Foot, and seven thousand Horse, not only out of Syria but also from Mesopotamia, and marches to Helam, or (r) Alamtha, a Town on the Borders of the half Tribe of Manasseh, intending to invade them in the following Spring. David brings the whole Army together, and gives Joab orders to march to prevent their Design, and therefore what was done by Joab at this time is attributed to David. Joab comes up with them, before they expected him; and an Engagement happening, he kills (s) seven thousand Men, who attended seven hundred Chariots, ten Men to each Chariot, which so dishearten'd the rest, that he soon after kill'd (t) forty thousand more, partly Horse and partly Foot, with Shoback the General of the Army, who was slain upon the Spot. The several Kings, who had assisted Hadad-ezer in this Expedition, fearing worse Consequences, made Peace with David and became Tributaries to him; so that (u) his Dominion was enlarg'd as far as Euphrates. And Hadad-ezer finding himself left destitute of his Confederates, assures David that he would give him no more Disturbance, but would leave the Ammonites to shift for themselves, as well as they could.

56. David having now but one Enemy to deal with, as soon as (x) the Spring came on, sends Joab with the whole Army against the Ammonites, so that they lay the Country waste, and kill all the People that they could meet with; and to make an End of all at once, they lay Siege to Rabbah the royal City, which was strongly fortify'd both by Nature and Art, according to the best Skill in those Times. At this (y) Time David was guilty of a very great Sin; for walking idly on the Top of his Palace, which was (z) flat in those Countries, he sees Bathsheba the Wife of Urijah the Hittite (a Gentile by Nation, but a Profelyte to the Jewish Religion) bathing her self in the Garden. He sends for her, and commits Adultery with her. She finding her self with Child, sends David an Account of it, desiring him to consult her Honour and Safety in the Concealing of it, for otherwise she was liable to be ston'd by the Laws of the Land. David sends to Joab an Order, that Urijah should come to him, with a Design to send him home to his Wife; but all Methods for this Purpose proving ineffectual (Urijah being suppos'd to have some Knowledge of it, and not willing to farther that which was none of his own) David sends an Order to Joab to set Urijah in the hottest Battle, and retire from him that he might be kill'd. Urijah was (a) Joab's Armour-Bearer, so that his Valour was well known. He is recorded (b) as one of David's Worthies, both in the Books of Samuel and Chronicles, and his Fidelity was so well known, that he was one of the King's Guard among the Cherethites and Pelethites, which was the Reason, that he had a House so near the King. Joab puts Urijah upon Storming a Gate, which was best defended, (c) promising to second him with the whole Army upon the least Possibility of Entrance, and earnestly press'd him to maintain the Reputation which he had acquir'd with the King and with the Army, by Behaving himself bravely on this Occasion. Urijah with great Chearfulness undertook this Post, whilst Joab gave his under Officers private Orders to withdraw, when they found themselves in Danger, and so they left Urijah to be cut in Pieces. He did all the Execution that was possible to be done by a single Man against so many, but after several Wounds receiv'd, he fell like a Man of Honour, with his Face to the Enemy, some few of his Friends, who were not made privy to the Plot, innocently falling with him.

57. Joab sends an Express of this to the King, who (d) returns with Orders to cast up Works for their greater Security, to be more resolute, and assault the City with a greater Force, until they were Masters of it, and then to raze it even with the Ground, and put all the Inhabitants to the Sword, without sparing a Man. Bathsheba mourn'd for her Husband according to the usual Time, which was (e) seven Days, and David soon after took her to be his Wife. Joab upon this assaults the City, and (f) takes the southern Part of it, which lay near the Waters of Nimrim, so that it was impossible, that the upper Part could out long, it being supply'd with Water from the other, which (g) Supply was now cut off from them. Upon this Joab sends an Express to David, to acquaint him, that the City was reduc'd to the utmost Extremity, and there was no Danger of a Battle, and to desire him to come in Person, that he might have the Honour of Taking the City. David brings with him a great Reinforcement, takes it by Storm, gives (h) the Plunder of it to his Soldiers, and reserves for himself what belong'd to the King, among which his Crown was very remarkable. Our Translation saith, (i) that it was taken from off the King's Head, and set upon David's Head, and that the Weight of it was a Talent of Gold, or an hundred and five and twenty Pound. This must have been too great a Weight for any one Man to carry. And therefore the Meaning must be, either that (k) it was plac'd upon Supporters over the Throne; and then they took the crown from over the king's head, the Place where he sat on publick Occasions, and it was plac'd in the same Manner over David's head, or else that the (l) Price or Value of it was so much, which at the Rate of four Pound Sterling to an Ounce, and twelve Ounces to a Pound Weight, comes to six thousand Pounds of our English Money. The precious Stones might make the Value so great, tho' the Weight was less, and Josephus saith, that (l) there was one Stone of great Price in the Middle of the Crown, which he calls a Sardonyx. Having thus taken the Spoil, he puts the Men to Death with exquisite Torments; and all the rest of the Ammonite Cities that stood out, as this did, were treated with the same Severity. David now returns to Jerusalem in a triumphant Manner, and having thus spent the first twenty Years of his Reign in Wars, he reign'd the other twenty free from all foreign Enemies, and was continually heaping up immense Treasures to be employ'd in the Building of the Temple.

58. The next Year Bathsheba was deliver'd of the Son, which was begotten by David in Adultery. And now GOD sends Nathan the Prophet to awaken him to a Sense of his Sin, by the Parable of (m) a rich Man, who took a Lamb from his Neighbour. David being angry at this Injustice, declares, that (n) the Man who did this deserv'd Death, and that he should restore the Lamb fourfold, according to (o) the Levitical Law in such a Case. Nathan tells him, that he was the Man. David humbly confesseth his Sin, and pens the fifty first Psalms as a Testimony of his sincere Repentance, in which he prays to GOD to deliver him from Blood-guiltiness, and cleanse him from all his other Sins committed on that Occasion. Nathan assures him, that tho' he had by this justly deserv'd Death, yet GOD would not cut him off as he might have done. But he doth not remit the Restoring fourfold; for this Son by Bathsheba soon died, and Amnon, Abshalom and Adonijah, three other of his Sons, came to untimely Ends. Nathan also foretels, that as Urijah was slain by the Sword, so the Sword should cut off several of his Family, as particularly the three last mention'd, that some one of his Children should rebel against him, and his own Concubines should be defil'd in a publick Manner. The Child by Bathsheba soon after fell sick, David hoping that the Sentence was not absolute, fasts and prays for the Child's Life; but when he was inform'd, that the Child was dead, he publicly acknowledges the Justice of GOD, he submits to his holy Will, and prays that the remaining Afflictions might be mix'd with Mercy, and made profitable to him, and so he prepares himself to (p) bear the indignation of the LORD, because he had sinned against him. GOD hears his Prayers, and gives him (q) another Son by Bathsheba, instead of that which he had taken away, whom he calls Solomon or peaceable, because at this Time he had Peace abroad, and especially GOD was at Peace with him, and he might hope that this Son might according to the (r) Promise reign over Israel in Peace. GOD sent also by (s) Nathan the Prophet, and call'd him Jedidiah, or The beloved of the LORD. The Scripture never calls him by this Name, but always Solomon, which Name the People lov'd, because he built the House of the LORD in peaceable Times. And soon after this, (t) David had another Son by Bathsheba, whom he call'd Nathan, after the Name of the Prophet, thereby testifying his Belief of the Promise, which Nathan had told him, when he brought him good Tidings, and his Repentance for that Sin which Nathan reprov'd, when he denounc'd GOD's Judgments. Of these two CHRIST was born, tho' in different Lines; Joseph, the suppos'd Father, came from Solomon, as (u) St. Matthew relates it; and Mary, the real Mother, came from Nathan, as (x) it is in St. Luke.

59. Soon after this, the Justice of GOD afflicts the Family of David for his Adultery with Bathsheba, and the Murder of Urijah. Amnon his (y) eldest Son, and born to him in Hebron immediately after the Death of Saul, falls in Love (z) with Tamar a Daughter of David by Maacah the Daughter of Talmai King of Geshur, and a Sister to Abshalom. Amnon by the subtle and wicked Advice of Jonadab his Friend, finds out a way to deflour Tamar, and hating her afterward, he turns her away in a publick and shameful Manner. Abshalom her Brother receives her into his House, and entertains her very kindly, shewing not the least Sign of Resentment for the Injury, which made every one believe, that he took no Notice of it. After (a) two Years, he invites all his Brethren to a Sheep-shearing Feast, when his Servants by his Direction take an Opportunity to kill Amnon. Abshalom knowing that David would resent this, because Amnon was the Heir to the Crown, flees to his Grandfather Talmai to Geshur. The Length of Time having worn out David's Grief, and Joab perceiving that the King desir'd to see Abshalom again, if he could find out a handsom Excuse for such a Purpose, he at (b) the End of three Years persuades an elderly Woman of Tekeah to feign a Speech, by which David might be work'd upon to recall Abshalom from his Banishment. Joab introduceth her in to the King, who manages the Affair so artfully, that the King gives Orders to Joab to bring Abshalom to Jerusalem. However tho' the King would not have him die for the Murder, and admitted him to live in the same City, yet he thought it not for his Honour to shew himself fully reconcil'd, but forbad him his Presence.

60. There is one Difficulty concerning the Weight of (c) Absalom's Hair, which upon this Occasion is mention'd to be two hundred shekels. To solve this some alledge, that long Hair was a very great Ornament in those Times, and they had several Ointments, which made it grow large and thick, and added to the Weight. That the Beard must also be included. The learned (d) Bochart hath also prov'd, that these shekels according to the king's weight were but three Pound and two Ounces. However this is too much, especially if he cut it every Year, as the Translations of the Scripture, or every eight Months, as (e) Josephus mentions. However (f) Josephus informs us, that the noble Guard, which attended King Solomon, had long Hair blowing about their Shoulders, and that they scatter'd in their Hair several little Particles of Gold, which made the Hair shine and sparkle by the Reflection of the Sun upon it. And therefore we may suppose, that Absalom had not only such Particles of Gold, but also many precious Stones about his Head, to make him look more graceful at this Time. But secondly, It doth not appear from the Hebrew Text, that Absalom weigh'd his Hair so often, but only at this one particular Time when he return'd to Jerusalem. When Absalom fled two Years before this from Jerusalem, he pretended to a great Sorrow for his Crime, the better to carry on his Designs, and therefore (g) seems to vow, that he would be a Nazarite till his Return, one of the Conditions whereof was, that (h) he should not have his Hair cut; and now returning back, he orders it to be cut accordingly, which seems to be the Reason, that his Cutting of it is mention'd in this Place, and not at the Time of his Death, where otherwise it might have been more properly inserted. And therefore the Text it self may be thus paraphras'd. And when he cut the hair of his head, (i) for it was from the end of the days, that he went from Jerusalem, to the day when he returned, that he weighed it, because (k) it was troublesome by its Hanging over him, therefore he shaved it, and he weighed the hair of his head two hundred shekels, with (or including) every one of (l) the kingly or precious Stones, that he wore at that Time. So that these might make up the greatest Weight, and then there will be no Necessity to suppose it (m) much above the common Size, or that it might (n) have been painful.

61. At the End of two Years, Absalom (o) with some Difficulty prevail'd upon Joab to introduce him to the King, and upon his Humbling of himself and Begging Pardon, the King took him up from the Ground and kissed him, as a Token of perfect Reconciliation. This was a Sign of David's Affection, tho' Absalom was unnatural, and made an ill Use of it. For (p) he endeavours to raise a Rebellion, by Taking upon him a great State and a splendid Equipage, Being over courteous to every Body, Complaining of the King's male Administration, and Wishing that he was the King, with a Promise that in such a Case it should be otherwise. By such Insinuations as these he gain'd to himself the Affections of the People, and insensibly alienated them from David; and when he saw that Matters were ripe for his Purpose, he (q) desires Leave of the King to go to Hebron, pretending that he had vow'd in his Exile, that if GOD would bring him back to Jerusalem, he would return his Thanks in that Place by a solemn Sacrifice. The King not mistrusting his Designs, and being willing that all religious Exercises should be punctually perform'd, freely gives him Leave to go thither. Hebron was the Place of his own Birth, where the royal Seat had been in the Beginning of David's Reign, and therefore Absalom thought this the fittest Place for his Purpose. But he (*) sent Spies into all the Tribes to exhort them to take up Arms for him, as soon as they should hear that he

The Word אבן doth not only signify a common Stone, or a Weight, but also all Manner of precious Stones, as Exod. 25. 7. and 28. 11. 2 Sam. 12. 30. 1 Kings 10. 2. 1 Chron. 20. 2, and 29. 2, and in many other Places. The Word אבן in the singular Number will include the whole Number taken at once; and thus Singulare collectivum pro multis unitis sumitur. Or perhaps there might be one precious Stone of an extraordinary Weight, which he either wore, or kept by him, and weigh'd with his Hair, tho' the first seems to be most probable. As for the Word מלך a King, it may also signify Kingly or Royal. And thus Substantivum posterius frequentissime ponitur Adjectivi loco, abstractum pro concreto. Bythner, Reg. 33, sect. 3. And therefore the latter End of the Verse might have been thus translated, With the royal Stones, that is, With such precious Stones as Kings did usually wear. (m) Which could not be half a Pound, as appears from the Weight of a common Wig, where other things are added to it. (n) Such a Weight hanging to the Hair, must be very painful to the Skin at the Roots of it, as will appear from common Experience. (o) 2 Sam. 14. 28 to the End. (p) 2 Sam. 15. 1 to 7. was proclaim'd in Hebron. This drew on a general Infurrection, and David being well inform'd of what had happen'd, thought it not safe to tarry at Jerusalem, but raises all the Forces that he could, and so retreats. Zadok and Abiathar bring him the Ark of GOD to accompany him in his Distress, but he desires them to carry it back, and tarry in Jerusalem to give him Intelligence. He goes to the Top of the Mount of Olivet with all the Tokens of Sorrow and Affliction, and when he was there he worships GOD looking toward the Ark in the House of GOD, which he could see from the Top of the Mount. And here he composes the third Psalms. He had been before told, that Ahitophel was one in Confederacy with Absalom, and pray'd, that GOD would defeat his Devices; and now he complains sadly of the Multitude of his Enemies, that were against him, and the Multitude of his false Friends, who dar'd not to appear for him; and so he prophesies of the End both of Absalom and Ahitophel in as plain Terms as if they had already been dead. (r) Thou hast smitten mine enemies upon the cheek bone, Ahitophel with the Knot of the Rope, and Absalom with the Bough of an Oak, Thou hast broken the teeth or Spears of the ungodly in the Wood, and so render'd them useless. Upon this Hushai one of his privy Counsellors comes to him, whom he orders to return to Absalom, and gives him Directions for that Purpose.

62. David had not gone far from (s) the Mount of Olivet, before Ziba the Servant of Mephibosheth brings to him two Asses loaded with very acceptable Presents in this Necessity. David inquiring after Mephibosheth, is impos'd upon by a false Story, as if he was a Traitor; so that he gives away Mephibosheth's Land to Ziba, when he had no Power to dispose of his own. This was the only unjust Act that he had done to the House of Saul, and this seems to provoke one of the same Family to vent his Rage against him. For when David (t) came near Baburim, a City in (u) the Tribe of Benjamin, intending to stay there for farther Intelligence, Shimei the Son of Gera, who was of that Race, and dwelt in that Town, came out, flung Stones at him, and curs'd him with all the bitter Reproaches that could be thought of. And when Abishai offer'd to go and kill him, David would not suffer it, but behaves himself with admirable Patience and Resignation to the Will of GOD. However he composeth the seventh Psalms, and repeats it in this Extremity. He calls him (x) Cush the Benjamite, by way of Derision, as alluding to Kish the Father of Saul, but he turns it to Cush an (y) accursed Name, and the Father of a Blackmoor Nation, like in Colour to Shimei's Actions. In this Psalms he (z) testifies his Innocency, that if he had been such a bloody Man to the House of Saul, as (a) was represented to be, nay, if he (b) had not sav'd Saul's Life twice, whilst he persecuted him without Cause, he should desire no Favour; but since it was otherwise, he foretels his own Deliverance, and the (c) Destruction of this his Enemy.

63. And now David being at Baburim near Jordan, whither he and the People came, wearied with Labour and Grief, and (d) having refresh'd himself, he stays there for some Time, so that at the first Apprehension of Danger he might pass over the Water and be gone. Here he pens (e) the forty second and forty third Psalms, in which he laments his necessary Absence from the Sanctuary of GOD, and prays for the Liberty of going thither again. Thus (f) from the Land of Jordan he remembers the LORD; and his Looking on the Waters brings to Mind his own Misery. There he observes the Waves rolling upon the Neck of one another, and the Deep making a Noise here and there in its Channels, and in its Falls. And (g) so (saith he) all thy billows and all thy waves tumble over me one after another. However (h) he still comforts himself that it will be better. Absalom is now come to Jerusalem, where (i) he takes Possession of the King's Palace, and Hushai comes to meet him, and deceives him with the utmost Assurances of Fidelity. Absalom desires the Advice of Ahitophel, who persuades him to place a Tent on the Top of the Palace, and to lie publicly with his Father's Concubines, whom (k) he left behind him. By this incestuous Act (l) the Prophecy of Nathan was fulfill'd, tho' Ahitophel counsell'd him upon this View, that (m) his Soldiers might see, that there could be no Reconciliation, and therefore fight more desperately to secure him in the Possession of the Crown. This Counsel being follow'd, Ahitophel persuades Absalom (n) to give him the Command of twelve thousand Men, with which he promises to surprize David, and kill him, which he might easily have done, if (as (o) Josephus saith) his Army consisted only of four thousand. This was approv'd of at first, but Absalom desires the Advice of Hushai, who resolv'd before to thwart with him, and tells him, that they would be much more sure of Success, if they march'd with the whole

Army, and himself at the Head of them. The Generals now approve of the Counsel of Hushai as better than that of Ahitophel, and Hushai sends Abimaaz and Jonathan the Sons of Zadok and Abiathar the Priest to David, to give him an Account of both, and to advise him to go over Jordan, lest Absalom should alter his Mind, and fall upon them on a sudden. Upon the Hearing of this, David composeth the fifty fifth Psalm, in which (p) he laments his Misery, occasion'd by one of his Guides, Acquaintance and Privy Counsellors, and prays, that (q) Death may suddenly come upon him, which happen'd accordingly. For (r) David immediately pass'd over Jordan. And when Ahitophel heard that David was out of Danger, he knew that his former as well as this last Advice must make David hate him, and that Delays would be the Ruin of Absalom, and that he might be put to Death with the most exquisite Torments; so that rather than be in Disgrace with both, his Pride made him be his own Executioner. David being now beyond Jordan, had an Opportunity to raise more Forces in a quiet Country, and his Friends brought him in Provision, so that they were in good Heart, and desir'd to put an End to the War by a general Battle. David was very desirous to go himself in Person to this Battle, thinking that his former Obligation to the contrary related only to foreign Enemies. But his Generals would not suffer it: concluding that the Reason of it was still the same or greater. The Design of his rebellious Subjects was only against his Life, and he was personally known to them more than to Strangers. Upon this he submitted to their Opinion, and retreated into the City. And now Policy was necessary in this Engagement. For this Purpose (s) David divided his Men into three Bodies, under the Command of three Generals, who hearing that Absalom was come over Jordan, and in his March toward them was coming thro' the Wood of Ephraim, resolv'd to fight them in that Wood, where the Enemy might not discern their Numbers, where (t) their Spears were useless, where they could not engage but with equal Numbers, and Joab's Men being old experienc'd Soldiers, were sure of Success, against a raw undisciplin'd Army; and in this Case the Front running away, especially if attack'd in three Places at once, would terrify all the rest. This happen'd according to their Desire, and tho' in the Pursuit there were (u) Skirmishes in several Parts of the Country, yet there were more killed in the Woods than in the Plain. For Joab would not trust his Men in the open Country, lest the Enemy seeing how few they were might rally again, and over-power them with their Numbers. And it is probable also, that in this Confusion Absalom's Men might, by Mistake, kill one another. Absalom flying upon a Mule, one of the swiftest of Beasts, to save his Life, his Head was caught between two Boughs of an Oak, where he hung, having nothing to support him, and his Senses were so disorder'd, and his Neck so wedg'd in between the Boughs, that he was not able to get himself at Liberty. Joab hearing of this, goes to the Place, and with some of his select Men kills Absalom in this Posture. The Reason was, because Joab thought himself not safe, as long as Absalom liv'd. For some unquiet People, who were deeply engag'd in this Rebellion, might set him on the Throne by raising new Disturbances, or David being old might soon die, and Absalom in Course must succeed him, and then Joab must have been in Disgrace, if he could have escap'd with his Life. Upon this Joab orders all his Soldiers to retreat, and sent two Expresses to give the King an Account of it. The King was extremely (x) concern'd at the Death of his Son, who did not deserve to live; which so dishearten'd the whole Army, that they (y) were ready to revolt, to any one who would head them. Upon this Joab comes to the King, and uses many harsh Expressions, which did not at all become a Subject, telling him in plain Terms, that (z) he loved his enemies, and hated his friends, and threatening that they would all forsake him, if he did not appear among them. The King was forc'd to comply, but resent'd it so, that he intended to take the first Opportunity of Dismissing Joab from being his General; and perceiving the Zeal of the Israelites, and especially the Tribe of Judah for his Return, he sends to Amasa, the General of Absalom's Forces, and one who had a great Interest in them, and tells him, that if he would (a) be faithful unto him at this Time, he should have the Command of the Army as long as he liv'd. As soon as David (b) came back over Jordan, Shimei came to meet him, and crave Pardon, with a thousand Men of his own Tribe, to shew by his Example what the rest should do, and that all Israel might see in him an eminent Instance either of David's Clemency or Severity, and behave themselves accordingly. David well knew the Consequence of this, and therefore when Abishai, and perhaps Joab joining with him, perswaded David, that they might kill him; he (c) looks upon them as his Enemies in this, he declares a general Pardon, and that such an universal Joy should not be mix'd with Sorrow, and particularly that Shimei, however guilty, should not be put to Death for any past Offences.

64. David (d) now intending to requite Barzillai's Kindness, desires him to go along with him to Jerusalem, where he should be entertain'd at his Table, as his particular Friend; Barzillai desires to be excus'd upon the Account of his great Age, but gives Liberty for his Son Chimham to go with him. The King agrees to that, and promises the good old Man, that he should be kindly us'd, and whatever he should ask should be done for him. Barzillai asks for nothing but his own Quiet, and what David did for Chimham is uncertain: But as he had a Patrimony in Bethlehem, which was the Place of his Nativity; so (e) it is very probable, that he gave a Part of it to Chimham and his Heirs for ever; and that this was afterward call'd, The habitation of Chimham in the Days of Jeremiah.

65. When David (f) was pass'd over Jordan, he was willing to make all possible Haste to come to Jerusalem; and the Tribe of Judah, his own Tribe, coming first to meet him, he to gratify them march'd on, not expecting the great Men of Israel, who were making ready in all Parts to wait upon him. The other Tribes resented this as a Slight to them, who were as zealous for the King's Welfare as the rest. This occasion'd hot Words between them, and the Tribe of Judah was the hottest of the two. David was afraid of displeasing either Party, and therefore did not intermeddle, which made the Men of Israel think, that he favour'd Judah, and was the Cause of a fresh Disturbance soon after. However when David came to Jerusalem, he purgeth and dedicateth his House to the Service of GOD, which had been before polluted by Abshalom, and pens the thirtieth Psalms on this Occasion, in which he praiseth GOD for his own Deliverance, and exhorts others to praise him from his Example.

66. When King David (g) came to Jerusalem, Mephibosheth came to him, as Shimei had done before; David seem'd to be angry, that he had not gone with him at first. Mephibosheth tells David, how Ziba had impos'd upon him, that his Will was not equal to his Power, and that Ziba had rais'd false Accusations against him. However he readily submitted to the Sentence of Giving away his Land, and desir'd no more than the King's Prosperity, and to be in his Favour as before. Ziba was not able to make any Excuse, and David was so well satisfy'd in Me- phibosheth's Sincerity, and the Injury done him in his Estate, that (h) he could not endure to hear any more about it, but confirms his first Grant, that (i) Mephibosheth should have the whole Estate, and Ziba should manure it for him, with a little Variation, to shew his Gratitude to Ziba, for (k) Bringing him such acceptable Presents in his Necessity. I have said, or I have determin'd this already, or My first Grant shall stand: Only thou and Zibab divide one (l) Field, and let him take half. Mephibosheth readily consents that he should take the whole Field, and so that Matter was adjusted to the Satisfaction of all Parties.

67. But when the Contention happen'd between Israel and Judah, Sheba (m) a Benjamite, and very probably near of kin to Saul, sets up for himself. He publicly declares, that the Tribe of Judah might have David for themselves; and as he did not care for them, so they needed not to care for him. He also exhorts every Man by the Sound of the Trumpet to stand to their Arms, and take him for their General. This occasions a new Insurrection. David resolving to lay Joab aside, speaks to Amasa, according to his Promise, to Command the Army. By this the Men of Judah might see, that they might depend on the King's Word, and the Men of Israel might the sooner be brought to Reason, when they saw their old General in the Field against them. The Army having a high Opinion of Joab, could not easily be brought together, so that Amasa found more Difficulty in the Execution of his Trust, than was expected. David being sensible of this, and yet willing to suppress Joab, orders Abishai his Brother, who was the next Commander in the Army, to take the Forces that were ready, and pursue after Sheba, until Amasa could join them. Amasa comes up to them at the great Stone in Gibeon, which was (n) forty Furlongs distant from Jerusalem, and takes upon him the Command of the Army. Joab being present with his Brother, and not able to endure this, goes to Amasa as a Friend, and treacherously kills him, and immediately proclaims himself the General of the Army. Sheba rambles about the Country from one City to another, to persuade them to take up Arms against David, and Joab follows him to disappoint his Designs. At last being driven into the farthest Part of Israel, he gets into Abel, a fortify'd Town in the Tribe of Naphthali, and the northern Parts of Judea; so that this was his last Refuge. His little Army was strong enough to secure the City, tho' he had many Enemies there, and therefore Joab was under a Necessity of besieging it. When the Siege was carry'd on so far, that Joab's Army had fill'd up the Trench, and stood at the Bottom of the Wall to batter it, and to throw it down; a Woman from the Wall treats with Joab about Terms. She tells him, that (o) at the Beginning of the Siege the People of Abel talk'd one to another in this Manner, ' Surely they will ask of us, if we will have Peace, and so we shall soon come to an Agreement, and make an End.' By this she secretly remembers him of (p) a Rule in the Law, which commanded them to offer Peace to other Nations, when they came to besiege them, and therefore much more to one of their own Cities. She declares her self a true Friend to David, and that he had many more in the City, and therefore the Destroying of it would be an Injury to the Publick. Joab declares, that he had no Intention to destroy more than was necessary, and therefore if Sheba was deliver'd up, the rest should be safe. The Woman persuades the Inhabitants to cut off his Head, and throw it over the Wall to Joab. Upon this he raises the Siege, and leaves every one at Liberty to go home without any Punishment. This was the last War in which David was engag'd; and after this he spent the rest of his Days in Peace. So that now he composeth the fourth Psalms, in which he checks the People for (q) Despising his Kingdom, and Harkning after another, that was but Vanity and Lyes, as Absalom's was at first, and Sheba's afterward. He (r) adviseth the Children of Israel and Judah not to carry their Resentments too far; but (s) tho' they were angry at one another, yet they should not sin, but (t) lay aside this Passion before they slept. He professeth, that (u) since the Time that his Corn and Wine and other Provision increas'd in his Camp, as (x) being brought to him by his Friends, his Heart had receiv'd a comfortable Confidence and Assurance of his being restor'd, and therefore he would still depend on that Goodness and Providence, which had deliver'd him out of these Troubles, and wrought these good Beginnings for him.

68. The Year (y) after this the Harvest failing, a Famine began in the Land, which lasted three Years. David suspecting that GOD might still punish him for those Sins, which he committed in the Matter of Uriah, inquires for what Sin so grievous a Punishment was inflicted. GOD soon comforts him, by letting him know, that it was upon the Account of Saul and his Family, because they had slain the Gibeonites, at the Time when he kill'd the Priests at Nob. The Gibeonites being Drawers of Water, GOD puts the Israelites in Mind of their Offence by Withholding of Rain. David consults the Gibeonites, and so they agree to hang seven of the Posterity of Saul to atone for this Offence. It was a positive Law (z) given to the Israelites, that if any Man was hang'd, he should be bury'd before Night, but the Gibeonites being not of that Nation, thought themselves not oblig'd to that Law, but expos'd their Bodies for a longer Time. This Execution was done in the (a) Beginning of Barley Harvest, which happen'd immediately after the Passover, and was the third Year of the Famine. The Gibeonites intended to keep them hung up in this Manner until GOD should send Rain, which Rizpah the Concubine of Saul, and Mother to two of those who were hang'd being inform'd of, she took Sackcloth, and made a Tent of it to dwell in, and spread some of it upon a Rock for her to lie upon near the Place; and having Servants to attend her, kept a constant Watch Day and Night to fright away the Birds and Beasts from Offering any Injury to the dead Bodies, until GOD should send them Rain, for Want of which they suffer'd by Famine. It is suppos'd, that not long after they had plentiful Showers of Rain, by which it appear'd, that GOD was pleas'd, and so Rizpah had the Liberty to take down the Bodies, and give them an honourable Interment. This noble Act of hers being told to David, he was mov'd thereby to take up the Bones of Saul and Jonathan his Son, who (b) had been bury'd five and thirty Years before, under a Tree at Jabesh-gilead, and bury them also with their Ancestors. And upon this GOD sends Plenty together with Peace to the Country, and David solemnly repeats once more the (c) eighteenth Psalm, which he had formerly penn'd, and frequently us'd before as a grateful Thanksgiving to GOD for all his Mercies.

69. Plenty and Peace being now restor'd, (d) the People go into a luxurious way of Living, which being usually the Fore-runner of their Idolatry, made GOD angry, and resolve to send another Judgment to reclaim them; and that this Judgment might appear to be for their Sin, he (e) permitted David by the Instigation of the Devil, to fall into a less Sin, which might justly be attended with a less Calamity, and so restrain the People from Running into a greater. Now therefore David (as (f) Josephus saith) resolves upon Taking an Account, how many thousand Men he could muster out of all the People of Israel, forgetting the (g) Precept of Moses, that as often as there should be an Occasion to number the People, there should be an Obligation of half a Shekel for every Head to the LORD. Thus he seems to depart also from Trusting in GOD, who had so often deliver'd him, and to depend on Man, who without GOD's Assistance could do nothing. Dr. Lightfoot saith, that (h) David was now given up to a covetous Thought to number the People, that he might lay a Tax upon every Head. David orders Joab for this Purpose. Joab endeavours to excuse himself, till David positively commands him to go about it; and so he spends nine Months and twenty Days, or all the Time in (i) the Year following the Famine, which was fit for this Expedition. Joab brings in the Number to the King. The Number of all Israel in (k) the Book of Chronicles were eleven hundred thousand Men, and the Book of (l) Samuel saith, that they were only eight hundred thousand; so that here are three hundred thousand Difference. On the other Hand, the Book of (m) Samuel saith, that the Men of Judah were five hundred thousand, and the Book of (n) Chronicles saith, that they were only four hundred and seventy thousand; so that here also is thirty thousand Difference. For the Reconciling of this great and double Diversity, it is to be observ'd, that (o) there were four and twenty thousand Soldiers and Officers, that attended David monthly, so many every Month, and these make in all two hundred and eighty eight thousand. These were like a standing Guard about the King every Month, and ready for any sudden Expedition. There were besides these the Rulers of the Tribes, and the Officers under them, and therefore allowing a thousand Officers to every twenty four thousand (as we cannot well allow less) there will be the twelve thousand wanting, which added to the two hundred eighty and eight thousand, make just three hundred thousand, and these were not (p) put into the Account in Samuel. Thus in the Tribe of Judah, if twenty four thousand legionary Soldiers, and a thousand Officers over them, be added to the four hundred and seventy thousand, there will be but five thousand wanting in the Number, and as this was David's own Tribe, and a Tribe which was faithful to him in all Difficulties and Troubles, it is no Wonder, if so many of them were employ'd in some other extraordinary Offices. These Joab put not in the Account, because their Number and List had been long known, and because (q) the King would not put a Tax upon his own Servants.

70. Among all this Number (r) Levi and Benjamin were not reckon'd. For Joab began farthest off first, and before (s) he came home to reckon them up, the Plague began among the People, and GOD cuts many of them off, whom David had made his Pride, and of whom it is probable, that he intended to make an Advantage. The Year was now just expiring, and Gad comes (t) on a particular Morning to David, to bring his Sin to his Remembrance, and offer him three Punishments for the same, leaving him to choose which he thinks fit. The Words of Gad are (u) these, Thus saith the LORD, Choose thee either three years famine, or three months to be destroy'd before thy enemies, or else three days the sword of the LORD even the pestilence in the land, and the angel of the LORD destroying throughout the coast of Israel. Thus the Years, the Months, and the Days agree in the Number three. In (x) the Book of Samuel it is said to be seven Years of Famine, which could not begin from this Time, because David did not live

(e) 2 Chron. 21. 1. The Words And he moved David against them, import no more than, And David was moved, that is, by Satan, as it is expressly said in 1 Chron. 21. 1. and as Bishop Kidder hath fully prov'd in his Demonstration of the MESSIAS, Part 2. Page 28, 29. where he shews, that a Verb active of the third Person, and Masculine Gender, with, an Accusative Case following, is the same, as if the Noun was in the Nominative Case before the Verb Passive. For the Proof of this, he not only produceth this Instance, but also John 12. 39, 40, compar'd with Isai. 6. 9. Luke 12. 20, 48, and 16. 9. Luke 14. 35, with Matth. 5. 13. Isai. 9. 16. (i) The Words שנה אחרי שנה Year after Year, 2 Sam. 22. 1. do fix the History to the Year following the Rebellion of Sheba, and therefore may be properly translated, The Year after this Year, as Dr. Lightfoot hath observ'd, Book 1. Page 67. who adds, that in all the Scripture, wherein Mention of Famine is made, it only saith, There were seven Years of Famine, or ten Years of Famine, &c. and that is enough, and it is us'd constantly to denote, that there was Famine so many Years together, and it never telleth, that there was a Famine so many Years, Year after Year. And therefore this Expression seems rather to join the three Years of Famine to the Story before, than to one another. However (as he adds) we shall find a Passage in the Story of David's Numbering of the People (or the Reconciling of the Accounts in Samuel and Chronicles) that directs us very well about the Time of these Years. (k) 1 Chron. 21. 5. (l) 2 Sam. 24. 9. (m) Ibid. (n) 1 Chron. 21. 6. (o) 1 Chron. 27. 1 to 16. (p) 1 Chron. 27. 23, 24. (q) Exod. 30. 12. (r) 1 Chron. 21. 6. (s) 1 Chron. 27. 23, 24. so long after. And no Part of that could be a Punishment to him, which was to happen after his Decease. So that this Variety is of good Use to fix the Year, in which this Numbering of the People happen'd. There had been already (y) three Years Famine for the Gibeonites, and this Year of Numbering the People was almost ended; and therefore the Question was, Shall three Years of Famine come, to begin with the following Year, and so to be added to the three Years already past, and the present Year, and make up the Number seven in all. David answers, I am in a great straight. Let me fall into the hands of the LORD (for his mercies are great) but let me not fall into the hands of men. Thus he submits to the Will of GOD in this Case, but seems to choose the Pestilence rather than either of the other two. Accordingly GOD sends a Pestilence throughout the whole Kingdom, beginning in the Morning when David had consented to it, and in the (z) extreme Parts of the Kingdom, still making its Approaches nearer to Jerusalem. The King and the Inhabitants of this City hearing of it, (a) clothed themselves with Sackcloth, and cry'd to GOD with all Humility for Mercy. A little before the Offering up of (b) the evening Sacrifice, or the Time of evening Prayer being the ninth Hour of the Day, there appears an Angel in the Air over Jerusalem with a drawn Sword in his Hand, as ready to destroy it. David upon this (c) cries for Mercy for the People, tho' Vengeance did light upon himself, and immediately departs, as (d) being afraid of some heavy Stroke. Upon this the Angel (e) commands Gad to direct David to go up and immediately build an Altar to the LORD in the threshing Floor of Araunab the Jebusite. This (f) happen'd to be on the Top of Mount Moriah near Jerusalem, which Name signifies The LORD is my Teacher. It was the Place, where (g) Abraham intended to offer up his Son Isaac on the Altar, and so consecrated by the Father of this Nation for the Worship of GOD, and approv'd of by him from the Beginning. This Place David purchaseth of Araunab in two several Parcels and for two several Sums. The very (h) Floor, and the Oxen, and Materials for Sacrifice, David bought of Araunab for (i) fifty Shekels of Silver, which was a very moderate Price, because Araunab intended to have given it to him for nothing, and his (k) Liberality on this Occasion is particularly taken Notice of. But the whole Circumference of the Top of the Mount, which was a very large Compass, and on which the Temple was afterward built, cost him (l) six hundred Shekels of Gold, which was so considerable a Sum, that it probably purchased the whole Mountain. After this David having built an Altar here, about (m) the Time of the evening Sacrifice, he offer'd Burnt-offerings and Peace-offerings, and GOD, to shew his Approbation thereof, answer'd him from Heaven by Fire upon the Altar, and immediately commanded the Angel to put up his Sword into the Sheath thereof, and so the Plague ceased; and David knew, by this remarkable Providence, in general the Place, where the Temple should be built, and in particular where the Altar was to be erected.

71. It is very probable, that at this Time GOD reveal'd to David the (n) exact Frame and Fashion of the Temple, with all its Materials and Urenfils, and what Quantity should be sufficient for the Making of them; and that this was the Reason, that he purchas'd not only the threshing Floor, on which he might build the Altar, but also the Top of the whole Mount for the Ground Plot of the Temple. He seems also to be completely qualify'd either for Projecting the whole Fabrick himself, or for directing another Person to project the same, which he afterward gave to Solomon as a Pattern for him to build by; so that he now seems to spend his whole Time in Providing whatever was necessary for this Purpose, and Sorting it out accordingly, and also in Settling the Number and the Method of the Officers, which were to attend upon it, and the Manner of the daily Service. Having provided Materials, he seems to be taken either with (o) a dead Palsy, or some other Distemper, which threaten'd his Life; for (p) his Blood was so chill'd, that he could not be warm in his Bed, much less when he was up. His Physicians advise, that a young Virgin should lie in the same Bed with him to procure a natural Heat, and Abisbag of (q) Shunem in the Tribe of Issachar was brought to the King as fit for this Purpose. Adonijah the Son of Haggith, and (r) the next eldest after Abisag takes the Advantage of his Father's Age and Weakness, and resolves to make himself King, thinking that his Father could not oppose him. Upon this he pursues the same Methods, which Abisag had us'd before him, he draws Joab the General, Abiathar the Priest, and some of his own Brethren into this Conspiracy, he makes a great Feast near (s) Jerusalem, at which Time they proclaim Adonijah King in the Room of his Father. Nathan the Prophet had before (t) told the King, that Solomon the Son of Bathsheba should reign after him; and (u) the King had declar'd it solemnly to Bathsheba, but with such Secrecy, that even (x) Nathan the Prophet knew nothing of it. Nathan acquaints Bathsheba, with what had happen'd, advising her to press the King to declare Solomon his Successor, since things were come to that Extremity, that without it (y) all their Lives must be in Danger. Bathsheba presses the King for this Purpose, and Nathan seconds her. Upon this the King declares that Solomon should succeed him, and order'd him to be anointed in such a publick Manner, and with such Ceremonies, as might shew his intire Approbation of it. Adonijah and his Guests hearing this rose from Table, where they were sitting, in a great Hurry, fearing to be surpriz'd, and cut off on a sudden; so that the whole Contrivance was suppress'd for the present.

72. The Princes of the People (z) coming to congratulate King David on this Occasion, and Solomon (a) being seated on the Throne, David (b) blesteth GOD for so great a Mercy, and takes the Opportunity to (c) instruct Solomon in the Promises, and in his Duty to build a Temple for GOD to reside in, and (d) charges the Princes of the People to assist him therein. It is now very probable, that being in Peace and Plenty, he compos'd all the other Psalms, which are said to be made by him, and perhaps several others, which have no Name annex'd to them. However having that emergent Occasion by Adonijah's Conspiracy to anoint Solomon hastily and privately, he afterward intends a more solemn and publick Coronation of him, and therefore (e) he calls together all the Heads and Rulers of the People to consult about it. And as at the first Forming of the Israelites into a Commonwealth in the Wilderness they were number'd, the Levites were appointed for divine Service, and Directions were given to provide for the Building of the Sanctuary; so David takes the same Method. First, he numbers (f) the Levites, and gives them final Directions concerning their Offices, and how they were to attend on the Service of the Temple. Then he (g) divides the Sons of Aaron into four and twenty Courses, that one in each of these Courses, according as (h) he was chosen by Lot, should officiate a Week at a Time, and twice in a Year, under the Inspection of the High Priest, who was to take Care, that this Order should be observ'd in the Manner as it was prescrib'd, none of them to anticipate their Course, but all to wait till their Time came. Thus every Course began on one Sabbath, and went out upon the next, before the Burning of the Incense at the morning Sacrifice, when the Shewbread was set upon the Table. The eighth of these Courses was call'd (i) the Course of Abijah, in which Course Zecharias the Priest officiated, when the Angel (k) appear'd to him, and brought him the News of the Conception of St. John the Baptist. These being settl'd, he (l) takes the Number and Offices of the Singers, and divides them also into four and twenty Courses, each Course to serve a Week like the Priests, (m) twelve at a Time, so that they made (n) two hundred eighty eight in all. David having now (o) deliver'd the Psalms, which he had compos'd, into the Hand of Asaph and the rest of the principal Singers, to be us'd as Occasion did require, they were stirr'd up to imitate so noble an Example, and to compose several others. The Principal of these was (p) Asaph, with (q) whose Words it is recorded, as well as with the Words of David, that the people sang praises unto the LORD with gladness. He therefore may well be suppos'd to be the Author of (r) those eleven Psalms, which carry his Name in the Title. The second was (s) Heman the Ezrahite, who was remarkably (t) famous for his Wisdom, the (u) Grandchild of Samuel and a Prophet. One (x) Psalm is expressly ascrib'd to him, and as (y) he was of the Stock and Line of Korah, so we may ascribe (z) those Psalms to him, which are intitl'd, a Psalm for the Sons of Korah. The next is (a) Jeduthun, who was the Author of (b) three Psalms; and the other (c) is Ethan the Ezrahite, who (d) was a Levite of the Posterity of Merari, and the Author of (e) a Psalm which particularly makes (f) Mention of

David, tho (g) it seems to have been penn'd, when (h) the Israelites revolted in the Reign of Rehoboam, and when the Author thereof must be of a very great Age.

73. These being settl'd, and David (i) entering into the last Year of his Age, he now applies himself to settle the civil Affairs. And first he settles the (k) Judges, Magistrates and all inferior Officers, whose Business it was to punish all such as did evil, and keep others to their Duty. Then he settles the (l) military Affairs, particularly the twelve Captains for every Month, with their Legions to attend on the King in their Turns; then (m) the Princes of the twelve Tribes, and afterward (n) several other Officers. When all things were thus settl'd, David summons together the Princes, Captains, Officers and Soldiers; and being now recover'd from his former Illness, he (o) stands upon his Feet, and in a solemn Oration, puts them in Mind of GOD's Goodness and Favour to him, and the Promise that Solomon should succeed him; and therefore he exhorts them to serve GOD, and advise his Son to do the same, with the Promise of GOD's Favour if he did, and Threatnings of his Displeasure if he did not. After this he encourageth his Son Solomon to build the Temple, and (p) gives him the Patterns which he had receiv'd, and the Gold and Silver and other Materials which he had prepar'd for this Purpose. After this, (q) by his Example and Persuasion, he prevail'd with the Princes and People to add something of their own for the Building of this Temple, and when he found himself successful herein, he concludes with a solemn Thanksgiving to GOD, and a Prayer, that he would enable Solomon to perfect what he had thus begun and intended. David now finding that he had no more to do in this World, and perceiving his Death to be near, appoints Solomon to act under him in all his Affairs as Regent, that so he might put an End to all Disputes after his Decease. Upon this there was a (r) solemn Sacrifice, and a very great Rejoicing of the People, and they made Solomon king the second time, and anointed him in a solemn Manner, and agreed, that Zadok should be the High Priest, in the Room of Abiathar, who had (s) publicly espous'd the Interest of Adonijah against him, and after this he sat on the Throne in his Father's Life-time, and all the People submitted themselves to him. That which encourageth David and Solomon to displace Abiathar from the Office of High Priest, was the Prophecy of Samuel (t) against the House of Eli, that GOD would cut off his arm, and the arm of his father's house. That he who should not be destroy'd, should see the High Priesthood taken from the Family, and those who belong'd to it reduc'd to great Poverty. That there should be (u) another in his Place, and (x) that they should beg of him the meanest Pension which was allow'd to those Priests, who were to officiate, only to supply their Necessity. And thus (y) was the High Priesthood remov'd again out of the Family of Itamar, and translated into that of Eleazar the other Son of Aaron. And David finding (z) a very sensible Decay, gives Solomon his last Exhortation to conform his Life to the Law of GOD, to put (a) Joab to Death for the Murders, which he had been guilty of; to (b) shew Kindness to the Sons of Barzillai; and tho' (c) he did not put Shimei to Death for his past Offences, yet whenever he should again be guilty, that he should have no Favour; and so (d) he dies, leaving Solomon in the peaceable and quiet Possession of the Kingdom, who was now nineteen Years of Age, and therefore he is said to be (e) young and tender, and he (f) calls himself a little child, in Comparison of the great Trust and Work which he had undertaken; tho' it is certain, that as he reign'd (g) but forty Years in all, so he was (h) the Father of Rehoboam the Year before, and therefore he must be more than ten Years of Age at this Time, as (i) some have imagin'd.

74. It is observable, that (k) when David prepar'd for the Building of the Temple, he set the Profelytes or converted Gentiles at Work, to prepare and hew the Stones for it. This makes it an apter Type of the spiritual Temple, to be gather'd out of (l) all Nations under the Gospel, and of which (m) the Prophet Isaiah saith, The sons of strangers shall build up thy walls, and their kings shall minister unto thee: for in my wrath I smote thee, but in my favour had I mercy on thee. Therefore thy gates shall be open continually, they shall not be shut day nor night, that men may bring unto thee the forces of the Gentiles. For the nation and kingdom that will not serve thee, shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted.

75. But the most surprizing of all is the vast Quantity of Materials, which David heap'd up together for this Purpose, in the thirty last Years of his Reign, or from the Time when (n) Nathan told him, that his Son Solomon should build this Temple. He tells us, that (o) in his trouble he had prepar'd for the House of the LORD an hundred thousand talents of gold, and a thousand thousand talents of silver, and of brass and iron without weight (for it was in abundance, timber also and stone he prepar'd) and he said that Solomon (if Occasion requir'd) might add thereto. To this he also added (p) three thousand talents of gold of the gold of Ophir, and seven thousand talents of refin'd silver, to overlay the walls of the houses: And (q) the Princes and People encourag'd by his Example, gave of gold five thousand talents and ten thousand drachms, and of silver ten thousand talents, and of brass eighteen thousand talents, and an hundred thousand talents of iron; all which put together is (r) a most incredible Quantity. For the Raising of this Sum, it must be consider'd, that David had (s) great Presents of Vessels of Silver, and Gold, and Brass, besides what (t) he had from all the Nations, which he conquer'd, particularly from Syria, from Moab, from the Ammonites, from the Philistines, from the Amalekites, and from the Spoil of Hadadezer Son of Rehob King of Zobab, all which he dedicated to the Treasury for this Use. After that he took (u) Rabbah the Royal City, from whence he brought forth the Spoil in great Abundance; and beside what he might raise from his own Subjects, all the Kings of the East, whom he thus conquer'd were Tributaries to him, and north and south, from Sihor the River of Egypt thro' all the Land of Hamah, and so forward as far as the River Euphrates. Besides, he had always accustom'd himself to (x) a very poor frugal Way of Living, that so he might save up as much as possible for this Purpose. But all this is far short of a satisfactory Account. The Weight of a Talent was three thousand Shekels. For when the Tabernacle was built, there were (y) 603550 Men, who offer'd half a Shekel each for the Use thereof, which was in all 301775

Shekels, and this is expressly said (z) to be an hundred Talents, and 1775 Shekels. Now no Number but 3000 will by Dividing 301775 produce 100, and leave 1775, for its Remainder. And Josephus (a) tells us, that a Shekel contain'd four Attick Drachms, or the Weight of half an Ounce of Silver, which in our Money wants not much of half a Crown, and we may so reckon it without a sensible Difference, and therefore (b) a Talent, or 3000 Shekels, weigh'd 125 Pounds, which at 5 Shillings to the Ounce, and twelve Ounces to the Pound, was worth in Silver 375 Pounds; and if we (c) reckon Gold at 16 Times as much, or at 4 Pound for each Ounce, each Talent of Gold will be worth 6000 Pounds. According to this Account the Gold alone, which David gave at both Times, and the People added to it, will (d) amount to 648 Millions of our Sterling Money. To abate something of the Value, it may be consider'd that the Shekel, and consequently the Talent was of two Sorts, either the King's Weight, which was of common Use in Buying and Selling, and was but half the Weight of the other, which belong'd to the Sanctuary, and therefore in this Place the common Talent must be meant, which weigh'd sixty two Pounds and an half. These were the Talents, which Gehazi (e) receiv'd of Naaman, when he bound two talents of silver in two bags, with two changes of garments, and laid them upon two of his servants, and they bear them before him. For a Talent of 125 Pound Weight, with a Change of Garments, would have been too heavy for one Man to have carry'd to any Distance. However the Sum will still be too large, for according to this Computation it will amount to 324 Millions of Sterling Money in Gold. We must therefore have Recourse to another Distinction, which is, that these Metals were of two Sorts, either in the Oar, or what they call'd pure or refin'd, so that wherever one of these Words is not added, the Metal as it is in the Oar is only meant. Thus David gave (f) 7000 Talents of refin'd Silver for the Use of the Temple, which Expression not being us'd of any of the rest, shews that it was, as it came out of the Earth. Thus it is said (g) of the

(r) For if we reckon 125 Pound to each Talent, and value Gold at 4 Pounds to the Ounce, reckoning 12 Ounces to the Pound, the 10000 Talents will amount to 600 Millions of Pounds Sterling, the three thousand Talents will be eighteen Millions, and the five thousand Talents, which the Princes offer'd, will amount to thirty Millions, and so make 648 Millions of Pounds Sterling in the whole. And in the same Manner, if we compute the Silver at five Shillings by the Ounce, it will amount to above 378 Millions, and so it will exceed 1000 Millions in the whole. (s) 2 Sam. 8. 9, 10, 11. (t) 2 Sam. 8. 11, 12, and 2 Sam. 10. 19. (u) 2 Sam. 11. 29, 30. (x) 1 Chron. 22. 14. Living like a poor man, as it may be inferr'd from the Margin of the Text. (y) Exod. 38. 26, and Num. 1. 46. (z) Exod. 38. 25. (a) Jewish Antiq. Book 3. Chap. 10. (b) This appears by Dividing the 3000 half Ounces by 24, the Number of half Ounces in a Pound. (c) That is, according to our present Value, tho' Bochart in his Hierozoicon, part 1. lib. 2. cap. 38. pag. 379. proves from an Answer of Hipparchus to Socrates, mention'd in Plato, that in antient Times, and in the Countries near to the Indies, or even in Greece, the Proportion of the Value of Gold compar'd with Silver was but as twelve to one. (d) As before in the Reference (r). (e) 2 Kings 5. 23. (f) 1 Chron. 29. 4. (g) Gen. 2. 11.

Land of Havilah, that there was Gold, or Golden Oar, and such (b) the Navy of Solomon brought from Ophir. Such there was in those Countries and in those Days, tho' a long Demand thereof into all Parts of the World hath carry'd off all the Oar, so that now there is only the Dust remaining. This was refin'd, not in the Country where it was digg'd, but in the Country to which it was carry'd; and therefore we hear so much of (i) casting Silver, (k) refin'd Silver, (l) the molten Calf, and (m) molten Images, whilst the Israelites were in the Wilderness, and (n) the fining Pot for Silver, and the Furnace for Gold, and of (o) pure Gold, and (p) fine Gold at this Time, and in the Days of Solomon, and (q) of Casting Brals, and consequently other Metals in the Clay-Ground for the Use of the Temple. The Difficulty is therefore what Abatement to make for the Refining the Gold and Silver from the Oar. Of this there is no Certainty, because some Lumps may be better than others, not only in different Countries but even in the same; the Mines which are nearest to the Surface the Earth, being richer than the rest. However (r) there is one Text, by which we may give a Guess how to compute it, The words of the LORD are pure words: as silver tried in a furnace of earth, purified seven times. It may be doubted, whether the Word seven times is a just Translation, since it is well known, that one Refining of Gold or Silver is as effectual as a thousand. The Hebrew Word is only us'd (s) once more in the whole Book of Psalms, where (t) the Chaldee Paraphrase renders it One for seven, or One Part for seven; and if this is allow'd to be a just Proportion, the other Verse may be render'd thus, As silver tried in a furnace of earth, and so purified, that only one Part in seven remains. Let us then take for granted, that a Talent of the Sanctuary was 125 Pound Weight, the common Talent must be half so much, or  $62\frac{1}{2}$  Pound. Let us then suppose it to be 63 Pound; in such a Case after the Refining there will remain a seventh Part, or nine Pound of pure Gold or Silver to a Talent, and then the Treasures which David heap'd up for this Use may be thus computed, which being divided by 30, the Number of Years, shews that David heap'd up two Millions and an half yearly for this Purpose.

As for (u) the Brals, the Iron, the Wood, the Onyx Stones, the glistering Stones of divers Colours, all the other precious Stones, and the Marble, which David provided, there is no way to account for the Value of it; but if we may suppose, that

76. According to this Computation we may guess at the Difference of the Gold and Silver provided for the Tabernacle in the Wilderness, and that for the Temple at Jerusalem. The Gold and Silver provided for the Tabernacle was pure, because (x) it consisted of their current Money, and the Weight was (y) according to the Weights of the Sanctuary; so that each Talent weigh'd about 125 Pound, and each Shekel about half an Ounce. So that (z) the Weight was thus,

Weight of it was six hundred and threescore and six talents of gold; besides that which chapmen and merchants brought, and all the kings of Arabia, and governors of the countreys, who by Trading into Canaan, brought gold and silver to Solomon. This we may suppose to be pure Gold, because no Gatherers of Taxes would take the same in Oar, since the Value would be absolutely uncertain: These 666 Talents being the King's Talents of about 63 Pound Weight each, will amount to 41058 Pound Weight, which at 48 l. Sterling for each Pound, will amount to 2013984 Pounds in Value in the whole; and therefore it appears from hence, that David might, by a frugal Way of Living, raise in thirty Years Time, the Quantity of Gold already mention'd. Beside this, (c) Solomon went to Ezion-geber, and to Elath at the sea side in the land of Edom, where he built a Navy of large Ships, of the Fashion of those which had been formerly built at Tarshish. And Hiram sent him servants; who had knowledge of the sea, and they went with the servants of Solomon to Ophir, and took from thence four hundred and fifty talents of gold, and brought them to king Solomon. This Weight we may suppose to be the King's Talent of about 63 Pound Weight, and that they brought it in Oar from Ophir, but refin'd it before they brought it to Solomon; and according to this Computation the Weight of the Gold will be 28350 of pure Gold, the Value will be 1360800 Pounds Sterling; and the Weight of the Gold in the Oar, brought home in the Ships will be 198450 Pounds, or about 99 Tun. (d) In the Book of Kings it is said to be but four hundred and thirty talents. But if Solomon gave thirty Talents out of the first Sum to the Servants of Hiram for their Kindness (which we may well suppose) the other Sum will remain to be put into the Treasury. King Solomon being therefore encourag'd by this Success, sends (e) the same Fleet frequently after to the same Place, who return'd once in three Years with the Product of the same Country. What the Value of their Freight was is not mention'd.

77. From hence we may be able to guess the Quantity of Gold, which was gather'd by a yearly Tax from his own Subjects, and all the Kings, which David had conquer'd, not only on the east Side of the River Jordan, but also southward from Sihor the River of Egypt, as far northward as the Enttring in of Hamath, and the River Euphrates. We are (b) expressly told, that the

(x) Exod. 39. 26. (y) Exod. 38. 24, 26. (z) This appears by multiplying 29, the Number of the Talents of Gold, by 125, or the Pounds in a Talent, and Dividing the 730 Shekels by 24, because 24 Shekels make a Pound. The same may be said of the Silver. (a) For if 75249384, the Value of the one, is divided by 233222, the Quotient will be 322. (b) 2 Chron. 9. 13, 14. 1 Kings 10. 14, 15. (c) 2 Chron. 8. 17, 18. (d) 1 Kings 9. 27, 28. (e) 1 Kings 10. 22, and 2 Chron. 9. 21. There being Mention of Tarshish in both these Texts, most Commentators have concluded, that these Ships sail'd either to Tarsus in Cilicia, or Tartessus in Spain, both which Places were antiently call'd Tarshish, and therefore they could not be the same Fleet, which sail'd from Ezion-geber in the Red-Sea, because there is no Communication from thence to these Countries lying in the Mediterranean. But against this it may be objected, that the Ivory, Apes, and Peacocks here mention'd, could not be brought from these Countries, but from Persia, and other Places, which lie to the East of the Red-Sea, and where they had also Plenty of Gold and Silver. But if by Ships of Tarshish are meant Ships of the same Make with those of Tarshish, all the Difficulty in the Book of Kings will be remov'd. In this Sense it is said, 1 Kings 22. 48. that Jehoshaphat made ships of Tarshish to go to Ophir for gold, but they went not, for the ships were broken at Ezion-geber. That Text in Chronicles is more obscure; but if we look narrowly into the Hebrew Text, it may be translated thus, For the Ships, which belong'd to the king, were sailing vessels of the Tarshish Make, which went with the servants of Hiram; once in three years went these Ships of the Tarshish Make, bringing the Merchandise before mention'd from Ophir, and the Parts adjacent, as the Product of those Countries.

being sometimes more and sometimes less; but we are expressly told, that they brought with them at their Return Gold, and Silver, and Ivory, and Apes, and Peacocks.

78. It might have been expected, that Solomon would have began the Building of the Temple in the first Year of his Reign, according to the express Command of David his Father, who had provided all Materials for so great a Work; so that there was nothing wanting but (f) Timber and Stones, which might be had for Cutting them down, or Digging them up in the Forest of Lebanon, or the neighbouring Mountains. But the Reason was, because Solomon resolv'd to defray all the Expence of the Workmen at his own Cost; and if there was any Overplus remaining of what David had dedicated for this Work, it should (g) be put into the Treasury of the House of the LORD, and serve for Reparations, as Occasion did require. And therefore he stood in Need of four Years Time to gather up so much Gold and Silver, as might be necessary for this Purpose, that there might afterward be no Delay. When he began to build, he had (h) threescore and ten thousand Men that bare burdens, and fourscore thousand bearers in the mountains, he had also a levy of thirty thousand men out of all Israel, who were a Month at Lebanon, and two Months at home, and (i) three thousand and three hundred officers, who ruled over the people, that wrought in the work, and also three hundred superior Officers, who were over those other Officers, and took an Account of the whole to make the full Number of three thousand and six hundred, as they are (k) mention'd in the Book of Chronicles. So that he could not have so few as an hundred and eighty thousand Men in constant Pay, and these at (l) a Roman Penny, or seven Pence half Penny of our Money a Day (if we reckon two and fifty Weeks in the Year, and six working Days in the Week) will receive for their Pay above 1756000 Pounds Sterling every Year. This indeed Solomon could well afford, because his annual Tax of 666 Talents of Gold came to something more. But then we must consider, that Solomon (m) liv'd in Peace, the (n) Furniture for all his Palaces was very costly, and his (o) Table was very magnificent, and every thing else proportionable to his Grandeur, whereas David had (p) been always us'd to a frugal Way of Living. Besides Solomon had long before (q) married an Ammonitess, and soon after (r) he married the Daughter of Pharaoh King of Egypt. How far the Company, which came with them out of (s)

these idolatrous Nations, might lessen his Affection for so great a Work, we cannot tell; and in such a Case, as he was so young, he might not begin it from a Principle of Zeal, but for Ostentation, and therefore he might defer it the longer. However he had other Affairs of Consequence to settle in the Beginning of his Reign, and he was not sure how things would succeed at this Juncture. Tho' in David's Life Time he had (t) pardon'd Adonijah; yet as soon as David was dead, Adonijah (u) desires that Abishag the Shunamite, who had lain with David during his Illness, might be his Wife, and desires Bathsheba, Solomon's Mother, to solicit him for this Purpose. Solomon well knew, that no Subject ought to marry the Concubine of the King, and that the Granting of this would increase Adonijah's Pretensions to the Crown, and therefore being jealous of his Designs, he order'd Benajah his (x) General to kill him, which was done accordingly.

79. It is probable, that after Abiathar had been turn'd out of the Priesthood in (x) the Life-Time of David, he did not submit to the Sentence, but continu'd to officiate; and therefore Solomon confines him to live upon an Estate, which he had in the Country, so that he could not come to Jerusalem upon Pain of Death, and then (y) Zadok officiated in that Office without Molestation. Joab hearing of Adonijah's Death, and Abiathar's Banishment, fear'd that his Turn would be next, and therefore (z) he flees to the Altar, that the Sacredness of the Place might protect him. But this being (a) no Security in the Case of wilful Murder, and he, refusing to come from thence, was there slain by the King's Order. After this he confines (b) Shimei to his House in Jerusalem, upon Pain of Death, if he went to any great Distance; to which Shimei consented, and observ'd it for some Time.

80. Solomon being now secur'd in his Kingdom, (c) goes to Gibeon, where the Tabernacle and Altar were kept, which had been made in the Wilderness. Here he resolves to express his Thanks to GOD for all his Mercies in the most solemn Manner, and accordingly he offers a thousand Burnt-offerings upon the Altar. The Night after GOD promis'd to grant him whatever he ask'd, and when he ask'd for Wisdom to govern the People, GOD was so pleas'd with his Petition, that he also promis'd him Wisdom and Honour; and Solomon, when he came to Jerusalem, express'd his Gratitude a second Time, by Sacrificing before the Ark of the Covenant, which was Anno after this (f) Hiram King of Tyre Mundi sends a Messenger to Solomon to con- 2992. dole the Death of his Father, and congratulate him upon his Accession to the Throne; Solomon takes this Opportunity to desire Hewers of Wood and Stone from him, to provide Materials for the Building of the Temple, offering to gratify both him and them to their Content. Josephus (g) mentions two Letters at large, one of King Solomon to King Hiram, and the other of King Hiram to King Solomon on this Subject, and almost in the same Words, as (h) they are express'd in the Scriptures, and adds, The Duplicates of these Letters are extant to this Day both in the Jewish and in the Tyrian Records; and they who have a Mind to be better satisfied in the truth of this, let them only consult the Keepers of those Registries, and they shall find the Matter of Fact to be just as it is mention'd.

81. In the following Year (i) two Servants of Shimei, who had curs'd King David in his Trouble, fled from him to Gath; which Shimei hearing of, went thither from Jerusalem, and brought them back with him. Solomon puts him in Mind of the Promise, which he had made three Years before upon pain of Death, not to undertake such a Journey, and upon this he orders Benajah to kill him; which being done, the Kingdom was quiet and easy, free from both foreign and domestick Enemies; so that this was a proper Time to begin the Foundation of the Temple, which was justly esteem'd to be one, or rather the Principal of all the Wonders of the World.

82. The Time when this Temple was begun, is (k) expressly mention'd to be in the four hundred and eightieth year, after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt. And as the Scripture particularly specifies the Years from the Creation to this Time, so there can be no Dispute concerning this Year in General, tho' there may be some Variation in Computing the Times between.

83. The Place, where the Temple was built, is well known to be at Jerusalem, and particularly upon (l) the Top of Mount Moriah. The Building upon the Top thereof made an exact Square of 800 Cubits, or about 1460 Feet long on each side, exactly fronting the East, West, North, and South. In the very Center whereof stood the Altar for the Burnt Sacrifices, on the (m) very Spot where the Threshing Floor of Araunah the Jebusite formerly stood, and where David offer'd up a Sacrifice to remove the Plague, and also where Abraham (n) bound Isaac upon the Altar, with a Resolution to offer him up also. For the Making of this Building firm and secure, there was a Necessity to begin the Foundation at the Bottom of the Mount Moriah; so that the sides were three hundred and three and thirty Cubits, or about six hundred and eight Feet high, before they were rais'd to the Level of the Temple, which afforded a most noble Prospect especially to the West toward the chief Part of the City of Jerusalem. And some say, that (o) it hath been seen by those, who have sail'd on the Mediterranean Sea, which was five and forty Miles Distance. It is impossible to guess at the Work in Raising this Foundation, because it is impossible to guess, how much of the Mountain must be fill'd up, and how much in the other Places must be taken away, to bring it to an exact Square for so great a Height. But when we consider that there were 180000 Workmen employ'd for seven Years and an half, it is admirable what Business could be found for them; and when we think on the vast Fabrick, it is as admirable, how it could be compleated. Josephus saith, (p) that the Foundation was laid prodigiously deep, and the Stones not only of the largest size, but hard, and firm enough to endure all Weathers, and Proof against the Worm. Besides, they were so morticed one into another, and wedg'd into the Rock, that the Strength and Curiosity of the Basis was not less admirable, than the intended Superstructure, and the one every Way answerable to the Beauty and Magnificence of the other. The Walls were all of a white Stone from the Ground to the Ceiling. In short, the whole Frame was rais'd upon Stones polish'd to the highest Degree of Perfection, and so artificially put together, that there was no Joint to be discern'd, nor the least Sign of a Hammer, or of any working Tool, that had ever came upon it. All things being so accommodated and adjusted one Piece to another, that upon the whole Matter it look'd more like the Work of Providence and Nature, than the Product of Art or human Invention. And therefore the Disciples might justly speak of the whole with Admiration, (q) See, what manner of stones, and what buildings are here, tho' it was then much inferior to what it was at first.

(o) This is impossible: For admitting, according to Whiston's Astronomy, pag. 12. that a Degree, or 60 Minutes, contain'd 68.4. Statute Miles, and that these in Canaan were Statute Miles; in such a Case these 45 Miles would contain 39 Minutes of a Degree. Let us then suppose the Foundation of the Temple to stand on the Curve of the Earth, and the utmost Height of the highest Tower to be 827 Feet high, viz. 608 to the Top of the Mount, or the Foundation of the Temple, and 120 Cubits, 2 Chron. 3. 4. or 219 Feet from thence. If so, then the Secant of such an Angle, or o d. 39 m. being 643 above the Radius, or 10000000, it is evident, that as Radius, or 10000000 is to 643; so is the Semi-Diameter of the Earth, or 20949655 Feet, to 1346 Feet or the Height of any Building requir'd to make it visible at such a Distance. (p) Jewish Antiq. Book 8. Chap. 2.

84. If it might be lawful to add any Conjectures, to what so many eminent and learned Men have already mention'd on this Subject, I should suppose two things. First, That these Sides were curiously and exactly fram'd, that so the Sight of them might answer to the admirable Magnificence, which was upon the Top; and therefore they were not so very plain as they are commonly represented to be. Uniformity is the Grace of every Building, and if these Sides were not curiously fram'd, the lower Part of the Building could not be uniform with the upper. And Secondly, that the Altar of Burnt Offering, which stood in the Court of the Priests at the Door of the Temple, was a small Draught or Representation of the whole Fabrick. Little things are often the Resemblance of greater; and greater things are often made from a small Pattern. The silver Shrines, which (r) Demetrius made at Athens were nothing else but an Imitation of the great Temple of Diana. The Temple it self had a great Affinity with the Tabernacle in the Wilderness. And Solomon is (s) suppos'd to pray in this Manner, Thou hast commanded me to build a temple upon thy holy mount, and an altar in the city where thou dwellest, a resemblance of the holy tabernacle, which thou hast prepar'd from the beginning. The whole Fabrick was often call'd הר אל Har-el, or The Mount of GOD; and the Altar was call'd אריאל Ariel, or The Lion of GOD. The Rabbins also (t) frequently call all the Sides by this Name, The Mount of GOD; and the Reasons, which they give, why they call the Top Ariel, have little Satisfaction in them, viz. either because the Holy Fire, that came down from Heaven, couched on it like a Lion; or because of its Devouring so many Sacrifices like a Lion. And another Reason might perhaps be added, which is, They could not call the Altar directly, The Mount of GOD, but because it had a Resemblance of this Mount, therefore they at first contriv'd to call it by a Name, which did as much as possible resemble the Name of the other. And more particularly, they call'd the Sides of the Altar Har-el, or The Mount of GOD, because of the great Likeness, which the Sides of the one had to the Sides of the other.

85. If this Conjecture may be admitted, it will be easy to give an Account of the Building on the Sides of the Mount. The Altar being 24 Cubits broad on the Top, and ten Cubits high; and the Temple being 800 Cubits, or about 1460 Feet broad on the Top, the Proportion of the Height must be (u) 608 Feet high, and (x) near the same it is allow'd to be. Thus 61 Feet on the Side of the Temple may be allow'd also for the Space of a Cubit on the Side of the Altar. Now (y) the Altar at the Bottom was two and thirty Cubits, and consequently the Foot of the Mount must be about 1947 Feet. From thence the Altar rose one Cubit, and bench'd in one Cubit; and therefore the Side of the Mount rose about 61 Feet, and bench'd in 61 Feet. So that at every such Benching there was a Walk round, from whence a Prospect of the Country might be seen. And that this was the Method of stately Buildings in former Times, appears by the Description of the Tower of Babylon. The Altar now being thirty Cubits Square, did rise five Cubits, and bench'd in one Cubit; and thus the Side of the Mount at the first Walk being 1625 Feet Square, did rise 305 Feet, and bench'd in 64 Feet more. From thence the Altar being 28 Cubits Square, did rise 3 Cubits, and bench'd in two Cubits, and thus the Temple being 1703 Feet square did rise 163 Feet, and bench'd in 122 Feet. From hence the Altar being 24 Feet square did rise one Cubit, which was to the Hearth, on which the Offerings were burnt; and from thence the Mount being 1460 Feet square, did rise to the ground-Plot, on which the Temple was built. According to this Account, there were (z) 1086101 Feet in each Side of the Building adjoining to the Mount, or 4344404 Feet in the four Sides; and if we may suppose, that (a) the 180000 Men might finish the same in four Julian Years, or in 1252 Working Days, it would require 52 Workmen to finish a Foot Square in a Day, which we need not to wonder at, if we consider the vast Rocks which must be levell'd, the vast Ca-

(x) Father Lamy makes the Sides to be 300 Cubits, or 547 Feet, and others, who come nearer the Truth, allow 600. (y) Prideaux's Historical Connexion, Part 1. Book 3. Anno 535. (z) This appears by Multiplying the Sides of the four Oblongs on the Side of the Temple, according to this Supposition, viz. The lowest Oblong 1947 Feet long, and 61 Feet broad; the second 1825 long, and 305 broad; the third 1703 long, and 183 broad; and the fourth 146 long, and 61 broad, and Adding them all together. (a) This appears by Multiplying the Number of Workmen 180000, by the Number of Days 1252, and Dividing the same by 4344404, the Number of Feet in the four Sides.

verns which must be fill'd up, the vast Height of some Parts of it, the vast Buttresses to support it, and the vast Quantity of Materials, which must be brought from a considerable Distance, particularly both Stones and Timber from the Forest of Lebanon, which was to be landed at Joppa, above forty Miles Distance from Jerusalem, and also that (d) it is reported, that there were Chambers in the Sides of the Mount sufficient to contain above 100000 Men; so that after the utmost Scrutiny the Number of Men employ'd, the Quantity of Materials prepar'd, the Length of Time in Building, and the Cost of Workmen seem to be well proportion'd to the Greatness of the Work, and what was possible to be done in those Days.

85. As for the Buttresses which were made for the Support of this Fabrick, they are allow'd to be six in each Side, and if we may allow them to be (e) a fifth Part of the Space between, which is a Proportion that the Scripture takes Notice of, each Buttress will take up a twenty sixth Part of the whole; so that the Top being 1460 Feet in the Side, each Buttress will be fifty six Feet broad at the Bottom, the Sides of the two outermost being plac'd under the upper Corner of the Building, and the others at equal Distances. Now it was customary for the Jews never to go in and out at the same Side of the Temple, because they would not turn their Backs upon it, and for the same Reason they chose to go out at the opposite Side; so that it is evident, that there were Stairs to go up and down at each Side of the Temple. These Stairs we may suppose to be upon these Buttresses, and if there were two Pair to each, with a Wall of about two Feet thick in the middle to part them, they might go up at each Corner, and land at each Bench, with a Walk of seven Feet broad including the Battlement, to prevent them from Falling thence, and there might be a winding Stairs at each Return. In this Case each Buttress would be 14 Feet less at the first Bench, 28 at the second, 42 at the third, and there would only be remaining 14 Feet more, for the Landing-Place on the Top of the Mount.

86. It hath been said, that this Temple hath afforded a delightful Prospect to such as have sail'd on the Mediterranean Sea at five and forty Miles Distance. But this is impossible; for omitting all other Reasons, the Curve of the Earth at such a Distance is so great, that (f) a Building must be 1347 Feet high, that the Top thereof may be seen at such a Distance; and the Height of the Temple (g) could not possibly be seen above six and thirty Miles for the same Reason.

87. It may also be objected against this Platform, that the north and south Sides seem not to be near so high, as they are here represented. But in Answer to this, the Temple is now consider'd, as it was in the Days of Solomon, and not as it was in the Time of Josephus, at above a thousand Years Distance. There is Reason to believe, that the Rubbish, occasion'd by all Repairs, were thrown into the Valleys, which lie on the north and south; and there must be extraordinary Quantities, when the Temple was (h) plunder'd by Shishak, and also in the Reigns of (i) Jehoiakim and (k) Jehoiakin, and the (l) last Captivity in the Time of Zedekiah. When they return'd from the Captivity, they took a great Deal of Pains in (m) Repairing the Temple, and (n) a great Deal of the Rubbish carried off in Repairing the adjacent Walls of the City might be thrown in there. The same may be said, of what happen'd in (o) the Time of Judas Maccabeus, and after that, when (p) six and forty Years were spent in the Repair of this Fabrick. On the south Side lay (*) Mount Zion, furnish'd with many gallant Buildings, or the Palace, Court and City of David, and the famous Palace call'd The Forest of Lebanon built by Solomon, and what came from hence might help to fill the Ditch, and they might the more readily do it to make the Passage between the Palace and Temple more easy. On the north Side lay the Mount Akra, which was naturally higher than Moriab or the Temple, but (q) levell'd very

(d) See Father Lamy, lib. 5. cap. 4. sect. 4 and 5, concerning the vast Number of subterraneous Rooms and Passages in the Temple. (e) 1 Kings 6. 3 (f) For let us suppose these Miles to be equal to the Statute Miles in Use among us, consisting of 5280 Feet; and that, according to Whiston in his Prælectiones Astronomicæ, pag. 12. a great Circle round the Earth contain'd 24930 of these Miles. In this Case 69  $\frac{1}{4}$  Miles will make a Degree, as appears by Dividing the said Sum by 360, or the Degrees round the Globe, and consequently 45 Miles will be nearly equal to 39 Minutes. Now the natural Secant of 39 Minutes is 10000643, and the Semi-diameter of the Earth (Whiston, ibid. pag. 13.) 20949655; and therefore as Radius 10000000 is to 20949655; so is 643, or the Excess of the Secant above Radius, to 1347, or the Feet requir'd to raise a Building equal to the Curve of the Earth at that Distance. (g) For let us suppose the Sides of the Mount to be 608 Feet high, and the Height of the highest Tower to be 250 Feet higher than the Top of the Mount, as it is commonly computed to be, so that the Total is 858: In this Case, as the Earth's Semi-diameter, or 20949655 is to Radius, or 10000000; so is 858 the Height suppos'd, to 409 or the Excess of the Secant of 31 Minutes, which is equal to 36 Statute Miles. much by the Asmonæan Family in the Time their Reign, when the Valley between was very much rais'd and fill'd up with Earth, that the Temple might overtop the Buildings on Acra, and that the Going up from thence to the Temple might be the more plain and easy. And it is probable, that (r) the Prophecy of Isaiah being misunderstood might contribute much to this Purpose, who said, that every valley should be exalted, and every mountain and hill should be made low, and the crooked should be made straight, and the rough places plain. And the glory of the LORD should be revealed, and all flesh should see it together; for the mouth of the LORD hath spoken it. This might be the Reason, that under the second Temple there might be no Buttresses on the north Side, tho' the Valley might have been much deeper; and consequently the Building might have been much otherwise, when it was finish'd by Solomon.

88. On the east Side of the Altar there was a plain Ascent of thirty two Cubits long and sixteen Cubits broad, which was equal to the Foot of the Altar; and therefore this Ascent to the Temple might be equal to the Foundation thereof, or 1947 Feet long. This Ascent of the Altar was sixteen Cubits broad, or half the Breadth of the Length, which landed on the upper Bench, and according to this Computation the Breadth of this Ascent to the Temple might be 973 Feet. From this Ascent to the Altar, there (s) was a Passage of a Cubit broad to the second Bench, which was six Cubits high from the Ground; and according to the like Proportion from this Ascent to the Temple there might be a Passage of sixty one Feet broad on each Side, to go to the second Walk round the Temple, which must be 366 Feet high from the Ground, and then the remaining Ascent would be 1825 Feet broad. It is not impossible but this might be (t) the Ascent, by which Solomon went up to the House of the LORD, which the Queen of Sheba so very much admir'd, tho' it must be own'd, that the Septuagint and our best Commentators do favour another Opinion. In this Case the (u) Ascent would not be very steep, and there might easily be three large Pair of Stairs, one in the Middle, and two at the Sides, that they who went up this Way, might land on the Top of the Mount. And if 62 Workmen were as necessary to finish a Foot Square in a Day in this, as in the other Building, the whole might be finish'd in about 288 Days; or thus the whole Frame as far as the Top of the Mount might be finish'd in about four Years

Time, and the other three Years and an half might be spent upon that which is properly call'd The Temple. And this, tho' it is much less in Bulk, might take up a greater Time, because of the great Height to which the Materials were to be brought, and especially because it consisted of the most curious Workmanship of all Sorts.

89. In the outer Part of the Square of the Temple there was a Battlement from one End to the other of about five Feet thick, and twenty Feet high, to prevent any Persons from Falling down, and in this there were Windows made of gold Wire, from whence any Person might have a delightful Prospect of the whole Country. Within this there was a Terrace-walk, which with the Battlement contain'd a sixteenth Part of the whole Breadth on each Side, that is fifty Cubits, or about 91 Feet, so that what now remain'd was a Square of about 1765 Feet. Into this Court all Strangers might come without Distinction, so that here were the (x) Buyers and sellers, and the tables of the money changers. This remaining Square was encompass'd with (y) Solomon's Porch, which was built upon Pillars 60 Feet high, and was a sixteenth Part of the whole, or fifty Cubits in Breadth, where the People might conveniently walk, it being cover'd over as a Security against the Weather, and the outward Part inclos'd also with a Wall for the same Purpose, in which there were Windows, from whence they might behold those, who walk'd in the outward Walk. To this Porch there was an Ascent of twenty Cubits or about 36 Feet high, being supported with Pillars of 30 Cubits or about 55 Feet high, so that the whole was 50 Cubits or about 91 Feet high from the Terrace-walk. On each Side of this Porch there were several Gates, and probably others to answer them in the inner Parts of the Temple. On the east Side there was but one Gate, because there were few or no Inhabitants of the City on that Side. This Gate was opposite to the grand Ascent, and call'd (z) The Gate of Shushan, or the King's Gate. On the south Side there were two Gates, one over against the King's Palace, and the other nearer to the common Part of the City, and each of these Gates was call'd (a) The Gate of Huldah. On the west Side there were four Gates, because it lay opposite to the greatest Part of the City. The two first were call'd (b) The Gate of Asuphim, the third (c) Parbar Gate, and the fourth, (d) The Gate Shallebeth. The north Side had but one Gate, because in Solomon's Time, the Mount

Acra which stood on that Side had a very deep Descent, so that they who came from those Parts were generally oblig'd to go in at another Side, and this was call'd (e) The north Gate, and sometimes Tedi or Tadde. Over this directly in the Middle there was a Gallery of twenty Cubits, or about 36 Feet high, containing a third Part of the Breadth, which had a Covering supported by three Rows of Pillars, but it was open all round to take a more beautiful Prospect of the City and Country. Within this there was another open Square quite round, and bounded on every Side with Solomon's Porch; the Breadth of this was also fifty Cubits, or about 91 Feet. This was call'd, The Court of the Gentiles. Into this all might enter, who had embrac'd the Jewish Religion, of any Nation whatsoever, and were therefore call'd The Strangers which were within their gates; tho' they were not admitted into the inner Buildings, call'd The Court of Israel, or (f) The congregation of the LORD, until the Time appointed by the Law of Moses. These Squares seem to have been the Original of Building Quadrangles in Colleges, and particularly of square Cloysters or Walks in most Colleges, and especially in Cathedral Churches. Thus the whole being 800 Cubits, and an Allowance being made of each Side of 50 Cubits for the Terrace-walk, 50 Cubits for Solomon's Porch, and 50 Cubits for the Court of the Gentiles, that is, 150 Cubits on each Side, or 300 in the Whole, there will still remain a Square of 500 Cubits, which was call'd, The Court of the Israelites. This we must first divide into nine Squares, each Square consisting of an hundred Cubits in each Side, and encompass'd with Buildings of 50 Cubits in Breadth; so that opposite to each Front there were four Rows of such Buildings, viz. two Rows to inclose the nine Squares, and two others to divide the Squares from each other. So that these four Rows took up the Space of two hundred Cubits, and the three Squares 300 more, which was the whole Space. There was an Ascent on either Side from the Court of the Gentiles to the Court of the Israelites. This, like Solomon's Porch, was inclos'd on the Out-side with a Wall, which went up to the Top of the Building, in which there were Windows, to look out from the Bottom upon those who walk'd in the Court of the Gentiles, or in Solomon's Porch, and likewise for the Conveniency of the Chambers, which were join'd to it, in the same Building. In the Middle of the Side of this Square, which look'd toward the East, stood the Gate of Nicanor, call'd (g) the Upper Gate, and (h) the New Gate, and also (i) the beautiful Gate of the Temple. Before this Gate there was an Ascent of fifteen Steps, and upon some solemn Occasions the Levites sang the 120th Psalms, and the fourteen which immediately follow, as they went up, singing one Psalms upon each Step; and hence each of these Psalms is intitl'd, A Song of Degrees, or Steps. This, together with all the inner Buildings, were built upon Pillars of thirty Cubits, or about 55 Feet high, that so the whole Congregation of the Children of Israel might see the Burnt-offerings consum'd with Fire on the Altar, and worship the LORD at the same Time; and it is certain, that if the Pillars were plac'd in equilateral Triangles, at a due Distance from each other, such a Position would be fittest for such a Purpose. Over these Pillars there was an arch'd Work of Stone to support the Buildings, which were upon it. These were (k) the chambers of the Priests, viz. those that were round the Court of the Priests, and all the rest were Chambers for the Levites, who officiated in their respective Courses, and are suppos'd to be two Stories one above the other. These were the Buildings describ'd by the Prophet (l) Ezekiel; and tho' he makes them much larger than they really were, yet there is no Doubt, but the one was agreable to the Pattern of the other. These inner Buildings were divided into nine Quadrangles; the first of these at the Entrance, and the other six on the two Sides were call'd the Courts of the Israelites. They were enclos'd round by a Building set upon Pillars of twenty five Cubits broad, and separated from each other by others of the same Nature, and the Sides of each Square were fifty Cubits in Length. The two innermost Squares opposite to the middle Entrance were not divided from each other like the rest, so that it was in the Form of an Oblong of fifty Cubits broad, and an hundred and five and twenty Cubits long, and may be divided into two Parts, viz. The middle Part, and the inner Part. In the middle Part there was the Altar of Burnt-offering, which stood directly in the Center of the whole Building; and in the inner Part there was a stately Building, which sometimes is strictly call'd The Temple, and is the only Part particularly describ'd in (m) the Books both of Kings and Chronicles. This Temple may be compar'd to a Church, with a Tower over the Porch at the Entrance, a middle Isle, and two others on each Side, and the Chancel at the farther End. Before the Porch and Tower there was an Ascent of twelve Steps, or about six Cubits. Upon the Ascent there was the Porch or great Door, and over it the Tower, which is said (u) to be twenty Cubits in Length, ten Cubits in Breadth, and an hundred and twenty Cubits in Height. This must be reckon'd not from the Court of the Priests, but from the Top of the Mount. Thus from the Top of the Terrace-walk, to the Level of Solomon's Porch, was thirty Cubits. From the Level of Solomon's Porch to the Level of the Courts, both of the Israelites and the Priests, were thirty Cubits more, or threescore in the whole. From the Level of these Courts, to the Top of the Tower, was threescore Cubits more, or about 109 Feet high, including the Steps, which were six Cubits, or about eleven Feet in the whole. On either Side of the Porch there was a Room call'd, The Chamber of the Knives, fifteen Cubits in Length, and ten Cubits in Breadth, equal to the Breadth of the Porch. Within the Porch there was the Body of the Temple twenty Cubits broad, and sixty Cubits long, including the Holy of Holies, and thirty Cubits high from the Floor, or thirty six from the Court; over this there was an Arch in the Form of a Semicircle, which must therefore be ten Cubits high or forty six in all. Beyond this there was the Holy of Holies twenty Cubits broad, twenty Cubits long, and twenty Cubits high from the Floor, and over this an Arch like the other, so that it was ten Cubits lower than the Body of the Temple. From the Chamber of the Knives round the Temple, and the Holy of Holies, there were Chambers for the Priests, which cannot better be describ'd than in the (o) express Words of Scripture: Against the wall of the house he built chambers round about, against the walls of the house round about, both of the temple and the oracle: and he made chambers round about. The nethermost chamber was five cubits broad, and the middle was six cubits broad, and the third was seven cubits broad: for without in the wall of the house he made narrowed rests round about, that the beams should not be fasten'd in the walls of the house. The Chambers were five cubits high; and they went up with winding stairs on the Outside into the middle chamber, and from the middle Chamber to the third, so that there seems to be Galleries to go to the Doors of the second and third Stories. And over the Chambers there were made windows of narrow lights, or narrow without and broad within; so that the Temple on the Inside must be but a dark Place, and it did thereby more fitly represent the Darkness of the Law, especially when compar'd with the Gospel.

90. There seems to be some Difficulty in the Computations between the Temple, as it was built by Solomon, and as it was rebuilt after the Captivity. It is certain, that when it was rebuilt, it was (p) as nothing, in Comparison of what it was in its first Glory. And (q) many of the Priests and Levites, and chief of the fathers, who were ancient men, that had seen the first house, when the foundation of this house was laid before their eyes, wept with a loud voice. However, this may be said of the whole Pile of Building in general, and not of the Temple strictly so call'd. As to the Temple strictly so call'd, we cannot suppose the latter in any Respect to exceed the former. Now there are some things in (r) the Decree of Cyrus, in which at the first View it seem'd to exceed. Here the Breadth is said to be threescore cubits, and (s) the Breadth of the other was but twenty Cubits. But as (r) the Word in the Decree of Cyrus which we translate the Breadth, may signify the Length, and there is no other Account but this of its Length; so the Decree was given to make it of the (u) exact Length of the other, which was threescore Cubits. Secondly, The Decree of Cyrus directs the Height to be threescore Cubits; but (x) the Height of the other was but thirty Cubits, and if we add both the Steps, and the Arch which was over it, the whole will not bring it to such a Height. In Answer to this it may be consider'd, that the Decree of Cyrus mentions the Height of the highest Part or Tower, which (as it was before observ'd) was threescore Cubits, and so equal to this Height. This will help also to explain Josephus, who had seen this second Temple, and (y) saith of it, that it wanted to make it great, sixty Cubits in Height, for so much higher was the first Temple, which Solomon built. But Josephus judg'd, (z) that the Height of Solomon's Temple was an hundred and twenty Cubits high from the Court of the Priests, whereas this Height was to be reckon'd from the Top of the Mount, or the Terrace-walk, which was sixty Cubits lower than the Court of the Priests, and consequently both the Length and Height of the one might be equal to the other.

91. Let us now take a Prospect of the whole Building from the East, as an Israelite went up the sloping Ascent. If he walk'd near the Side thereof he might have a Prospect of the Side of the Mount; but if he went in the Middle, most of the Sides would be cover'd, and he would see before him the

Battlement before the Terrace Walk of 800 Cubits long and twenty Cubits high, and with the same Part of the Buildings in their Order. First Solomon's Porch seven Hundred Cubits long, and over that an open Walk of six hundred and sixty Cubits long. Next beyond that appears the Court of the Israelites five hundred Cubits long, with four low Towers on the Top of it of twenty Cubits broad, one at each End and two in the Middle at an hundred Cubits Distance from each other, and between them at an equal Distance from each, there is the high Tower appearing in the Center; and at convenient Places he will see Contrivances of Feathers, made of Gold and Silver to turn with the Wind, and frighten the Birds from Pitching on any Part of the Temple. When such a Person is enter'd within the Terrace Walk, the inner Buildings disappear, and one of the Sides of Solomon's Porch appears, being seven hundred Cubits long, and fifty Cubits high. Before this Court there is a Building of Chambers advancing forward about four and twenty Cubits from the Foundation, and thirty Cubits high, or equal with the next Court, call'd the Court of the Gentiles; in this there are six Rows of Chambers above each other. Above this Solomon's Porch is twenty Cubits in Height, containing four Rows of Chambers, and over that appears an open Gallery of twenty Cubits high supported with Pillars, and about six hundred and sixty Cubits long. And if such a Person turns back, he will see the Battlements, as they have been already describ'd; and at each End of the Porch in the respective Corners there were the Apartments for the Kitchens, containing an exact Square of Building from the Bottom to the Top, in which they dress'd the Provision for those who lodg'd in the Chambers belonging to the Porch; so that there was an advanc'd Corner of about sixteen Cubits, supported by two Rows of Pillars, that they who walk'd in either Side of the Porch might go round these Apartments, without being expos'd to the Injury of the Weather. When such a Man is gone farther into the next Court, or the Court of the Gentiles, the Front before him is the outer Part of the Court of the Israelites, being the Side of a Square of five hundred Cubits. At the Bottom thereof there is the Ḥṣṣ Rampart or Inclosure, being six Cubits high, and a Walk on the Top of it of ten Cubits broad. Before the Foundation of the next Wall, there was the Gate of Nicanor, or the Beautiful Gate of the Temple, and also a Building of Chambers at about twenty Cubits distance, and about twenty five Cubits high, to raise it equal with the next Court, or the Courts of the Israelites, containing five Rows of Chambers. Above this is the Court of the Israelites, being five and twenty Cubits higher, and containing five more Rows of Chambers; and over this appears four low Towers, each of twenty Cubits Breadth, two at the outer Corners, and two more equally distant from the Center, and an hundred Cubits distant from each other. And if such a Person turns back, he must see Solomon's Porch supported with four Rows of Pillars, of ten Cubits high, the farthest Part thereof being encompass'd with the Chambers of the Levites, there being over it also two Rows of Chambers, and over that the open Walk supported by Pillars, as it hath been already describ'd. When such a Person is enter'd into the Court of the Israelites, thro' the Beautiful Gate of the Temple, he sees before him one of the nine Courts supported by Pillars of about fifteen Cubits high, so that under them he can see thro' all the other Courts, and also the Altar of Burnt-offering, and beyond it Part of the Porch of the Temple, with the Chambers of the Knives, and above it he can see the upper Part of the Tower standing over the Porch, and two Rows of Chambers over the Pillars. And if such a Man turns back, he will see the other Side of the same Square supported by Pillars of ten Cubits high, with three Rows of Chambers above them, and inclos'd with other Chambers, as before mention'd. And when such a Man goes farther into the Court of the Priests, he will have a View of the Sides thereof like the Sides of the rest, and a full View of the Temple strictly so call'd, with its Porch standing before him.

92. From what hath been mention'd, we may be able to guess at the Number of Chambers in the whole Building. As the uppermost of those which were round the Temple were five Cubits high, and seven Cubits broad; so if we add the Space of a Cubit for the Wall between, and suppose all the rest to be of the same Bigness, we may allow eight Cubits in Breadth, and five in Height for each Chamber. Now it is suppos'd, that there were about twelve thousand Priests and Levites, or a thousand for each Tribe, which attended in their Courses upon the Service of the Temple, and lodg'd in these Apartments; and for Decency we may allow to each of them a particular Chamber, if we can tell where to find them.

1. Now the Sides of the Temple being 60 Cubits long, including the Holy of Holies, seven Chambers may be allow'd in each Row, or 21 in each Side, which will be 42 in both; and to these if we add five in a Row behind the Holy of Holies, or 15 in the Whole, the Number round the Temple will be 57.

2. The Buildings of every Square belonging to the Courts of the Israelites and the Priests, being fifty Cubits broad, there may well be allow'd four Rows of Chambers to every Story, or two Rows to each Side, with a large Gallery between, with large Sky-Lights on the Top, and Space sufficient for Winding-Stairs to go up to each Story, with Galleries to each sufficient for a Passage to each Door.

One of these Rows was call'd (a) inner chambers, or as it is in the Hebrew, There was a chamber within a chamber, because they went thro' one to enter into the other. And therefore the Court of the Priests being 250 Cubits long, there will be one and thirty Chambers in a Row, and two Stories high, or four Rows, there may be 124 in each Side, or 248 in both.

3. The inner Side being an hundred Cubits long, will contain twelve Chambers in a Row, and two Story high, or four Rows, the Number in the whole will be 48.

4. The outer Side being an hundred Cubits long, will also contain twelve Chambers in a Row, and two Story high, or four Rows, the Number in the whole will be 72.

5. The Sides of each of the Courts of the Israelites being like those of the Priests, each of the four Corner Courts having two outer Sides of 72 Chambers in each, and two inner Sides of 48 Chambers each, there will be 248 Chambers in each of these Courts, or 960 in the whole.

6. The three middle Courts between the outer Courts consisting of 72 Chambers in the outer Row, and three Sides of 48 Chambers in each Court, there will be 216 Chambers in one Court, or 648 in all the three.

7. The outside Wall of the Court of the Israelites being five hundred Cubits long, will contain 62 Chambers in a Row, and being 55 Cubits high, will contain 11 Stories, or 22 Rows; so that there will be in each Side 1364 Chambers, and 5456 in all the four Sides.

8. The outer Part of Solomon's Porch, being 700 Cubits long, will contain 87 Chambers in a Row, and being fifty Cubits high, will contain ten Stories or twenty Rows; so that there will be on each Side 1740 Chambers, and 6960 in all the four Sides. And therefore if we allow but one Window to a Chamber, yet it will be observable, that as the Cherubims, which attended the Divine Majesty, (b) were full of eyes all round about them; so the House, which was built for his more immediate Habitation, was full of Windows both within and without in the same Manner; and the Number of them may be thus computed.

1 Round the Temple	57
2 The two largest Sides of the Court of the Priests	248
3 The inner Side	48
4 The outer Side	72
5 The four Courts at the four Corners	960
6 The three Courts between them	648

The Remainder will be 12000 Chambers for the Priests and Levites.

93. As to the Manner of their Singing, it being only in a single Part, without Divisions of many Notes to one Syllable, or any such Variety, we may reasonably suppose, that (c) it did very much resemble that Part of our Cathedral Service, which we call The Chanting of the Psalms, especially when Men and Boys sing the same Part without a Bass, not excluding the other Variety of Responses, which we find in our Litany and also in our Morning and Evening Prayer. Thus we may suppose that (d) Our SAVIOUR sung an Hymn before he went to the Mount of Olives, and consequently that the (e) Primitive Church made no Alterations. Philo the Jew (f) saith, that the Essenes at Alexandria did some times sing together as in our Reading Psalms, and sometimes they harmoniously answer'd each other, as in our other Responses. Eusebius (g) saith, that the first Christians in those Parts, who were converted by St. Mark, sang Psalms and Hymns by a Precentor, the rest answering τὰ ἀκροτελεύτια, the Extremes of the Verses, as we do in the Litany. And the Apostolick Constitutions (h) describing the Manner of the Christian Service adds, After the reading the Lessons out of the old Testament let another sing the Psalms of David, and let the People answer τὰ ἀκροτελεύτια, the Extremes of the Verses. And it is (i) the Opinion of our Modern Divines, that we do in this agree with the ancient Church. St. Augustine (k) assures us, that the Church of Alexandria, in the Time of Athanasius (and no Doubt before) did take Care, that the Reader of the Psalms should sing with so small an Alteration of the Voice, that it might be more like to Pronouncing than Singing, and consequently it did well agree with the plain Chanting of our Cathedral Service. And as to the Church of Jerusalem, it is plain, that the Apostles, after they were inspir'd with the HOLY GHOST, did frequent the Temple at the Hours of Prayer, when they also offer'd up their Sacrifices of Praise and Thanksgiving. And (l) as they thus approv'd of their instrumental Musick and Manner of Singing; so it is probable, that they continu'd it in the Head Church, whether in Pella or the Ruins of Jerusalem, after the Dissolution of the Worship of the Temple. However, this is a Time, in which we have no Monuments, that can inform us to the contrary. From the Eastern Churches the Western receiv'd the same Custom of Singing or Chanting the Psalms. We are (m) assur'd, that it was thus at Rome in the Time of Damasus, the third Bishop there, after the Reign of Constantine the great. And (n) Ambrose Bishop of Milan, who was somewhat before Damasus, gives us some Hints thereof in his Time. And therefore as it increas'd in the Western Churches, as soon as the Storms of Persecution were blown over, so their Uniformity therein makes it the more probable, that they receiv'd it from the Churches of Alexandria.

94. Besides, This is the Method, which the Jews at this Time do use in all their Services in the Synagogue, and in all Places, whether in London, in Holland, in Germany, &c. who as Buxtorf tells us (o) sometimes obscurely, and (p) sometimes more plainly, do not read, but chant out the Hebrew Text. This they would never receive from the Christians; and their Uniformity in all Nations since their Dispersion shews, that they receiv'd it from their Ancestors in Jerusalem before that Time. And therefore as we may suppose, that this was the Method practis'd in the second Temple, we may conclude, that it resembled what was under the first. There were many, who (q) wept when they saw the second Temple, because it was so far inferior to the other, and they would also have express'd their Concern, if they could have perceiv'd the Singing in the latter, to be different from that which they had heard in the former. They who saw the first Temple, may be suppos'd to give Directions (as far as they could remember) for the Continuing of the same Musick without any Alterations.

We are told, that (r) both the singers and the porters kept the ward of their GOD, and the ward of the purification, according to the command of David and of Solomon his son: For in the days of David and Asaph of old there were chief of the singers, and songs of praise and thanksgiving unto GOD. And therefore, as they kept to all other Circumstances, according as it was in the Time of David and of Solomon his Son; so we may conclude, that they kept as near as possible to the Musick it self.

95. But to descend to some Particulars. First, They had their Precentor or Chauter, as we have in our Cathedrals. Neither is it unlikely, but that upon the Sabbath Days, or their publick Feasts, they might have two, one on the one Side and the other on the other, and each of these might probably be elected into this Office according to his Merit. The Business of the Precentor was to sing the first Verse, or at least the first Part thereof, that the rest of his Brethren might know what Tune to sing, and what Pitch to take, and join together in Performing the rest of the Service. Accordingly (s) Kircher tells us, that in the Time of David there was a certain Captain or Master, who govern'd the rest of the Singers, who had a better Voice, and a more exact Skill in Musick; and to him David gave those Psalms, which were to be sung to the musical Instruments. The (t) first of these was call'd ראש התחלה, The principal to begin, or (u) שר המשא, The master of the Song; and such might very probably Asaph, Heman, Ethan and Jeduthun be. Such a one was (x) Chenaniab, the chief of the Levites in this Office, who instructed about the song, because he was skilful. The other was (y) call'd שני מאחרי, The second from among his brethren. These were distinct after the Captivity, since it is recorded, (z) that Mattaniah the son of Micah, the son of Zabdi, the son of Asaph was the principal to begin the thanksgiving in prayer, and Bukbukiah the second among his brethren. Neither can we suppose, that this was the first Instance of two Precentors; for when the Israelites prais'd GOD for their Deliverance at the Red Sea, Moses was (a) Precentor to the Men, who made up the one Side of the Consort, and Miriam to the Women, who made up the other. That it was thus in the Time of the first Temple, may be collected from (b) the Words of Nehemiah, who tells us, that in the days of David and Asaph of old there were chief (or Heads) of the singers (ראשי המשוררים), perhaps in the dual Number to signify two) and a song (שיר in the singular Number) of praise and thanksgiving unto GOD. Thus it was with (c) the Essenes at Alexandria, whom Philo mentions, who speaks frequently of their Hymns, and tells us, that after the Expounding of the Law, one being the first or chief riseth up, and sings an Hymn to GOD, which he performs with various Turnings and Windings of the Voice; and the rest do imitate the Chief in a decent Order, every one listening attentively or quietly, except at the End or Close of all, for then they all lift up their Voices without Distinction of Sex. Thus our Anthems, which are sung in a single Part, do end in a Chorus. And when all are risen up, there are two Consorts, and each of them have their Precentor over them, who excels the rest in Honour and Skill of Singing; and then they sing Hymns to the Praise of GOD. So that this was one of the most antient and uninterrupted Offices among them.

96. Secondly, They had Singing-Men, and Singing-Boys. The first of these is evident; and as for the other, we must not suppose, that the Word (d) בנים, Children or Sons, should be limited to the natural Sons of their Bodies, but to those who made up the Consort according to their Order; since this Word, as it is found in all the oriental Languages, will admit of a very great Latitude in its Translation. It is certain, that these Sons were Part of the Singers, and had they been the natural Sons, it is very strange, that in all the four and twenty Orders the chief, with his Sons and his Brethren, should be neither more nor less than twelve. These might sing, the Men in Unison together, and the Boys in the Octave above; such a Number were sufficient for this Purpose, and they were not willing to have more, lest some of them being out of Tune should spoil that (e) one Sound, which was the Perfection of their Musick. And as (f) David settl'd their Method and Orders, the small as well as the great, we need not wonder at their Equality. It is probable, that at first (g) the Sons of Asaph, Heman and Jeduthun might supply those Places (and therefore were more properly call'd בנים, Sons) who being ever with their Parents, might be sooner and better taught, and afterward such as succeeded them might be call'd by the same Name. And as the Singing-Men, who stood with the Precentor, are call'd his Brethren; so the Boys might as properly be call'd his Sons. However, that they had Singing-Boys in the Time of Solomon, will be more probable, if we do but allow the usual Musick at the Temple to equal at least, if not to exceed what he had at other Times for his more private Diversion, and what happen'd on other Occasions; and that he, who built so stately a Fabrick for the Worship of GOD, and made so many musical Instruments for its Use, would not suffer the Performance there to be inferior to any other. Now Solomon himself tells us, that (h) he had men singers and women singers among the Delights of the Children of Men. We are told, that (i) in the solemn Procession to the Sanctuary the singers go before, the players on instruments follow after, and among them were the damsels playing with timbrels. Thus at (k) the Red Sea the Women sang together with the Men; and therefore we must suppose, that the Women sang constantly in the Temple, of which there is not the least Proof; or else we must grant, that they had Boys, whose Voices are naturally of the same Pitch with the Women, to perform that Part commonly in the Temple, which the Women perform'd in private and on particular Occasions.

97. Thirdly, The Singers were generally Levites, and stood in the Desks when they sang, and the Singing-Boys stood directly under them.

98. Fourthly, Part of these Singers and their Boys were plac'd on one Side of the Choir, and Part on the other over against them, six on a Side upon common Days and twelve on a Side upon the Sabbath and principal Feasts, that so they might take their Parts by Turns. In Order to this they are said (l) to cast lots ward against ward, as well the small as the great, the teacher as the scholar; and that they might be the better distinguish'd, they were all cloth'd in (m) white Linen. Thus it was also after their Return from the Captivity. For then (n) there were the chief of the Levites, Hashabiah, Sherebiah, and Jeshua the son of Kadmiel, with their brethren over against them, to praise and to give thanks according to the commandment of David the man of GOD, ward against ward. And when their Places were thus assign'd to them, they (o) were not at Liberty to remove from Side to Side. For the better Assigning unto them their Places, let us suppose that our Cathedrals do in many things, altho' not exactly, imitate the Temple at Jerusalem. Accordingly at the first Entrance from the East upon the Top of the Mount there was the Terrace Walk, or a void Space before it. Within this there was (o) the Gate Shushan, or the King's Gate, opening into Solomon's Porch, or a large Cloisters. Within this there was the Gate of Nicanor, or (p) the beautiful gate of the Temple, or the great Church Door, with Steps ascending to it, on which they constantly sang at the Feast of the Tabernacles. At the Entrance of this Gate there was a large Porch under the great Pile of Building, where there were Desks or Seats, and an Ascent of four Steps, in all two Cubits and an half high, first into the first Rank and then into the next: and in these the Singers stood to perform their Duty, the Boys in the lowest Rank, and the Men above them. Beyond this there was a Court of the Israelites, and then the Court of the Priests. Here was the Altar, and at some Distance beyond it was the great Porch at the Temple Door, so that between them was a plain Pavement, or (q) a Space between the porch and the altar, where the Priests were commanded to weep and say, Spare thy People, O LORD, being the Words which we use, when we read the Litany.

(b) In Nehem. 12. 46. the Word is ראשי, where the characteristic Letter of the dual or plural Number is left out. But the Masorites, the great Critics of the Hebrew Text, tell us, that it ought to be read ראשי, in the dual or plural Number. And so it is in the Text it self, printed at Basil, 1536.

99. Fifthly, They sang in their Turns, and answer'd one another; and therefore it is probable that one Side generally sang one Verse of a Psalms, and the other sang the other. The Essenes kept to this Custom, who, as (r) Philo reports of them, did perform this Office sometimes with one Voice, and sometimes with all the rest; or sometimes altogether, and sometimes with the opposite Voices answering each other. When our Saviour instituted his last Supper, it is said (s) that he sang an hymn; and (t) Bullinger tells us, It is probable that CHRIST did so speak first, that his words were receiv'd by them, and repeated in their Turn. And that the Primitive Christians retain'd this Custom, may not only be prov'd from their own writings, but also from the Testimony of (u) a Heathen, who giving an Account to Trajan the Emperor of their Behaviour in Time of Persecution, when Singing would have been improper, mentions their Custom of Speaking their Verses to CHRIST as GOD among themselves, and in their Turns; and no doubt they receiv'd this Practice from the Jewish Synagogues, and they had it from the Temple. However, we need not want due Proof, that the Jews did perform their solemn Singing by Antiphons or Interchangings. If we will allow the Songs, with which the Women receiv'd Saul, either to have been religious, or to have a Resemblance of what was then perform'd before the Ark, and afterward in the Temple, it is expressly recorded, (x) that they answered one another, and they sang one to another. Besides, This Way of Singing is the most antient that we find in Scripture. Thus Moses (y) prais'd GOD; for he and the Children of Israel began the Song, I will sing unto the LORD, for he hath triumphed gloriously, the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea. And (z) then Miriam the Prophetess, and all the Women, who went after her with Timbrels and Dances, answer'd to the Men, even to Moses and his Company, saying the same Words, which they had said before.

100. And as we have the first, so we have the best Examples, that can be desir'd, even the blessed Angels and glorified Saints in the Kingdom of Heaven. Thus (a) one cried to another, Holy, Holy, Holy is the LORD of hosts. And a (b) Right Reverend Author observes, that the Church of GOD triumphant in Heaven is (c) constantly represented throughout the Revelations, as praising GOD in this Manner; and that there is no Question, but this is spoken by an Allusion to the Manner of the Churches praising GOD upon Earth.

101. Add to this, That the Frame and Composure of some Psalms (more especially Psalms of Praise) are such as do plainly discover, that they were divided into Parts, and sang by Turns. Some (d) Psalms do suddenly alter from an Extasy of Joy to a Passion of Grief, or the contrary; and therefore one Passion is fit to be express'd by one Man, and another by another. In (e) some Psalms the Priest doth (as it were) speak unto the People, and the People to the Priest, to the Tribe of Levi, or to the House of Aaron: as when they call upon each other to praise GOD, or when the Priest blesteth the People; in the same Manner as after the Creed in our Liturgy, when the Minister saith, The LORD be with you, and the People answer, And with thy Spirit. Thus in (f) one Psalms, the four first Verses are proper in the Beginnings for the Priest, and in their Endings for the People. The Priest prays for them, The LORD bear thee in the day of trouble; and they answer, The name of the GOD of Jacob defend thee. He prays, Send thee help from his sanctuary; and they answer, And strengthen thee out of Zion. He prays, Remember all thy offerings; and they answer, And accept thy burnt sacrifice. He prays, Grant thee according to thy own heart; and they answer, And fulfil all thy counsel. And then such Expressions follow as may make a full Chorus, with (g) a Verse proper for the Priest intermix'd with them. Some (h) Psalms consist of Questions to be made by one, and Answers to be return'd by another. One Psalms (i) repeats these Words at the End of every Verse, For his mercy endureth for ever; as if the former Part was express'd only by one, and this was the constant Chorus. Another (k) Psalms repeats four Times the same Words, which are a Subject very fit to be sung by a whole Congregation, after they had heard the wonderful Works of GOD, declar'd to them in the other Parts of the same Psalm, and (l) another repeats the same Verse of Praise proper for a Chorus, tho' the Beginning of the Psalm is a Petition for the Propagation of the Gospel. Some (m) Psalms repeat the same Word in such a Manner, as if one was taking each Sentence from the Mouth of another, or the Scholar from the Master. And (n) others speak of Praising GOD by particular Persons or particular Instruments, and then conclude with a general Exhortation; so that these might be design'd to be repeated at the Beginning by some in their Turns, but to be sung at the End by all. And as there are many Arguments to prove, that they might have the same or a like Distinction of Verses in the Psalms to what we have at this Time; so we may suppose, that in all the other Psalms they answer'd one the other Verse for Verse, as we do in our Cathedrals.

102. But that they answer'd one another in this Manner, may be farther evident from the Use of the Hebrew Verb ענה, or to answer, in its proper and native Signification, which is also us'd for to sing. When Moses spake of them, that worshipp'd the Golden Calf, he said, (o) It is not the voice of them that shout for mastery, nor the voice of them that cry for being overcome, but the voice of them that sing do I hear; in Hebrew, the Voice of them that answer each other. So (p) in Israel's Song of the Well, Spring up, O well, sing ye to it; in Hebrew, Answer ye to it. So in (q) the Psalm where we translate, Sing unto the LORD with thanksgiving; sing praises upon the harp unto our GOD; in the Hebrew it is, Answer unto the LORD with thanksgiving. And in (r) Isaiah, In that day sing ye unto her, A vineyard of red wine; in the Hebrew it is, Answer ye unto her. Thus before the Captivity we have the concurrent Testimonies of Moses, the Prophets, and the Psalms concerning this Matter. And since the Captivity, there is (s) another Text, which may put all out of Doubt, where it is expressly said, And they answer'd each other in praises; and which we rightly translate, And they sang together by course, in praising and giving thanks unto the LORD, because he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever towards Israel.

103. Neither was this Custom only in Judea, since the Prophet Jeremiah seems to (t) allude also to the same among the Medes, that when they came against Babylon, they should lift up a shout against her; in Hebrew, They shall answer against thee with a shout. And the learned Dr. Pocock speaks (u) of the same Verb, that when it is us'd for Singing, it is usually understood of such Singing in which one answers another, and adds, that according to this Notion, an ancient Arabick Translation out of the Hebrew, hath (x) these Words, فتجاوب بسورور And she shall mutually answer there with mirth, with Songs, or in Singing. And certainly the Arabians would not have us'd this Phrase in the Translation of that Text, if it had not alluded to a Custom among them.

104. And as it was the Practice of the Jews in other Places; so from them it came to be in Use among both Christians and Heathens in the first Ages of the Gospel. Pliny (y) tells us, what they did in Pontus and Bithynia under Trajan the Emperor. Socrates (z) makes Ignatius the first Bishop of Antioch in Syria the Beginner thereof, even under the Apostles themselves. St. Basil (a) having brought in this Custom in his Church, before they of Neocæsarea us'd it, Sabellius the Heretick, and Marcellus took Occasion thereat to incense the Churches against him, as being the Author of new Devices in the Worship of GOD. Whereupon to avoid the Imputation of Novelty and Singularity, he alledgeth for that which he himself did, the Example of the Churches in Egypt, Libya, Thebes, Palestina, the Arabians, Phœnicians, Syrians, and Mesopotamians, and almost all those who reverenc'd the Custom of Singing Psalms together. And (b) Platina testifies, that Damasus Bishop of Rome began it in his Time; tho' it is probable, that they had heard and approv'd of this Method long before, since (c) Virgil seems to allude to it, when he said, Alternis dicetis, amant alterna Camænae.

105. Lastly, When they thus answer'd each other, they us'd the same Method, which is common in our Cathedrals, and which we call The Chanting of the Psalms. In this Service as us'd among us, there are two things observable, First, The Chanting Part, and secondly, The middle and full Closes. The Chanting Part is sung with short Notes in Unison with each other, and is prick'd with Quavers in our Chanting Tunes. And because there is no Alteration of Sound, therefore there is no regular Method of Pointing in that Part of our Psalms, but the Stops are various, as the Sense requires them. Thus in all that Part of the Hebrew Psalms, the Jews have observ'd no Manner of Order or Uniformity in their Accents; which they would certainly have done, if in those Parts they had design'd any other Method of Singing. That this was their Method, seems to be plainly intimated in (d) Scripture, where GOD complains of some, who were at Ease in Zion, who did chant to the sound of the viol, and invent to themselves instruments of musick like David. Where we may observe, that this Chanting, as well as Inventing of Instruments is the Method which David us'd, and therefore it was without Doubt the Method in the Temple. Our Translation not only favours this Conjecture; but it is more evident in the Hebrew. The Word (e) chant is פורטם, and comes from the Word פרט, a Particle, a small or little Matter. And therefore in the Musick the פורטם or Chanters did cut their Notes short, as we do also in our chanting Tunes, and made them small or little, not only like unto our Quavers, but also like unto that of David.

106. Secondly, In our Reading Psalms, which are pointed as they are to be sung in Churches, there is constantly plac'd a Colon in the Middle of every Verse, and a Period at the End, which are our principal Stops; and are constantly plac'd in this Order, tho' the Sense of many Texts may seem to require another Pointing. And in our Cathedral Service, the (f) Voices alter, before they come to a Colon or a Period, from an Unison, in Order to make two Closes, where these two Marks are plac'd, and accordingly the Notes are longer, and are usually mark'd with Crotchets, and the last Note of all with a Minim or a Semibreve. The Hebrew Psalms have also two principal Stops, which they call Athnach and Silluk, and are constantly plac'd in the same Method, and therefore we may suppose that it was for the same Reason. For first, the Words themselves will naturally bear such a Construction. The Word (g) Silluk in Chaldee doth very properly signify the End; and (h) Athnach signifies a Respiration or Taking Breath, so that each of these Words in Musick may signify A Close. And Secondly, These are (i) the only Notes or Accents, which change the Vowels in the Words, under which they are plac'd. And the Change, which they make is either by (k) Transposing of the Vowels so as to leave out a short Syllable, which is not so proper at a Close, or (l) by Changing a shorter Vowel into a longer. So that from hence we may conclude, That the Musical Notes near these Accents, as well as Vowels, might be something longer than in other Places; and consequently the Method of Singing to which these two Accents (like our Colon and Period) seem to direct us, is observ'd in all the Chanting Tunes in our Cathedrals. Thus it seems to have been settl'd in the Days of David and Solomon; and thus it seems to have continu'd ever since.

107. Solomon having finish'd the Building of the Temple in the (m) eighth Month of the Year, when all the solemn Feasts were over, was willing to have a publick Dedication thereof. For this Purpose it was necessary to give publick Notice for the chief Men of all the Tribes to attend, and allow Time for that Purpose. But the Winter coming on, it was thought impracticable to dedicate it that Year; so that it was deferr'd till the next, and agreed that it should be done at a solemn Feast. The Feast pitch'd upon was (n) the Feast of the Tabernacles. This was a Feast first appointed in Commemoration of (o) the Children of Israel's dwelling in Booths, whilst they were in the Wilderness, and of the Tabernacle which was built at that Time, where (p) GOD promis'd to meet the Children of Israel, to dwell a-

(f) Thus the Middle Close at the Colon is usually made in some other Place of the Gamut, differing from the full Close of all, and also from the Chanting Part; the Bass in the Middle Close, usually ending in the fifth above, and the full Close or Period ending in the Key it self, in which the Chanting Tune is set. (h) אֲתָנַח is deriv'd from the Chaldee Verb נָח, which signifies to rest, and is the same in the Hebrew. (i) This appears from any Hebrew Grammar, particularly Buxtorf's Epitome, de Variatione propter Accentus. (k) As לָרַחַק for לָרַחַק, &c. among them, and to sanctify the Place with his Glory, and therefore might well be reckon'd the fittest Season for this Purpose. It was also the Time, in which CHRIST was appointed to be born, or as St. John saith, when (q) the WORD was to be made flesh, and dwell, or fix his Tabernacle among us. And to this Solomon might have a particular Respect, when he said, (r) But will GOD indeed dwell on the earth? Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens cannot contain thee, how much less this house which I have built? On this Occasion Solomon kept a publick Feast, beginning on the eighth Day of the seventh Month, when he twice (s) blessed the People, and made (t) a solemn Prayer to GOD; that he would have a Regard to this House, and all those who should frequent it upon a religious Account. After this he (u) offers a Sacrifice of Peace-offering, consisting of two and twenty thousand Oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousand Sheep, of which the People had their Share to feast upon. At the end of seven Days, or on the fifteenth Day of the same Month, the Feast of Tabernacles began, and this Feast was continu'd for seven Days longer, which accordingly is call'd (x) seven days and seven days, even fourteen days. On the (y) eighth Day, which was (z) the last and great day of the Feast, and the two and twentieth Day of the Month, Solomon toward the Evening gave the People leave to depart; and they took their Leave of the King, and blessed GOD for all the Mercies, which he had shew'd to his People; and on (a) the three and twentieth Day of the same Month they went every one to their own Houses with glad and joyful Hearts.

108. As the Courses were thus settl'd by David for Number, and newly rank'd by Lot in their Order, and both were design'd for the Service of the Temple, when it should be built, so it is not to be doubted but that they began their Rounds, when the Service of the Temple did first begin, which (b) Dr. Lightfoot supposeth to be on the Sabbath after the Feast of Tabernacles, which he also supposeth on this Year was on the two and twentieth Day of the Month. On such a Supposition the eighth and fifteenth, which were also two of the most Solemn Days, must also happen upon the Sabbath. But in such an extraordinary Case there would be more Work, than could possibly be consistent with the Observation of the Sabbath, and therefore we may more reasonably suppose the contrary. According to Calculation the Sabbath on this Year happen'd to be on the seventh Day, so that the first Day of Solomon's Feast, when there was so much Mirth, and the People flock'd from all Parts to Jerusalem, was upon a Sunday; the first Day of the Feast of Tabernacles, when they set up their Booths, was upon a Sunday; the Day when Solomon blest'd the People, was upon a Sunday, even the same Day of the Week in which CHRIST was born, and rose from the Dead, and the same Day of the Week (c) in which he enter'd in Triumph into Jerusalem, when the People cried Hosanna, and carry'd Branches of Trees before him, in the same Manner as was usual on this Feast.

109. I shall conclude this Epocha with (d) this Observation of the learned Dr. Lightfoot. As it thus happen'd, that Solomon's Temple was finish'd and perfected in the Year of the World 3000, so it is probable, that this hath help'd to strengthen that Opinion, which hath been taken up by some, That as the World was fix Days in Creating, so it shall be six thousand Years in Continuance, or in a State of Labour; and then shall come either an everlasting Sabbath, or a thousand Years of Rest and Peace to the Church of GOD. And indeed, the Observation could not but please those, who were pleas'd with this Opinion. For when they found, that the first three thousand Years of the World did end in the Perfecting of the earthly Temple, it would make them conclude the bolder, that the other three thousand should immediately precede the Consummation of the spiritual.

The CONCLUSION.

THUS have we gone thro' the Chronology of (a) 488 Years, from the Departure of the Israelites out of Egypt to the Finishing of the Temple built by Solomon, and the following Year of its Dedication. The Scripture tells us very plainly the round Sum, and hath divided it very nearly into lesser Parcels.

As from the Going out of the Israelites from Egypt , to their (b) Entrance into the Land of Canaan ,	Years 40
From the Entrance into Canaan , until (c) Jephthah's Message to the Ammonites , about	300
From Jephthah's Message, to the Reign of David , about	96
David's (d) Reign	40
Solomon's (e) Reign to the Finishing of the Temple	11
To (f) the Dedication	1
Total is	488

2. The Scripture mentions several of these Years under Judges, several under Oppressors, several under the High Priests, and several under the Kings; but how to reduce them to their proper Times in the gross Sum is exceeding difficult, and this Difficulty occasions several Dislocations in those sacred Writings. But for the better Giving an Account thereof it will be necessary to treat of the Particular Books as distinctly as possible from each other, beginning with the Book of Joshua.

3. This Book gives us the History of forty Years from the Time of the Entering into Canaan to the Death of their first Governor there. As soon as GOD had appointed Joshua to succeed Moses, had given him Instructions to observe the Book of the Law, to understand it, and to practise it, had describ'd the Borders of the Land, and promis'd to assist him in the Conquest of it, Joshua orders two Men to pass over Jordan; and spy out the Land secretly, as it is recorded in the second Chapter: and at their Return he gave the Israelites full Directions for their Passing over Jordan, as they are mention'd in the first Chapter. This Dislocation was observ'd by our great Primate in his Annals; and is evident from (g) the Advice of Rahab to the Spies to abide in the Mountains three Days, and their Taking her Advice. Now it is mention'd (h) before, that Joshua commanded the officers of the people, saying, Prepare your victuals, for within three days (or as soon as the three Days are ended) ye shall pass over this Jordan. So that had this Command been given before the Spies were sent, it must have been executed before they had return'd. However the HOLY GHOST was willing to place it in this Method, to connect the Establishing of Joshua by GOD as their Governour, with the first publick Acts that he did in his Government, and the solemn Promise of the People to obey him as such; and also to join the History of the Spies, who pass'd over Jordan to view the Land, with the History of the whole Multitude, who soon after pass'd over to take Possession of it.

4. In the (i) fifteenth, sixteenth, seventeenth, and nineteenth Chapters of Joshua, there are some things briefly related concerning the Tribes of Judah; Ephraim, Manasseh and Dan, which more properly belong to the Times of the Judges, and (k) are more largely mention'd there. However, nothing is more common, than to give an Abridgment at first, of what is intended to be more particularly describ'd soon after. And we may observe from (l) the five last Verses of this Book, that Joshua himself was not the Author of the Book; which goes under his Name. So that it is most probable, that the Books of Joshua, Judges, and Ruth were written by Samuel the Prophet, who omitted all the Stories of the High Priests in these Books, that he might have no Occasion to mention any thing of himself, which was afterward done by another Hand, in the first of those Books which go under his Name.

5. So that the true Chronological Reading thereof is thus,

First, Josh. 1. 1 to 10.

Then Josh. Chap. 2.

Then Josh. 1. 10 to the End.

Then Josh. Chap. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11; at the end of which Chapter it is said, That

(a) 480 Years from the Departure out of Egypt; to the Laying of the Foundation, 1 Kings 6. 1. Seven Years to the Finishing of it, 1 Kings 7. 38. and one Year to the Dedication. Compare 1 Kings 7. 38. and the Dedication following, 2 Chron. 7. 13. (b) Exod. 16. 35; Num. 14. 33, 34. Num. 32. 13. Num. 33. 38. Deut. 1. 3. Deut. 2. 7. Deut. 8. 2. Deut. 8. 2, 4. Deut. 29. 5. Josh. 5. 6. Nehem. 9. 41. Psal. 95. 10. Amos 2. 10. Amos 5. 25. Acts 7. 36, 42. Acts 13. 13. Heb. 3. 9, 17. (c) Judg. 11. 26. (d) 2 Sam. 5. 4, 5. 1 Kings 2. 11. 1 Chron. 29. 26, 27. (e) 1 Kings 6. 38. (f) 2 Chron. 7. 10. (g) Josh. 2. 16. (h) Josh. 1. 11. (i) Chap. 15, 16, 17, and 19. 40 to 49. (k) Judg. 1. 1 to 21; and 27, 28, 29, and Chap. 17. 18. (l) Josh. 24. 29 to the End.

the land had rest from war; so that the Reubenites, the Gadites and the half Tribe of Manasseh did now return home to their Families, their Business being only to pass over (m) arm'd with their Brethren, and accompany them in their Wars.

The next therefore in Order is Joshua, Chap. 22. which was deferr'd to that Place, because the sacred Author, treating of what was done on the west Side of Jordan, was willing to dispatch that History, before he mention'd any thing, which happen'd on the other Side.

Then Joshua, Chap. 12.

Then with those Chapters of Joshua, which treat concerning the Division of the Land, and Settling the Tribes in their several Possessions, it may not be improper, nor unprofitable to read those Chapters in the first Book of Chronicles that do mention the Fathers, and chief Men in every Tribe, and those who were the Planters and Raisers of Families in their several Possessions. And then reserving (n) those Particulars already mention'd to be read with the Book of Judges, the Remainder of the Book of Joshua will stand thus.

With Josh. 13. 1 to 24, which describes the Possessions of Reuben, read 1 Chron. 5. 1 to 11, and 5. 18 to 23.

With Josh. 13. 24 to 29, which describes the Possessions of Gad, read 1 Chron. 5. 11 to 18.

With Josh. 13. 29 to the End, which describes the Possessions of the half Tribe of Manasseh beyond Jordan, read 1 Chron. 5. 29 to the End. And these Possessions being describ'd before the Descriptions of the rest, seems to argue, that they return'd to them, before the Land of Canaan was divided among the rest.

With Josh. Chap. 14 and 15, which describes the Possessions of Judah, read 1 Chron. Chap. 2, 3, and Chap. 4. 1 to 24.

With Josh. 16. 1 to 10, which describes the Possessions of Ephraim, read 1 Chron. 7. 20 to 30.

With Josh. 17. 1 to 12, and 17. 14 to the End, which describes the Possessions of the half Tribe of Manasseh in the Land of Canaan, read 1 Chron. 7. 14 to 20.

Then Josh. 18. 1 to 11, and with Josh. 18. 11 to the End, which describes the Possessions of Benjamin, read 1 Chron. 7. 6 to 13, and 1 Chron. 8. 1 to 33; and at the same Time with 1 Chron. 8. 33 to the End, read 1 Chron. 9. 35 to the End.

With Josh. 19. 1 to 10, which describes the Possessions of Simeon, read 1 Chron. 4. 24 to the End.

With Josh. 19. 10 to 17, which describes the Possession of Zebulun, there is nothing in the Book of Chronicles.

With Josh. 19. 17 to 24, which describes the Possession of Issachar, read 1 Chron. 7. 1 to 6.

With Josh. 19. 24 to 32, which describes the Possession of Asher, read 1 Chron. 7. 30 to the End.

With Josh. 19. 32 to 40, which describes the Possession of Naphthali, read 1 Chron. 7. 13.

With Josh. 19. 40 to 47, and Verse 48, which describes the Possessions of Dan, there is nothing in the Book of Chronicles.

Then Josh. 19. 49, 50, 51.

Then with Joshua Chap. 20 and 21, which describes the Possessions of the Levites, read 1 Chron. Chap. 6. and Chap. 9. 1 to 35.

Then Josh. Chap. 23 and 24.

6. The Book of Judges consider'd by it self, and compar'd with the Title which it bears, cannot well be reduc'd into a better Method. The five last Chapters, which treat of the Idolatry of the Tribe of Dan, and the Slaughter of the Benjamites, ought in a Chronological Order to be inserted between the tenth and eleventh Verses of the second Chapter. The principal Reason of its being plac'd last is this, The HOLY GHOST was willing to describe first the Actions of those, who govern'd the greatest Part of the whole Land before the Actions of any particular Tribe, which is most agreeable to the Title of the Book; and especially their Actions against their Enemies before the Account of their Seditions one against another. This is the Method, which Lucius Flavius took in his Epitome of the Roman History, and for which he was never blam'd. However they who are more critical to inquire, why it should be plac'd immediately after the History of Samson, and immediately before the History of Samuel, may take the following Reasons.

1. That the Reader observing (o) how their State Polity fail'd them in the Death of Samson, who (p) was a Danite, might presently be shew'd GOD's Justice in it, because their Religion had first fail'd among the Danites.

2. That when he observes, that (q) eleven hundred Pieces of Silver were given by every Philistine for the Ruin of Samson, he might presently observe (r) the eleven hundred Pieces of Silver given by Micah's Mother for the Making of an Idol, which ruin'd Religion in Samson's Tribe.

3. That the Story of Micah (s) of the Hill Country of Ephraim the first Destroyer of Religion, and the Story of Samuel of (t) the Hill Country of Ephraim, the first Reformer of Religion, might be plac'd near to each other.

But that the Stories contain'd in the five last Chapters of Judges could not be long

(m) Numb. 32. 6 to 33. (n) Josh. Chap. 15, 16, 17, and Chap. 19. 40 to 49. (o) Judg. 13. (p) Judg. 13. 1, 2, 3, 24, 25. (q) Judg. 16. 5. (r) Judg. 17. 2. (s) Judg. 17. 1. (t) 1 Sam. 1. 1. after after the Death of Joshua, and are therefore rightly plac'd as before, will be evident from the following Reasons.

1. The Danites were unsettl'd, when (u) the Stories of the seventeenth and eighteenth Chapters came to pass, and therefore this could not be long after the Death of Joshua.

2. Phinehas (x) the Son of Eleazar, who turn'd away the Wrath of GOD in the Wilderness, was (y) alive at the Battle of Gibeab.

3. The Wickedness of (z) Gibeab is (a) reckon'd to be their first Wickedness.

4. Deborah, who was (b) contemporary with Barak the third Judge, speaks of the (c) forty thousand in Israel, who perish'd by Benjamin, as if neither Sword nor Spear had been among them.

5. Mahaneh Dan or The Camp of Dan, which (d) was so nam'd upon the March of the Danites, when they set up their Idolatry, is (e) mention'd in the Story of Samson, tho' that Story is set before their March.

6. Dan is (f) omitted among the sealed of the LORD, because Idolatry first began in his Tribe, as was mention'd before.

7. Ehud may (g) be very well suppos'd to have been (h) one of the left handed Benjamites, and one of them who escap'd at the Rock of Rimmon; and he was the second of the Judges.

8. After the Book of Judges, follows the Book of Ruth, the History whereof is (i) expressly said to happen, in the days when the judges ruled, and therefore according to a Chronological Order ought to be inserted among them. Its Subject is very different from the rest, and for this Reason it is a distinct Book, and it is of so private a Nature, that at that Time among the Generality of People it might have been thought not worth the Recording. But we Christians may plainly see the Wisdom of GOD in Ordering this Book to be written. It had (k) been foretold to the Jews, that the MESSIAH should be of the Tribe of Judah; and it was afterward reveal'd farther, that he should be (l) of the Family of David; and therefore it was necessary for the full Understanding of these Prophecies, that a History of the Family of David in that Tribe should be written before these Prophecies should be reveal'd, as it is suppos'd to be written by Samuel the Prophet upon his Anointing of David. Thus there could not be the least Suspicion of any Fraud or Design; and thus this Book, these Prophecies, and the Accomplishment of them, serve to explain each other.

8. The true Place of Inserting this Book is at (m) the Time of the Birth of Obed the Son of Boaz and Ruth, which is mention'd at the End of this Book, with the Genealogy from Pharez the Son of Judah to David, as Matters of Fact, and by St. Matthew as apply'd to CHRIST. In St. Matthew it is said, (n) that Salmon begat Boaz of Rahab; and Boaz begat Obed of Ruth: and therefore taking it for granted (as it hath been already prov'd in the Beginning of this Book) that Boaz was born to Salmon by Rahab, about 42 Years after the Entrance into Canaan; and Obed was born to Boaz, when he was about 54 Years of Age, the Birth of Obed will happen about 96 Years after the Entrance into Canaan, which was in the Time when the Israelites had Rest, under Othniel the first of the Judges, as it is Judg. 2. 9, 10, 11, and therefore the Book of Ruth will regularly follow those Verses.

9. As the Book of the Judges gives an Account of the civil and military State of the Israelites, and the first Book of Samuel gives an Account of their ecclesiastical State at the same Time; so it may be most proper to read first the one and then the other. However, he who will be so curious as to observe an exact Chronological Method, may intermix a Part of the first Book of Samuel, with the Book of Judges, in the following Manner.

Joshua 14. 6 to the End.

With Judges 1. 11 to 16, read Joshua 15. 13 to 21.

Judges 1. 22 to 27.

With Judges 1. 27, 28, read Joshua 17. 11 to the End.

With Judges 1. 29, read Joshua 16. 9, 10.

Judges Chap. 17.

With Judges Chap. 18, read Josh. 19. 47, 48.

Judges Chap. 19, 20, 21.

Judges 2. 11, to 3. 12.

The Book of Ruth:

Judges 3. 12 to the End; with Chap. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, and to Verse 5.

Judges 13. 1 to 25, where the Birth of Samson is postpon'd, that the whole History of his Life may be taken in together.

1 Samuel Chap. 1, and 2 to Verse 22.

Judges 10. 5 to the End. Chap. 11, and Chap. 12, to Verse 10:

Judges 13. 25. Chap. 14, 15, and Chap. 16. 1, 2, 3.

Judges 12. 10, 11, 12, 13. 14.

1 Samuel 2. 22 to the End, and Chap. 3:

(u) Judg. 18. 1. (x) Num. 5. 7, 8, 11, 12, 13. (y) Judg. 20. 28. (z) Judg. 19. 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 20, 21, 22. (a) Hosea 10. 9. (b) Judg. 4. 4, 5, 6. (c) Judg. 5. 8. (d) Judg. 18. 12. (e) Judg. 13. 25. (f) Rev. 7. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. (g) Judg. 3. 15 to 29. (h) Judg. 20. 16. Judg. 20. 47. (i) Ruth 1. 1. (k) Gen. 49. 10. (l) Psal. 89. 34, 35, 36, 37. (m) Ruth 1. 2, and 4. 16, 17. (n) Matth. 1. 5.

Judges 16. 4 to the End.

1 Samuel Chap. 4.

Judges 12. 15.

1 Samuel Chap. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15.

N. B. That tho' there are so many Dislocations in Point of Time in the Books of Judges and the first Book of Samuel; yet the History it self could not be better laid, than as it is in the Scriptures. For there being some Judges in the north and east Parts of Canaan, and others in the south and west Parts, particularly there being several Judges in the North and East, whilst Eli was both High Priest and Judge, and Samson was a Warriour in the South and West, it was necessary to give the History of each of these distinct from one another, as also a distinct Account of their Wars abroad, and their Disturbances at home, and also of their civil and ecclesiastical Affairs. And it is observable, that in the midst of all this Variety there are several Hints, by which the Times of each Transaction may be reduc'd to their proper Order.

10. After this Time the History of Saul is so intermix'd with the History of David, that it will be necessary to take in several particular Psalms penn'd on particular Occasions. And from hence also to the Babylonish Captivity, and a little Time after, the History of the Kings of Israel and Judah, is treated of not only in the Books of Samuel and the Kings, but also in the Books of Chronicles; so that it may be convenient to compare them together, as far as the Dedication of the Temple of Solomon, in the following Method.

1 Sam. Chap. 16, and 17. 1, 2, 3.

1 Chron. 13. 9, 10. 2 Sam. 23. 9, 10. This Story is mention'd by it self, in these two Places, that the Story of David and Goliath might not be interrupted.

1 Sam. 17. 3 to the End.

1 Sam. Chap. 18, 19, and Psal. 59.

1 Sam. Chap. 20, and 21 to Verse 10, and Psal. 56.

1 Sam. 21. 10 to the End, and Psal. 34.

1 Sam. 22, Part of the first Verse, and Psal. 142.

1 Sam. 22, the latter Part of the first Verse, and Verse 2, and 1 Chron. 12. 8 to 19.

2 Sam. 23. 13, 14, 15, 16, 17. compar'd with 1 Chron. 11. 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20. Here is the Place of David's Longing for the Water of Bethlehem, and the following Transactions, tho' it is reserv'd for its proper Place in the Reckoning up of David's Worthies; since here it is more especially intended to relate the Acts of David, and not of his Worthies. And all the other Acts, 2 Sam. 23. 8, 20, 21, and 1 Chron. 11. 10, 11, 22, 23, 24, 25. must either be plac'd here, or else it is impossible where to fix them.

1 Sam. 22, Verse 3 to the End, and Psal. 52.

1 Sam. 23. 1, 2, 3, 4, and Part of 5. 2 Sam. 23. 18, 19, and 1 Chron. 11. 20, 21.

1 Sam. 23. Part of Verse 5, to Verse 24, and Psal. 54.

1 Sam. 23. 24 to the End, and Psal. 63.

1 Sam. 24. 1, 2, and Part of 3. 2 Sam. 23, 20. 1 Chron. 11. 22.

1 Sam. 24, Part of Verse 3, to the End of the Chapter, and Psal. 57.

1 Sam. 25, and Psal. 58.

1 Sam. Chap. 26 and 27, compar'd with 1 Chron. 12. 1 to 19.

1 Sam. Chap. 28 and 29, compar'd with 1 Chron. 12. 19, 20, 21, 22.

1 Sam. Chap. 30 and 31, compar'd with 1 Chron. Chap. 10.

The second Book of Samuel, and the remaining Part of the first Book of the Chronicles, contain the History of the Reign of David; so that it may not be improper to compare them together, with the rest of the Psalms, in the following Order.

2 Sam. Chap. 1, 2, 3, 4.

2 Sam. 5. 1 to 11, and 1 Chron. 11, throughout. Here in the Book of the Chronicles is an Account of David's Worthies, which Catalogue is also mention'd in the Book of Samuel, but with this Difference of Place, that in the Chronicles it is set at the Beginning of David's Reign, and in Samuel at the latter End, which is the Reason of so many Differences in their Names. The Book of Chronicles mentions those Men, who had help'd David to his Settlement in the Kingdom; and the Book of Samuel mentions those who had stuck to him all the Time of his Reign, or died in his Service, and so help'd to keep him in that Settlement: And to these are added several others in 1 Chron. 12. 23 to the End, where they are mention'd, who came also to Hebron for the same Purpose.

11. The Story which follows, contains a Difference in the Order, as it is laid down in these two Books. The Book of Samuel mentions first the Story of Hiram's Kindness and Respect to David, as also of David's Children, and two Battles with the Philistines; and then it relates the Fetching up of the Ark. But the Book of Chronicles first relates the Fetching up of the Ark, and then those Stories of Hiram's Kindness, David's Children, and the Battles of the Philistines. But the Methodizing these Stories into their proper Time and Order will require, that they be taken thus,

1 Chron. 13. 1, 2, 3, 4.

David consults with the Captains, that had come to him to Hebron, and had gone with him to Jerusalem, about the Fetching up of the Ark. This was but a Consultation and an Agreement about the Matter; but the thing is not done, for all Israel is to be sent to first about it, and a Time to be appointed, when they shall come together.

Hereupon

Hereupon the Companies now present depart own Homes, until they shall have Notice of the Time appointed.

2 Sam. 5. 11 to the End. 1 Chron. 14 throughout.

When all the Israelites were departed to their own Houses, Hiram King of Tyre, hearing of David's Coronation, and of the Taking of Jerusalem, sends betimes to him to enter into a League with him, and presents him with Cedar and Workmen to build him an House. Upon this David's Marriages and Children are reckon'd up, who tho' they were born in several Years, are all mention'd together, the better to give an Account at once of his Family and Prosperity.

In this Space, between the Peoples Departing from David's Coronation, and their Meeting again to fetch up the Ark, David being leit of those Multitudes; and Jerusalem not yet fully fortified, the Philistines came twice to the Valley of Rephaim, which lay near Jerusalem, thinking to surprize David, and he beats them both Times.

After this the People meet in a vast Number for the Fetching up of the Ark; and David pens a particular Psalm for so solemn an Occasion.

So that read 2 Sam. 6. 1, 2, 3.

Then Psal. 68.

After that 2 Sam. 6. 4 to 12.

And with it 1 Chron. 13. 5 to the End.

2 Sam. 6. 12, with 1 Chron. 15. 1.

Then 1 Chron. 15. 2 to 15.

How David removes the Ark from the House of Obed-edom, and pens a Psalm proper now to be read, viz.

Psal. 132.

2 Sam. 6. Part of Verse 12. 1 Chron. 15 to the End, and Chap. 16 throughout.

David removes the Ark, seats it in its Place that he had prepared for it, and appoints some Psalms for the Sanctuary, viz.

Psal. 96. 105 and 106.

And probably also

Psal. 91, 93, 95, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 103, 121, and 122.

And perhaps the constant and ordinary Psalms, which are (o) suppos'd to be these.

On the first Day of the Week, Psal. 24.

On the second Day of the Week, Psal. 48.

On the third Day of the Week, Psal. 82.

On the fourth Day of the Week, Psal. 94.

On the fifth Day of the Week, Psal. 81.

On the sixth Day of the Week, Psal. 93.

On the Sabbath Day, Psal. 92.

2 Sam. 6. 20 to the End.

2 Sam. 7, throughout, and 1 Chron. 17 throughout, with the Psalms suppos'd to be then compos'd, viz.

Psal. 2. 16. 72. 110. 118.

2 Sam. 8. 1 to 5. 1 Kings 11. 23, 24, 25.

and 2 Sam. 8. 5 to 13, and Psal. 60. 2 Sam. 21. 18, and 1 Chron. 20. 4.

2 Sam. 8. 13, and Psal. 108, and 1 Kings 11. 14 to 21.

2 Sam. 8. 14 to the End; and with 2 Sam. 8 read 1 Chron. 18, and 1 Sam. 21. 19, 20, 21; 22, and 1 Chron. 20. 5, 6, 7, 8.

1 Kings 11. 15 to 21, which is postpon'd to that Time, that all the Story of Hadad might be mention'd together.

2 Sam. 21. 15, 16, 17.

2 Sam. Chap. 9.

2 Sam. Chap. 10, and 1 Chron. Chap. 19.

2 Sam. 11. 1, and 1 Chron. 20. Part of Verse 1.

2 Sam. 11. 2 throughout, and Chap. 12. 1 to 15, with Psal. 51.

2 Sam. 12. 15 to 24.

2 Sam. 15. 26 to the End, and 1 Chron. 20. Part of Verse 1, and Verse 2, 3.

2 Sam. 13 throughout.

2 Sam. 12. 24, 25. The Story of Solomon's Birth is join'd to the Story of the Child that died, that GOD's Reconciliation to David might be shewn immediately after the Relation of his Anger against him. His Anger was shewn in Taking away the Child, that was conceiv'd in Adultery. His Reconciliation is shewn by GOD's Delighting in a Child born in Marriage with the same Woman. Besides, his Birth is mention'd before the Taking of Rabbah, tho' it was some Time after, because the Text relating the Story of Bathsheba in its proper Place, would conclude it altogether.

2 Sam. Chap. 14 throughout, and Chap. 15. 1 to the Middle of Verse 32, and Psal. 3.

2 Sam. 15 Part of Verse 32, to the End, and Chap. 16. 1 to 14, with Psal. 7.

2 Sam. 16. 14, where David is at Jordan, and composes Psal. 42 and 43.

2 Sam. 16. 15 to 22, when David composeth Psal. 55.

2 Sam. 16. 22, 23, and Chap. 17, 18, 19, and Chap. 20. 1, 2, 3, when David compos'd Psal. 30.

2 Sam. 20. 4 to 23, and Psal. 4, compos'd at that Time.

1 Chron. 23. 2 to the End, and Chap. 24, and 25.

12. At this Time it may be proper to take in the Psalms, which were extant in David's Time, either such which are ascrib'd to the chief Singers which he appointed, and are therefore suppos'd by some to have been made by them; particularly Psal. 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, and 83, which are ascrib'd to Asaph; Psal. 42, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 84, 85, and 87, which are ascrib'd to the Sons of Korah; and Psal. 39, 62, and 77, which are ascrib'd to Jeduthun; and the rest, which have David's Name, or which have no Name prefix'd to them, and yet (p) may be suppos'd to be his, as Psal. 1, 5, 6, 8, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 17, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 31, 32, 33, 35, 36, 37, 38, 40, 41, 50, 53, 60, 61, 64, 65, 66, 67, 69, 70, 71, 86, 102, 104, 107, 108, 109, 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, 117, 119, 120, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 133, 134, 135, 136, 138, 139, 140, 141, and 143 to the End.

1 Chron. Chap. 26, 27, 28, and Chap. 29. 1 to 26.

1 Kings 2. 1 to 10, and with Verse 10, 11, read 1 Chron. 29. 26, 27, 28, 29, 30.

1 Kings 2. 12 to 39.

1 Kings 3, to 22, and 1 Kings 11. 21, 22.

1 Kings 3. 22 to the End, and with this read 2 Chron. 1. 1 to 14.

Here the Story of the Death of Shimei is anticipated, and join'd to the Story of his Confinement, tho' it was three Years after, that the whole Account might be mention'd at once. So also the Story of Solomon's Marrying Pharaoh's Daughter is laid sooner than its proper Time; for it was not before, but after Solomon's Going to Gibeon, and there Begging Wisdom of GOD. But when we consider the Scope of the Stories preceding, namely, the Death of Adonijah, Joab and Shimei, and the Exclusion of Abiathar from the Highpriesthood, the Reason of Solomon's Marriage with Pharaoh's Daughter being join'd with them will easily appear, because the HOLY GHOST was willing to place together all the politick Ways of Solomon for the Establishing of his Kingdom, which were these two, the Taking away those that might disquiet it home, and the Making a League and Affinity with powerful Princes abroad; and then it proceeds to tell the sure and divine Way how to establish it; and this is also mention'd to be of two Sorts, viz. Loving the LORD, and Begging Wisdom of him.

13. The History of the fourth Chapter of the first Book of Kings, and the latter Part of the first Chapter of the second Book of Chronicles, is not of any fix'd or determinate Date, or tied to any one Year, but it may equally serve for many Years; for it sheweth the Growth and Continuance of Solomon's Strength, Establishment and Prosperity in his Kingdom, and the Evidence of his Wisdom all his Life-time, till he declin'd to Idolatry. And therefore as for the Method and Place of it, it might have been laid in any Part of the Story, and this particular Inference might have been made of it, where ever it had been laid. However, it was very proper to lay it in the Beginning of this History, that the general Matters relating to his Power and Prosperity might be concluded, before there is any Account of particular Actions. There is no Doubt, but the Transactions between Solomon King of Israel, and Hiram King of Tyre, were very early in Solomon's Reign, because he would not lose Time toward the Building of the Temple. But it was thought more proper to dispatch the others before as general Subjects, that particular Stories might be the better treated of afterward, and receive no Interruption.

1 Kings Chap. 4 and 5, and 2 Chron. 1. 14, 15, 16, 17, and Chap. 2 throughout.

1 Kings 2. 39 to the End, and Chap. 3. 1, 2.

1 Kings 6 throughout, and Chap. 7. 13 to the End. 2 Chron. Chap. 3 and 4.

1 Kings Chap. 8 throughout, and 2 Chron. Chap. 5, 6, and 7 to Verse 11.

If we compare 1 Kings 6. 38, with 1 Kings 7. 1, and 9, 10, it will appear, that Solomon began not to build his own Palaces, until the Temple was finish'd. However, the Story of those Buildings, 1 Kings 7. 1 to 13. is immediately join'd to the Building of the Temple, that all Matters relating to Architecture might be laid together.

(p) Thus Psalm 2, tho' it hath no Title, is expressly ascrib'd to David, Acts 4. 25.

From the Dedication of the Temple of Solomon, to the Babylonish Captivity.

Anno
ante
1007.

FROM the Dedication of the Temple of Solomon in the twelfth Year of his Reign, to the Time of the (a) Taking of Jerusalem in the eleventh Year of Zedekiah, and the Carrying of the Jews Captives into Babylon, were four hundred and twenty Years.

2. This Space of Time is divided into two Parcels. First, From the Dedication of the Temple, to the (b) Setting up of the Golden Calves by Jeroboam, or thirty Years; and secondly, From thence to the Babylonish Captivity, or three hundred and ninety Years.

3. The Time from the Dedication of the Temple, to the Setting up of the Golden Calves, is also divided into two Parts, viz. eight and twenty Years in the Time of Solomon the Father, and two Years in the Time of Rehoboam the Son. The 28 Years during the Reign of Solomon, is thus prov'd: Solomon reign'd (c) forty Years in all. In the (d) eleventh Year of his Reign, and the eighth Month, the Temple was finish'd; and in the (e) following Year, or the twelfth, and the seventh Month, the Dedication was completed; so that if these twelve are subtracted from forty, the Remainder is eight and twenty. As for the Year of Rehoboam's Reign, when the golden Calves were set up, all Chronologers, whom I know of, agree to place it in the first Year of his Reign; but I suppose it to have been in the second. For let us suppose (as it is very probable) that Solomon died in the latter End of a Julian Year, or in the Winter. In the Beginning of the Spring in the next Year, when the Season was fit for Travelling, Jeroboam was sent for from Egypt. He comes. The People treat with Rehoboam. The Conferences are broken off. A Revolt ensues. Rehoboam sends a Message. Then he raiseth an Army, and the Army is disbanded. Here is a Summer's Work. Jeroboam builds Penuel, and fortifies himself. Here is the Work for the following Winter. And then at the Passover, in the next or second Year, and in the Spring, Jeroboam sets up the golden Calves, to prevent the People from Going up to Jerusalem. So that these two Years, added to the twenty eight before-mention'd, make thirty in all; and these 30 subtracted from the Year before CHRIST 1007, leave 977, for the Year in which these Calves were erected.

4. From the Setting up of the golden Calves, to the Babylonish Captivity, were three hundred and ninety Years. These Years are thus reckon'd up in a gross Sum by (f) the Prophet Ezekiel, I have laid upon thee the years of their iniquity, according to the number of days, three hundred and ninety days; so shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel. And when thou shalt accomplish them, lie again on thy right side, and thou shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Judah forty days, I have appointed thee each day for a year. In Explaining of these Words all Commentators agree, First, That here is an exact Sum of three hundred and ninety Years mention'd; Secondly, That this Sum is to begin from the Year, when Jeroboam did first set up the golden Calves; And Thirdly, That these are not to be taken for two different and distinct Sums, as if it was 390 Years from the Setting up of the Golden Calves to the Captivating of the ten Tribes, in the Reign (g) of Hoshea King of Israel, and forty Years from thence to the Captivating of Judah, when (h) Jeboiakim was first carry'd away Captive by Nebuchadnezzar. For it was but two hundred Years, and a little above an half, between the two first Periods, and above an hundred Years between the two last; but the forty Years are to be reckon'd and counted within the three hundred and ninety, as the last Years of them, and mark'd out for some special Reason.

5. But where to end these three hundred and ninety Years is not so certainly agreed upon. Our learned Primate, Dr. Prideaux, and Marshall in his Chronological Tables, make them to end in the last Captivity of the ten Tribes by Nebuzaradan, the Captain of the Guards under Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, which was four Years after the last Destruction of Jerusalem in the eleventh Year of King Zedekiah. Thus they reckon, that (i) by this last Invasion into the Land of Israel, the Prophecies of Isaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekiel, and other Prophets relating thereto, were completed. Thus according to their Computation, they make this Epocha to contain just 390 Years. According to this they also reckon, (k) that from the eighteenth Year of Josiah, when the House of Judah enter'd into Covenant with GOD to walk wholly in his Ways, to this Time, will be just 40 Years; and so long GOD bore their Walking contrary to his Covenant. But now the stated Time of his Forbearance in Respect of both being fully completed, he completed also the Desolation of both in this last Captivity; in which both had an equal Share, Part of them, who were now carry'd away, being of the House of Judah, and Part of the House of Israel. If this Hypothesis is allow'd, it puts all the former Astronomical Calculations into Confusion; and therefore there is a Necessity of Making it to end when Jerusalem was taken by a long Siege and Famine, in the eleventh Year of Zedekiah. Of this (l) Dr. Prideaux gives this candid Account: There are others, who end both the Computations at the Destruction of Jerusalem; and to make their Hypothesis good, they begin the forty Years of GOD's Forbearance of the House of Judah, from the Mission of the Prophet Jeremiah to preach Repentance to them, that is, from the (m) thirteenth Year of Josiah, when he was first call'd to this Office; from which Time, to the last Year of Zedekiah, when Jerusalem was destroy'd, were exactly forty Years. And as to the 390 Years Forbearance of the House of Israel, according as they compute the Time from Jeroboam's Apostacy, they make this Period to fall exactly right also, that is, to contain just 390 Years from that Time to the Destruction of Jerusalem. And as to the Computing of the 40 Years of GOD's Forbearance of the House of Judah, from the Mission of Jeremiah to preach Repentance unto them, it must be acknowledged, that from thence to the Destruction of Jerusalem, the number of Years falls exactly right: and therefore since (n) the 120 Years of GOD's Forbearance of the old World is reckon'd from the like Mission of Noah to preach Repentance unto them, (he adds) I should be inclin'd to come into this Opinion, and reckon the forty Years of GOD's Forbearance of Judah, by the 40 Years of Jeremiah's like Preaching of Repentance unto them. But it cannot be conceiv'd, why Ezekiel should reckon the Time of his Mission by (o) an Æra from the eighteenth Year of Josiah, (For the thirtieth Year on which he saith, that he was call'd to the Prophetick Office, is certainly to be reckon'd from thence) unless it be with Respect to the 40 Years of GOD's Forbearance of the House of Judah, in his own Prophecies. In Answer to this it may be consider'd, that (p) Ezekiel was a Priest, and therefore (q) began to enter on the Execution of this Office at thirty Years of Age; and therefore (r) the thirtieth Year, which he mentions, may be the thirtieth Year of his own Life; which was a very remarkable Æra to him, because he began to officiate as a Priest, and was call'd to be a Prophet at the same Time. This learned Author (s) adds, That this Period related purely to the *House of Israel, as contradistinct from the House of Judah in this Prophecy, and therefore it cannot be well interpreted to end in the Destruction of Jerusalem, in which the House of Israel had no Concern. For Jerusalem was not within the Kingdom of Israel, but within the Kingdom of Judah, of which it was the Metropolis, and therefore the latter only and not the former had their Punishment in it. But this last equally affected both, and therefore here may well be ended the Reckoning, which belong'd to both. But in Answer to this, It affected the Children of Israel, as much as the Prophet had said it should. He saith, It shall be (t) a siege, and this Siege shall be a sign unto the house of Israel. Our SAVIOUR speaks in a parallel Case, (u) When ye shall see Jerusalem compassed about with armies, then know that the desolation thereof is nigh. And here was a like Sign to the House of Israel, that when they saw Jerusalem compassed about with Armies, they might know, that their Captivity could not be far off. But secondly, This last Captivity was so small, so sudden, and with such little difficulty, that it doth not seem to answer the Solemnity and Grandeur, with which it is describ'd in the Prophets. All the Account is (x) this, Whilst Nebuchadnezzar lay at the Siege of Tyre, Nebuzaradan the Captain of his Guards, being sent out by him with Part of his Army, invaded the Land of Israel to take revenge, as it may be suppos'd, for the Death of Gedaliah, there being no other Reason, why he should fall upon the poor Remains of those miserable People, whom he himself had left, and settled there. In which Expedition (y) Nebuzaradan seizing upon all the Race of Israel, that he could meet with in the Land, made them all Captives, and sent them to Babylon. But they all amounted to no more than seven hundred and forty and five Persons, because all the rest had before fled into Egypt. In this Expedition here was neither Siege, nor Famine; but the Prophet Ezekiel in the Chapter, where this Epocha is mention'd, speaks so plainly of a Siege and Famine, and even the Siege of Jerusalem, that there needs no more than the Comparing the Prophecy and History, to shew how it was then fulfill'd. Thus, (z) Son of man, take thee a tile, and lay it before thee, and pourtray upon it the city, even Jerusalem; and lay siege against it, and build a fort against it, and cast a mount against it, and set battering rams against it, round about. Moreover, take unto thee an iron pan, and set it for a wall of iron between thee and the city, and set thy face* *against it, and it shall be besieged, and thou shalt lay siege against it. (a) Therefore thou shalt set thy face toward the siege of Jerusalem, and thou shalt prophecy against it, till thou hast ended the days of thy siege. The Accomplishment hereof is (b) as plainly mention'd: It came to pass in the ninth year of the reign of Zedekiah, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came, he, and all his host against Jerusalem, and pitched against it, and they built forts against it round about. And the city was besieged unto the eleventh year of king Zedekiah. And the city was broken up, and all the men of war fled by night, by the way of the gate, between the two walls which is by the kings garden (now the Chaldeans were against the city round about) and the king went the way toward the plain. And the army of the Chaldeans pursued after the king, and overtook him in the plains of Jericho, and all his army was scatter'd from him. The Famine, during the Siege, was exactly (c) foretold in the same Place. Take also unto thee wheat, and barley, and beans, and lentiles, and millet, and fitches, and put them in one vessel, and make thee bread thereof. And thy meat which thou shalt eat, shall be by weight twenty shekels a day: from time to time thou shalt eat it. Thou shalt also drink water by measure, the sixth part of an hin; from time to time shalt thou drink. (d) Moreover he said unto me, Son of man, behold, I will break the staff of bread in Jerusalem, and they shall eat bread by weight, and with care; and they shall drink water by measure, and with astonishment. That they may want bread and water, and be astonished one with another, and consume away for their iniquity. And this was exactly fulfill'd in the same Siege. For (e) in the eleventh year of king Zedekiah, on the ninth day of the fourth month, the famine prevailed, and was sore in the city; and there was no bread for the people of the land. So that the 390 Years do plainly end at this Time, when the City was taken, and the King and his People were carried Captives into Babylon, an Epocha celebrated in (f) the New Testament, as well as in the Old.*

6. But for the (g) Dividing of these three hundred and ninety Years into Parcels, as the Books of Kings and Chronicles have done them, the surest and clearest way is to make a Chronological Table of the collateral Kingdoms of Judah and Israel, whilst they last together from Year to Year, as they will offer themselves to parallel one another.

(t) Ezek. 4. 3.      (u) Luke 21. 20.      (x) Prideaux's Historical Connexion, Anno 584.      (y) Jerem. 52. 30.      (z) Ezek. 4. 1, 2, 3.      (a) Ezek. 4. 7, 8.      (b) 2 Kings 25. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. Jerem. 52. 4, 5, 6, 7.      (c) Ezek. 4. 9, 10, 11.      (d) Ezek. 4. 14, 15.      (e) 2 Kings 25. 3. Jerem. 52. 6.      (f) Matth. 1. 11, 12.      (g) Ezek. 4. 5.

In these Tables some considerable Scruples will arise to the Student, as he goes along; which, unless he sees and resolves, he will never be able to make the Account right, and unless he hath such a Chronological Table before him, as is here mention'd, he will never be able to see them, or find them out. By such a Table as is thus made, it may be plainly observ'd, that sometimes the Years are reckon'd compleat, and sometimes current. But this will breed no Difficulty, since it is very common in Scripture sometimes to compute by one Method, and sometimes by the other, and the Drawing of such a Table will every where plainly shew this Variety. But the Particulars, which are undermention'd, are much more obscure, and will therefore justly challenge a more serious Study and Consideration.

1. It is said, that (b) Jeroboam reign'd two and twenty Years, and (i) Nadab his Son two Years, and yet (k) Nadab began to reign in the second Year of Asa, which was in the one and twentieth Year of Jeroboam, and so Nadab's two Years fall within the Sum of his Father's two and twenty.

Answer, The Reason of this Account is this, It is said, (l) that the LORD stroke Jeroboam, and he died; that is, with some ill and languishing Disease, which continued till his Death, that he was not capable of Governing the Kingdom, and therefore he was forc'd to substitute his Son Nadab in his Life-time, about two Years before his Death, and so both the Father and the Son died in the same Year.

2. It is said, (m) That Baasha began to reign in the third Year of Asa, and (n) reign'd four and twenty Years, and then it follows, that (o) he died in the six and twentieth Year of Asa, as the Scripture reckons the Years current. And yet (p) in the six and thirtieth Year of Asa, Baasha came up, and made War against Judah. So that this War will seem to be made by him nine or ten Years after he was dead.

Answer, The Resolution of this from the Original is easy. For that Text in the Chronicles means not, that Baasha made War against Judah in the six and thirtieth Year of Asa's Reign, but in the six and thirtieth Year of Asa's Kingdom, that is, six and thirty Years from the Division of the Tribes under Rehoboam. For Rehoboam reign'd seventeen Years from the first Division, Abijam his Son reign'd three Years, and in the sixteenth Year of Asa, who succeeded him, this War was made, which was six and thirty Years in all from the first Division. So that the Hebrew Word מלכות should there be render'd

The Kingdom, and not The Reign, and then all would be plain and easy. Now the Text dates this War, not from the Time of Asa's Reign, but from the Time of the Division of the Tribes; because tho' they were hitherto divided in Regard of their Kings, yet they were not totally divided in Regard of their Conversation with, and Affection to one another. For some of those, who had revolted, did still retain a good Liking to the House of David. But Baasha, to make the Division sure, builds Ramah, that none might go in or come out either to or from Asa King of Judah. So that this was a second Division, and therefore the Text gives us an Account, how long Time it was distant from the first.

3. It is said, (q) that In the one and thirtieth year of Asa king of Judah began Omri to reign over Israel twelve years; six years reigned he in Tirzah. And yet (r) it is said, That in the eight and thirtieth year of Asa began Ahab the son of Omri to reign. So that the Question is, How there can possibly be twelve Years Reign between Asa's thirty first and thirty eighth?

Answer, Omri began to reign, as soon as ever he had slain Zimri, which was in the twenty seventh Year of Asa; but he was not the sole and intire King till his thirty first. For Tibni his Competitor and Cor-rival for the Crown held him in Agitation and Wars till Asa's thirty first. And then he was overcome; and Omri was acknowledg'd as an absolute King by Tibni's Soldiers; and so from thence forward he reign'd sole King in Tirzah.

Reply, But there is still a Doubt remaining, how Omri beginning his Monarchy in the thirty first Year of Asa, and ending it in his thirty eighth, can be said to have reign'd but six Years, whereas it was eight current?

Answer, The six Years compleat are only reckon'd. For the thirty first of Asa was even ending, when Tibni was conquer'd, and the thirty eighth was but newly began, when Omri died.

4. The Beginning of the Reign of Joram the Son of Jehoshaphat hath three Dates. The first is (s) in the seventeenth Year of the Reign of Jehoshaphat his Father. The second is (t) in the fifteenth Year of Joram the Son of Ahab, which was (u) in the two and twentieth Year of his Father Jehoshaphat. And the third was at the Death of his Father Jehoshaphat, which is mention'd (x) to be about three Years after.

Answer, But the Resolution of this Ambiguity is this: The first Time he was made Viceroy, when his Father went out of the Land for the Recovery of Ramoth-gilead;

(b) 1 Kings 14. 20. (i) 1 Kings 15. 25. (k) Ibid. (l) 2 Chron. 13. 20. (m) 1 Kings 13. 28. (n) 1 Kings 13. 33. (o) 1 Kings 16. 8. (p) 2 Chron. 16. 1. (q) 1 Kings 16. 23. (r) 1 Kings 16. 29. (s) Compare 1 Kings 22. 51, and 2 Kings 1. 17, and 2 Kings 3. 1. (t) 2 Kings 8. 16. (u) Compare 1 Kings 22. 41, and 1 Kings 16. 29. (x) 2 Chron. 21. 1.

and because Abab the King of Israel went with him, therefore Abaziah his Son was also made Viceroy in that Kingdom.

The second Time he was also Viceroy again in his Father Jehoshaphat's Absence upon his (y) Expedition into Moab with Jehoram, and from this Time do (z) the sacred Scriptures date the Beginning of his Reign. For Jehoshaphat after this Time was very little at home, but abroad, either (a) going thro' his own Country to reduce the People to the true Religion, or fighting with (b) the Moa-bites and Ammonites, and other People to reduce them to Subjection, or at least to force them to be quiet.

5. But there is a far greater Doubt, which ariseth, when we come to cast up the Times of his Son Abaziah. For whereas (c) Joram was thirty and two Years old, when he began to reign, and he reign'd eight Years in Jerusalem, and so he died when he was forty Years old, and immediately the Inhabitants of Jerusalem set Abaziah upon his Throne, who was his youngest Son; yet this Abaziah was (d) two and forty Years old, when he began to reign, and so he will prove to be two Years older than his Father.

Answer, The Book of Chronicles doth not mean in this Place, that Abaziah was so old, when he began to reign; for (e) the Book of the Kings tells us plainly, that he was but two and twenty at that Time. So that these two and forty Years have Reference to another thing, particularly to the House of Omri, and not to the Age of Abaziah. For if we count from the Beginning of the Reign of Omri, we shall find, that Abaziah enter'd into his Reign in the two and fortieth Year from thence, as any one may readily perceive, who will peruse such a Chronological Table, as hath been mention'd.

The Original (f) Words therefore are not to be translated, as we render them, Abaziah was two and forty years old, but Abaziah was the son of the two and forty years. And this was antiently observ'd in that History among the Jews call'd Seder Olam, or The Order of the World.

Now the Reason, why his Reign is dated differently from all the rest of the Kings of Judah, is, because he did according to all the Wickedness of the House of Omri; for (g) Atthaliah his Mother was Abab's Daughter, and she both perverted her Husband Joram, and brought up this her Son Abaziah in all the Idolatry of that wicked House. And therefore Abaziah is not thought fit to be reckon'd by the Line of the Kings of Judah, but by the House of Omri and Abab. Thus a particular Mark is set upon Joram by the Evangelist St. Matthew, who leaves out (h) the three succeeding Generations of Joram, viz. Abaziah, Joash and Amaziah, and mentions Uzziah as the next. And he alone among all the Kings of Israel might be reckon'd in this Manner, because in his Time the (i) whole House of Abab was cut off by Jehu, after (k) the Battle at the Field of Naboth the Jezreelite, where Joram the last King of Israel of the House of Abab, or Omri, was slain, and Abaziah was slain with him, and two and forty of his Brethren perish'd with the House of Abab.

6. There is one more Scruple arising concerning the Beginning of the Reign of this Abaziah. For (l) the same Book of Kings saith, that he began to reign in the twelfth Year of Joram the Son of Abab, and it tells us in (m) the next Chapter, that he began to reign in the eleventh Year of Joram the Son of Abab.

Answer, The Answer to this Question is easy to any one, who consults such a Chronological Table, as is mention'd. For by this it is very evident, that Joram reign'd one Year before his Father Abab's Death. For in the twentieth Year of Abab, which was the seventeenth Year of Jehoshaphat, (n) Abaziah

(y) 2 Kings Chap. 3. (z) 2 Kings 8. 17. 2 Chron. 21. 20. (a) 2 Chron. Chap. 19. (b) 2 Chron. Chap. 20. (c) 2 Kings 6. 17. 2 Chron. 21. 20. (d) 2 Chron. 22. 2. (e) 2 Kings 8. 26. (f) 2 Chron. 22. 2. בן ארבעים ושנים שנה אחזיהו במלכו. (g) 2 Kings 8. 18. (h) Matth. 1. 8. Here the three Descents are omitted, according to what the Psalmist saith, Psal. 37. 28. The seed of the wicked shall be cut off. See the Letter י, which is the last Letter of צרע, The Seed, and of רשע, The Wicked, cut out of that acrostical and alphabetical Psalm at that very Place. Dr. Lightfoot, Vol. 1. Page 417. saith, That this Omission is most divinely done from the Threatning of the second Commandment, Thou shalt not commit idolatry, for I visit the sins of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation. Joram committed Idolatry like the House of Abab, for the Daughter of Abab was his Wife, 2 Kings 8. 18. Therefore it is just with GOD to visit that Sin upon his Children, in Sign of which he blots them out of this Line to the fourth Generation. It is the Manner of Scripture very often to leave out Mens Names from certain Stories and Records, to shew a Dislike at some Evil in them. Thus all Cain's Posterity is blotted out of the Book of Chronicles, as it was out of the World by the Flood. So Simeon is omitted in Moses's Blessing, Deut. 33. for his Cruelty at Shechem and to Joseph. So Dan at the Sealing of the LORD's People, Revel. Chap. 7, because of Idolatry, which began in his Tribe, Judg. 18. So Joab from among David's Worthies, 2 Sam. 23. because of his Bloodiness to Amasa and Abner. And such another close Intimation of GOD's Displeasure at the Wickedness of Joram is to be seen 2 Chron. 22. 1, 2. where the Reign of his Son Abaziah is not dated according to the Custom and Manner of the other Kings of Judah, but by the Stile of the Continuance of the House of Omri. He who desires more concerning the Omission of these three Kings by St. Matthew, may consult Bishop Kidder's Demonstration of the MESSIAS, Book 2. Chap. 9. Page 124 to 130. (i) 2 Kings 10. 1 to 15. (k) 2 Kings 9. 21 to 30. (l) 2 Kings 8. 25. (m) 2 Kings 9. 29. (n) 1 Kings 22. 51.

the Son-in-Law of Abab did begin to reign in Judab, being made Viceroy when his Father (o) went to the Battle at Ramoth-gilead. There being (p) no Wars between Syria and Israel for three Years current, the first of these Years being Abab's twentieth Year of his Reign he did little. The next Year being his one and twentieth, he makes his Son Joram his Viceroy, whilst he was preparing for the Battle of Ramoth-gilead. Abab in his two and twentieth Year died, and then Joram became an absolute and intire King in his own Right, and therefore his Reign hath a double Reckoning. He acted as a Viceroy, and reign'd twelve Years in all, and as an intire King but eleven.

7. Anaziah began to reign (q) in the second Year of Joash King of Israel, which was the eight and thirtieth Year of his Father Joash King of Judab, and three Years current before his Death. And the Reason was, because his Father had cast himself into so much (r) Misery and Mischief thro' his (s) Apostacy, after the Death of Jehoiada the High Priest, and (t) by the Murder of Zachariah the Prophet, that he was unfit and unable to manage the Kingdom.

8. As Uzziah or Azariah, the Son of this Anaziah, was but (u) sixteen Years of Age, in the seven and twentieth Year of the Reign of Jeroboam the Second, when he began to reign; and as it appears by such a Chronological Table, that he was but four Years old at his Father's Death; therefore the Throne was empty for twelve Years, and the Rule was manag'd by some Persons as Potectors during the King's Minority, whose Names and Actions are not recorded.

9. There is also an Interregnum, or Vacancy of three and twenty Years in the Kingdom of Israel, between Jeroboam the Second, and Zechariah his Son; but the Reason of it is not easy to be determin'd. Perhaps it was occasion'd by (x) Wars from abroad, which Jeroboam might have provok'd against his own House, by the Conquest of Hamath and Damascus, or else by Seditions and Tumults at home; which is very probable, because (y) he reign'd but six Months, and came to an untimely End, and his Posterity lost the Kingdom. But let the Cause be what it will, it is certain, that the Throne was so long without a King, since Jeroboam (z) beginning to reign in the fifteenth Year of Anaziah, and (a) reigning one and forty Years, died in the fifteenth Year of Uzziah, and (b) Zechariah began not to reign till the eight and thirtieth.

10. Hoshea is said (c) to slay Pekab in the twentieth Year of Jotham the Son of Uzziah, whereas (d) Jotham reign'd but sixteen Years in all. But the Reason of this Accounting was, because of the Wickedness of Abaz, in whose Reign this Occurrence happen'd. For the HOLY GHOST chose rather to reckon by pious Jotham then in the Dust, than by idolatrous Abaz then alive. For in the Slaughter of Pekab, GOD aveng'd upon Pekab the (e) Bloodshed and Misery, which he had brought upon Judab; for he had slain of the Men thereof an hundred and twenty thousand in one Day. Now Abaz had caus'd this Wrath upon the People by Withdrawing them from the true Worship of GOD, and therefore when GOD avengeth this Injury of his People upon Pekab, the Time of it is computed from Jotham, who was holy and upright, and not from wicked Abaz, who had caus'd the Mischief.

11. He who looks narrowly into the Chronology of these Times, may also discover another very great Difficulty about the Reckoning of this twentieth Year of Jotham, which is this: If (f) Pekab began to reign in the fiftieth or last Year of Uzziah, and reign'd twenty Years; and if (g) Jotham began to reign in the second Year of Pekab, then the Year when Hoshea slew him, was but the nineteenth Year of Jotham, and not the twentieth.

Answer, In this very Difficulty the sacred Text hath fix'd the Time of Uzziah's becoming leprous, which is determin'd in no other Place; and it shews, that it was in the last Year of his Reign, when he offer'd to burn Incense in the Temple, and was struck with the Leprosy (a Disease with which the Priests, who were to be the Judges of it, could not be infected) and (h) his Son Jotham was over the House, judging the Land till the day of his Death. Now this last Year of Uzziah is counted for the first Year of Jotham, if we reckon him to reign twenty Years; so that tho' he began to reign, as absolute and sole King, in the second Year of the Reign of Pekab; yet he began to reign as Viceroy during the Disease of his Father, which began in the Year before.

12. It is said, (i) that Hoshea the Son of Elah began to reign over Israel in the twelfth Year of Abaz King of Judab, whereas he (k) had slain Pekab the Son of Remaliah in the twentieth Year from Jotham's Coming to the Throne, or in the fourth Year of Abaz the Son; for Jotham the Father (l) reign'd but sixteen Years. This shews, that he obtain'd not the Crown immediately, but was eight Years, before he could settle it quietly upon his Head. It is probable, that in this Time Abaz did disquiet Israel, when Pekab his potent Enemy was dead, in Revenge of that Slaughter which he had made in Judah, and that he kept Hoshea out of the Throne, and for this he might be call'd (m) the King of Israel, as well as for his Walking in the Ways of those Kings.

13. It is said, (n) that Hezekiah began to reign in the third Year of Hoshea the Son of Elah. Now (o) Hoshea began to reign in the twelfth Year of Abaz; and therefore it is evident, that Hezekiah began to reign in the fourteenth Year of Abaz his Father, and so he reign'd two or three Years before his Father's Death, who (p) reign'd sixteen Years.

The Reason of this was because of the Wickedness of Ahab, and because of (q) the Miseries and Intanglements, into which his Wickedness had brought him. And this shews the Zeal of Hezekiah in the Work of Reformation, because he not only attempted it, but also made so great a Progress in it during the Life of his wicked Father.

14. There ariseth another Doubt in the Computing of the Times of Hezekiah, as they are parallel with the Times of Hoshea, For whereas Hezekiah began to reign in the third Year of the Reign of Hoshea, as it is mention'd before; so according to this Computation the seventh of Hoshea should be counted for his fifth Year, and yet (r) it is call'd his fourth.

Answer, The Beginning of Hezekiah's Reign is of a double Date. He began indeed to be Viceroy, and to bear a Part of the Rule, in the third Year of Hoshea, which was the fourteenth Year of his Father Abaz; but the Time of that Year was but short, in which he was in the Royalty, and he did little or nothing remarkable in that Year. But in the next Year, which was the fifteenth of Abaz and the fourth Year of Hoshea, on (s) the very first day of the Year, or the first day of the Month Nisan, he began the Reformation, and stirred bravely in the Restoring of Religion; and therefore this Year is own'd as the most remarkable and celebrated Year of his Dominion: And thus the seventh of Hoshea, and his fourth, fall in together. In his (t) sixth Year the ten Tribes are carry'd away Captives by Shalmanezzer King of Assyria. And now the Parallels of the two Kingdoms of Judah and Israel are at an End; and the Times of the Kingdom of Judah lie henceforward in an easy and a continu'd Chronicle, without any great Scruple, until the Inhabitants were carried away Captives into Babylon.

15. These are all the Difficulties, which relate to the Kings of Israel and Judah; but there remains another concerning the Reign of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon. Daniel (u) speaks of him by the Name of King of Babylon in the third Year of the Reign of Jehoiakim King of Judah. The Prophet Jeremiah saith, (x) that the fourth Year of Jehoiakim was the first Year of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, and the Assyrian Records do not make him King until two Years after that.

Answer, But as Daniel calls him King of Babylon, so he might have been admitted so late into the Sovereignty that he did very little that Year, and therefore his Reign is dated by the Jews from the next. But the true Answer is this, (y) In the third Year of Jehoiakim, Nabopolassar King of Babylon finding that on Pharaoh-necho's Taking of Charchemish, all Syria and Palestina had revolted from him, and that he being old and infirm, was unable to march thither himself to reduce them, he took Nebuchadnezzar his Son into a Partnership with him into the Empire, and (z) sent him with an Army into those Parts; and from hence Daniel's Computation of the Years of Nebuchadnezzar's Reign begins, that is, from the End of the third Year of the Reign of Jehoiakim. For it was about the End of the Year, that this was done, and therefore according to (a) the usual Computation of the Jews, the fourth Year of Jehoiakim was the first Year of Nebuchadnezzar. But according to the Babylonians, his Reign was not reckon'd to begin till after his Father's Death, which happen'd two Years afterward. And this Computation even (b) Daniel himself reckons by, when he had been some Time in Babylon.

7. There are also two Difficulties in Explaining the (c) Account of the Prophet Jeremiah, who reckoning the Men that Nebuchadnezzar carry'd away Captive, saith, that in his seventh Year they were three thousand and three and twenty Jews, and that in his eighteenth Year they were three thousand and two and thirty carry'd away from Jerusalem. For first, He never mentions in this Reckoning either the Captivity in the fourth Year of Jehoiakim, which was the first Captivity, nor the Captivity of Jechoniah, in which most of the People were carry'd away. And secondly, There is no Mention elsewhere of Nebuchadnezzar's Carrying away into Captivity from Jerusalem either in his seventh Year, or in his eighteenth, but there is Mention made of (d) a Captivity in his eighth Year, and (e) in his nineteenth. In Answer to the first of these, The Prophet doth not speak in general of all the Persons, who were carry'd Captives, but particularly of such as were both carry'd and put to Death; for this was the Design of his Discourse in the Verse immediately before. And for the Confirming of this Opinion, it is observable, that in these two Verses he only mentions the Captives that were caus'd by the two open Rebellions of Jeboiakim and Zedekiah; and upon those follow'd a Slaughter in cold Blood. But in the fourth Year of Jeboiakim, when Daniel and his Fellows were taken Captives, there was no such Slaughter, because there was no such Rebellion. So that by this very Consideration, we may perceive what was the End of Jeboiakim, Jechoniah or (f) Coniah, against whom the Prophet Jeremiah threatned, that he should be buried with the burial of an ass, which being an unclean Beast, was drawn and cast forth beyond the gates of Jerusalem, or that he should be kill'd with the rest of the Captives, and so carry'd off together, and bury'd in a Pit, without any farther Ceremony.

The second Difficulty hath in Part been already answer'd: For Nebuchadnezzar's first Year, in which he had the Command of the Assyrian Forces, was properly in Jeboiakim's third, and Daniel being in Babylon, (g) reckons it accordingly, which Reckoning is (h) us'd in Scripture in some other Places. But beside this (i) his first Year was counted with Jeboiakim's fourth, because this was the first Year, in which he had a Power over the Jews, and in which he had taken the Inhabitants of Jerusalem Captives, and therefore it is thus taken Notice of, as the first over Israel, and the first of the Seventy, which is (k) a most remarkable Epocha in the sacred Scripture.

Now Jeboiakim's Captivity was in Nebuchadnezzar's eighth, according to the first Date, but it is said to be in his seventh, according to the second Date; and the rather, because Jeboiakim was carry'd Captive the same Year; and thus one was distinguish'd from the other. In the same Manner Zedekiah's Captivity was in the nineteenth Year of Nebuchadnezzar's Rule, according to the first Date, and in the eighteenth, according to the second; which Year includes the Number of the Captives and Slain, whom Nebuchadnezzar caught of the Jews at the Siege of Jerusalem, before (l) the King of Egypt rais'd it in the former Year; for we cannot imagine but that he caught some, and it is easy to suppose, how he would deal with them, because they had been in an open Rebellion, and in Confederacy with the Egyptians against him.

8. The Particulars thus mention'd being duly observ'd, we may plainly find that the Captivity of Jerusalem, which happen'd in the eleventh Year of Zedekiah, was three hundred and ninety Years after the Setting up of the golden Calves by Jeroboam, as it was (m) particularly foretold by the Prophet Ezekiel; which being thirty Years after the Dedication of the Temple, the whole Sum is 420. This Sum being subtracted from the Year 1007, leaves 587 for the Distance between this Captivity, to the Year of the Birth of CHRIST 00, or 588 for the Space of Time to the Year of CHRIST 1, or that the Babylonish Captivity was in the Year of the Julian Period 4126, according to the unanimous Concurrence of our learned Primate, Dr. Prideaux, and Mr. Marshall.

9. This Space of Time of 420 Years, is also divided into two remarkable Parts. First, From the Time of the Dedication of the Temple, to the Beginning of the famous Astronomical Account of Time, call'd The Era of Nabonassar, when the Assyrian Empire was dissolv'd into two at the Death of Sardanapalus; from whence Ptolomy began his Canon of the Emperors at Babylon, and from whence the learned Dr. Prideaux began his admirable Connexion of the History of the Old and New Testament, which was 261 Years. And secondly, The Space of 149 Years from the Era of Nabonassar to the Babylonish Captivity; the History of which, and the succeeding Times, is most excellently given us by the same Author.

The History of the World, from the Dedication of Solomon's Temple, to the famous Æra of Nabonassar.

Anno
ante

FTER Solomon had built and consecrated the Temple, he proceeded to erect such other stately Fabricks as were proper for the Grandeur and Conveniency of himself and his Family. He spent but (a) seven Years and an half in Building the Temple, and twelve Years and an half, or (b) thirteen Years current, in Building the rest; so that the whole (c) took up twenty Years compleat, or the first half of his Reign. Now tho' we cannot suppose that all his other Buildings did equal that of the Temple, yet the Reason why they took up more Time was, because there was not so great a Zeal for the Finishing these, as for the other. David had also provided a vast Store of Materials, and a vast Sum of Money for Building the Temple, in the thirty last Years of his Reign; all this, with whatever else Solomon could spare, was spent, according as it was intended, so that all fresh Materials must be provided, and the Workmen must be paid out of Solomon's bare Revenue, which was increas'd by no Spoils or Conquests, and therefore many of the Workmen were dismiss'd, and so the Work went on the slower. In the Middle (as Father Lamy hath describ'd it) there was the magnificent Palace call'd (d) The house of the forest of Lebanon, under which there was a large stately Hall an hundred Cubits long, and fifty Cubits broad, and thirty Cubits high, supported by threescore Pillars, (e) which stood in four Rows, fifteen in a Row; so that being tall and straight, they look'd like the tall Cedars of the Forest of Lebanon, and gave Occasion for the whole Fabrick to be call'd by this Name. Over this there is suppos'd to be another Fabrick of the same Nature, supported by three Rows of Pillars, and over this such Rooms as were necessary for Servants and other Attendants. Before this Palace (f) there was a Porch supported by Pillars in the same Manner, lying in Length opposite to the other great Room, and advancing forward thirty Cubits more. This was the Room for his Guards, and (g) in this his Throne was plac'd, which was overlaid with pure Gold. On the right Side of this stately Building (h) his own Palace is suppos'd to stand, and on the left Side (i) the Palace which he built for Pharaoh's Daughter, whom he took for his Queen soon after he came to the Throne. Round the whole Building there is suppos'd to be a large Court; encompass'd with a Row of such other Buildings, as were necessary for all Sorts of Offices which belong'd to the King. The whole was suppos'd to be an Oblong of 540 Cubits long, and 360 Cubits broad; so that it contain'd (k) above a Quarter of the Quantity of Ground on which the Buildings of the Temple stood, but not (l) not so much as a third Part.

2. Among all the Works of Brass, which the Scripture tells us were cast for the Service and Ornament of the Temple, there are three, which deserve to be particularly consider'd, viz. the two Pillars, the Sea, and the Lavers. As for the Pillars, it is said, that (m) they were set up in the Porch of the Temple, one on the right Side, and the other on the left. It is (n) suppos'd, that Solomon had Respect to the Pillar of the Cloud, and the Pillar of Fire, which went before the Israelites, and conducted them in the Wilderness, and was the Token of the divine Providence over them; and that he set them up, hoping and praying that the divine Light, and the Cloud of his Glory, would vouchsafe to enter in there. And that by them GOD and his Providence would dwell among them in this House. The Pillar on the right Hand represented the Pillar of the Cloud, and the Pillar on the left Hand represented the Pillar of Fire. Their Names were Jachin and Boaz, which Words signify Establishment and Strength. Jachin signifies He will establish, from (o) GOD's Promise to establish the Throne of David, and his People Israel: And Boaz signifies Herein is Strength, either alluding to GOD's Promise, in which was all their Strength and Settlement, or rather to the Ark which was within, and (p) was call'd The Strength of the LORD.

(i) 1 Kings 7. 8. (k) For the Area of the Top of the Mount on which the Temple was built being 800
Cubits Square, the whole Content is 640000, a Quarter Part whereof is 160000; but the Palace being 540
Cubits long, and 360 Cubits broad, the Total is 194400 (as appears by Multiplying the one into the other.)
(l) For the third Part of 640000 is 213333. (m) 1 Kings 7. 21. 2 Chron. 3. 17. (n) Abarbinel on 1 Kings 7. 21. (o) 2 Sam. 7. 12 to 18. Psal. 89. 28 to 38. (p) 2 Chron. 6. 41. Psal. 132. 8. Psal.
80. 2, and 105. 4.

In Reckoning the Height of these two Pillars, there is some Difference and Difficulty; for (q) in some Places it is said, that the height of one pillar was eighteen cubits, and (r) in another Place it is said, He made two pillars thirty five Cubits high. The Meaning hereof in one Place is, The height of each Pillar distinct was eighteen Cubits. But the Book of Chronicles reckons the Measure of them both jointly together, and saith, that they were five and thirty cubits long, that is, both together were so long, and severally they were seventeen Cubits and an half apiece. Now the half Cubit, that was reckon'd above, when it is said, that they were eighteen Cubits high apiece, was taken up within the Chapter. For the Chapter being a long massy Piece of Braſs set upon the Head of the Pillar, the Pillar must needs be let something into it, as a Tenon into a Mortise to make it fast, which Tenon was half a Cubit; so that the Pillar was eighteen Cubits high, but there were only seventeen and an half appearing. Besides, it is often said of (s) these Pillars, that the Chapter, which was upon the Top of them, was five Cubits; and in (t) one Place it is said, that the Height of the Chapter was three Cubits. But this Difference ariseth from this, That the Chapters themselves were five Cubits high apiece, but there (u) was Network wrought about them at their Bottom, which stood as a Crown about them upon the Top of the Pillars two Cubits broad, so that only three Cubits of the Chapter it self could be seen. In (x) the Book of Kings it is said, that the Chapters upon the two Pillars had also pomegranates above, and the pomegranates were two hundred in rows round about the other chapter. That is, the Pomegranates in all were two hundred, or an hundred upon each. The Prophet Jeremiah saith, (y) that there were ninety and six pomegranates on a side, or רוחות sideways, and all the pomegranates upon the network, were an hundred round about. That is, (z) the Pomegranates were toward the four Quarters of the World, which they sometimes call רוחות השמי, or the Winds of Heaven. They were twenty four parallel to each Side of the Pillar, which made ninety six in all, and one at each Corner, to fill up those Squares, so that there was an hundred to each Pillar, and two hundred in all.

3. The next that was cast was (a) the brazen Sea, so call'd not only from the Water that was in the Top of it, but also from what was seen at the Bottom, where the Priests wash'd themselves, and from whence they took Water for all other Uses. Its Form is generally represented to us as an Hemisphere, like a round Cup or Goblet, because the Scripture tells us, that it was round about, and that there were ten cubits from the one brim to the other, and its height was five cubits. It stood upon twelve oxen, three looking toward the north, and three looking toward the west, and three looking toward the south, and three looking toward the east, and the sea was set above upon them, and all their hinder parts were inward. Josephus (b) adds, That there was a twisted Pillar of one Cubit thick under the Middle of it for a Supporter. And the Oxen were plac'd in a Position lower behind than before, which was both an Easing to the Weight, and kept it firm and steady. We are also told, (c) that it contained two thousand Baths, or about 250 Hogsheads of our common Measure. Now as a Cubit is (d) known to be 21.888 Inches; so the Diameter must be 218.88 Inches: And as the solid (e) Content of a Bath is 1747 Inches, or about 8 Gallons of our common Measure; so there is a great Difficulty to find Room to contain so much Water, or about (f) 3494000 Cubical Inches. To remove this Difficulty we may suppose, First, that no Braſs in this Bulk might be above an Inch thick, and therefore tho' there was (g) an Hand Breadth, or 3.648 Inches for the Brim on the Top thereof, yet it was not so thick throughout; but this Brim might be design'd for Preventing the Water from Running over. This will enlarge the Sea, so that the Water shall be (h) 224.176 Inches from Side to Side, and make an Hemisphere of that Bigness, which will accordingly contain (i) 1684 Baths, and no more.

(h) For the Span, or 3.648 Inches, being doubled as on both Sides, and added to 218.880, makes 226.176, from which subtract the two Inches for the Sides, and the Remainder will be 224.176 for the Diameter of the Water.

(i) For as 7 is to 22, so is 224.176 the Diameter of the Water to 704.553 the Circumference at the Brim; the half of which, or 352.276, being multiply'd by half the Diameter, or 112.088 makes 39485.912 for the Area of the plain Circumference; this multiply'd by

4. makes 157543.648 for the Surface of the whole Sphere, the third Part of which, or 52514.549 being multiply'd by half the Diameter, or 112.088, gives 5886250.767 for the Inches in the whole Sphere, which being divided by 1747, the cubical Inches in a Bath, the Remainder is 1684 Baths in the whole. To make up this Deficiency of 316 Baths, let us suppose a Cavity in the Supporter mention'd by Josephus, which might

more. This may be the Reason, why the Contents of the Sea is not mention'd either in the Books of Kings or Chronicles, until after the Description of the Oxen: And thus as the brazen Sea was of a prodigious Bigness; so might the brazen Oxen be of a proportionable Size.

4. And as there is a Difficulty to find, how this Sea could contain two thousand Baths, so this Difficulty is increas'd in (k) the Book of Chronicles, where we are told, that it received and held three thousand baths. In Answer to this it is agreed, that this whole Mass consisted of two Parts, the (l) upper Part and the lower Part; the upper Part was the Sea it self, and the lower Part was like a large round Basin, into which the Water came by Cocks from the Sea. Thus it was in the Tabernacle in the Wilderness, (m) of which GOD spake to Moses, Thou shalt also make a laver of brass, and his foot also of brass to wash withal. For Aaron and his sons shall wash their hands and their feet thereat, and it shall be a statute for ever unto him, and to his seed throughout their generations. As therefore the Utensils in the Tabernacle resembled those in the Temple, and the same Ordinances were to continue; so there is no Doubt but Solomon had the same Conveniencies, only much larger, because the Number of Priests to officiate therein was much greater. Enpolemus speaks of it as (n) twenty Cubits broad every way; and perhaps his Meaning might be, That there was a solid Pavement within of ten Cubits, on which the Feet of the Oxen stood, and five Cubits of Water on each Side round about, so that it was twenty in all. And the Design being only for the Priests to wash their Hands and Feet therein, it ought to be shallow to prevent any Mischief, and broad, that many might come together to cleanse themselves. To these Waters (o) the Prophets and (p) St. John seem to allude. And Maimonides saith, that (q) Ben Catin made twelve Cocks to the Sea, thro' which the Water did flow, whereas before there were but two, that the Priests might wash together. And there was a Receptacle round the Sea, in which there was always Water, which was call'd Its Base. And therefore, the (r) Author of the Chronicles speaks both of the upper and lower Part together, and saith, that the brazen Sea, of which the Basin was a Part, held three thousand Baths, because the Basin held one; but the Author of the Book of Kings saith, that it held but two thousand, because he only speaks of the upper Part, and takes no Notice of that which was below, which did not properly belong to the brazen Sea, but only to its Basin or Base.

5. As to the Lavers, it is said, that (s) one laver contain'd forty baths, and every laver was four cubits. Now if these were in the Form of an Hemisphere, every Laver would contain (t) an hundred Baths; or if they were made in the Form of a Cylinder, whose Height is not mention'd, forty Baths would (u) fill about twelve Inches in Height in each of these. And these different Shapes might be the Reason of the different Expressions, in which it is said, that the molten sea was round all about, and (x) only that every laver was four cubits, but not that it was round all about.

6. There is another Difficulty concerning the molten Sea. It is said (y) to be ten cubits from the one brim to the other, and round all about, and that a line of thirty cubits did compass it round about. Now if it was but a bare ten Cubits, the Line which compass'd it about (z) ought to be  $31\frac{1}{2}$  Cubits. And as it was (a) an hand Breadth, or the sixth Part of a Cubit thick; so the outer Part of the Brim must be 10 Cubits and about seven Inches, and consequently the Line which did compass it about must be so much the longer. In Answer to this, it is not said, that a Line of thirty Cubits did compass it round at the Brim; but that there was a particular Place in the Outside of this Sea, where a Ring of Brass of thirty Cubits round being cast with this Sea did encompass it. There was without Doubt round the Brim some curious Work to set it off. Under this there (b) were contain 4 Baths or 32 Gallons, and a Cavity in each of the twelve Oxen sufficient to contain 26 Baths, or 3 Hogsheads and two Baths, and then the whole would contain 2000, according as it is mention'd; and so there might be Conveyances with Pipes from the Feet of the Oxen, and the Bottom of the Supporter, to such Cocks, which would let out the Water, as Occasion should require. (n) This Father Lamy corrects as an Error, but perhaps without sufficient Ground, and would have him to mean but ten Cubits. (o) Ezek. 47. 1 to 13. Zech. 14. 8. (p) Rev. 22. 1. (t) For four Cubits containing 87.552 Inches, as 7 is to 22, so is the Diameter 87.552 to the Circumference 275.163; the half of which being multiplied by the half of the Diameter, the Total is 6024.1516, the Content of the Area within the Circle, which being multiplied by 4, the Total is 24096.6066 for the Circumference of the Sphere, the third Part whereof being multiplied by 43.786 the Semidiameter, the Total is 351698, the half of which is 175849, or the cubical Inches contain'd in such a Laver, which being divided by 1747, the Inches in a Bath, the Remainder is 100 Baths, which the Laver would contain. (u) For as there are 1747 cubical Inches in a Bath, so 40 Baths would contain 69880 Inches: And there being 6024 cubical Inches in the Area of such a Cylinder, so the said Sum being multiplied by 12, produces 72288, which is something more than the Inches in 40 Baths, and argues the Lavers to be of such a Shape. (x) 1 Kings 7. 38. (y) 1 Kings 7. 23. (z) For as 7 is to 22, so is 10 to  $31\frac{1}{2}$ . (a) 1 Kings 7. 26. (b) 1 Kings 7. 24.

Knops compassing it ten in a Cubit, so that there were three hundred of them in a Row. These were in the Shape of an Egg, so that they might something resemble the Back of an Ox, and at the lower Part of these there was the Figure of an Ox Head, from whose Mouth the Water is suppos'd to have gush'd out, and therefore it is (c) said to be the Similitude of Oxen, which did compass it round about. Of these there were two Rows, or six hundred of them in all, which were cast at first with the Sea, and under this we may suppose that there was a Ring, whose round was three hundred Cubits, cast in the same Manner, dividing the wrought from the plain Work. And as the Diameter of this Vessel was ten Cubits and two Spans, or about seven Inches; so (d) a Line of thirty Cubits to compass the whole would be plac'd at such a Distance from the Top, that if a Line from the Brim to the lowest Point was divided into four Parts, one of these Parts would be above it, and three Parts below it.

7. Solomon being intent upon his stately Buildings, and having married several strange Wives, seems by little and little to neglect the publick Worship of GOD, and therefore, as GOD had (e) appear'd to him when he was first entring upon his Kingdom, and had (f) answer'd his Prayer by the Fire and a Cloud; so now (g) he appears to him again to call back his wandering Thoughts to the Service of the Temple, that he being now come to the Height of Settlement and Security in his Kingdom, might not disregard his divine and chief Benefactor. Accordingly GOD puts him in Mind of his former Prayer, at the Dedication of the Temple, and tells him, that it should be the constant Place for religious Worship, with Promises of Blessings to him, as long as he continu'd in his Duty, and severe Threatnings both against him and the whole Nation, whenever they fell off to Idolatry.

8. Solomon having finish'd his Buildings, (h) resolves to shew himself grateful to Hiram King of Tyre, and therefore he offers him twenty Cities in the Land of Galilee, adjoining to his own Country. These were no Part of the Land of Canaan, as it was divided among the Israelites. For that being GOD's Heritage, could not be alienated, but seem to be Cities which had been conquer'd by David, and had not been as yet inhabited by the Israelites, but had been only Tributaries to them. However, some think that Solomon never intended to give Hiram a perpetual Right and Propriety in these Cities; but only the Possession and Enjoyment of them, till the Debt was satisfy'd, which Solomon had contracted, by the Assistance, which Hiram afforded him in Building the Temple and his Palaces. Hiram coming to see these Cities, found them not to be such as were agreeable to his Purpose and the Genius of his People. For the Tyrians were almost wholly addicted to Merchandize, being most commodiously situated for that Purpose, and therefore they would not remove from the Sea Coasts to live in a Soil, which was very fat and deep, and requir'd a great deal of Labour to manure it, which they had not been accusom'd to. For this Reason he calls it The Land of Cabul, (i) that is, Displeasing or Dirty, as (k) the Jews expound it. Hiram therefore returns them to Solomon again, but did not break off Friendship with him, and Solomon made him some other Recompence, which gave him much better Satisfaction. However Solomon coming thither, and finding that the (l) Syrians of Zobab in the Land of Hamath having been formerly conquer'd by David, had revolted from him, he (m) reduces them again to his Obedience. And the better to secure them, he builds Store Cities in the Country, in which he laid up Provisions for War, and repairs the Cities which Hiram refus'd, placing the Israelites in them, and then he proceeds to repair all the other Cities, which were in the Land of Canaan, (n) employing those Inhabitants which were not of the Children of Israel, in all the servile Labours, and placing the Israelites to be Surveyors of the Work, to attend upon his Person, to command in his Armies, and to carry on a Trade of Merchandize, that so he might make his Nation as famous, as rich and as flourishing, as was possible to be effected by human Policy. He also fits out a Fleet at Ezion-geber for Ophir, which return'd at certain Times with great Quantities of Gold, and Silver, and other very valuable Commodities.

9. Among all the Towns, which Solomon rebuilt, that of Gezer is the most remarkable, as (o) being first rebuilt by him; and the Story seems to be thus. Gezer was an antient Town in Canaan, so that (p) there was a King thereof when Joshua conquer'd the Country. In the Division of the Land it (q) fell to the Tribe of Ephraim, bordering upon the northern Part of the Country of the Philistines, and not far from the Mediterranean Shore. It was one of the (r) eight and forty Cities, which with their Suburbs were given to the Levites, and

(s) call'd Gazara both by Josephus and in the Maccabees, and is mention'd as not far from Joppa, Azotus and Jamnia. When the Ephraimites took Possession of it, they suffer'd the (t) Canaanites to live there among them, who seem to have disturb'd their Peace, and there was (u) a Battle near it in the Time of David; and it seems to have been taken from the Israelites at the End of his Reign. When Solomon came to the Throne, he did not seem inclinable to go to War (it being foretold, that he should be a peaceable King) but to set himself about the Building the Temple, that being the Work to which he was more particularly call'd. When the Match was propos'd between Solomon and Pharaoh's Daughter the King of Egypt, who was the last of the twentieth Dynasty, whose other Name is not known, he thought he could not do a more acceptable Service, or shew how useful his Alliance might be, better than by the Retaking of Gezer. For this Purpose he sets out a large Fleet of Ships (for he could not come at them any other Way) and the Soldiers being (x) enrag'd at their obstinate Defence burnt the City to the Ground, and slew all the Canaanites, that were in it. This is (y) suppos'd to be the first Expedition, that the Egyptians made out of their own Country from the Time of Sesostris's, or of Joshua's Government, till this Time. However, Pharaoh after that begins to rebuild the Town, and when Solomon married his Daughter, he gave it to him as a Part of her Portion. And therefore out of Respect to her, when he began to repair and build the Cities in his Kingdom, this was the first.

10. The Warning which GOD had given to Solomon this second Time, had a very good Effect upon him, and makes him zealous in his Service. The first Instance, which he shew'd of this Nature was (z) the Removal of his Queen out of the City of David, where she first dwelt, to the stately Palace which he had prepar'd for her. And tho' other Reasons might be given for this Action; yet Solomon (a) declares that he did it upon a religious Account. The Ark had been settled long in David's House, and had a Tabernacle made for it, so that there ought to be a special Regard to the Place, where it had made its Abode. And Solomon would no longer suffer a Stranger (for so his Wife was, tho' profelyted) to keep her Court there. For tho' she had renounc'd Idolatry; yet it is not likely, that she and all her Servants had embrac'd the Law of Moses, and so they might many Ways defile a Place, which had been made sacred by the divine Presence.

However to gratify his Queen, he (b) after that built Millo, in Honour to her, and for her Pleasure and Conveniency, because he had remov'd her to an House near it. Upon this he (c) settl'd the daily Sacrifice of the Temple, and took Care, that the Law of Moses should be strictly observ'd, which prescrib'd, (d) what Offerings should be offer'd up every Day, and (e) at the three solemn Feasts, and he settl'd the Courses of the Priests, the Levites, the Porters, Singers and others, in the same Method, which David had appointed.

11. Upon Solomon's bringing up his Queen to the House that he had prepar'd for her, he is thought to compose the Book, which goes under the Name of the Canticles, or the Song of Solomon. He seems to have plac'd her first in the middle Building, call'd The house of the forest of Lebanon; and then to have remov'd her to her own Apartments, and therefore he saith, (f) Come with me from Lebanon, my Spouse, with me from Lebanon; and (g) Thy nose is as the tower of Lebanon. It is certain, that the best and most proper Aim of this Book was at a higher Matter than an earthly Marriage; however; he makes his Marriage with Pharaoh's Daughter a Type of that sublime and spiritual Marriage between CHRIST and his Church, especially the Gentiles. Thus (h) the Tower of Lebanon look'd toward Damascus, the Place where the great Apostle of the Gentiles (i) was converted, and began to preach CHRIST JESUS, that he was the son of GOD. Pharaoh's Daughter was an Hea-then, and originally a Stranger to the Church of Israel; she was also an African born; and so a (k) Blackmore, as she speaks of herself in that Dialogue, and so she was the fitter Type of what Solomon intended in every particular.

12. The Israelites being now busy in enriching themselves by Merchandise abroad, Solomon employs himself at home in Composing of several Pieces both divine and human; which made him very famous for his Wisdom, insomuch that it is said of him, (l) that he spake three thousand proverbs, and his songs were a thousand and five. And he spake of trees; from the cedar that is in Lebanon; even unto the hyssop that springeth out of the wall: he spake also of beasts, and of fowl, and of creeping things, and of fishes. And there came all people to hear the wisdom of Solomon, from all kings of the earth, who had heard of his wisdom. All his Philosophical Treatises are lost, but what he wrote at this Time by divine Inspiration is contain'd in the Book of Proverbs, which may be divided, as it lies, into several Parts. Thus, from the Beginning of the first Chapter to the End of the ninth seems to have been compil'd by him for the Instruction of his Son Rehoboam, who being born in the last Year of David's Reign must now be at least one and twenty Years of Age, and therefore capable to receive it, and it had been happy for him, if he had observ'd it. From the Beginning of the tenth Chapter to the latter End of the four and twentieth are Lessons fram'd for the Instruction of others. From the Beginning of the five and twentieth Chapter, to the End of the nine and twentieth are Proverbs found in some antient Copy of his in the Time of Hezekiah, as Moses his Copy of the Law was found in the Days of Josiah. The thirtieth Chapter was written by Agur the Son of Jakeb, of whom there is no particular Account who he was, or when he liv'd, and therefore the Chapter may very properly be taken in, where it is plac'd, because it is not possible to find a fitter Place for it. The last Chapter is some Part of it Bathsheba's Advice to Solomon, and some Part of it the Words of Solomon in her Commendation; for she was a tender Mother to him, and we find nothing to bespot her Character after his Birth. Her Words might (m) have been laid in her Story, and in Solomon's Minority; however they may properly be plac'd here; because the Words of Solomon in Commendation of virtuous Women, as she then appear'd to be, were written at the same Time with his other Proverbs, and so the Occasion of the Words may be fitly join'd to the Words themselves. Solomon is call'd Lemuel by his Mother, as alluding to Shemuel or Samuel a Son of his Mother's Vows, as (n) Solomon is here also affirm'd to be. She gives him many excellent Lessons in his tender Years, proper to make him a good Man and a good King, which he transcribes, and in Return highly commends a virtuous Woman in an Acrostick or an Alphabetical Oration, which concludes the Book.

13. Among the Foreigners, who came to hear the Wisdom of Solomon, the Queen of Sheba is particularly mention'd, both in the (o) Old and (p) New Testament. She liv'd in the southern Parts of Arabia Felix, near the Red Sea, which was therefore call'd the uttermost parts of the earth, because there was no Travelling any farther that way by Land. It is suppos'd, that she had some Tincture of reveal'd Religion from her pious Ancestors, as descended from Abraham by Keturah, one of whose Sons begat (q) Sheba the first Planter of that Country. It is probable, that she came to hear of Solomon's Character by the Ships that went to Ophir. For they sail'd by her Coast, and spread his Fame there, as they did in all other Places where they touch'd, proclaiming his Magnificence, and especially his Wisdom, and the glorious Temple which he had built for the Worship of GOD. The Time of this Journey cannot possibly be fix'd any nearer, than by Supposing it to be about the Middle Time between the Finishing of his Buildings and the End of his Life. The Questions which she ask'd seem'd to be about things pertaining to Piety and the Service of GOD. For our Saviour saith, that she came to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and should therefore rise up in Judgment against that Generation, who would not learn of him. And it is said, (r) that the particular Fame, which she had heard of Solomon, was concerning the Name of the LORD; and this most probably was the Occasion of her Journey. She came to Jerusalem with a very great Retinue, and with Camels, which brought Silver and Gold, and precious Stones in Abundance. Solomon answer'd all her Questions, and shew'd her the Temple, the Palace, and the Manner of his Attendance; upon which she confess'd, that every thing was beyond what she had heard, or could have been imagin'd; and after she had given him very great and noble Presents, and receiv'd others from him, which were not inconsiderable, she return'd into her own Country with the utmost Satisfaction.

14. But Solomon in his latter Years not regarding the Law of Moses as he did at first, brought himself, his Posterity and Nation into all Manner of Mischiefs. It was against the Law for (s) Kings to multiply Wives to themselves, and especially those of strange Nations; but Solomon now giving up himself to Pleasure, and not observing this Law soon grew regardless of all the rest, insomuch that he not only tolerated their Idolatry, but even (t) he built an high Place for that Purpose. Indeed it is never said of Pharaoh's Daughter that she turn'd his Heart from the LORD, as the rest did (for if she had she could not have been a Type of CHRIST) or that he set up Altars for her: which is an Argument that she was profelyted to the Jewish Religion, and continu'd in it. Solomon being drawn away, his Prosperity and Happiness soon begin to change. Hadad being (u) return'd out of Egypt into Edom, recovers his own Country, denies to pay Tribute any longer, and sets up for himself. Rezon the Son of Eliadab having liv'd hitherto by Plunder and Robbery, after the Manner of the Arabians, now (x) seizes upon Damascus, and makes himself King of all the Country thereabout, and these two confederating together, distress Solomon both in the North and South at the same Time. And now GOD vouchsafing no more to appear unto him, sends a Prophet to him to tell him of his Sins, and to pronounce this heavy Judgment against him, that he would tear his Kingdom to Pieces, and give the greatest Part of it to one of his own Servants. And as Nathan had before brought David to a Sense of his Sin; so it is suppos'd, that this Prophet did the same by Solomon, so that his serious Reflexion on his past Life at this Time mov'd him to write the Book of Ecclesiastes, in the Beginning of which he (y) declares, that all the Things in which he delighted, were nothing but Vanity and Vexation; and at last he concludes with (z) this Observation, That the Fear of GOD, and the Keeping of his Commandments, is the Duty of all Men, Kings not excepted. For GOD shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil.

15. In the latter End of the Reign of Solomon, Zadok the High Priest died, being about eighty Years of Age, and was succeeded by his Son Abi-maaz, who was a (a) swift Runner, when Joab obtain'd the Victory over Abshalom, and over-ran Cush to carry the first Intelligence. When the Conspiracy was strong, David depended (b) on his Fidelity to bring him the News of all that was transacted at Jerusalem, which (c) he did with the Hazard of his own Life, and had no Way to escape but by Hiding in a Well, until they were gone by, who pursu'd him; so that David could say of him by Experience, that he was (d) a good man, and always faithful to his Interest. From this Circumstance it may be suppos'd, that he was about fifty Years of Age when he was made High Priest, and continu'd in it about two and thirty Years.

16. In the last Year of Solomon's Reign, Semendis the King of Egypt dies, and was succeeded by his Son Pseusennes, as Eusebius, or Shishak, as the Scripture calls him. He was a warlike Prince, and seems to have a particular Hatred against the Kings of the House of David, so that he harbour'd all those who might be instrumental to do them a Mischief. Among the rest of the Malecontents, the Principal was Jeroboam the Son of Nebat, who afterward procur'd a Revolt of the ten Tribes, and was made their King. In Solomon's Time he was the Overseer of his Buildings, and the chief (e) Ruler of the Tribe of Joseph, so that he was well known among them, and always look'd upon as a very active Man, and fit for Business. After GOD had told Solomon by the Prophet Abijah, that he would rend the Kingdom from his Son, the same Prophet meets Jeroboam in the Field, and tells him, that these Kingdoms should be given to him. Upon this Solomon design'd to kill Jeroboam, who to avoid his Fury flees into Egypt. There he tells Shishak the Uneasiness of the People, the Negligence of Solomon, and the Prophecy of Abijah, and so they consult together how to effect it, and enter into a mutual Confederacy for this Purpose.

17. It may seem strange, that Solomon having marry'd the Daughter of Pharaoh King of Egypt, had not a sufficient Interest in that Court to prevent such Practices as these. But the Case was this, Hadad the King's Son of Edom was brought into Egypt at the Time of (f) the Conquest of that Country, which was some Years before (g) Solomon was born; so that in all Probability he was marry'd to the Sister-in-Law of Pharaoh before Solomon came to the Crown, and therefore (h) living in the Family, and his Son being bred up with Pharaoh's Children, occasion'd a greater Intimacy; so that it was not proper for Solomon to attempt a Misunderstanding between them. Besides, when Hadad return'd into Edom, he might have had no other Design but the Living a private Life in his own Country, or if he had, Pharaoh's might know nothing of it. As for the Case of Jeroboam, it was far different. Solomon had marry'd one of the Dynasty of the Dios-polites, whose Ancestors liv'd at Thebes. But the Year in which Solomon finish'd the Temple there was a Revolution in Egypt, this Dynasty or Succession of Kings lost the Throne, and was succeeded by that of the Taanites, of whom Semendis the Father of Shishak was the first King. These kept their Court at Zoan, (i) an ancient Town not far from the Borders of Canaan, so that it lay convenient to receive any who would come from thence. And therefore as it was the Interest of the former Kings to keep up a good Understanding with the House of David; so now it was as much their Interest to embarrass them, lest their Joining with the depos'd Family in Egypt might occasion another Revolution.

18. Jeroboam had not been long in Egypt but Solomon died, leaving his Son Rehoboam to succeed him in the Throne. Upon this, fearing lest the Israelites should revolt, he goes to Shechem to be acknowledg'd their King, which was a Town in the Tribe of Ephraim, and thought to be the most convenient Place for such a Purpose, as being in the Middle of the Kingdom. Here he seems to fix, to prevent an Insurrection, tho' by this Method he gave the Malecontents a greater Opportunity of Carrying on a treasonable Correspondence in Egypt. This looks as if he had very little Zeal for the Temple at Jerusalem, and the Service of GOD there. And as (k) his Mother was an Ammonitess, and these (l) Women had turn'd Solomon's Heart to have an Affection to the Idols of that Country; so it could not be expected, but that she would breed up her own Son in the same Principles, or at least make him look on all Religions as alike, and to be tolerated without Distinction. Jeroboam (m) hearing that Rehoboam was made King, and gone to live at Shechem, sends to his Friends to offer them his Assistance at this Juncture. They send for him, and desire him to act for them. Upon this (n) he comes into Canaan, where they meet with him, and concert Measures how to carry on their Designs in such a Manner as might not be suspected. Accordingly in the Spring of the following Year, Jeroboam and the chief of the Princes come to Shechem, where they desire to be eas'd of the Taxes and Labours, which Solomon his Father had put upon them, and promise, that in such a Case they would be his faithful Subjects. Rehoboam advises with the Counsellors of his Father, who persuade him to give them good Words, and so to appease the Tumult, and claim their Promise. After this he consults others of his old Acquaintance, who persuade him, that such an Answer would look as if he was afraid of them, and that hard Words would frighten them to their Obedience. This Counsel Rehoboam follow'd, which so disgusted the People, that they throw off all Allegiance, and declare for another King. Rehoboam sends Adoram, who was over the Tribute, to appease them, and probably to assure them, that their Taxes should be lessen'd. But it was now too late, for the People were so exasperated, that they ston'd him to Death without hearing what he had to say. Rehoboam finding by this Action, that they were in good Earnest, and thinking himself no longer safe out of his own Tribe, he flees with the utmost Precipitation to Jerusalem, by which Means he secures the Tribes of Judah and Benjamin, and the rest of the Israelites set up Jeroboam to be their King. This seems to have been immediately before the Summer Solstice, and therefore in Commemoration hereof, the Jews observe the three and twentieth Day of the third Month (reckoning from the Vernal Equinox) for an annual Feast. Upon this Rehoboam finding the Tribes of Judah and Benjamin to be faithful to him, as they had always been to the House of David, he raises an Army of an hundred and fourscore thousand Men to fall upon the Israelites, and bring them back to his Allegiance, before their new King was fully settl'd upon the Throne. When they were ready to march, the Prophet Shemaiah, by the Direction of GOD, adviseth them to desist, and to return to their own Houses, for he should not bless their Endeavours with Success. The People having a Sense of Religion, persuade Rehoboam not to engage any farther in such a War, in which they could not but expect, that GOD would appear against them, and disappoint all their Designs. Rehoboam hearkens to their Advice, and (o) is now intent only to secure himself in his present Possessions. For this Purpose he repairs and fortifies fifteen frontier Towns, that they might be a Security against those who had revolted from him. He also builds several strong Holds in the Heart of his Country, and furnishes them with good Garisons and Provisions, that they might maintain a Siege. He also erected Magazines in several Cities, out of which the Soldiers on all Occasions might be furnish'd with Arms; and thus he took the utmost Precaution for the Security of the remaining Part of his Kingdom. And in this Manner his Subjects were employ'd during the following Winter.

19. Beside this, he knew that many of the Israelites had a Zeal for their ancient Religion, and the Worship of GOD in Jerusalem, and therefore to encourage all such to come and dwell in his Kingdom, he (p) keeps up the publick Worship, which occasions many of them, and especially the Priests and Levites, to quit their Habitations, and to fix in the Tribes of Judah and Benjamin, under Rehoboam.

20. In the mean Time Jeroboam was not idle, but he enlarg'd and beautified Shechem, where he was first made King, and made it his royal Seat for some Time; and after that he went to the other Side of Jordan, and repair'd Penuel, which (q) was antiently a fortify'd Place, and there he resided for some Time, that he might the better gain the Affections of those two Tribes and an half, or at least (if Occasion requir'd) he might force them to Subjection. And finding that some of the Israelites forsook him for the Sake of the Worship of GOD, he fear'd a total Revolt, when they went up to Jerusalem, as all were oblig'd to do at the Feast of the Passover. To prevent this, he contrives an Alteration in Religion, and instead of Consulting GOD, and Committing himself to him, who could and would have preserv'd him in the Kingdom according to his Promise, he (r) took Counsel

Anno of such as were govern'd only by

TUM Inventions. The Alteration agreed 977. upon was, that their Religion should be according to the Egyptian Custom, among whom Jeroboam had liv'd for some Time, the better to gain the Favour and Assistance of that People in Case of Need. And as the Egyptians had a couple of Oxen, which they worshipp'd, viz. one call'd Apis at Memphis, the Metropolis of the upper Egypt, and another call'd Mnevis at Hierapolis, a principal Town of the lower; so he made two Calves of Gold, and plac'd one of them in Bethel, which was in the south, and the other in Dan, which was in the north Part of the Country of Israel. And as (s) Bethel was in every Man's Opinion a sacred Place, the Name it self signifying The House of GOD, and it having been consecrated by Jacob, where GOD appear'd to him more than once; so Dan had been famous for (t) the Tera- phim of Micah, unto which there had been a great Resort for some Ages. For such Reasons as these he wav'd his royal City, which was Shechem, and chose these two Places for the Residence of the divine Majesty, whom he pretended that he did not forsake, but worshipp'd in these Symbols of his Presence. However this led them into soul Idolatry, it was the Sin, which Jeroboam is so often accus'd of in Scripture, and it began in the Year, from whence the Prophet Ezekiel dates the (u) Iniquity of the house of Israel, and reckons three hundred and ninety Years to the last Babylonish Captivity.

21. And as it is natural for People to fall from one Wickedness to another, so (x) when the Priests and Levites refus'd to offer Sacrifices before his Calves in Dan and Bethel, and had remov'd with their Effects into the Tribe of Judah, he cast them out of their Offices and Possessions, and seiz'd upon the whole; and that he might ingratiate himself with his Subjects, he applies the Money to please his Favourites, and ease the rest of their Taxes; and in their Places he officiated (y) sometimes himself without any Call to it, and at other Times (z) he plac'd in other People without Distinction. And as at Jerusalem the Priests and Levites were cloth'd in White, so here in Opposition many of them were cloth'd in Black, and from hence they were call'd (a) Chemarim or Blacks.

And as the Jews had their Feast of Tabernacles on the fifteenth Day of the seventh Month; so he had a Feast on the fifteenth Day of the eighth, which he instituted of his own Accord. It is suppos'd, that this Feast being instituted by GOD after the Gathering in of the Fruits, which might be sooner ripe in Jerusalem than in the northern Parts of the Country, he pretended, that the eighth Month would be a better Time for it than the seventh, because then they would be every where gather'd. However it is certain, that his chief Intention was to alienate the People from the Service at Jerusalem. There are three Times mention'd, in which he personally attempted to offer upon the Altar: First, At (b) Dan, where all Israel went to worship. Secondly, At (c) Bethel, when he offer'd a Sacrifice; and Thirdly, At the (d) same Place, where he attempted to offer Incense, but was prevented.

22. For when (e) he stood by the Altar for this Purpose, and probably at the Time of this last Feast, which he invented, there came a Prophet out of Judah, and prophesies against the Altar, that Josiah, who was hereafter to reign in Judah, should pollute it, and burn Mens Bones upon it; and as a Sign thereof, the Altar should be rent, and the Ashes pour'd out before it by a miraculous Power. Jeroboam being angry, stretch'd out his Hand, giving Directions to seize the Prophet, and his Hand was made so stiff, that he could not bring it back again; and the other Signs, which he had mention'd, were immediately fulfill'd. Upon this Jeroboam desires the Assistance of the Prophet, by whose Prayer to GOD his Hand was restor'd again, and became as it was before. Here were Miracles upon Miracles, but nothing would convince one who was obstinately set to do evil. However it had such an Effect upon him, that he (f) offer'd neither Incense nor Sacrifices any more, but yet (which was as bad) he deputed others to this Office. This Revolt of the ten Tribes, and their Setting up of Idolatry, and being restrain'd from Going to worship GOD at Jerusalem, so sensibly afflicted (g) Heman the Ezrahite, one of the chief Singers in the Temple, that he seems to have had a very grievous Plunge of Melancholy, and therefore he pens the eighty eighth *Psal*m, in which he complains most grievously of his pitiful Case, and at last concludes with (h) such Words as seem to shew the Reason of it, My lovers and friends hast thou put away from me, and hid my acquaintance out of my sight.

23. Soon after (g) Abijah the Son of Jeroboam fell sick, and Jeroboam persuades his Queen to disguise herself, and go to Abijah the Prophet, who told him that he should be King, that so they might know, what should become of the Child. Abijah was now blind, and therefore they thought he might easily be impos'd upon. But GOD discovers the whole to him, and he delivers the Message as soon as he heard her coming, and before she had discover'd herself, which was, That the Child should die, as soon as she came to the Gate of the City, that GOD would severely punish the Family of Jeroboam, destroy them all by the Sword without Exception, insomuch that none of them should be buried; and this should be done by a King of Israel, as soon as ever he came to the Throne. All which was fulfill'd by Baasha the King of Israel, in the Year that Jeroboam died, as will be mention'd in its proper Place.

24. Rehoboam King of Israel in the mean Time (h) keeps up the publick Worship at Jerusalem, more out of a Principle of State Policy, than of true Religion; so that it continu'd three Years. He saw, that by this Method many of Jeroboam's Subjects came over to him with all their Wealth. But when at the End of three Years he found it did not answer his Design, either because all who had any Zeal for GOD had came already, or because Jeroboam had so guarded all the Passes, that none could come, in the fourth Year of his Reign he throws off the Mask, and his evil Inclinations especially (i) to Idolatry began to appear, having been educated that Way by his Mother, who was (k) an Ammonitess, and his (l) Example was soon follow'd by all his Subjects. The Scripture mentions it thus, that (m) when he thought himself safe and out of all Danger, he forsook the law of the LORD, and all his Subjects with him, For even (n) Judah did evil in the sight of the LORD, and they provoked him to jealousy with all their sins, which they had committed, above all that their fathers had done. For they also built them high places, and images, and groves on every high hill, and under every green tree. And there were also Sodomites in the land, and they did according to all the abominations of the nations whom the LORD cast out before the children of Israel. Such flagrant Impieties could not be long unpunish'd. Shishak King of Egypt made an Expedition against Jerusalem, being tempted thereto by the great Treasures which David and Solomon had heap'd together. For this Expedition he gather'd together a very large Army not only out of Egypt, but also from the adjoining Country of Libya, from whence the whole Country of Africa took its Name. To these he added the Sukkims, or a Nation who liv'd near the Red-Sea, and were call'd so, because they liv'd in Caves and Dens of the Earth, which sometimes in Hebrew are call'd סכרות Succoth, and hence they were (o) call'd by the Greeks, Troglodytae for the same Reason. There is no Doubt but this Matter had been concerted before between Shishak and Jeroboam, when he was in Egypt, and that Jeroboam had promis'd, that whenever Shishak would invade the Kingdom of Judah in the South, he would make a Diversion in the North; but their Sins were not so ripe for Judgment, and therefore GOD's Providence diverted it till now. But now he comes with a vast Army, consisting of twelve hundred Chariots, and threescore thousand Horsemen, and a proportionable Number of Footmen. Upon his entring into the Country he took the fenced Cities, which lay in his Way, and the Army being in no Condition to oppose his Progress, he marches directly to Jerusalem, where the King and the Princes were gather'd together, as to a Place of greater Safety than the open Country. Upon this Shemaiah the Prophet acquaints them from the Mouth of GOD, that as they had forsaken him, so he would forsake them, and deliver them into the Hand of Shishak. The King and the Princes hearing this, humble themselves, and sorrowfully confess, that GOD had justly punish'd them for their Sins; and their Humiliation so far prevail'd with GOD, that he moderated his Anger, and respite'd the Destruction, which was coming upon them, and promis'd by his Prophet, that he would not suffer Shishak to do so much Mischief as he intended. However he resolv'd to let them feel the Difference between him and all other Lords and Masters, and how much more happy they were, whilst they continu'd to worship and serve him, than when they fell under a foreign Yoke. Shishak coming with so great an Army before Jerusalem, the King yielded up the City (p) without Striking a Stroke. The Reason whereof may be this, Shishak seeing a large well fortify'd Town, could not but be willing to agree upon Articles. On the other hand, the Jews being first told by a Prophet, that they should be deliver'd into his Hands, and that GOD would deliver them again, thought it would be in vain to resist, and so made the best Terms for themselves. The Terms seem to be, that they should all have their Lives, and Shishak should be content with the Plunder of the City and Country.

So that Shishak (q) took away all the treasures of the house of the LORD, and all the treasures of the kings house, and he carried away also the shields of gold, which Solomon had made. Instead of which King Rehoboam made shields of brass, and committed them to the hands of the chief of the guard, that kept the entrance of the kings house. And when the king enter'd into the house of the LORD, the guard came and fetched them, and brought them again into the guard chamber. This shews into what a poor Condition the Kingdom of Judah was reduc'd. These Shields were a Matter of State and Grandeur, and therefore it concern'd them, if they were able, to have them as grand as they were before; and as they were carry'd before the King to the House of the LORD, it seem'd also to be a Matter of Religion, that the Value should not be diminish'd. We are told, (r) that in Judah things went well. A Reformation was made in the whole Kingdom, and many good things were found among them in the midst of their Corruption. We are told, that (s) Solomon made silver and gold at Jerusalem as plenteous as stones; that (t) all his drinking vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of the house of the forest of Lebanon were of pure gold, and that none were of silver, because it was nothing accounted of in the days of Solomon. Now (u) Solomon made three hundred shields of beaten gold, and three pound of gold went to one shield. This at four Pounds an Ounce, or forty eight Pounds Sterling to the Pound, amounts to no more than 43200; and therefore it was a miserable Case, that they were reduc'd from so much Wealth to so much Poverty, that neither Reasons of State nor Religion could raise so small a Sum on so great an Occasion. At this Time (x) Ethan the Ezrahite (who was appointed by David with Heman, another of the same Family, to be two of the chief Singers in the Temple, and consequently they must be of a (y) very great Age) compos'd the eighty ninth Psalm, in which having spoken of (z) GOD's wonderful Care of his Church, and (a) his gracious and solemn Promises to the House of David and his Posterity, he complains (b) of contrary Events. Thou hast cast off and abhorred, thou hast been wroth with thine anointed. Thou hast made void the covenant of thy servant; thou hast profaned his crown by casting it to the ground. Thou hast broken down all his hedges, thou hast brought his strong holds to ruin. All *that pass by the way spoil him; he is a reproach to his neighbours. Thou hast set up the right hand of his adversaries; thou hast made all his enemies to rejoice. Thou hast also turned the edge of his sword; thou hast not made him to stand in the battle. Thou hast made his glory to cease, and cast his throne down to the ground. And at last he (c) expostulateth with GOD, and prayeth for Deliverance. LORD, where are thy former loving kindnesses, which thou (d) swearest unto David in thy truth? Remember, LORD, the reproach of thy servants; wherewith thine enemies have reproached, O LORD, wherewith they have reproached the footsteps of thine anointed. So that tho' Jerusalem might be taken without Striking a Stroke; yet there seems to be a set Battle before Shishak came thither, in which the Subjects of Rehoboam were totally routed.*

25. Tho' Shishak conquer'd the Kingdom of Judah; yet he did not meddle with the least Part of the Kingdom of Israel, of which the Scripture Silence alone is a sufficient Proof. Where the Scripture mentions the Sins of that Nation, it always mentions the Judgments which follow'd them, of which we need no farther Evidence than the Book of Judges. Now the Scripture fully tells us in many Places the Wickedness of Jeroboam; who made Israel to sin; and therefore if the Country had been ravag'd by the Army, it would, no Doubt, have been mention'd as a Judgment for the same Reason. So that Shishak's Sparing Jeroboam's Kingdom (e) is an Argument, that he came against Judah by Jeroboam's Knowledge and Consent, and probably by his Invitation, and that Matters might have been concertted long before for this Purpose. And that he did not absolutely possess himself of the whole Country, and make it a Province tributary and subject to the King of Egypt, could be ascrib'd only to the great Goodness of GOD. For unless GOD had diverted him, it was then in his Power to have extirpated the whole Nation. What diverted him is not said. It might be some Divisions and Insurrections in Egypt; but as his Army consisted of several Nations, so it is most probable, that they differ'd among themselves about the Dividing of so prodigious a Booty, and this made it necessary to withdraw out of an Enemy's Country, who could not but be expected to take the Advantage.

26. But as Solomon had a great Number of Wives and Concubines, who were the Cause of his Revolting from GOD, and of all his Misfortunes ; so Rehoboam follow'd the same Example. He had (f) eighteen Wives and threescore Concubines, and by them he had eight and twenty Sons, and threescore Daughters. Many of these he had in the Life of Solomon, being (g) one and forty Years old at his Death ; some of which Sons were so old in his Life-time, that (h) he made them Governors in chief of the fenced Cities in his Kingdom, and provided amply for them, that they might not be discontented, but live at Ease. However, he pitches upon his Son Abijah, being the eldest by his beloved Wife Maacab, to succeed him in the Throne, and thinking (i) seriously of this Matter, he disperses the rest of his Sons into all Parts of the Country, that they might not be capable to raise a Rebellion, and the Kingdom might be confirm'd as he intended ;

which succeeded so well, that after (k) he had reign'd seventeen Years he died, and left his Son Abijah in the Possession of the Throne.

27. Abijah exactly imitated his Father's Example. His Father had eighteen Wives, and (l) he had fourteen. His Father did not discountenance any Sort of Idolatry, neither did he. His Father after the Retreat of Shishak (m) restor'd the Service of the Temple, and (n) he continu'd the same. But because this was not sufficient (o) without Destroying the other, he is said, (p) to have walked in all the sins of his father, which he had done before him ; and his heart was not present with the LORD his GOD as the heart of his father David. He considering, that (q) there had been wars between Jeroboam and Rehoboam his Father all the days of his life, resolves (r) to put the Issue of all upon one decisive Battle. For this Purpose he raises an Army of four hundred thousand Men, so that according to (s) Joab's Computation most of the Men of his Kingdom were then present.

With these he invaded the Kingdom of Israel, and march'd as far as the Hill Zemaraim in the Tribe of Ephraim, which was afterward call'd Samaria. Jeroboam finding Matters reduc'd to this Extremity, brings together all the Men in his Kingdom, being eight hundred thousand Men, as they had been number'd in David's Time ; so that here were the greatest Armies which ever were brought into the Field. Abijah seeing them advancing toward him, and finding their Numbers to exceed what he could have imagin'd, and having the Advantage of the Ground, that he thought he could not be forc'd to fight, makes a long Speech, to see if Matters could be accommodated without Bloodshed. Jeroboam little regarding his Speech, caus'd a strong Detachment to march round, and intercept his Retreat, so that there was a Necessity of Fighting. Upon this all of Abijah's Army, who had any Sense of Religion left, cried to GOD for his Assistance, and the Priests blew with the Trumpets, according as they had (t) been commanded, as a Sign, that they should be remembered before the LORD their GOD, and saved from their enemies. The People hearing this Sound, and knowing the Meaning of it, gave a great Shout, as an assur'd Hope of Success, which accordingly answer'd their Expectations ; for in the Battle, which immediately follow'd, they kill'd five hundred thousand of their Enemies, which was the greatest Slaughter that was ever heard of, and a fifth Part more than they had in their own Army. Abijah pursues the Victory, and takes several Towns from Jeroboam, and particularly (u) Bethel, where he had lately set up one of the Calves. What he did by the Calf is not particularly mention'd, and therefore it is probable, that he left it standing, that the People might worship it. The Scripture never fails to mention the good Deeds of the Kings of Judah, and particularly their Zeal against the Idolatry of the House of Israel. The Book of Chronicles, which alone mentions the Taking of Bethel, is very favourable in the Character of the Kings of Judah. It saith nothing of David's Adultery with Bathsheba, or of Solomon's many Wives, or being seduc'd to Idolatry, and makes Abijah speak (x) very much in his own Commendation, and wholly omits all his Failings, which may be the Reason, that he is there call'd Abijah, where the sacred Name JAH is mention'd. But the Book of Kings saith, that in his Father Rehoboam's Time (y) Judah did evil in the sight of the LORD, and they provoked him to jealousy, with the sins which they had committed, above all that their fathers had done. For they also built them high places and images and groves on every high hill, and under every green tree, and also (z) that this King walked in all the sins of his father ; and his heart was not perfect with the LORD his GOD, as the heart of Da- vid his father. And therefore in this Book the sacred Word JAH is left out, and he is call'd Abijam. His not destroying Idolatry there is (a) suppos'd to be the Cause, that GOD thorten'd his Reign and Days; so that he liv'd not long to enjoy the Benefit of his Victory, but died (b) in the third Year of his Reign, leaving his Son Afa to succeed him in the Kingdom. At this Time the Religion both of Israel and Judah seems to be State Policy. Rehoboam and Abijah (c) keep up the Worship of GOD at Jerusalem to keep the Tribe of Judah to their Interest, and for the same Reason they (d) tolerate all Idolatry. Jeroboam sets up the Golden Calves, for no other Reason but (e) to secure himself in the Kingdom; so that Abijah might keep up the same Worship upon the Frontiers of Israel, to bring their Hearts back again if they had any Zeal for this Idolatry, and therefore Jeroboam was now careful to prevent all Going up thither, by Fortifying the neighbouring Towns, so that his Subjects were oblig'd, if they would worship either of them, to (f) go as far as Dan, which was the remotest Part of his Kingdom. The Keeping up of the Calf in Bethel may be the Reason, that the Prophet Amos, upbraiding the People for Idolatry, saith, (g) Come to Bethel and transgress; and (h) GOD threatens by him to visit the altars of Bethel, where Amaziah (i) was the Priest, and the Jews were forbidden (k) to seek to Bethel, because when (l) Josiah should be King of Israel these Altars and Worship should be destroy'd. And the Retaining this Worship seems to be the Reason, that (m) the Prophet Hosea sometimes instead of Calling it Bethel, or The House of GOD, calls it Bethaven, or The House of Iniquity.

28. In the twenty first Year of Jeroboam's Reign, GOD was pleas'd to visit him (n) with some sore and languishing Disease, that he could not manage the Concerns of the Kingdom, and therefore he was oblig'd to substitute his Son Nadab to reign with him in his Life-time, of whom we have only this Account, that (o) Nadab the son of Jeroboam began to reign over Israel in the second year of Afa king of Judah, and reigned over Israel two years. And he did evil in the sight of the LORD, and walked in the way of his father, and in his sin wherewith he made Israel to sin. And Baasha the son of Abijah of the house of Issachar conspired against him; and Baasha smote him at Gibbethon, which belongeth to the Philistines (for Nadab and all Israel had laid siege to Gibbethon) Even in the third year of Afa king of Judah did Baasha slay him; and reigned in his stead. Gibbethon (p) was a City in the Tribe of Dan, and (q) given to the Levites, who quitted it, as they did the rest of their Cities, when Jeroboam would not suffer them (r) to execute their Office, and the Philistines had seiz'd upon it, being adjoining to their Country. But Nadab now endeavour'd to recover it out of their Hands, as of Right belonging to him. However it is plain, that Jeroboam the Father and Nadab the Son died in one Year. And therefore the Prophecy of Abijah, (s) that all Jeroboam's Posterity should be destroy'd without Distinction, and none should be buried, may give some light to the History. He doth not say, that Jeroboam should not be buried; and the Scripture saying, that (t) he slept, or as it is in Hebrew, he lay down with his Fathers, plainly shews, that he was buried among them: It is therefore probable, that Baasha conspir'd against Jeroboam, and slew him at Tirzah, where (u) he liv'd. This being done, he takes all his Friends with him, and goes to the Army before Gibbethon, and the Friends and Relations of Jeroboam bury him with his Ancestors. Baasha being at Gibbethon, and having a strong Party in the Army kills Nadab, and sets up himself to govern. And then Baasha to secure himself in the Throne, (x) smote all the house of Jeroboam, he left not to Jeroboam any that breathed; until he had destroyed him according to the word of the LORD, which he spake by his servant Abijah the Shilonite; Because of the sins of Jeroboam, which he sinned, and which he made Israel to sin, by his provocation whereby he provoked the LORD GOD of Israel to anger.

29. But tho' Baasha had sufficiently shewn his Hatred to Jeroboam and all his Family; yet he follow'd their Practices in Worshipping (y) the Golden Calves, and Provoking of GOD to Anger, who (z) sent the Prophet Jehu the Son of Hanani to prophesy against him in the same Manner, and almost in the same Words, as Abijah had before prophesy'd against Jeroboam.

30. In the Midst of these Provocations; which the Israelites were guilty of, there now begins a Reformation in the Tribe of of Judab. Asa, who (i) succeeded his Father and Grandfather, two wicked Kings, in the twentieth Year of Jeroboam, was of a different Temper. He made David his Pattern, and worshipp'd GOD alone.

In the Beginning of his Reign he seem'd (k) to have a firm and settl'd Peace, and made a good Use of it; for he built Cities of Defence in all the frontier Parts of his Kingdom, and train'd up all his Subjects in the Art of War, some with Targets and Spears, and some with Shields and Bows, to the Number of five hundred and fourscore thousand in all, that they might defend their own Neighbourhood, if it should be invaded, and out of them there might an Army be rais'd, as Occasion should require. When he had put himself in the best Posture of Defence, he seems now to be attack'd by Pirriades, who was then Emperor of the Assyrian Monarchy, who sent Zerab the General of his Army with a prodigious Number of Forces.

Our Translation calls them (l) a thousand thousand, where perhaps a large certain Number may be put for one that is very great but uncertain. The Hebrew Phrase may be translated thus, (m) He came with a force, as of a thousand thousand men, or an irresistible Force, so that what was wanting in Number was made up in Courage, Strength and Conduct. The Hebrew Text calls them (n) Cushites, and their General (o) a Cushite. Now it is certain, that neither the Cushites who are suppos'd to be in Æthiopia, nor the Cushites near the Red-Sea could bring such an Army into the Field, and therefore it must mean the Assyrian Monarchy, which was first establish'd by Nimrod the Son of Cush, and by his Offspring. Besides, Zerab the Name of their General signifies (p) The East or Sun-rising, and therefore plainly intimates, that he came from those Countries, or from Babylon, and not from the other Cushites, which lay southward from the Land of Canaan. When his Army march'd, he could not invade the Kingdom of Judab from the North, because the Tribes of Israel lay in his Way, and therefore he came from the southern Parts, that so he might be reinforc'd with the Idumeans, Moabites, Egyptians, Philistines, and even (q) the Libyans, which lay more remote, and so swallow up all at once. With this Army he marches to (r) Mareshab a City in (s) the south Borders of the Tribe of Judab. Asa hearing of this would not stay till they had enter'd his Country very far, but goes out to fight them, and seeing their Multitudes, put up a very earnest Petition to GOD, who heard his Prayers and gave him such a signal Victory, that he took all the Plunder of the Field, pursu'd them to Gezer a City of the Philistines, and took and spoil'd the Cities, that were round about it. They also took their Tents, their Cattle, their Sheep, and particularly their Camels, which join'd Zerab in his March from Babylon thro' Arabia, and so return'd in Triumph to Jerusalem. This was (t) in the tenth Year of the Reign of Asa, and after this he enjoy'd a Peace for five Years longer.

31. At this Time Azariah the Son of Oded a Prophet probably foreseeing the Calamities, which were coming on that Kingdom by a War with the Israelites, encourages (u) Asa to go on in the Worship and Service of GOD, with a Promise of Deliverance out of all their Troubles according to the Examples of former Ages. Asa upon this takes Courage, and destroys all that (x) could be convicted of Sodomy (a Vice which begun in his Grandfather's Days) and brake all the Idols to Pieces which he could discover, and enters into a solemn Covenant with GOD to the great Satisfaction of his Subjects, that they should all serve him in Truth and with perfect Hearts. And to shew his Impartiality, he (y) remov'd his own Mother Maacab from the Court, and forbid her coming near to his Queen, that she might not be infected with her Idolatry; and understanding that his Mother had set up an Idol in a Grove, he cut it down, and stamp'd upon it, and having burnt it, he threw the Ashes of it into the Brook Kidron, (z) as Moses did by the molten Calf. He did all that he could; but he could not do all that he would. He took away all the High Places, in which they sacrific'd to strange Gods, but he could not take away those in which the true GOD was worshipp'd, the People having so universally and so long taken this License, that the Restraining of them to the Temple at Jerusalem could not be attempted until the Days of Hezekiah. And having found that (a) his Father Abijah had by a Vow dedicated unto the LORD a Part of the Spoils, which he took in the War with Jeroboam, but did not live long enough to make it good, he fully perform'd the same; and having gotten a great Spoil in his War with the Ethiopians, he also devoted a considerable Part of it for the same Purpose, so that the sacred Treasury began to be augmented.

32. However at the End of this Year, being (b) the fifteenth Year of Asa's Reign, or (c) the five and thirtieth Year from the Reign of Rehoboam, fresh Storms began to arise. Baasha King of Israel now prepares to make War, and Asa prepares to defend himself. The Occasion of the Quarrel was Baasha's Observing (d) that his Subjects revolted to Asa in great Numbers, when they observ'd that GOD bless'd him with Success upon his Advancement. This he was resolv'd to endure no longer, and therefore early in the

Anno ante CHRISTUM 943. next Spring (e) he fortifies Ramah, a Town in the Tribe of Benjamin, not far from Bethel, which seems to have gone off together with the rest of the Israelites to Jeroboam, the golden Calf being nearer to them than Jerusalem. Thus he resolves to cut off all Communication between his People and the People of Judah, the Place lying in such a Strait, that a Fortification made there would hinder all Passing to and fro without Leave. His Design was to prevent the Israelites from Going to worship the golden Calf in Bethel, which he had first plac'd there, and that the cursed Stratagem he had first began, might not be turn'd to his Disadvantage, and so alienate his Subjects from him. Asa hearing of this, and Fearing worse Consequences, resolves to give him a Diversion, if possible, on the other Side. For this Purpose he sends all the Silver and Gold, which he could spare of his own, and which he had devoted to pious Uses, to Ben-hadad the King of Syria, who dwelt at Damascus, that so he might engage him in a new War with the King of Israel. Ben-hadad knowing that Baasha's Forces were in the southern Parts, falls immediately upon the northern, which lay nearest to his own Dominions, and takes a great Part of the Tribe of Naphthali with the adjacent Countries. By this Method Asa compass'd his Ends, it being not safe for Baasha to let his Men continue in those Parts, lest he should pay dear for it in another Place. Upon this Asa summons all the People of the Country, who come and demolish all the Works, which were made at Ramah, a Town which he could not well keep, unless he had taken some other neighbouring Places, which he was not willing to do, lest it might occasion a long War, and he being much more desirous to live in Peace. However he carried off the Timber, and what was fit for Use, and with those Materials he fortify'd his frontier Towns in the Tribe of Benjamin to prevent a Surprise.

33. But Asa's Sending to Ben-hadad the King of Syria for Succour was not to be excus'd at that Time. It was a Distrust of the Goodness of GOD for Help, when he lately had such an Experiment of his Assistance in Conquering that vast Army which came against him; and instead hereof he calls to his Aid an infidel and an impious King. GOD (f) sends Hanani the Prophet to reprove him for this, and to tell him, that because he relied on the Creature more than on the Creator, therefore the Remainder of his Life should be spent in Wars and Troubles, and he should not have that Success which he expected. Asa instead of Thanking or Rewarding the Prophet was angry at him, and put him in Prison, which made his Case much worse. And in the latter Part of his Reign being full of Pride and Passion, he (g) grew tyrannical over his own Subjects, which alienated their Affections from him, and so was the visible Cause of his Troubles. What these Wars were, we are not particularly told, tho' without Doubt they (h) were between the House of Israel and Judah, which at last ended without any famous Actions done on either side.

34. But to return to the History of Baasha.

If we may suppose, that the (i) four and twenty Years of his Reign were complete Years, then as (k) he began to reign in the third Year of Asa's Reign, so he died in the twenty seventh, which was the (l) very Year, that Elah his Son was slain; and then his History, and that of Jeroboam his Predecessor, are so like, that it needs little more than the Alteration of Names to make the one serve for the other. Jeroboam made Israel to sin; and Baasha (m) walk'd in the Way of Jeroboam. Abijah (n) prophesied against Jeroboam, and Jehu the Son of Hanani (o) prophesies the very same Words against Baasha. Nadab the Son of Jeroboam (p) reign'd two Years, and Elah the Son of Baasha (q) did the same. Both the Fathers, and both their Sons, died in the same Year, after each of them had been their Father's Viceroys. And they were all slain by the Conspiracy of him, who immediately seiz'd the Kingdom, and slew all their Posterity, from the same Principle of human Policy, and in such a Manner, that they had not the Favour of a decent Funeral. And more particularly, both (r) Nadab the Son of Je- roboam, and Elah the Son of Baasha were slain, tho' at twenty four Years Distance, when the whole Army of the Israelites were encamp'd against Gibbethon, to take it from the Philistines. The Story is thus: Elah the Son of Baasha, when he was deputed by his Father to reign under him, was a very unactive Prince, and wholly given to his Pleasure. For this Reason there is no Mention made (r) of his Might, as (s) there was of his Father's. When the Army was at Gibbethon, he was not at the Head of them, (as (t) Nadab the Son of Jeroboam was) but (u) at Tirzah his Palace; and instead of Consulting there what to do for the Carrying on the War, he seems to take no Care of any thing. So that on a particular Day (x) drinking himself drunk, he gave an Opportunity to Zimri, a considerable Commander in his Army, to conspire against him and kill him, and by the Help of some Friends at Tirzah to usurp the Throne. Immediately upon this he (y) slew all the house of Baasha, (having probably slain both Father and Son together at that drunken Entertainment) and left them not any of their kinsfolks, nor of their friends. Thus did Zimri destroy all the house of Baasha, according to the word of the LORD, which he spake against Baasha by Jehu the prophet. For all the sins of Baasha, and the sins of Elah his son, by which they sinned, and by which they made Israel to sin, in provoking the LORD GOD of Israel to anger with their vanities.

35. Whilst Zimri was securing his Interest at Tirzah, he took no Care to bring the Army at Gibbethon to declare for him; so that (z) when they heard the News, they declare Omri their General to be their King, who immediately raiseth the Siege of Gibbethon, and came to besiege Zimri in Tirzah, and having taken the City, Zimri finding no Hope goes into the Palace, burns it to the Ground, and perishes in it. So that his Reign was but seven Days, and so many Days of Trouble and Vexation; which made Jezebel say to Jehu after the Murder of Ahab (a), Had Zimri peace, who slew his master? However (b) Omri found it not so easy to get to the Throne, as he expected, for half of the Israelites declar'd for Tibni the Son of Ginab to make him King, which occasion'd a civil War for four Years, and makes a very different Computation of his Reign. In one Place it is said, (c) that he was made King over Israel in the twenty and seventh Year of Asa King of Judah, because he was then declar'd King by the Army, and from hence his (d) twelve Years Reign is dated.

In another Place it is said, (e) that he began to reign over Israel in the thirty and first Year of Asa, because about the latter End of that Year he had slain Tibni, and so he reign'd without a Competitor. In this Year coming to Tirzah, which seems to have taken the Part of Tibni, and to have held out against him till that Time, and finding the royal Palace burnt, he, to shew his Resentments, resolv'd not to live among them; and accordingly (f) two Years after this he buys a Hill of Shemer, and there he builds a Palace where he liv'd, which was soon increas'd to a City, and made ever after the Residence of the King of Israel, and (g) the Place where he and his Successors were afterward buried. And the Name of the Owner of it before he bought it being Shemer, he call'd it in Hebrew Shomeron, and from thence it was call'd Samaria by the Greeks; and in our Translation. There is nothing more recorded of him, but that he was a wicked King, and (h) did worse than all before him. For he not only walk'd in the Way of Jeroboam, but it is likely that he began to introduce other Idolatries, which are therefore call'd (i) the Works of the house of Ahab, and that he also compell'd the People to worship the Calves, and restrain'd them by severe Laws from Going up to Jerusalem, which may be meant by (k) the statutes of Omri. He died in (l) the thirty eighth Year of Asa King of Judah, and was Succeeded by his Son Ahab.

36. There is nothing more recorded of Asa until (m) the thirty ninth Year of his Reign, when he was seiz'd with a violent Disease in his Feet. He is suppos'd to have put the Prophet's Feet in the Stocks; and by this he might know, that (n) in the same Manner that a Man sins, he shall also be punish'd. If this might be his Opinion, then he could not but look upon GOD as his Enemy, and this might be the Reason, that in his Disease he sought not to the LORD but to the Physicians, which he could not but think of, and perhaps too much, because his own Name in the Chaldee Language signifies a Physician. Thus he still put his Confidence in Man more than in GOD, which was the Cause that he died of that Distemper at two Years End, and was honourably buried by his Subjects, as a grateful Acknowledgment of the many Deliverances from their Enemies, which the Israelites obtain'd during his Reign.

37. Jehoshaphat, who succeeded his Father Asha in Judah, was a good King, and (o) reign'd five and twenty Years; so that during the Reign of both, here was a considerable Space of Time to carry on a Reformation. He had a very generous Resolution to promote the Worship of GOD, and all Goodness, and GOD bless'd him accordingly in all his Undertakings. He (p) put his Kingdom into a good Posture of Defence against the King and People of Israel, who had given his Father so great a Disturbance. In (q) the third Year of his Reign he sent Priests and Levites to read and expound the Law of GOD to the People, and thereby to instruct them in the Knowledge and Practice of their Duty; and after this he (r) disciplin'd all that were capable of Bearing Arms, and made them expert in the Art of War. Their Number in all is reckon'd (s) to be eleven hundred and sixty thousand Men, whereas (t) in David's Time the Men of Judah were but five hundred thousand. But tho' it is not impossible, that in an hundred Years Time the Number of Inhabitants may be double to what they were before; yet there may be other Reasons for their Increase. The Tribe of Benjamin is (u) reckon'd in the Number, because they kept to the House of David, and (x) Part of the Tribe of Ephraim, and (y) probably the Tribe of Simeon also, who were not (z) dispers'd in other Parts of Israel, but lay in their own Country on the South of Judah, and at a very great Distance from those which were under the Kings of Israel. And beside this, when Jeroboam thrust out (a) the Priests and Levites from Officiating in the Service of the LORD, they left his Country, and came to live under the Government of the Kings of Judah, as did all (b) others who were piously dispos'd, when they found that they might be encourag'd in Worshipping of GOD at Jerusalem. Neither was the Providence of GOD wanting to provide for them; for the Philistines his Neighbours purchas'd their Peace by bringing him Presents, and voluntarily paid their Tribute, which it is suppos'd that they had neglected in the Time of his Predecessors. And the Arabians, (c) whose Riches consisted in Cattle, put themselves under his Protection, and brought him seven thousand and seven hundred Rams, and as many He-goats every Year for a Present, besides what he bought of them with his Money. About four Years after, Jehoshaphat's Prosperity made him forget his Duty, for he marry'd his (d) Son Jehoram to Athaliah the Daughter of Ahab King of Israel, having a Conceit (as it is suppos'd) that by this Marriage he might again unite the two Kingdoms of Israel and Judah, tho' the Effect was only the Involving of him in Wars, and very great Troubles to his Family and his Kingdom. That this Marriage was solemniz'd about this Time is evident, because the Year following Jehoram had a Son, who (e) at two and twenty Years of Age succeeded him in the Kingdom, as will appear in its proper Place.

38. This Ahab, whose Daughter the Son of Jehoshaphat married, was a very wicked King, and a more abominable Idolater than his Father Omri. He (f) married Jezebel, the Daughter of Ethbaal King of the Zidonians. He is call'd by profane Writers (g) Ithobalus, both which Names signify The Strength of Baal, and is the eighth King in (h) the Catalogue of the Kings of Tyre. It is certain, that (i) from the Beginning Tyre and Sidon were subject to the same King, and it is probable, that both of them being famous Cities, and not far distant, he might sometimes reside at each. He was the Priest of Astarte, or Ashtaroath, the Wife of Ham, and (k) the Goddess of the Zidonians. And as (l) Ham himself was by the Phenicians call'd Baal or Lord, because he had resided sometimes among them as their King, so he was also worshipp'd among them by the Name of Baal, and was the very same with the European Jupiter: And as Sidon was situated on the Sea, so this Baal was call'd by the Greeks, (m) The marine Jupiter. Jezebel being zealous this Way, seduces her Husband Ahab into the same Idolatry; and tho' he might think it a Dishonour to worship a Woman, yet he made no Scruple to worship Baal, as being of his own Sex. For (n) he built a Temple for this God in Samaria, and set up an Altar, where he sacrific'd to him. This was a much more direct Worshipping and Serving other Gods, than any Idolatry which the Children of Israel had practis'd before him. Besides, Abab (u) made a Grove, and this was another Abomination, that (o) GOD had commanded to be abolish'd. In such Places all Manner of Impurities were acted, the more effectually to bring over all vile and debauch'd Persons to such a Religion as was agreeable to their Lusts. And the Encouragement of this was the Cause of all those filthy Stories, which were recorded of their Gods in the heathen Poets. (p) In his Time Hiel, who liv'd at Bethel the very Seat of Idolatry, and one who is suppos'd to be deeply infected with it, built Jericho, notwithstanding that Joshua had (q) curs'd that Man who should be guilty of it, it being devoted to GOD as the first Fruits of the Conquests of the Land of Canaan. It is probable, that Jezebel stirr'd him up to this in Contempt of the true GOD, and to let the World see, that all was as nothing which was mention'd in his Name. Hiel undertakes the Work, believing no other GOD but Baal, or at least believing him to be superior to all others. But he found to his Sorrow, that the Sentence which Joshua had pronounc'd prov'd true, and that it was not in the Power of Baal to prevent it. For his eldest Son died when he laid the first Stone, and all the rest of his Children one after another as the Building advanc'd, and at last his youngest Son died, when it was finish'd.

39. In the Midst of this deplorable State, GOD was pleas'd to send them a Prophet call'd Elijah. The Prophet Malachi tells us, that (r) He (that is one like him) should be the Forerunner of CHRIST, and prepare the Way before him. Our SAVIOUR himself saith, that (s) this was fulfill'd by John the Baptist, of whom an Angel said to his Father, (t) that he should go before him in the spirit and power of Elias. There is not the least Mention of his Parents in Scripture; but as he was a Type of John the Baptist; so we may conclude, that (u) they were both righteous before GOD, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the LORD blameless, and (x) that he might be of the Race of the Priests. They took care to breed him up in the true Religion, of which his Name Elijah in Hebrew is a sufficient Demonstration in those terrible Times, which is compounded of three (y) Words, and signifies The LORD is my GOD. He being griev'd to see such a general Apostasy from the true Religion (z) prayed earnestly to GOD to shew some visible Token of his Displeasure, and particularly that there might be a general Drought, which continued (a) for three years and six months, and he was so fully assur'd that GOD had heard his Prayer, that he (b) told Abab, that all his false Priests and Prophets should not be able to bring Rain, until he pray'd to GOD to send it. For the better Computing of this Time we must consider, that as Egypt had usually no Rain but was water'd by the River Nile; so the Land of Canaan had usually no Rain, except twice a Year, which they call'd (c) the early and the latter rain. The first of these was in the Month Nisan, which answers to our March, and the other in the Month Marheshvan, which answers to our October. Now this Drought began in the Beginning of October, and ended in the following April after three Years Distance, because at that Time (d) Abab and Obadiah went into all the land, unto all fountains of water and unto all brooks, to find grass to save the horses and mules alive, which they might better expect to find in the Spring than in the Fall of the Year. It is suppos'd, that Abab imputed the Want of Rain at the first to a natural Cause which Elijah knew, but they did not, and therefore he did not seek to kill him. But before the Season for the Rain in the Spring (e) Elijah thought it not safe to stay there any longer, and so by GOD's particular Direction he goes to the Brook Cherith, which is (f) suppos'd to be the River Kana (g) mention'd in Joshua, on the east Side of Jordan, above the Lake of Genesareth, and so call'd from the Multitude of the Reeds, where Elisha lay hid for some Time. At the Fall of the Leaf this Drought did not only affect the Land of Canaan but also the Kingdom of Tyre and Sidon, and therefore (h) Josephus saith, that Menander speaks of it in the History of Itobaal a King of the Tyrians, That in his Time there was an extream Drought for Want of Rain, that lasted from (i) the Month Hyperbætaeus till the same Month again in the next Year, and that there were Prayers put up for the Averting of the Judgment, which were follow'd with mighty Claps of Thunder. During this Time Elijah was miraculously fed by the Ravens, who brought him both Bread and Meat twice a Day. After Elijah had (k) been there a full Year the Brook dried up, so that Elijah was forc'd to go to drink at the River Jordan, and he could no longer be hid in the Reeds. Upon this GOD (l) directs him to go to Zarephath or (m) Sarepta a City of Sidon, where he had order'd a widow Woman to entertain him. Elijah goes thither, and begs of her both Bread and Water. She complains of the Drought and of her Poverty, that she had only a little Oil, and a small Quantity of Meal. Elijah assures her that it should be sufficient until GOD should send Rain, which happen'd accordingly, for both the Meal and the Oil, with which they made their Bread, were miraculously preserv'd, until the following Autumn, when GOD for the sake of the Prophet Elijah supplied that Country with Rain, tho' the Drought continu'd in the Land of Canaan. Elijah stays with this Widow two full Years, during which Time he (n) raiseth her Son to Life as a grateful Reward for her Kindness. And (o) in the Beginning of the third Year,

Anno ante CHRIS- TUM 906. he goes from thence into the Land of Israel. There were five Months between the latter Rain in October and the early Rain in March. When this Time came there was no Rain in its usual Season. This increases the Consternation of the Israelites, and now Ahab (p) gives Directions to Obadiab, and probably to many more of his Servants, to search for Grass near to all the Rivers and Springs, to supply their present Necessities; and to see that his Orders might be fully executed, he goes himself with some of them, particularly with Obadiab. It happen'd, that they parted at a particular Place, when Elijah meets Obadiab, and asks of him, that he might be admitted to speak with Ahab; which being obtain'd, he desires that there might be a Meeting of the principal People of Israel, and all the Prophets of Baal, and he would come to them at the same Time. Elijah had told them before, that there should (q) be no Rain until he did particularly speak of it. There had now been three full Years and above five Months since the Time that the Heavens had been shut up at the usual Time of Rain, and all that Baal's Priests could do to obtain it was to no Purpose; so that in this Necessity all were willing to come, in Expectation of being reliev'd by some Method which Elijah should propose. It was now near a Month before they could all be brought together, which made three Years and six Months in the whole. Elijah now proposes an Experiment, by which they should know who was the true GOD, either the LORD JEHOVAH or Baal, which was to prepare two Sacrifices, one for the Priests of Baal, and another for him; and when they had laid them upon the Wood, the true GOD should be known by sending Fire from Heaven to consume it. The whole Multitude agree to this Proposal, and the Priests of Baal begin to cry to him without any Success. But upon Elijah's Prayer, all was consum'd by Fire from Heaven. The People convinc'd by this Miracle, cry out unanimously, The LORD he is the GOD, The LORD he is the GOD. This happen'd to be near Mount Carmel, a Place bordering on the Mediterranean Sea, in the Tribe of Zebulun, to the north of the River Kishon. Elijah upon this orders all the People to seize the Prophets of Baal, which they did, as Cheats and Impostors, and brought them down to the River Kishon, where they were all slain; and it is probable, that their Bodies were thrown into the River, and Ahab could make no Opposition, being himself astonish'd at the Miracle. Upon this Elijah prophesies to Ahab, that there should be Rain, and to obtain it he goes himself to the Top of Carmel, and tho' it was a Month beyond the usual Season of the former Rain, so that it could be the less expected, yet (r) he prayed again, and the heavens gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit, and they had in due Time as great a Plenty as they had before.

39. When Ahab had (s) told Jezebel by what Method Elijah had slain the Prophets, she was in a Rage, and sent him Word, that he had not above a Day to live, but his Life should pay for theirs. Upon this he went to the southern Part of Judah to a Town call'd Beersheba, but not thinking himself safe there, because Jehoshaphat the King of that Country had married his Son to a Daughter of Ahab, he goes from thence into the Wilderness, where he is directed by an Angel to go to Horeb the Mount of GOD, or the Place where GOD at first deliver'd his Law to Moses. Here he comes to a Cave, and intending to spend the rest of his Days there in a retir'd Life, he had a Vision, which assur'd him, that the Number of the true Worshipers of GOD were much greater than he imagin'd, and that GOD would take Vengeance on the House of Ahab for their abominable Idolatry. For this End he is directed to return into Israel by the Way of Damascus, which was far round about, and there to declare Hazael to be King of Syria, and also Jehu to be King of Israel, and Elisha to succeed him as a Prophet. Upon this Elijah fetches a Compass round the Dead Sea, and passing over Jordan about Bethabarah he goes to Abelmelolah, where Elisha liv'd, which lay west from the Sea of Galilee in the Tribe of Zebulun. Here he finds Elisha, who liv'd in that Town, at Plough, and casts his Mantle upon him, which was a Sign that he should be his Companion, and succeed him in the Prophetick Office. Elisha knew the Meaning of this, and as soon as he could settle his Concerns, he goes with Elijah, and was his Servant as long as he liv'd, so that Elijah did not think it necessary to go to Damascus upon the Account of Hazael, or to speak with Jehu in Israel, but he left those Concerns to be transacted by Elisha, when a fit Opportunity should present. And as the Text saith, that (t) Elisha ministered unto Elijah; so it is not improbable, but that he (u) maintain'd him at his House, until he was call'd forth by GOD to a more publick Office.

40. In the eighteenth Year of Ahab's Reign Ben-hadad (x) the King of Syria raises a great Army with a Design to make War against Ahab. As his Name signifies The Son of Hadad; so some have suppos'd, that he was of the Family of Hadad the Edomite, who came (y) from Egypt in the End of Solomon's Reign to recover his own Country, but failing in that Design, he seiz'd upon Damascus, and was made King there. But as there is not the least Proof hercof, and there was another (z) King of Edom at this Time; so we may rather suppose, that this King was of the Posterity of Hadad the Edomite, and that the King of Damascus was of another Family. In the latter End of Solomon's Reign (a) Rezon the Son of Eliadab reign'd over Syria in Damascus, and as both he and Hadad were utter Enemies to Solomon, so we may suppose that there was an intire Friendship and a League between them. This might be the Cause, that a (b) Son in the Family of Rezon might be call'd Hadad, and one of his Children Ben-hadad. Or however, his Genealogy may be thus computed. This Ben-hadad was (c) the Son of Ben-hadad, another of the same Name, he was the Son of Tabrimon, the Son of Hezion, who is (d) suppos'd to be (e) Rezon the first King of Syria, who dwelt at Damascus. His Father had (f) taken several Cities from the Israelites, and had made them Tributaries to the Syrians. This Tribute it is probable Ahab refus'd to pay, and so Ben-hadad made War against him to force him to it. That he might make sure Work at once, he marches with his Army to besiege Samaria the capital City. In his March he sends a haughty Message to Ahab to demand all that belong'd to him for Satisfaction. Ahab being in no Condition to oppose him submits to his Demand. This Submission makes Ben-hadad more insolent, and then he sends another

Message to demand all that belong'd to his Subjects. Ahab before he would consent to this, calls a general Council of the great Men of the Kingdom to advise what to do. He tells them how far he had complied, and he found, that nothing which he granted did give Satisfaction. His Subjects unanimously promise to stand by him to the last Extremity. Upon this Ben-hadad in a Rage threatens their utter Ruin, and orders his Soldiers to besiege Samaria. A Prophet is sent to Ahab from GOD, to assure him of a Victory, and by what Methods, which succeeded accordingly, and Ben-hadad himself was forc'd to flee to save his own Life. The Prophet comes again to the King, and adviseth him to recruit his Army with the utmost Diligence, because the Syrians would make another Attempt in the Beginning of the next Year. The next Year Ahab, by the Prophet's Encouragement, obtains a second Victory, and kill'd an hundred thousand Footmen in one Day, in the Tribe of Issher, not far from Tyre, where GOD, to shew that his Providence was engag'd against them, caus'd a Wall to fall down, and kill seven and twenty thousand more of their Soldiers at one Time, which so frighten'd Ben-hadad, that he fled into a secret Place, where he thought he could not easily be found. Ben-hadad sends Embassadors in the most humble Manner, to desire a Peace, and offers to restore all the Country, which his Father Ben-hadad had (g) taken from Baasha King of Israel, in the Tribe of Naphtali and the adjacent Country, and that he should have several Privileges in Damascus their capital City, as a Token of their Homage and Subjection, and a Security of their good Behaviour. Ahab very rashly makes a League with him, and sends him home. Upon this a Prophet (h) reproves him, and tells him, that the Victory was GOD's, and the Spoil and Prisoners were his, and therefore he ought to have done nothing farther in this Matter without Consulting of GOD; that if Ahab had consulted him, the Answer would have been, that Ben-hadad should have been kill'd, and his Dominions annex'd to the Kingdom of Israel. But because he had acted otherwise, therefore his Life should pay for the Life of Ben-hadad, for he should be slain in a Battle with the Syrians, and instead of the Israelites being Masters of the Syrians, when Hazael came to be their King, he should take their Towns from them, and make Ravages in their Country.

41. The next Year after this (b) Abab converts Naboth's Vineyard, and proposes to buy it of him. This Naboth refuses, because (i) the Law of Moses was against it. Jezebel contrives to have Naboth ston'd as a Traitor by a false Accufation, and so Abab goes to take Possession. GOD sends Elijah to meet him there, whom Abab, conscious of his Guilt, now looks upon to be his Enemy. Elijah declares himself an Enemy not to Abab's Person but to his Vices, against which he declares this heavy Sentence, that (k) in the place where dogs licked up the blood of Naboth they should lick his blood; that all his Posterity should die by the Sword, and lie expos'd without the Honour of a decent Funeral, and that (l) the Dogs should eat Jezebel by the wall of Jezreel, where Naboth was judg'd and unjustly condemn'd. Abab upon this shews great Tokens of Sorrow and Humiliation, insomuch that the Prophet Elijah was told by GOD, that the Sentence pronounc'd should not be executed in his Days, but in the (m) Days of his Son Jehoram, who was kill'd by Jehu, as it follows in the Course of the History; tho' (n) at the Death of Abab there were sufficient Tokens to shew, that these Prophecies were not in vain.

42. In the next Year, which was (o) the third Year inclusive, after the Treaty of Ben-hadad, Jehoshaphat having an Affinity with Abab, comes to Samaria to pay him a Visit. Abab complains that Ben-hadad had not perform'd his Part of the Contract, and particularly, that Ramoth-gilead in the Tribe of Gad had not been surrender'd, and therefore since they had it not by fair Means, thay ought to take it by Force. Jehoshaphat declares, that he would go with him in Person to the Battle, and assist him with all his Army both Horse and Foot. They do nothing that Year, except the Raising of Forces for the next.

The next Year, being (p) three Years after the Treaty, and about the same Time of the Year, when Kings go out to Battle, or in the Spring, they take the Field. Jehoshaphat being willing to know the Event of this War, desires Abab to enquire of the Prophets concerning it. Now there were (q) four hundred Prophets of the Groves, which did eat at Jezebel's Table, and were not destroy'd when Elijah slew the Prophets of Baal. These Abab calls together, and asks of them, If he should go against Ramoth-gilead, or not? They all being (r) deluded by a lying Spirit, encourage him to go on, with a Promise of Success. Jehoshaphat's Design being to inquire of the Prophets of the LORD, not of Baal, asks, if there was not one of those to inquire of. Abab tells him of Micaiah, but was with Difficulty persuaded to send for him, who speaks of Abab's Death, and a succeeding Peace. Abab to prevent this disguiseth himself, and places Jehoshaphat in his Room. The King of Syria had given a particular Command to his Generals to single out Abab, and if possible to kill him, as the Author of the War. They mistake Jehoshaphat for the King of Israel, and all resolve to fall upon him. Jehoshaphat being in Danger cried to GOD, who (s) assisted him in his Need, and so order'd it, that when the Generals found, that he was not the King of Israel, they went from him in Pursuit of Abab, and probably with an Agreement, that all Hostilities should cease on both Sides. However Abab was wounded by a chance Arrow, so that the Blood ran into the Chariot, and he died in it. As soon as Jehoshaphat had receiv'd Advice thereof, he orders all the Army to retreat; and as soon as the Syrians heard of it, they also retreated, and so a Peace soon follow'd. The Guider of the Chariot brings the dead Body to Samaria, and washes the Chariot in (t) a Pool, which was near the Vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, where the Dogs lick'd up the Blood, which was mix'd with the Water, according as (u) Elijah had foretold.

43. It was a full Year before Abab's Death, or (x) the seventeenth Year of Jehoshaphat King of Judah, when Abab deputed his Son Abaziah to rule as his Viceroy, from which Time his Reign is dated in Scripture. He reign'd but (y) two Years current; so that (z) his Brother Jehoram began to reign in the eighteenth Year of Jehoshaphat, which was the Year that his Father Abab died, and probably very soon after his Death, if not before, and therefore this Year was reckon'd his first. This Abaziah was a very wicked King, so addicted to Idolatry, that he (a) walked in the ways of his father Abab, and of his mother Jezebel, and also in the way of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and he served Baal and worshipped him, and provoked to anger the LORD GOD of Israel, according to all that his father had done: Whilst Abab and Jehoshaphat were at the Battle of Ramoth-gilead, he had (b) a Fall from an upper Chamber in Samaria, and was in a dangerous Condition. It is probable, that he consulted the Priests of all the Gods, which he had worshipp'd, but they not knowing what would happen were afraid to give their Opinion, lest the Event should not be according to their Expectation. Upon this he sends to Baalzebub the God of Ekron, a City in the Country of the Philistines and fifty Miles distant from Samaria, to know if he should recover. This is he who in the New Testament is call'd (c) Beelzebub the Prince of the Devils. His Name signifies The Lord of a Fly, and the most probable Conjecture is, that he was so call'd from the (d) Cure of a contagious Distemper. For Pliny tells us, that (e) there being a great Pestilence in Africa, which was brought among them by a Multitude of Flies, it was extinguish'd by the Killing of them all, after they had sacrific'd to the God Achor, a corrupted Word plainly deriv'd from Ekron. And if this was the Original of the Name, it is no Wonder, that Abaziah sent to enquire of him about his Sickness, since he was thought so powerful as to cure the Pestilence. Elijah by the Appointment of GOD meets the Messengers, and turns them back with this Answer, that the King should certainly die. The Messengers coming back much sooner than it was expected, told the King upon Inquiry the Reason of it, and he knowing by their Description that it was Elijah, who sent this Message, order'd a Captain and fifty Soldiers to apprehend him. Upon their approach Elijah commanded Fire to come down from Heaven and consume them. This he did also by another Captain and his Company, but a third coming with more Humility, and begging his Life, Elijah went with him to Abaziah the King, and told him from his own Mouth what he had before told the Messengers, and he died soon after, according as it had been foretold.

44. As Jehoram the Son of Abah is (f) expressly said to begin his Reign in the eighteenth Year of Jehoshaphat King of Judah, which was the Year before his Father died; so it appears from hence, that it was not long after Abaziah was made Viceroy, that he receiv'd this Fall, which made him incapable of Managing the Affairs of the Kingdom, and then his Brother Jehoram reign'd as another Deputy; so that there were three Kings in Israel at the same Time, namely, Abah in the Field, Abaziah in the Bed, and Jehoram in the Affairs of State; and there was another Jehoram, who was at the same Time deputed by Jehoshaphat King of Judah to be his Deputy, and who also reign'd after his Decease, and these two must be carefully distinguish'd from each other to avoid a Confusion in the History.

45. But to return to the History of the Life of Jehoram the Son of Jehoshaphat King of Judah. There are two remarkable Difficulties in Fixing the Occurrences of his Reign. The first is concerning the Letter, which (g) Elijah sent him, which was after he had slain his Brethren, and had built high Places for the Worship of Idols. This is mention'd in the Book of Chronicles among the Occurrences of his Reign; and as his Life is mention'd in the (h) Book of Kings after the (i) Translation of Elijah into Heaven; so the Jews do not scruple to affirm, that he sent this Letter from Heaven. But this is to make such a Miracle, the like whereof was never known before nor since; especially since GOD might have deliver'd this Message by his Prophet Elisha, who was then alive. And therefore the Fixing of this, if possible, in the Time of Elijah's Life must be much better, as it will appear from the following History. The other Difficulty is concerning the Time when (k) he slew his Brethren. For the Settling of this, it must be observ'd, that (l) the Shunammite, whose (m) Son Elisha had restor'd to Life, was commanded by him to sojourn in a strange Country seven Years, and at the End thereof she came back to King Jehoram, who order'd her Land, and the Profits thereof, to be restor'd to her. Now we are plainly told, that these inhuman Murders (n) were some of the first Acts which Jehoram did, when he was risen up to the kingdom of his father. There are other subsequent Acts, which cannot take up less than twelve Years, and the Methodizing of them will set the whole History in a due Light. In the first Year, he (o) kills all his Brethren, and (p) receives a terrible Letter from Elijah, who is soon after (q) translated into Heaven, and (r) Elisha succeeds him, who (s) promiseth a Son to the Shunammite. In the next Year (t) the Shunammite hath a Son, according to the Promise of the Prophet. In the fifth Year, when this Son was able (u) to tell where his Pain was, and consequently must be about three Years old, he went out to the Reapers, was taken sick, and died, and was rais'd to Life again by the Prophet. Let us then suppose, that in the same Year the Prophet (x) advis'd her to go into a foreign Country, and stay there seven Years, yet it must be twelve Years in all at least between Jehoram's Slaying his Brethren and his Death. Now the Reign of Jehoram the Son of Jehoshaphat hath three Dates. The (y) last was at his Father's Death, who reign'd (z) five and twenty Years. But this could not be the true Time, because Jehoram himself reign'd but five Years after. The second Time was (a) in the fifth Year of Jehoram the Son of Abab King of Israel, and this was in the two and twentieth Year of his Father Jehoshaphat, when he (b) went upon the Expedition with Jehoram King of Israel against Moab. From this Time the (c) sacred Text doth date the Beginning of his Reign. But this could not be the Time, because according to this Computation, (d) he reign'd but eight Years. The first Date of his Reign was (e) when his Father Jehoshaphat, in the seventeenth Year of his Reign, agreed with Abab to raise Forces and join them together to go to Battle against the Syrians for the Recovery of Ramoth-gilead. At this Time (f) Abab deputed his Son Abaziah to reign over Israel under him in Samaria, and Jehoshaphat deputed his Son Jehoram to reign over Judah under him in Jerusalem. From this Time, to the Time of his Death, there were twelve Years, and this gives us but Time sufficient for the Occurrences of his Reign, which have been already mention'd.

47. Jehoshaphat had before this Time, for Reasons of State without Regarding the Interest of Religion, (g) contracted an Affinity with Abab King of Israel, and caus'd his Son Jehoram to marry Athaliah, Abab's Daughter. She was of a proud and bloody Temper, and wholly addicted to Idolatry; so that she was the very Picture of her Mother Jezebel. However, she had Cunning enough to conceal it until an Opportunity presented to shew it most effectually. After the Death of her Husband Jehoram, and (b) her Son Abaziah, she destroy'd all those which he had left behind, and therefore may well be thought, like (i) Jezebel her self, to stir up her Husband to commit those Crimes of which he was guilty. Accordingly when Jehoshaphat was gone from Jerusalem to join the Army of Abab, and had left his Son Jehoram to govern under him, so that (k) he was risen up to the kingdom of his father, he strengthened himself; that is, he got together a sufficient Number of his Party, and then the first Act that he did was the Murder of all his Brethren, that none of them might disturb him in the Possession of the Throne, or give him the least Opposition, when he intended to destroy the true Religion, and establish Idolatry. He seems to have some Remorse in sparing their Children, as being too young to make the least Opposition. He slew also several of the most eminent Persons in the Country, such as the Judges which were establish'd by Jehoshaphat, and other Officers, lest they should join with his Father and avenge the Death of his Brethren. Immediately upon this it is said, that (l) he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, like as did the house of Abab, for he had the daughter of Abab to wife, and he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD. (m) Moreover he made high places in the mountains of Judah, for the Worship of strange Gods, and caused the inhabitants of Jerusalem to commit fornication. Some he intic'd by Promises and Encouragements, and others he prevail'd upon by Threatnings and Compulsions, to follow his Example. Upon this the Prophet Elijah (n) sends him a Letter in these Words: Thus saith the LORD GOD of David thy father, Because thou hast not walked in the ways of Jehoshaphat thy father, nor in the ways of Asa king of Judah, but hast walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, and hast made Judah and Jerusalem go a whoring like to the whoredoms of the house of Abab; and hast also slain thy brethren of thy fathers house, which were better than thy self. Behold, with a great plague will the LORD smite thy people, and thy children, and thy wives, and all thy goods: And thou shalt have great sickness by disease of thy bowels, until thy bowels fall out by reason of the sickness day by day. What a great Grief must this be to Jehoshaphat the King of Judah, to hear that all his Children, and his best Friends were slain, and that the Religion, which he had been zealous to establish, was overturn'd at once, and that all this was occasion'd by a Match of his own Making. And it must add to this Trouble, that at his Return from the Battle at Ramoth-gilead, Jehu the Son of Hanani the Prophet (n) came out to meet him, and imputes the Whole to his own Misconduct in these Words, Shouldest thou help the ungodly, and love them that hate the LORD? therefore is this wrath upon thee from the LORD. However, to prevent an utter Despair, the Prophet thought fit to comfort him in the following Words, Nevertheless, there are good things found in thee, in that thou hast taken away the groves out of the land, and prepared thine heart to seek GOD; so that the Troubles of this Life being ended, he might be happy in the other. For this Reason he is also call'd (o) the king of Israel, because his Affinity and Society with Abab the King of Israel had undone him, and he not only took more Care of that Kingdom than of his own, but he also lost his own by it. Thus the Letter of Elijah the Prophet might come to Jeroboam King of Judah, about the same Time with the Death of Abaziah the King of Israel, which he had foretold, and might be written from Samaria, as the fittest Place from whence it might be speedily and safely convey'd to him, and so near the Taking up of Elijah into Heaven, that he knew there would not be Time enough to apprehend him for it. So that the Story (p) of Elijah's Ascension into Heaven, is fitly plac'd (q) immediately after the Death of Abaziah, because it immediately succeeded it in Order of Time; and the Story of (r) Jehoram King of Israel immediately follows, that the HOLY GHOST in the Book of Kings might afterward mention the Acts of that King, and of Elisha the Prophet, without any Interruption, and in the same Order of Time in which they happen'd.

48. As soon therefore as Elijah had prophesied against Abaziah King of Israel, and sent the Letter to Jehoram King of Judah, he departed from Samaria, and (s) went with Elijah to Gilgal, a Place near Jordan about five and twenty Miles from Samaria. Elisha had (t) some Knowledge that Elijah would be miraculously taken from him, and therefore resolves not to leave him. Elijah to try his Constancy proposes to go back again to Bethel, a Journey of about twenty Miles, not far from the Road to Samaria; when they had been there they return again to Jericho, and so to Jordan. Elijah miraculously parts the Waters with his mantle about him, and so they go over; and seeing Elisha's Constancy asks of him, what should be done for him at their Parting, who immediately prays, Let a double portion of thy spirit be upon me. He was not so arrogant as to ask for twice as much as Elijah had, but for such Portion of it as (u) the first-born in a Family had of a Father's Estate, or as much more as the rest of the Sons of the Prophets, so as to be distinguish'd from them, as Elijah was. Elijah puts it upon this Test, If thou see me, when I am taken from thee, it shall be so unto thee; but if not, it shall not be so. Elisha saw him, takes up the Mantle that fell from him, and parts the Waters of Jordan, as Elijah had done before, which made those who saw it to say, The spirit of Elijah doth rest upon Elisha, and respect him accordingly. When he came to Jericho, they (x) complain'd to him, that the Water was unpleasant, and the Ground was barren, which might probably be the Effect of (y) the Curse, with which Joshua had cursed it, and had happen'd to the Country (z) ever since Hiel the Bethelite had rebuilt that City. Elisha heals the Waters and makes the Ground fruitful only by Pouring of Salt into the Spring, by which he farther manifested his Power of Working Miracles. After this he went to Bethel, where (a) the Priests of the golden Calf are suppos'd to stir up the Rabble, and to mock both at him as an Impostor, and at the Miracle of Elijah's Ascension as a Fiction. So that the Idolaters laugh'd at him, call'd him Baldhead, as (b) a Character of Reproach, and bad him go up to Heaven, as Elijah was reported to do, that they might see it, and believe it, and be troubl'd with him no longer. This he look'd upon as a Contempt of GOD, whose Prophet he was, and therefore he cursed them in the name of the LORD, which had such an Effect, that there came two She-bears out of the Wood, who had probably (c) been robb'd of their Whelps, and were therefore more fierce and outrageous, and kill'd two and forty Persons, who had no Power to withstand them. From thence he went to Mount Carmel, where Elijah obtain'd the Rain, and where, it is probable, that he had many Disciples. In his Way thither he pass'd thro' (d) Shunem, where there was a rich Woman, who entertain'd him with the utmost Civility, and desir'd him, that as often as he came that Way, he would take her House for his Home. When he came to Carmel, he (e) multiplies the poor Widow's Oil, and enables her thereby to pay her Debts. In his Return from Carmel toward Samaria, he calls on this Shunammite, who had (f) provided for him a Room with all other Conveniencies for his Reception; and hearing that she had no Son, and that her Husband was old, he promis'd her, that in a proper Time she should have a Son, which so transported her with Joy, that she could hardly believe it.

49. However at the appointed Time, according to the Course of Nature, she (g) had a Son, to her great Joy and Surprise. And Elisha (h) travelling thro' Samaria, (i) comes again to Gilgal, where (k) he had been before. Here as they were (l) making Pottage in a Time of great Scarcity, one of the Company, instead of the Leaves of a wild Vine, which would have been pleasant and wholesome, brings in a Lapful of Coloquintida, which hath an offensive Taste, and a very purging Quality, and by Mistake having cut them small, throws them into the Pot. This made it so offensive that they could not eat of it, and also they were apprehensive of a Design to poison them; but mentioning it to Elisha, he miraculously restores it to an inoffensive Taste and Quality, by the Adding of a small Quantity of Meal to it. After this a Person (m) brings him a small Present of Bread and first Fruits of the Corn. Elisha like our SAVIOUR (n) orders the Loaves to be set before the Company for their Entertainment. His Servant, like the Apostles, cries out, What are they among so many. He tells them, that it should be more than they could eat, and so it prov'd accordingly.

50. Whilst Elisha tarried at Gilgal, the King of Syria sends (o) Naaman the General of his Army, being a Leper, with a Letter to him to cure him of his Distemper. Jehoram the King of Israel looks upon this to be the Seeking an Occasion for a new War. Elisha hearing of it undertakes the Cure, and directs him for this Purpose to wash himself in the River Jordan. Naaman with some Difficulty was prevail'd upon to consent to it, which he did, and was heal'd. He being sensible of the Miracle, offers a Present to Elisha, which he generously refus'd, and upon this Naaman testifies his Resolution for the Time to come, and his Concern for what was past. He seems to have gone into the Jewish Opinion, that (p) the Land of Israel was more holy than other Countries, and therefore (q) he desires as much Earth as two Mules could draw, that he might build an Altar with it to the GOD of Israel, whom alone he should worship for the Time to come. And as to the Time past he craves Pardon for that which he now owns to be a Fault, that his Master hath formerly gone into the House of Rimmon to worship there and hath lean'd upon his Hand, (r) and I (s) saith he have bowed my self in the house of Rimmon; because I have bowed my self in the house of Rimmon, the LORD pardon thy servant in this thing. So that the Acknowledging of his past Fault was a sufficient Promise that he would do so no more. Upon this Elisha dismiss'd him. But Gehazi resolving to make an Advantage to himself, follows after Naaman, and invents a Lye for this Purpose. Naaman gives him very generously two Talents of Silver, worth seven hundred and fifty Pounds Sterling of our English Money, and two Suits of Apparel; and Gehazi denying this before Elisha, the Leprosy of Naaman was inflicted on him for a Judgment.

51. The Fame of this Miracle (s) caus'd a greater Concourse of People than the Place would hold, and the School of the Prophets increasing under his Instructions, they desire to build a more convenient Place, and whilst they were about it, the Head of an Ax fell into the Water, which by Elisha's Means was made to swim toward the Shore, and so it was recover'd again.

52. When Naaman was return'd home, and had refus'd to worship Rimmon, he was dismiss'd from being General of the Army, and therefore the King of Syria commanded it in Person, and being not us'd to such Exercises, he (t) consulted on all Occasions with his General Officers; and going against the Israelites they concerted several Stratagems of War and Ambuscades, from whence they hop'd to reap great Advantages, but to no Purpose. The King in the next Council of War is inform'd, that it must be Elisha who discover'd all these Secrets, and that he was in Dothan, a City in the half Tribe of Manasseh, not far from Shechem and Samaria. Accordingly he sends a great Army to take him there. who besieg'd the City by Night, and the next Morning upon Elisha's Prayer, were smitten with Blindness, that they could see but a very little Way before them. Elisha tells them, that they were wrong, and he would lead them right. He leads them to Samaria; the Inhabitants open the Gates, and let them in, so that they were now inclos'd in a wall'd Town, and wholly at the Mercy of the King of Israel, who could have destroy'd them all with Arrows from the Windows. Elisha prays to GOD to restore their Sight again, by which Means they knew their Danger. The King of Israel ask'd Leave of Elisha (u) with some Earnestness to kill them. Elisha refuses it, and tells him, He would not be so cruel as to kill those, whom he himself had taken Prisoners; and therefore much more were they to be spar'd, who were not his Prisoners; but GOD's, and were brought to him without Striking a Stroke. On the contrary, he advises him to entertain them with the utmost Civility, and send them back. They reporting what had happen'd, put the Army into so great a Consternation, that they look'd upon all their Designs as impracticable. Upon this they decamp'd, and went into their own Country, and the Syrian army came not (x) again, or return'd not for that Year into the land of Israel.

53. This signal Miracle so far convinc'd Jehoram the King of Israel, that the LORD, whom Elisha worshipp'd, was the true GOD, that he seems for some Time to serve him only, in Hope of future Success by this Method. However GOD was willing to try him, and to shew, that temporal Prosperity was not always annex'd to his Service, especially when his Service was perform'd for no other End; or that if he permitted grievous temporal Calamities to befall them for some Time, yet he would deliver those who waited on him. For these Reasons (y) he suffer'd Ben- badad the King of Syria, to raise a very large Army, and to invade the Kingdom of Israel again the next Year. Ben badad grew less sensible of those Miracles, which so lately happen'd, and well knowing that the King of Israel was in no Condition to oppose him, he resolves to put the Issue of all upon one decisive Action, which was the Besieging of Samaria their capital City. Here they carry on a desperate Siege, and the King being there with the Inhabitants, and knowing that all was now at Stake, makes as desperate a Defence, until Provisions were so scarce, that (z) an asses head, which was an unclean Creature, and not to be eaten at all, had (a) they observ'd the Levitical Law, and was but coarse Food at best, was sold for as much Silver, as amounts to ten of our English Pounds; and the (b) fourth part of a cab of Fitches, which was no more than six Egg-shells could contain, and was but mean Fare, was sold for as much Silver as would now amount to fifteen Shillings, and the Prophecy of Moses, (c) that they should eat the flesh of their own children, began now to be fulfill'd, as (d) it was afterward in the last Siege of Jerusalem. Upon this Jehoram the King of Israel was in (*) a Rage, and vows the Death of Elisha the Prophet. When the Army was brought into Samaria, the King calls him (e) My Father; but now he calls him in Derision, Elisha the son of Shaphat, or A mean Man of mean Parentage. This Design was reveal'd to Elisha, and that the King would follow the Messengers to see it executed, and therefore he orders all the Doors to be shut, and an effectual Care to be taken to prevent it. The Reason of this furious Resolution was, either because Elisha had hinder'd him from Smiting the great Army of the Syrians, when they were inclos'd in Samaria, which might have disabled them from Bringing him into those Straits, or because Elisha did not employ his Interest in GOD, as he expected, to bring them a Deliverance. But when he saw that he was disappointed in his Design, then he look'd upon the GOD of Elisha to be his Enemy, and that all these Misfortunes were owing to him. (f) And he said, Behold, this evil is from the LORD. Why should I wait on the LORD any longer? He thought it would be in vain to worship the LORD, as he had done for some Time, and therefore he would now worship the Idols of his Father, and see if they could deliver him in this great Necessity. Upon this Elisha (g) prophesies to the King, that if he would have Patience for four and twenty Hours he should see so great an alteration in Samaria, that the Quantity of about a Peck of fine Flower should be sold for half a Crown, and half a Bushel of Barley for the same Price. A great Favourite, who stood by the King told him, that this was impossible; and Elisha answer'd, that he should see it, but he should not eat of it. This Prophecy so alter'd the King's Temper, that he return'd back without attempting what he intended, and so waited for the Event.

54. In this great Famine, the Besieged put out of the City all useless Persons, that they might not eat up the Provision; and among them there were (b) four Lepers, who lay under the Walls, until they were ready to be starv'd. These resolve at Midnight to go to the Camp of the Syrians. When they came thither, they find all the Tents standing, and all their Provisions and Riches in them; the Syrians having been affrighted with a Noise in the Air, as of an Army in full March, ready to fall upon them. These Lepers bring the Account to the City. The Inhabitants go out in great Numbers, and bring in the Provision, so that it was sold at the Price which Elijah mention'd, and at the Time foretold; and the Favourite, who did not believe it, was appointed to keep the Gate, which did lead from the City to the Camp, and prevent all Disorders; but being not able at such a Time to restrain an unruly Mob, they trampled upon him, and kill'd him, before he had an Opportunity to eat any Part of what he saw brought to the Marker.

55. Elisha now goes from Samaria to Carmel, not thinking it safe to stay any longer near Jehoram King of Israel, lest he should execute at another Time what he had now threatened. And the next Year, the Son of the Shunammite, whom Elisha promis'd her, and who was now almost three Years old, was (i) carried out among the Reapers in the Time of Wheat-Harvest, to divert both his Father and himself. he was in the Field, he was taken with a violent Pain, and cried out to his Father, as a Child would in such a Case, My head, my head. His Father orders him to be carried home to his Mother, where he sat upon her knees until noon, and then he died. His Mother goes in all Haste to Elisha to Carmel, who returns with her, and upon his earnest Prayer to GOD restor'd the Child to Life again. And he who views (k) the Text, may find Reason to believe, that the Harvest proving very bad at that Time, he then spake to this Woman to sojourn in a strange Country, because there would be a Famine for seven Years: and in Obedience to his Directions, the whole Family remov'd, and dwelt among the Philistines, till the Time was expir'd.

56. It may well be suppos'd that Jehoshaphat the King of Judah was under a great deal of Trouble, having lost all his Children except one; and his most faithful Friends and Counsellors, who were slain whilst he was at the Battle at Ramoth-gilead. So that we hear no more of him till now, and upon the following Occasion. David having (l) conquer'd the Moabites and the Edomites, and made them Tributaries, upon the Division of the Kingdom, the Kings of Israel kept their Right over the Moabites, as nearest to them, and the Kings of Judah kept their Right over the Edomites, as nearest to them: and those who govern'd them, tho' (m) they were call'd Kings, yet they (n) were in Reality only such Deputies, as the Kings of Judah from Time to Time had plac'd over them. When Ahab was slain, Mesha the King of Moab took this Opportunity to rebel against Jehoram King of Israel, and (o) refus'd to pay a great Tribute of Sheep and Wool, which had formerly been punctually paid. Jehoram the Son of Ahab was now but in an ill State to oppose them, having been all this Time sorely oppress'd by the Syrians. But the Syrians being miraculously defeated in these two last Attempts, seem to lay aside all Thoughts of Invading Israel any more; so that Jehoram having now a fair Opportunity, is resolv'd to regain the Conquests, which he had lost. Accordingly he sends to Jehoshaphat to know whether he would assist him on this Occasion, who return'd him the same Answer, that (p) he had before return'd to Ahab, viz. that both himself and all his Forces were ready to join him. Upon a deep Consultation, they resolve to march thro' the Wilderness of Edom for two Reasons: First. Because the Moabites were but weakly fortify'd on that Side, expecting to be attack'd on the West or North by the King of Israel, and so preparing for it; but little expecting to be attack'd on the South or East by the King of Judah; and secondly, That Jehoshaphat might take the King, or his Deputy, in Edom with him, together with all the Forces of that Country. This was in (q) the fifth Year of the Reign of Jehoram King of Israel, and consequently the two and twentieth Year of Jehoshaphat, when he makes his Son Jehoram King of Judah the second Time to act in his Absence, and from hence (r) the Scripture dates the eight Years of his Reign in Jerusalem. When Matters were thus concerted, they begin their March, and resolve to fetch a Compass of seven Days Journey, that they might come upon the Backs of the Moabites on the east Side, where they could not expect them. But here their Politicks fail'd them. They went into Arabia deserta in a Time of great Drought, so that they were all ready to perish for Thirst, whilst the Moabites gave them no Disturbance in their March, expecting what would be the Consequence. In this Distress they knew not what to do. Jehoshaphat being a good Man inquires for a Prophet of the LORD, that he might be consulted. Elisha happen'd to be among them, who had accompany'd the Army in their March from Samaria. He with Difficulty, and only for the Sake of Jehoshaphat, was prevail'd upon to prophesy, commanding them to make the Valley full of Ditches, and assuring them, that tho' there should be no Storms nor Rain, yet they should have Plenty of Water in a miraculous Manner, which should be follow'd with a glorious Victory. When the Moabites (s) knew that they were in those Difficulties, which they expected, they advanc'd with their whole Army to take the Advantage, resolving to attack them early in the Morning. Their Enemies being (t) in a Valley, and themselves on an advanc'd Ground, when the Sun was risen in the East, on which Side their Enemies were, the Angle of Incidence with the Rays upon the Water coming directly into their Faces, made it look red like Blood. They knowing that there was no Water in those Parts, and that there had been no Rain, concluded that it was Blood indeed, and that their Enemies had quarrell'd among themselves, and destroy'd one another, so that there was nothing to do but to take the Plunder. This made them run thither without any military Order, expecting that they who came first should enrich themselves most, and so they tir'd themselves before they came to the Camp. Their Enemies seeing them come on in such a wild Manner, lay down in their Ranks, that they might not be perceiv'd; and when they were near to one another, they (u) rose up, and attack'd them in this Confusion, and gain'd such an intire Victory, that they pursu'd them into their own Country, and there they made a greater Havock of them, Plundering their Cities, Destroying their Fields, Stopping up their Wells, and Cutting down their Trees.

57. In this Manner they advance to the Capital City of the Country, sometimes (x) call'd Kir of Moab, sometimes (y) Kir-bereesh, and (z) sometimes Kir-baresbeth, and (a) Kirioth. This was a large City, and (b) strongly fortify'd. However they raise such Batteries against it, that they drove them that defended it from the Wall, and made great Breaches in it. The King of Moab (c) finding Matters reduc'd to the last Extremity, being besieg'd in his own City, and knowing that a desperate Disease must have a desperate Cure, takes seven hundred of his choicest Men, and makes a Salley upon the Quarters of the King of Edom, with a Design to seize him in his Camp, but that was more than they could do. However (d) they came so near it, that the King of Moab took the eldest Son of the King of Edom, who it is suppos'd would have been establish'd in the same Dignity by the King of Judah, after the Decease of his Father; and when he brought him into the City, he offer'd him up upon the Wall for a Burnt-offering, in the Sight of the whole Army. This shew'd their great Indignation, or utmost Resentment against their Enemies, and that they were resolv'd to come to no Terms, but to sell their Lives at the dearest Rate; which the other Kings perceiving, thought that they had carried Matters far enough already, that the Season was far spent, and they could not tell what the Consequences might be, and so they raised the Siege, and went home before the Winter. Of this unnatural Sacrifice, the Prophet Amos speaks in these Words, (e) Thus saith the LORD, For three transgressions of Moab, and for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because he burnt the bones of the king of Edom into lime. As therefore he had done, so should it be done unto him. I will cut off the judge from the midst thereof, and will slay all the princes thereof with him, saith the LORD. When this happen'd cannot be better known, than by (f) a Prophecy of Isaiab, that Ar of Moab, and Kir of Moab, should be laid waste, and brought to silence, and particularly (g) within three years from the Date of his Prophecy, which was in the Beginning of Hezekiah's Reign, the glory of Moab should be contemned, with all that great Multitude, and the Remnant should be very small and feeble. This seems to have been fulfill'd, in (h) the same Year wherein Samaria was first besieg'd in the Reign of Hoshea King of Israel. For (i) it seems most likely, that then Sabalmanezzer the King of Affyria, to secure himself from any Disturbance on that Side, first invaded Moab, and having destroy'd these two Cities, brought all the rest of the Country under his Subjection, and plac'd Garisons therein sufficient to put a Stop to all the Incursions of the Arabians, which might that Way be made upon him, or otherwise he could not have been able to carry it on with Success.

58. Jehoshaphat being now made sensible, that (k) the Obtaining of Water, and the succeeding Victory, was wholly owing to the Zeal which he had shewn for the Worship of GOD, resolves at his Return to bring in a Reformation to the utmost of his Power, and to suppress that idolatrous Worship which his Son Jehoram had promoted. For this Purpose he (l) travels thro' all his Country, from Beer-sheba to Mount Ephraim, to bring back his Subjects to the LORD GOD of their Fathers. He places Judges in every City for this Purpose, and settles the Levites, the Priests, and the chief of the Fathers in Jerusalem, and gives each of them their Charge, and orders them to be directed by Amariah the High Priest, in Matters of Religion, and concluded his Speeches to them all with this noble Expression, Deal courageously, and the LORD shall be with the good.

59. It was not long after, that Amariah the High Priest died; but the Loss was made up by the Succeeding of Johanan, who was also call'd Jehoiada, in that Dignity. The Names are very like one to the other, one signifies The LORD is gracious to us, and the other The LORD knoweth us. He was (m) a good Man, and always zealous in the Cause of Reformation; and that he might be the more successful therein, he had the Blessing of so long a Life, that it was peculiar to him in that Age; for he did not die, until he was an hundred and thirty Years old.

60. But the Moabites were now resolv'd to be reveng'd on Jehoshaphat the King of Judah, for the great Misfortunes which they sustain'd by his Joining with Jehoram King of Israel, and Invading their Country; and accordingly they resolve to repay him in the same Manner. For this Reason they (n) enter into a League with the

Ammonites, and another People call'd (o) The Meunims, which lay near them both, and are sometimes call'd the Maonites. They (p) also bring the Syrians into the same Confederacy, in Revenge for the Assistance, which Jehoshaphat had given the King of Israel against them; and they take the Opportunity of Encouraging the Deputy of Edom, who was troubled for the barbarous Murder of his Son, to set up for himself, and afterward to be chosen by the People, as their King. His Living at (q) Mount Seir, the Place where (r) Esau formerly dwelt, gave them a great Opportunity to carry on their Designs; for by this Means they had an easy Passage into the Country of Judah. Besides, Jehoshaphat depended on his Giving Intelligence of all the Transactions on that Side, but he gave him none, so that the first Account, which he heard of them, was, that (s) they were actually in his own Country, in Hazazon-tamar, which is Engedi, on the South of Judah, near the Dead Sea. This shews (†) the great indignation which the Moabites, the King or Deputy of Edom, and the People, had conceiv'd against both Israel and Judah; the first for Carrying Matters to such Extremities, the second for the Loss of his Son, and the other for being forc'd out to the Wars, whenever the King of Judah thought fit to command them. So that all this happening together puts Jehoshaphat into a terrible Consternation, so that he (t) appointed solemn Fastings and Prayers in all his Dominions, and he himself was personally present at those Solemnities. GOD heard his humble Supplications, and order'd one of his Prophets to give Directions for a speedy March, and to acquaint him, that he should find them advanc'd farther into the Country, where they should obtain a complete Victory without a Battle. The Confederates, hearing that Jehoshaphat King of Judah was coming against them with his Army, divide themselves into three Bodies, thinking that either of them were sufficient to deal with him, wherever they found him. The Edomites being best acquainted with the Country, march farther on to (u) the Cliffs of Ziz, where they lay in (x) Ambuscade among the Rocks for the Army of Jehoshaphat. The Ammonites by Mistake fall into the Ambuscade, and so they fight with one another. The Moabites hearing the Noise, advance to the other Side of the Ambuscade, where they hemm'd them in and destroy'd them all; and when this was done, they mistook each other for Enemies, and destroy'd one another. So that when Jehosha-

phat came to the Field of Battle, he had nothing to do, but to seize upon the Plunder, which was so great that they were three Days in Carrying it off; and on the fourth Day they had a solemn Thanksgiving in the Field, which was perform'd with so much Joy, that the Name of the Place was call'd The Valley of Berachah, or of Blessing, because there they blessed the LORD. This was the last War in which Jehoshaphat was engag'd, and indeed he liv'd not long after. However he then enjoy'd a perfect Peace, and was under no Fear of any of his Enemies, which were round about him.

61. Upon this he endeavours (*) to promote the Riches of his Country by a foreign Trade. For this Purpose he enters into a League with Jehoram King of Israel, who was a very wicked King, to make a Fleet of Ships at Ezion-geber a Town upon the Red-Sea in the Country of Edom, that so they might go to Ophir and other Places in the East-Indies, to fetch home Gold, and other rich Commodities of that Country, as Solomon had done before him. Then Eliezer the son of Dodavah of Mareshab prophesied against Jehoshaphat saying, Because thou hast joined thy self with Jehoram, the LORD hath broken thy works. And the ships were broken, that they were not able to go to Tarshish. Here are two Difficulties in the Text. First, That the Ships were made on the Shore of the Red-Sea to go to Tarshish, whereas Tarshish is a Town in Cilicia near the Kingdom of Tyre on the North of Canaan, and these Ships could not come thither, unless they had sail'd round the Cape of Good Hope, and came into the Mediterranean Sea at the Straights of Gibraltar, which was impossible to be done in those Times. In Answer to this, These Ships might be call'd Ships of Tarshish, because they were very large and fit to carry Burdens, and so of the same Make with those that were antiently built at Tarshish. However, (y) the Learned Bochart supposes, that there was a Place call'd Tarshish in the Indian Ocean near to the antient Ophir, which the Phœnicians call'd by the Name of Tarshish or Tartessus in Spain, because both Places lay at a considerable Distance, were accessible only by Sea, and the same Commodities came from both. The other Difficulty is, That he is call'd Abaziah and not Jehoram in the Text. In Answer to this it must be allow'd, that the same Persons in Scripture are frequently call'd by different Names, especially if they are something alike in Signification; and thus Jehoram might be call'd Abaziah, since one Name signifies, The LORD

(o) This is suppos'd to be the Meaning of the Word מרעמנים by our best Commentators, and they are call'd Mraños, both by Josephus and the Septuagint. (p) 2 Chron. 20. 2. (q) 2 Chron. 20. 10, 23. (r) Gen. 33. 16, and 36. 8. Josh. 24. 4. Deut. 2. 4, 5. (s) 2 Chron. 20. 1, 2. (†) 2 Kings 4. 27. (t) 2 Chron. 20. 3 to 14. (u) 2 Chron. 20. 16. (x) 2 Chron. 20. 22 to 27. is exalted, and the other, The LORD hath possessed. And Secondly, He might be call'd Abaziah, because this Act of his concerning Navigation did so exactly resemble another of his Brother Abaziah of the same Nature, that it will need a particular Inquiry into both Histories to distinguish between them. When Jehoshaphat came to the Throne, he had (z) Peace for many Years, and (a) his Tributes were constantly paid him. This made him (b) grow exceeding great and rich, and this put him upon an Attempt of Improving his Riches by Trading in the Red-Sea. For this Purpose (c) he built large Ships for Burden of a Tarshish Make, to go to Ophir for Gold. After this (d) he goes down to Abab to Samaria, where they agree to go against the Syrians to the Battle at Ramoth-gilead. Abab preparing for this Expedition lets up his Son Abaziah to govern in his Absence, in (e) the seventeenth Year of the Reign of Jehoshaphat. When Jehoshaphat was now at Samaria, Abaziah (f) desires of Jehoshaphat that his Seamen might go with the other Seamen in the Ships, which Jehoshaphat positively refus'd. Upon this Jehoshaphat (g) goes to the Battle at Ramoth-gilead, and Abaziah stays in Samaria, so that they see one another no more. Abaziah had not been long in his Authority but he had (h) a violent Fall, which confin'd him to his Bed, and was the Cause of his Death, and the next Year after (i) his Brother Jehoram was deputed as King during his Illness, and even before the Battle at Ramoth-gilead, and (k) Jehoshaphat's Design miscarried, for the ships were broken at Ezion-geber. In (l) the fifth Year of Jehoram King of Israel, Jehoshaphat lets his Son Jehoram to be Governor of Judah, and (m) goes against the Moabites. After this he (n) endeavours to reform his Kingdom. And (o) after this also he had the Battle with the Moabites and Ammonites, which was the last Time that he appear'd in the Field, for (p) then his realm was quiet, and his GOD gave him rest round about. And then (q) after this also he associated himself with the King of Israel to carry on a Trade of Merchandise, which (r) before he had utterly refus'd; and the Prophet told him, that (s) because he had joined himself with that King the LORD had broken his works. So that in the Book of Chronicles Jehoram is call'd by the Name of Abaziah in this Story, and what we find like it in the Book of Kings is a different Account, and there were several Years Distance between the one and the other. When Jehoshaphat refus'd to be concern'd with the King of Israel he seem'd to act according to his own Inclinations; and when he complied, he seem'd to be influenc'd by his Son Jehoram, who was then in Deed the Governor of the Land, and of a different Temper.

62. When Jehoshaphat had (t) liv'd five and twenty Years from the Time that he was made King of Judah, he died, leaving his Son Jehoram in the full Possession of the Kingdom. He liv'd after this but four Years, and Part of another; and as he was a wicked Man, so every Year brought its Troubles. In his first Year (u) the Edomites revolted, and made themselves a King; which seems to be the first Punishment inflicted on him for not following the Example of so good a Father, but Turning to Idols. Whether they made the Deputy a King, who first began the Revolt in the former Battle, or whether he was slain, and they chose another, is uncertain. However they look'd upon the Death of Jehoshaphat as a fit Opportunity for this Purpose; and by this the Prophecy of Isaac almost a thousand Years before, was now fulfill'd. His Words to his Son Esau were these, (x) By thy sword shalt thou live, and shalt serve thy brother Jacob; and it shall come to pass when thou shalt have the dominion, that thou shalt break his yoke from off thy neck, by not Suffering his Deputy to govern over them, but by Setting up of a King of their own. To prevent this, Jehoram marches to the Frontiers of Edom, with as great a Force as he could raise, to reduce them to Obedience. The Edomites surrounded him with an Army superior to his, and reduc'd him to a Necessity of Fighting. In this Necessity he made a Sally by Night with all his Forces, attack'd one Part of the Army by Surprize; and routing that, he made his Escape, whilst the rest being thus weaken'd, return'd to their Camp, lest they also should be overpower'd, and so stood upon their own Defence, that Jehoram could never after that recover the Dominion over them. The Reason why he could not pursue his Victory over the Edomites, and regain their Country, was, because he had Business enough at home, for Libna (y), which (z) was a considerable City in the Tribe of Judah, and (a) belong'd to the Priests, revolted at the same time, and he could not tell but other neighbouring Cities might follow such an Example. The Reason of this Revolt is (b) expressly mention'd to be, because he had forsaken the LORD GOD of his fathers, and had made high places in the mountains of Judah, and caused the inhabitants of Jerusalem to commit fornication, and compelled Judah thereto; so that as the Cause of this Revolt was universal, he could not tell what might be the Consequence.

63. This Revolt of the Edomites encourag'd (c) the Philistines to do the like; for they not only refus'd the Presents, (d) which they brought to his Father, but they invaded his Kingdom on the west Side, expecting a Diversion from the Edomites on the South. And the Arabians, who were near to the Cushites, which we translate Ethiopians, acted their Part in the general Calamity. There were two People in Asia call'd Cushites, one of them lying near the Red Sea, where Cush was first seated by his Father Ham, and the other near Babylon, whither Cush remov'd, and where his Son Nimrod began the Assyrian Monarchy. If it is taken in the first Sense, then the neighbouring Arabians, who (*) paid tribute to Jehoshaphat, now refuse it, and join with the Edomites to throw off the Yoke. If it is taken in the other Sense (as (e) our Great Commentator supposeth) it is an Argument, that the Assyrian Monarchy was then very powerful, that they could send such an Army from their Neighbourhood, to act at such a Distance as Judea on this Occasion. But tho' it may be uncertain from whence they came; yet it is certain, that they (f) brake into the Kingdom of Jehoram; for his Soldiers were not able to defend it on both Sides. They seem to have made the main Army, and the Edomites, who (g) came up with them, were but as a Band of Men. They carry'd away all the Substance that was found in the King's House, and all his Wives and Children, except Athaliah, who had hid her self in some secret Place with her youngest Son Jehoahaz, who is (h) call'd Abaziah, and (i) Azariah. They seem to have kept all the Booty to themselves, but to have deliver'd the King's Wives and Children to the Edomites, who (k) slew them in cold Blood, expecting to destroy all their Enemies at once, and thereby the more effectually to secure their Country. This seems to be the Time, when (l) the Philistines (m) caught as many both in the Kingdom of Israel and Judah, as they could lay Hands on, not in open War, but by Cunning and Deceit, and therefore it is call'd, (n) a peaceable Captivity, or a perfect or absolute Captivity, because the Prisoners were deliver'd up to the Edomites to be ransom'd upon no Terms, that thereby they might strengthen the Revolt from the Kingdom of Judah. This seems to be the Time, when (o) the Tyrians did the same, and remembred not the brotherly covenant, or those Leagues which were (p) first made between David and Hiram, and afterward (q) renew'd by Solomon; and they might easily have sent their Prisoners from thence, either thro' Syria or by Shipping into the southern Parts of the Country of Palestina, and so by the Borders of the Land of Egypt. And this also seems to be the Time when (r) Edom being assisted with such potent Allies, did pursue his brother with the sword, and did cast off all pity, and his anger did tear perpetually, and he kept his wrath for ever, so that he laid hold on all Opportunities of Distressing the Kingdom of Judah, as appear'd more particularly in the Days of Jehoshaphat. The Cruelty of these People towards their Neighbours caus'd GOD to pronounce his Judgments against them by his Prophet Amos: First against the Philistines, that (s) he would send a fire upon the wall of Gaza their capital City, which should devour the palaces thereof. And he would cut off the inhabitant from Ashdod, and him that holdeth the scepter from Ashkelon, and he would turn his hand against Ekron, and the remnant of the Philistines should perish. This seem'd in Part to have been fulfill'd before the Prophecy of Amos, when (t) Uzziab King of Judah went forth and warred against the Philistines, and brake down the wall of Gath, and the wall of Jabneh, and the wall of Ashdod, and built cities about Ashdod and among the Philistines, and his GOD helped him, so that he was successful. Accordingly the Words of the Prophecy may (u) be interpreted, And I have sent a fire upon the wall of Gaza, and have cut off the Inhabitant from Ashdod. And as the Prophets frequently speak of things to come in the same Manner as if they were past or present; so it was farther fulfill'd in the Time of Hezekiah, who (x) smote the Philistines even unto Gaza and the borders thereof, from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced Cities, or both in Town and Country, where they built little Cottages in which they watch'd their Flocks by Night. And therefore the Prophet Isaiah (y) bids the Philistines not to rejoice, because the Rod that smote them was broken, or Uzziah was dead, who had forely afflicted them, for Hezekiah should come out of his Root, or be descended from him, who should more grievously gall them. And it was more fully compleated, when (x) Sennacherib King of Assyria march'd against Egypt, and the better to open his Way into that Country, he sent Tartan (y) one of his Generals before him, who fought against Ashdod, and took it. Secondly, The Prophet Amos prophesied also against Tyre for this Reason, that (z) GOD would send a fire upon the wall of Tyrus, which should devour the palaces thereof. This was also fulfill'd, when (a) Shalmanezzer King of Assyria made War upon Tyre in the Reign of Elulais their King, and having sent an Army, invaded the whole Country of Phœnicia; and taking it very heinously to see the Tyrians to be the only People who disputed his Authority, he sent a large Fleet against them, which being beaten, the King of Assyria returns, and sets Guards along the River, and upon all Springs and Aqueducts to keep the Tyrians from Water, which Distress continu'd for five Years, when they were forc'd to relieve themselves by Pits of their own Digging. After this (b) Nebuchadnezzar continuing a long and terrible Siege of thirteen Years made himself Master of it, who finding but little Spoil therein to reward his Soldiers for their great Pains, was so inflam'd with Anger, that he razed the whole Town to the Ground, and slew all that he found therein. From which Time it never more recover'd its Glory, but the City on the Island became the Tyre which was afterward so famous, and this was ever after a Village call'd by the Name of Old Tyre. And Lastly, The Prophet for the same Reasons foretells the Destruction of Edom, that (c) GOD would send a fire upon Teman, their Capital City, which should devour the palaces of Bozrah, a City in the Confines of Moab. This seems first to have been fulfill'd, when (d) Shalmanezzer King of Assyria came against Samaria; and having conquer'd the Country of Moab, ravag'd and destroy'd the Country of Edom the neighbouring Kingdom, the better to secure himself from any Disturbance on that Side. And also when Sennacherib King of Assyria went with his Forces into Egypt. For the same Reason that induc'd him to send Tartan into Ashdod, would induce him to over-run all Idumæa, which lay directly in his Way, and would open a free Communication with his own Country. And after this the Army of (e) Nebuchadnezzar ranfack'd the Country, when Tyre was taken, and when he march'd into Egypt, and his Soldiers were hungry for Want of Plunder, as it had been foretold by the Prophets (f) Obadiah and (g) Jeremiah, when the Accomplishment thereof was nearer at hand.

64. The next Year the Prophecy of Elijah in his Letter took Effect, which was, that (h) Jehoram the King of Judah should have a great sickness by a disease of his Bowels, for (i) GOD smote him with such a Disorder in those Parts as was incurable; so that in Process of Time he who shew'd no Bowels of Compassion to his Brethren, might learn his Sin by his Punishment, and had no Bowels of his own.

65. Elijah being order'd (k) to go to Damascus, and declare Hazael to be King of Syria, this Part is now to be done by Elisha, who about this Time goes to this City for this Purpose. That it could not be long before the End of Jehoram's Reign is evident, because we may suppose, that Hazael would omit no Time in Putting what Elisha had foretold in Execution, and we read of nothing done till after these other Transactions. Elisha being upon the Road to Damascus the Metropolis of all Syria, and (l) Ben-hadad the King thereof being sick, sends Hazael to go out and meet him, and inquire, Whether he should recover of that Sickness? He had heard of the Cure of Naaman the General of his Army, and therefore had a greater Opinion of the Success of this Message. Elisha tells Hazael, that that Distemper was not mortal of it self; however the King should die by some other Accident. Elisha tells him also what Mischief his Sword should do in Israel, as it had been reveal'd to Elijah several Years before. Hazael excuseth himself, and saith, that he was not such a barbarous Creature as he was represented to be; to which Elisha only adds, The LORD hath shewed me, that thou shalt be king over Syria. Hazael returns to his Master, conceals the Message, and gives him good Hopes of Recovery; but the next Day he takes a thick Cloth, dips it in Water, puts it round his Face, and so stops his Breath and kills him, that it might look as if he had died a natural Death. And Ben-hadad being suppos'd to have no Son, and Hazael being in great Favour with the People, and especially with the Soldiers, as a very active Man, was immediately declar'd to be his Successor.

66. The Distemper of Jehoram King of Judah growing worse and worse, he begins to think that Elisha might help him, and therefore he (m) inquires of Gebazi of all the great things which Elisha had done. Gebazi was now telling him an affecting Story of the Shunammite's Son, whom he had restor'd to Life, when by GOD's particular Providence this very Person return'd at the End of the seven Years of Famine, and petition'd the King, that her Land might be restor'd to her again. Gebazi assur'd him, that this was the very Woman, so that the Story being confirm'd from her own Mouth, he orders all her Land, and the Profits thereof, to be restor'd accordingly. Whether Jehoram consulted Elisha afterwards concerning his Sickness is uncertain; but if he did, it is certain that it was to no Purpose; for (n) after a long Illness of two Years, occasion'd by a Complication of Distempers, his Bowels fell out in a lamentable Manner, which shew'd a Punishment suitable to his horrid Wickedness. His Subjects themselves did not wish that he should live any longer, and were glad that his Reign was so short. And tho' he died in Jerusalem, yet they shew'd him the utmost Disrespect, because they did not bury his Body among the Sepulchres of his Ancestors, but in an obscure Place.

67. Upon the Death of Jehoram King of Judah, (at the End of (o) the eleventh Year of the Reign of Jehoram King of Israel, and the beginning of the twelfth; or rather, when he had reign'd as Viceroy one Year, which made up twelve Years in all; but as an intire King but eleven, as it hath been mention'd before in the former Chapter) (p) his Son Ahaziah is declar'd his Successor. He was a wicked Prince, and his Reign was but short, for he did not govern a full Year. His Mother was the Daughter of Ahab, and was his Counsellor in all the Idolatry, which that cursed Family was subject to. She had also the greater Power over him, because she had sav'd him together with her self, when the other Wives and Children of Jehoram were carried away Captives. And tho' his Father was so bad, that there was no Need for any other to seduce him, whilst he liv'd; yet after his Death, his Mother's Kindred thought it necessary to confirm him in his Idolatry, and in a strict Alliance with the Kings of Israel, which was his Ruin.

68. For Hazael being now King of Syria resolv'd to put in Execution all that had been prophesied of him, and having got a good Army together he invades the Frontiers of Israel. Jehoram the King thereof (q) sends to Ahaziah King of Judah to join him with all his Forces, and so like Jehoshaphat and Ahab, they march again to that unfortunate Place of Ramoth-gilead: they had not been long here before there was a Battle, in which neither Side was totally beaten. However Jehoram the King of Israel was wounded, so that it was thought proper to carry him to Jezreel, a Place as unlucky as the other, to be cur'd of his Wounds; but they not healing so fast as was expected, Ahaziah his Nephew leaves the Army to pay him a Visit, and to bear him Company.

69. There was now nothing wanting to compleat every thing, which was given in Charge to (r) Elijah at Horeb, but the Anointing of Jehu to be King of Israel; and this was a providential Time for it, when he was at the Head of the Army, and the two Kings were gone away, one wounded, and the other as if he had no Business there. Elisha now commands one of his (s) Scholars to take a Box of Oil, and go to Ramoth-gilead, and there to anoint Jehu as King over Israel with the utmost Secrecy, and then to come away with the utmost Expedition. When he came thither, the Officers were in a grand Council of War, and Jehu at the Head of them as their General. The Prophet desires to speak with him in private, and did what he came about, repeating the Prophecies of (t) Elijah concerning the utter Destruction of the House of Ahab, and directed him to put them all in Execution. The Officers press Jehu at his Return to tell what had pass'd between him and the Prophet, which he at last told them. Upon this they declare him their King, and order all the Roads to be guarded, that King Jehoram and Ahaziah might not have the least Intelligence of it. Jehu rides in a Chariot, and orders a strong Body of Horse to accompany him to Jezreel. A Watchman upon the Tower seeing them coming, gives Notice of it to the two Kings. They send out a Horseman to know what was the Matter. Jehu orders him to stay with them. They send out another with the same Success, and were told by the Watchman, that Jehu was in Person at the Head of this Party. The two Kings get their Chariots ready, and go in Person to meet them, and by GOD's special Providence met them near the Vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, and perhaps in (u) the very Place where Naboth was ston'd. Jehoram and Ahaziah finding that there was a Conspiracy, endeavour to save themselves by Flight, but Jehu shot Jehoram with an Arrow thro' the Heart, as he was endeavouring to turn away, so that he died immediately, and was cast by Jehu's Command into that very Ground,

(m) 2 Kings 8. 3, 4, 5, 6. (n) 2 Chron. 21. 19. (o) 2 Kings 8. 25, and 9. 29. (p) 2 Chron. 22. 1, 2. 2 Kings 8. 25, 26. (q) 2 Chron. 22. 1 to 8. 2 Kings 8. 28, 29. (r) 1 Kings 19. 16. (s) 2 Kings 9. 1 to 27. (t) 1 Kings 21. 20 to 25. (u) 2 Kings 19. 26.

whilst Jehu repeated the Words, that he himself and his Captain Bidkar heard Elijah speak to Ahab of this Matter. Thus the Manner of Jehoram's Death is certain; but the Relation of the Death of Abaziah is exceeding different in the Books of the Kings and Chronicles, so that there is a great deal of Difficulty to reconcile them together. In (x) the Book of Kings it is said, that when Abaziah saw the Death of Jehoram King of Israel, he fled by the way of the garden house, which was built upon Part of Naboth's Vineyard; and Jehu followed after him and said, Smite him also in the chariot. And they did so at the going up to Gur, which is by Ibleam; and he fled to Megiddo, and died there. But in (y) the Book of Chronicles it is said, That when Jehu was executing judgment upon the house of Ahab, and found the princes of Judah, even the sons of the brethren of Abaziah, that ministered to Abaziah, he slew them. And he sought Abaziah, and they caught him (for he was hid in Samaria) and brought him to Jehu; and when they had slain him, they buried him. Now the Story in the Book of Kings is very short, and laid in the Story of the Death of Jehoram, that the End of both the Kings may be mention'd together; but the Book of Chronicles shews the Order, as it will more evidently appear in the subsequent History.

70. When Jehu therefore had slain Jehoram in the Field of Jezreel, whilst Abaziah and Jehoram were together, Abaziah being surpriz'd at this unexpected Accident, and having no strength to withstand him, flees from thence (z) by the way of the garden House, and gets into (a) Samaria, and hides himself there. Jehu (b) upon this marches to Jezreel, where he orders Jezebel to be kill'd, and tramp'd upon by the Horses, and to be left in the Street, till her Body was eaten up by Dogs, which gave Jehu an Opportunity to tell the People, (c) how exactly the Prophecy of Elijah was fulfill'd. Jehu being now at Jezreel, sends insulting (d) Letters to the Rulers of the City, and those who were fled thither. They return a very submissive Answer, and he upon this orders them to kill all the Posterity of Ahab, and come to him the next Day to Jezreel. These Rulers kill them, and bring their Heads as a Proof of the Fact. Jehu (e) still declares, that all this was done to fulfil the Prophecy of Elijah, which was still fresh in their Memory. Upon this he slays all the Relations of Ahab, which were in Jezreel, and all his Officers; so that they who slew their Master's Sons, did not long survive them: And after that he destroys all the Priests of Baal, whom he found there. Having finish'd this Work in Jezreel, he now goes on to prosecute the same in Samaria, which most needed Reformation, and to prevent a Surprise, he places Guards in all the Roads which led to that City. They who were upon the Road, which came from the South, seize upon (f) the Brother's Sons of Abaziah King of Judah (who knew nothing of this Revolution) coming to Samaria. It is probable, that when Abaziah King of Judah went out of his Kingdom, he left his Mother Athaliah the Governor. These well knowing what Murders had been committed in the Family by her Instigation, did not think it safe to stay there, and came in a Body toward Samaria. What happen'd afterward shews, that their Fears were not ill grounded, only they fled from a more remote Danger into another, which they could not foresee. This Guard brings them to Jehu, but conceals to whom they did belong, and so they mistook them for their Friends, being only as yet Prisoners at large. Jehu (g) asks of them, Who are ye. They readily told him, that they were the Relations of Abaziah, and add, We will go down for the peace or Security of the children of the king, and the children of the queen. Upon this Jehu commanded them to be apprehended; which being done, they were all put to Death at once. And as (h) they were related to the Family of Ahab by the Mother's Side, and he might also be afraid, that if they had liv'd, they might be aveng'd of him for the Death of Jehoram, Abaziah, Jezebel, and their Children, whom they were going to see; so he puts them to Death for his own Security. This happen'd to be at a Place call'd The Shearing House in the Road between Jezreel and Samaria.

71. When Jehu was gone a little farther on his Journey, he meets with (i) Jehonadab the Son of Rechab, a Man very well known for a pious Strictness in his Life and Conversation. Jehonadab coming to him (k) blesses him (as Melchizedek blessed Abraham returning from the Slaughter of the Kings) and wishes him good Success, declaring that what he did was acceptable to GOD. Jehu on the other Hand professes a great Love to him, and ask'd him, if he lov'd him sincerely, and approv'd of all his Actions. Jehonadab de-

 (f) In 2 Kings 10. 13. they are call'd the Brethren of Abaziah, as the Word is taken in a larger Sense for more distant Relations, but they could not be the Brethren in a strict Sense, because 2 Chron. 21. 4. it is said, that Jehoram had destroy'd them all, and therefore 2 Chron. 22. 8, they are properly call'd The sons of his brethren. (g) 2 Kings 10. 13, The Word is וָנָרַךְ And we will go down. (h) 2 Kings 10. 16, 17, 18. (i) 2 Kings 10. 15, 16. (k) Ibid.

clares with some Vehemency, that he did. Upon this at Jehu's Request they shake Hands, as a Token of a hearty Affection. Jehu desires, that he would ride with him in his own Chariot, which was a very great Honour and a Sign of a very great Esteem, and adds this Expression, Come with me, and see my Zeal for the LORD, to vindicate his Honour and fulfil his Commands. In this Manner they ride together to Samaria, where Jehu proceeds to execute GOD's Wrath against all the Relations of Abah until he had totally destroy'd them. After this (l) he orders a strict Search to be made for Abaziah, who was hid in Samaria, because the Passes were so well guarded, that he could not return into Judah. And when they had found him, they bring him to Jehu, who gives Orders, that (m) they should carry him to Gur, which is beside Ibleam, and there they should kill him in his Chariot, that so his Servants might immediately carry off the Corpse, and bury it. It is suppos'd, that his Father Joram had slain all his own Brethren in the same Place, as Abah had slain Naboth in Jezreel, and therefore Jehu sends him thither to shew the Justice of GOD on this Occasion in Visiting the sins of the fathers upon the children. The Orders of Jehu being only Smite him, his Officers might think it enough to give him a mortal Wound there, or they might leave him for dead, having no Orders to take him out of his Chariot; so his Servants carry him to (n) Megiddo, the next Town in the Tribe of Issachar, where he died; and from thence they carried him in the chariot to Jerusalem, and buried him in his sepulcher with his fathers in the City of David; and Jehu freely permitted this Honour to be done him (which he denied to the Posterity of Abah) because (o) he was descended from the good King Jehoshaphat.

72. Tho Jonadab the Son of Rechab is allow'd to be a good Man; yet it doth not follow, that he reviv'd the antient Rules of the Rechabites mention'd by (p) the Prophet Jeremiah upon a religious, but only upon a political Account. The Story is this. The Rechabites were (q) of the Race of Hobab or Jethro the Kenite, Priest of Midian and Father in Law of Moses. So that the Kenites were Midianites, and the Midianites were Dwellers in Tents from the Beginning. For first, The Arabians of those Parts were such at that Time, and are so at this Day. And Secondly, The Ishmaelites and Midianites dwelt together, so that their Names are frequently us'd for each other. The (r) Merchants to whom Joseph was sold, are sometimes call'd Ishmaelites and sometimes Midianites, as if they were but one People, and

(s) the Midianites which Gideon vanquish'd, were call'd Ishmaelites. Now it is certain, that the Ishmaelites or Hagarenes dwelt in Tents, and (t) it is said, That the Hagarites dwelt in Tents throughout all the east land of Gilead, and some of these were (u) mention'd in Scripture by The Tents of Kedar. Such therefore as the Ishmaelites were, such we may suppose the Midianites to have been. And Habakkuk is (x) very full in Mentioning The tents of Cushan, or Arabia, and Curtains of the land of Midian. This antient Custom was observ'd by the Midianitish Tribe of the Kenites, and by the Posterity of Jethro or Hobab, after they came to live in Canaan. And we are (y) told accordingly, that Heber the Kenite, who was of the children of Hobab the father in law of Moses, had severed himself from the Kenites, and pitch'd his tent in another Place. This Manner of Living they seem to have retain'd, as a Badge or Cognizance of the Nation from whence they were descended, and also that they might live more securely in the Land, where they were Strangers, either from the envy of the Jews at home, or the Danger of Enemies abroad, to whom they should be less subject, as having neither Houses to be burnt, nor Lands to be taken from them, but only Cattle upon which they liv'd, and Tents, which they remov'd, as Opportunity serv'd for Pasture to feed them. Thus Abraham liv'd, whilst he sojourn'd in the Land of Canaan, and in Imitation of him this Custom might be deriv'd to the Midianites, who were of his Posterity. In Length of Time these Kenites were intic'd by the more pleasant Living of the Israelites to think of Changing this Custom of their Ancestors, which occasion'd this Jehonadab the Son of Rechab a famous Kenite to renew it again, and bind his Posterity to observe it. For this End he forbade them altogether the Drinking of Wine, lest the Desire thereof might tempt them to plant Vineyards and build Houses, as the Jews did, and so to forsake the Custom of their Nation, as perhaps Licentiousness of Wine had caus'd many of them to do. So that Jonadab only renew'd, what their Ancestors had observ'd long before he was born; and his Authority prevail'd among them to continue it two hundred Years, after he was dead, not as a Matter of Religion, but as a mere civil Custom. The Church of Rome makes a great Stir from this Example, to warrant the Monkish Affectation of Poverty. Had Mahomet been as cunning as they, he might also have urg'd the Text for a Prohibition of Wine. They may with equal Reason urge the Examples of the Tarßars and the wild Arabians, who at this Day live in the same Manner; and they may also, if they please, add Diogenes's Tub as most full to this Purpose.

73. But to return to the History. When Anno ante CHRIS- TUM 889. (a) Athaliah the Daughter of Ahab and Wife to Jehoram King of Judah had certain Intelligence that Jehu had slain her Son Abaziah, she being of a proud and bloody Temper, resolves to take the Government upon her self, and having no Child by Jehoram King of Judah, she gets a Party of her own, and perhaps of such as had fled out of the Kingdom of Israel for fear of Jehu, as they had been the true Friends of her Father Ahab, and her Brother Jehoram King of Israel, so she could the better depend on their Fidelity. By their Assistance she destroys all the Children, which were left to Jehoram by (b) any other Wife. Here was Destruction upon Destruction to the Royal Families, so that happy were they who came of a meaner Parentage. The whole Offspring of Jeroboam, Baasha and Ahab were cut off for their Idolatry, so that there was not one left. And the Kings of Judah having contracted an Affinity with the House of Ahab, and being seduc'd by them to be guilty of the same, were so destroy'd by three successive Massacres, that there was but one left. First, Jehoram slew all his Brethren, then Jehu slew all his Brother's Children, which came to Samaria, and now Athaliah destroys all the rest, which her Executioners could meet with. It happen'd, that Jehoiada the High Priest had married Jehoshabeath the Sister of Abaziah by the Father's Side, but not by the Mother's; and whilst they were employ'd in Killing the Children of Jehoram, she steals away (c) Joash the Son of Abaziah, and carries him away privately to her Husband Jehoiada, who keeps him undiscover'd for six Years in one of the Chambers of the Temple; so that no one knew what was become of him, and every one concluded him to be kill'd among the rest. And it is probable, that Abaziah had no other Son; for he was but (d) three and twenty Years old, when he was kill'd. Athaliah takes upon her to govern the Kingdom, which she did for six Years, but did nothing remarkable. All that is recorded of her in Scripture is, that (e) she was a wicked Woman. The Jews say, that (f) she was a publick Whore, and had several Bastards, which were as bad as her self.

74. Jehu being now seated on the Throne of Israel, makes Use of (g) Jehonadab the Son of Rechab as his Privy Counsellor and Director in Matters of Religion. And considering that he came to the Crown by the Prophecy of Elisha, who told him of it in the Name of the LORD the true GOD of Israel, he resolves to shew his (h) Zeal and Gratitude, by Rooting out the Worship of Baal; and there is no Doubt but Jehonadab, being a good Man, encourag'd him in it. To carry on (i) this Design, he declares a Day for a solemn Sacrifice to Baal, requiring all his Worshipers to be present at that Time, under the Penalty, that whosoever was wanting he should not live; so that it was Death to all that came, and Death to all that staid away. When they were all together in the Temple of Baal, and the adjoining Courts, Jehu order'd (k) fourscore Officers to fall upon them with all their Forces, which they did, and so destroy'd them. After this they went into (l) the adjoining City, call'd The city of the house of Baal, and there they destroy'd as many as they could find. Then they shew'd the utmost Contempt to all the Images in Breaking them down, and Burning them publickly, that all might see, that they were not able to help themselves. Upon this they demolish the Temple, and that the Place might always be despis'd, they made it a Jakes, whither Men usually went to ease Nature. By this Act Jehu destroy'd Baal, so that he was never worshipp'd any more in the Kingdom of Israel, but they were perfectly freed from this Sort of Idolatry; and thus what was began by Omri the Father of Ahab, was intirely rooted out again with his Posterity. This Act of his was so pleasing to GOD, that he declar'd to Jehu by (m) a Prophet, that his children of the fourth generation should sit on the throne of Israel; so that his partial Obedience was not without its Reward, which would have been greater, if he had been as zealous in other things as he was in this. But Policy prevail'd against Religion, and persuaded him to continue the old Idolatry, when he had destroy'd the new. He seems to be carried away with this Notion, that the Calves which (n) Jeroboam set up, were the Representations of the true GOD of Israel, which brought them up out of the Land of Egypt (and therefore he (o) calls the Worshipers of them, the worshippers of the LORD) and that the Worship paid to other Deities was

(a) 2 Kings 11. 1. 2 Chron. 22. 10. (b) He is suppos'd to have more Wives, because 2 Chron. 22. 11. Jehoiada, a good High Priest, married one of his Daughters; and it cannot be imagin'd, that he would marry the Daughter of so wicked a Woman, as Athaliah was. only the Worship of other Gods. And he might also be afraid, as his Predecessors were, that if he destroy'd the Calves, as he had destroy'd Baal, the People would return to the House of David. For the same Reason his Successors continu'd the same Worship, until the twentieth Year of Pekah the Son of Remaliah, when (p) it is said, That Tiglab-pileser King of Assyria, came and took away the Golden Calf, which was in Dan, and departed. And (q) in the Reign of Abaz GOD stirr'd up the Spirit of the King of Assyria, so that he carried away the Golden Calf that was in Bethel, and departed. This seems to be the Fulfilling of (r) the Prophet Hoshea, That the Inhabitants of Samaria should fear, because of the calves of Bethaven; for the people thereof should mourn over it, and the priests thereof that rejoiced on it, should mourn for the glory thereof, because it was departed from it. It should be also carried unto Assyria for a present to (s) a heathen King, that should plead the cause of the GOD of Israel. And thus the high places of Aven, and the sin of Israel should be destroy'd. So that when (t) the Children of Israel were carried Captives by Shalmanezzer King of Assyria, who plac'd the People of other Nations there instead of them, some of the Inhabitants worshipp'd the true GOD without any Representations, and others worshipp'd the Gods of their respective Countries, and we hear no more of the golden Calves.

75. But GOD, to shew Jehu that he was angry at him for his other Idolatry, (u) stirr'd up Hazael the King of Syria to invade his Country. He took several of their frontier Towns, and thereby he open'd a Way to make great Ravages in many other Places. He took from them that Part which lay beyond Jordan, to which the Israelites could not so easily send Reinforcements, and which was expos'd to the Syrians, who dwelt round Damascus. This Kingdom they formerly took from Sihon and Og, and so the first that they conquer'd was the first that they lost. But tho' Hazael was rais'd (x) like the King of Assyria to be the Rod of GOD's Anger, and to take Vengeance on a wicked and obstinate People, and was (y) declar'd King for this Purpose; yet he meant hereby only to gratify his private Ambition, and to enrich himself, without any Regard to the Glory of GOD, whose Instrument he was: and after he had conquer'd the Country, he exercis'd great Severities upon them, which is describ'd by (z) the Threshing of Gilead with threshing instruments of iron: And therefore GOD (a) threatens to burn the Rod, when the chastisement was over, and send such a fire into the house of Hazael, as should devour the palaces of Ben-hadad, which was (b) the Name of his Son, and the (c) common Name by which the Kings of Syria were call'd. This was in Part fulfill'd in the Days of his Son Ben-hadad, whom (d) Jehoshaphat the Grandson of Jehu beat in three set Battles, and regain'd all that his Father, and probably a great Part of what his Grandfather had formerly lost. And after this (e) when the Assyrian Monarchy was settl'd at Nineveh under Tiglab-pileser, he march'd with a great Army into Syria, where having slain Rezin in Battle he took Damascus, and reduc'd all that Country under his Dominion. And hereby he put an End to the Kingdom of the Syrians in Damascus, after it had lasted there for ten Generations from the Time of Rezon the Son of Eliadab, who (f) first founded it, when Solomon was King of Israel, and so the palaces of Damascus were devour'd.

76. It is very probable, that about the the same Time the Children of Ammon (g) assisted Hazael King of Syria to oppress and conquer the Tribes on the other Side Jordan, and so to attack them on two Sides at once, upon this Condition, that each Kingdom might enlarge their border, or keep what they could get. For this Purpose they were very cruel in their Conquests, destroying all that they could meet with, and ripping up the women with child in Gilead, who could do them no Harm. Some interpret it, They divided, or broke thro' the mountains, as Hannibal pass'd over the Alps to enter into Italy. But as we find no such Mountains between the Ammonites and the Land of Gilead; so we may suppose, that our Translation doth best express the Sense of (h) the Original. For this Reason the Prophet Amos (i) denounceth a heavy Judgment also against the Children of Ammon. I will kindle a fire upon the wall of Rabbah, their capital City, and it shall devour the palaces thereof with shouting in the day of battle, and with a tempest in the day of the whirlwind. And their king shall go into captivity, he and his princes together, saith the LORD. This was also fulfill'd, when (k) Nebuchadnezzar lay at the Siege of Tyre, and sent Nebuzaradan the Captain of his Guard against the Ammonites, who having destroy'd Rabbah their royal City, and made great Desolations therein by Fire and Sword, carried their King and their Princes and most of the chief of the Land into Captivity, which was done by Way of a just Revenge, for the Part which (l) they had in the Murder of Gedeliab the King of Babylon's Governor in the Land of Israel.

77. When Athaliah had (m) reign'd six Years, and Joash was (n) seven Yearsold, Jehoiada the High Priest, knowing that there was no Commission from GOD to place a Woman upon the Throne of Israel, but only a King, and thinking that he had a sufficient Authority to dethrone her, and set up Joash, he first tries the Inclinations of (o) the People, and finding them to be according to his own Desire, he brings Joash into one of the publick Courts of the Temple; and having got together a sufficient Number of Forces, supplied them with Weapons, and plac'd them in the best Posture of Defence, he brings out Joash from the Place, where he had been hid, and with an universal Consent anoints him, because his Right had been interrupted, and so he is declar'd King. Athaliah hearing the Noise, comes into the Temple in haste, and finding Joash plac'd as King, she cries out Treason, Treason, expecting that her Presence would have frighten'd the People again to her Obedience. But this happen'd contrary to her Intention; for Jehoiada the High Priest gave Orders to apprehend her as a Traitor, which they did, and took her out of the sacred Ground, and brought her to a Stable Gate belonging to the Palace, and there they kill'd her, with (p) an universal Joy and Satisfaction, because they were deliver'd from her Tyranny. Joash being thus seated on the Throne makes (q) a Covenant with the People, that they should restore the true Worship of GOD, continue in it, and root out all Idolatry, and then he makes another between himself and all the People, that he should govern according to law, and they should be obedient to him. Upon this they rise, and destroy the Temple of Baal, and break down his Images, and his Altars, which had (r) been set up by Jehoram, and (s) continued by Abaziah, and without Doubt by Athaliah also. And they kill Mattan his Priest before his Altar, to shew he was not able to revenge it, insomuch that we hear no more of his Worship in Judah until (t) the Reign of Manasseh. After this he settles all the Service of the Temple, in the same Manner as it was appointed in the Days of David and Solomon, which occasion'd an universal Joy to all those, who had any Sense of Religion; and to confirm him the more in this Resolution Jehoaida took Care, that he was married to Wives of his own Temper.

78. The Temple of Solomon being very much out of Repair, ever since the Reign of Jehoshaphat, occasion'd by the Neglect and Wickedness of those Kings who succeeded him, and were related to the House of Abah, (u) King Joash in Gratitude to GOD, who had preserv'd him there, resolv'd to have it repair'd, and accordingly commanded what Money should be set apart for that Purpose. But when there was Reason to think, that they who were concern'd did not act with that Diligence and Faithfulness, as might be expected, (x) Jehoiada the High Priest took a Chest, and bor'd a Hole in the Top of it, and set it by the Altar, that it might all be brought thither, and taken from thence to be laid out for this Use, and so by good Management the whole Fabrick was repair'd.

79. About this Time Jehu the King of Israel dies. Tho' he had destroy'd Baal out of Israel, yet he stuck to the Worship of the golden Calf; which so provok'd GOD to Anger, that his Affairs seem to grow worse and worse, and we hear not of any remarkable Action done by him. At his Death he was succeeded by (y) his Son Jehoahaz, who follow'd the Idolatry of his Father. This caus'd GOD to suffer Hazael King of Syria, to (z) ravage all the Country, killing some, and carrying others into Captivity, insomuch that they were in a deplorable Condition, and had such a few Soldiers left, that there was no Possibility of Keeping the Field. Now therefore Jehoahaz prays unto GOD to take Pity upon them, and GOD resolves to give them a longer Space for Repentance, and rais'd up Joash the Son of Jehoahaz King of Israel, to put a Check to this insulting Enemy. It is probable, that his Father made him General of all his Forces for some Time, so that he was very active, and took Care to put every thing in the best Posture of Defence; and therefore he is call'd (a) a Saviour rais'd up for Israel. And being blest'd with such good Success, his Father (b) made him King in the thirty seventh Year of the Reign of Joash King of Judah, which was three Years before his own Death.

of Age, and was honourably buried in the City of David among the Kings of Judab, not only because he married the Daughter of a King, but especially because he had been an Instrument in Restoring the divine Worship (which now they were sensible was a great Happiness) and also in Repairing the Breaches of the Temple, and Procuring the Blessing of GOD; so that they had a great Degree of Peace and Prosperity during his Life, which was the more remarkable, because his neighbouring Kingdom was so harassed by the Syrians. He was succeeded in this Dignity by his Son Zechariah, who liv'd not long to enjoy it.

81. For after the Decease of Jehoiada, several of the Princes of Judab, who were Idolaters in their Hearts, having Admittance to King Joash, and pretending the utmost Civility and Allegiance, desir'd that they might have the Liberty to worship such Idols as they thought most convenient, and especially any Representations of the true GOD which might be set up in any other Part of his Kingdom. The King was overcome by their Insinuations, and gave them Liberty, which made a great Alteration in the Face of Religion; so that the Service of the Temple was neglected; and GOD resolv'd to punish that Kingdom for the Vindicating of his own Honour. However, he gives them Notice of their Sin and Danger by Sending several Prophets to them; but this working no Reformation, he inspires Zechariah the High Priest, and orders him to deliver the same Message. He takes the Opportunity of one of the publick Feasts, when there was the greatest Concourse of People, and stood in a Place, where he could be best heard, and then he persuades them to amend their Lives, as the only Way to prosper; telling them also, that because they had forsaken the LORD, he would also forsake them. The King little remembring the Kindness of his Father and Mother, to whom he ow'd his own Life, and being enrag'd at this Message, gives Orders to destroy the Son; but the Number of the Worshipers of GOD being so great on that Occasion that they could not do it publickly, a Party of Men fit for this Purpose contrive to do it in a private Manner, and watching their Opportunity, they stone him with Stones in one of the Courts of the Temple, whose dying Words were, The LORD look upon it, and requite it. There are some of good Authority, who look upon this Zechariah to be the Person of whom our SAVIOUR spoke, when (d) he said to the Jews, Behold, I send unto you prophets and wise men, and scribes, and some of them ye shall kill and crucify, and some of them ye shall scourge in your synagogues, and persecute them from city to city; That upon you may come all the righteous blood shed upon the earth, from the blood of righteous Abel, unto the blood of Zacharias the son of Barachias, whom ye slew between the temple and the altar. But as our SAVIOUR begins with Abel the first Instance; so we may suppose that he concluded with the last. And as he here speaks of future things, so this may be one Instance among the rest, and the Naming the Name both of Father and Son is such an Instance of his Knowledge, the like whereof was never given by any other. We may therefore conclude, that the Zacharias, which our SAVIOUR speaks of, was one whom (e) Josephus mentions in the Time of the Jewish Wars, and of whom he gives us this Account, That he was the Son of Baruch, a Man of the first Rank, a Friend to all good Men, and an Enemy to the Wicked, a Man who had very great Authority, Virtue and Wealth. This Zacharias the Zealots look'd upon as a Man so very popular, that they themselves could not be safe, without Taking away his Life. For this Purpose they bring him before a Court of their own Setting up, and falsely accuse him of a Conspiracy to betray Jerusalem to the Romans, and treating with Vespasian about it. When the Court, contrary to their own Expectation, had declar'd him innocent, two of the greatest Ruffians of the Company fall outrageously upon Zecharias, and murder him in the Middle of the Temple, with this insolent Raillery in their Mouths, Now we have given you your Discharge too, and you are much surer of this, than you were of the other. And so they cast his Body down the Precipice of the Mountain.

82. The Year after the Murder of Zechariah the Son of Jehoiada, GOD enters into Judgment for it. Accordingly the Army of Hazael King of Syria passes over Jordan, and marches directly (f) into the Kingdom of Judab, where they destroy all the Princes and chief Rulers from among the People, and send the Spoil of them to the King to Damascus: and thus they who were the Beginners and Headers of this Apostacy from GOD, were singled out to be punish'd for the same. The Text (g) saith, That the army of the Syrians came with a small company of men, expecting only a private Ravage, and the LORD delivered a very great host into their hand beyond their Expectation; because they had forsaken the LORD GOD of their fathers; so they executed judgment against Joash. Upon this Hazael comes from Da- mafcus, joins the Army in Person, and over-runs the whole Country except Jerusalem, of which there is this Instance, that (b) he went against Gath, a Town of the Philiftines, in the farthest Part of the Kingdom, and took it, and resolv'd in his Retreat to besiege Jerusalem, and by Taking that to annex all to his own Dominions. To prevent this, (i) Jehoash King of Judah, took all the hallowed things, that Jehoshaphat, and Jehoram, and Ahaziah his fathers, kings of Judah had dedicated, and his own hallowed things, and all the gold which was found in the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the kings house, and sent it as a Present to Hazael king of Syria: and upon this he rais'd the Siege of Jerusalem, and went back to his own Kingdom.

83. During this Time, the Judgments of GOD did in a particular Manner follow Joash King of Judah for his Apostacy, and the Murder of Zechariah. The best of his Subjects began to flight and disregard him; and as his Kingdom was infested with Wars, so his Body was over-run with bad Distempers, which render'd him unfit and unable to manage the Kingdom; and therefore in the second Year of Joash King of Israel, and two Years before his own Death, he (k) makes his Son Amaziah King in his Stead. And in the same Manner Jehoabaz King of Israel seeing the success of his Son Joash in Putting a Stop to the Arms of Hazael King of Syria, in the (l) thirty seventh Year of the Reign of Joash King of Judah, and about three Years before his own Death, he makes his Son Joash King of Israel; so that here were four Kings reigning together at the same Time in the two Kingdoms.

84. But when the Syrians were departed out of Judah, the (m) Distempers of Joash the King grew worse and worse, so that when he was confin'd to his Bed, two of his own Servants conspir'd against him and kill'd him. And it is observable, that as his Father married the Daughter of Ahab, who was of an idolatrous Family; so the Mother of one of these Conspirators was a Moabitefs, and the Mother of the other was an Ammonitefs, who came from two idolatrous Nations: and thus the provoking Sin may be easily learnt by the Authors of the Punishment.

85. Amaziah, who succeeded Joash King of Judah in the Throne, was a good King in the Beginning of his Reign, tho' he seems to have some Difficulty to secure himself in the peaceable Possession of it. This might be occasion'd by a Conspiracy to set up another King in the Room of him that was murder'd. However, when he had overcome this Opposition, it is said, that (n) he slew his servants, that had slain the king his father. But the children of the murderers he slew not, according to that which was written in the law of Moses, saying, (o) The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, nor the children be put to death for the fathers, but every man shall be put to death for his own sin. Thus (p) he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, and might take Care to let the World know that it was so, when it was not done with a perfect Heart, from a Principle of Religion, but only of worldly Politicks, to secure himself in the Kingdom. About this (q) Time Hazael the King of Syria dies, and was succeeded by his Son Ben-hadad. He had been King for about fifty Years, and had been always a terrible Scourge to the Kingdom of Israel, and sometimes also to that of Judah; so that his Death was a great Mercy to both Kingdoms, and (r) was represented so in Scripture: For the LORD was gracious unto them, and had compassion on them, and had respect unto them, because of his covenant with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and would not destroy them, neither cast he them from his presence as yet.

86. Soon after this Elisha, who had now been a Prophet for about sixty Years, was (s) taken ill of his last Sickness; and Joash King of Israel hearing of this, and knowing how many things he had foretold, pays him a Visit, to hear from him if possible, what should happen to his own Kingdom. Joash comes to him, and laments the Loss, which he was likely to have of so great a Defender, equal to all the Chariots and Horsemen which were in Israel. Elisha directs him to shoot an Arrow eastward, out of the Window; upon which he said, The arrow of the LORD's deliverance, and the arrow of deliverance from Syria (whose Conquests at that Time lay eastward) for thou shalt smite the Syrians in Aphek, till thou hast consum'd them. There were two Apheks, one (t) in the Tribe of Judah, near Gath, which the Syrians had lately taken. But it is improbable, that this could be meant, because the Israelites could not go thither, without Marching thro' the whole Kingdom of Judah, which would not be suffer'd. The other was (u) in the Tribe of Asher in the north of Canaan; and this being near to Syria, we may suppose, that the first Battle was fought there with such Success, that the Syrians were driven out of the Country, tho' we have no particular Account of it. After this he bids Joash to shoot the Arrows against the Ground, which he did three Times, and Elisha told him, that it was a Sign of three Victories and no more.

87. Elisha being soon after dead and buried, there was nothing done that Year. The next Year (x) the Moabites, being probably in Confederacy with the Syrians, invade the Israelites in the Spring; and as the Israelites were carrying a dead Man to his Grave, they spied a Company of the Moabites coming against them. Upon this they roll'd the Stone away from Elisha's Sepulchre, and put the dead Body into it; and when the Body touch'd Elisha's Corps, it stood up, and was in perfect Health. This was enough to convince a Sadducee of the Resurrection of the Body, to confirm the Nation in a Belief, that what the Prophet had foretold should come to pass, and to put Life and Vigour into the most feeble Soldier, with an assured Hope of three successive Victories. However, the Success answer'd the Predictions; for (y) Jeboash took again out of the hand of Ben-hadad the son of Hazael, the cities which he had taken out of the hand of Anno ante CHRISTUM 839. 838. and 837.

Jeboash his father by war; three times did Joash beat him, and recover'd the cities of Israel. Where these Battles were fought is uncertain, but it is probable that they were on the other Side Jordan, and that he recover'd all that was lost on that Side thereby; of which there seems to be this Proof, that (z) all the Seed of Israel were afterward carried away Captives out of the Land by Shalmanezzer King of Assyria, the Kingdom of Judah excepted. This Josephus (a) expressly calls the Transportation of the ten Tribes, whereas if these had not been recover'd, they must have been seven and an half and no more.

88. Amaziah King of Judah being seated on the Throne, (b) raises an Army in his Kingdom to conquer the Edomites, who before had revolted; and thinking his own Subjects not strong enough for this Expedition, he hires an hundred thousand Men of the King of Israel, paying to him a Talent for every thousand beside their Pay. These by the Direction of the Prophet were dismiss'd, and the Money lost; but returning back, and

(c) taking it very heinously to be so treated; they fall upon some of the Cities of Judah, kill three thousand Men, and carry off what Plunder they could meet with. Soon after this he gather'd all his Forces together, commanded them in Person, and march'd to a Place in the Country of Edom call'd the Valley of Salt, either from the Salt Springs, or from the Quantity of Salt which was digg'd there; and there in a pitch'd Battle he kill'd ten thousand of the Edomites; and took ten thousand Prisoners. After this he march'd to Selah the Metropolis of Arabia Petraea, which he also became Master of. Selah in Hebrew is the same with Petra in Greek, and signifies a Rock upon which the City stood. Hagar also, or جبار in Arabick, signifies a Mountain, and the Arabians call'd it so from the rocky mountain which was near this Place, and which St. Paul also (d) calls Hagar: and this King call'd the Place Joktheel, which Name continu'd afterward, and signifies The Obedience to GOD, as an Acknowledgment, that the Possession of it was a Reward of his Obedience to the Prophet, who requir'd him to dismiss all the Forces that he had hir'd of the Israelites: and from the Top of this Rock he seems to have thrown down in cold Blood the ten thousand Prisoners whom he took, so that they were all broken to Pieces. But such was the Sottishness of Amaziah, that having conquer'd the Country of Edom, he was (e) conquer'd by their Idols, which he brought with him into his own Country, and there he worshipp'd them. A Prophet had advis'd him before to dismiss the Israelites, because they were Idolaters; and what could he now think, who was such an Idolater himself? Soon after the same, or another Prophet expostulateth with him in these Words, Why hast thou sought after the gods of the people, who could not deliver their own people out of thy hand? Amaziah not being able to answer him by Reason, answers him by Threatnings, telling him, that he had nothing to do in this Matter, and if he did not forbear, it should be the worse for him. Upon this the Prophet desists, and only lets him know, that his Obstinacy was a sure Sign, that GOD would enter into Judgment for it.

89. However, Amaziah being puff'd with this Success, and thinking that he could carry all before him, is resolv'd to be reveng'd on the Israelites, for the Damage which their Soldiers did him in their return to their own Country; and therefore (f) he sends a threatening Message to Jeboash King of Is-

Here he takes Amaziah Prisoner, and brings him to Jerusalem, letting (g) the Inhabitants know, that he would slay him before their Eyes, if they did not immediately open their Gates to him. The Inhabitants, not willing to lose their King, let in Jeboabaz their Enemy, who takes all the Gold and Silver, and all the Vessels that were found in the House of the LORD, and in the Treasures of the King's House, lays a Tax upon the Land, and carries off Hostages for the Security of the Payment. The great Cause of these Successes was (p) the Encouragement of the Prophet Jonah the Son of Amitai, who was afterward sent to forewarn the Ninevites of their Destruction. From him we may observe the Falshood of that Calumny which (q) the Pharisees urg'd against our SAVIOUR, Art thou also of Galilee? Search and look; for out of Galilee ariseth no prophet. The Words of (r) Isaiah, as they are (s) quored by St. Matthew from the Septuagint, are full to the contrary, and fuller (t) in the Hebrew Text. The land of Zebulun, and the land of Nephthalim, by the way of the Sea beyond Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles. The people which sat in darkness, saw a great light: and to them which sat in the region and shadow of death, light is sprung up. Besides, the Prophet Jonah, by whole Name one of the Books of the old Testament is call'd, was (u) of Gath-hepher, a Town (x) in Zebulun, and (as St. Hierome tells us) toward Tiberias in Galilee; so that if they had search'd farther, they might have found another instance of their Mistake.

91. As to Amaziah King of Judah, (y) tho' he liv'd several Years after his Defeat by the King of Israel; yet he did nothing emarkable, and was in very little Credit with his People. The City of Jerusalem having been expos'd to Reproach by the great Breach made in the Wall, and spoil'd of its best Ornaments, and some of their Children carried away as Hostages for their good Behaviour, he was so odious among them, that they form'd a Conspiracy against his Life. This coming to his Knowledge, he fled to Lachish a Town on the Frontiers of the Philistines. Upon this they sent some of the Traitors thither, who (z) undertook to murder him privately, and effected it accordingly. His Friends hearing of this, carry his Corpse to Jerusalem, and there bury it honourably among his Ancestors.

92. His Son Azariah being (a) sixteen Years old succeeds him in the Throne, in the seven and twentieth Year of the Reign of Jeroboam the second, King of Israel. He is call'd Uzziah (b) in the Book of Chronicles and among the Prophets, and sometimes also (c) in the Book of Kings, where he is generally call'd Azariah, and (d) Ozias by St. Matthew. And it is no Wonder, that he should be call'd by both Names, because they are so much alike, one signifying The LORD is my strength, and the other The LORD hath helped me. He must be born in the eleventh Year of Jeroboam the second, who began his Reign in (e) the fifteenth Year of Amaziah, so that he was born in the five and twentieth Year of his Father's Reign, which was but four Years before his Death, and there was an Interregnum or Vacancy of twelve Years between the Death of his Father and the Beginning of his Reign. It is probable, that the Conspirators, who had slain his Father, set up for themselves, whilst he was young and friendless, and turn'd the Government into a Democracy; but this being not according to their Constitution, and so a State of Confusion, and nothing remarkable being done all this Time, there is no Notice taken of it in Scripture until the End of it, when another Party prevail'd to set the King upon the Throne, and turn the Government again into a Monarchy.

93. The History of the Reign of Uzziah from the Beginning of it to his last Year is (f) briefly touch'd upon in the Book of Kings, and (g) more largely in the Chronicles, in so plain a style, that nothing is wanting to be added, but the (h) Words of Josephus, who saith, that he was naturally a Man of great Justice, brave, provident and industrious. In the Beginning of his Reign he made War upon the Philistines, and having taken Gath, Jabneh and Ashdod by Storm, he demolish'd their Walls, and built Cities in the Country thereabout to keep them in Subjection. The Reason whereof probably was, because the Philistines join'd with the Conspirators and Malecontents of his Kingdom; and therefore having subdued the one, he resolv'd as soon as possible to subdue the other, and keep them in Subjection. After this he made another Expedition against the Arabians upon the Borders of Egypt, and built Eloth, a Town upon the Red-Sea, to carry on a Trade of Merchandise, and committed it to the Guard of a strong Garison. After this he conquer'd the Meunims, who liv'd in those Deserts, and so terrified the Ammonites, that they also became Tributaries to him. Thus he reduc'd the whole Country as far as the Frontiers of Egypt under his Power, and after that he resolv'd to put the City of Jerusalem in a good Posture of Defence; so that where the Walls were ruinous or decay'd, whether by Age or by the Neglect of former Governors, he built them new, and he also repair'd that Breach, which the King of Israel had made, when Amaziah was his Prisoner, at his triumphant Entrance into the City. He erected also several Towers of an hundred and fifty Cubits in Height, and built Castles and strong Forts for the security of the open Country, beside a great many Aqueducts, Cisterns and Basons for the Relief of his Herds and Cattle, whereof the Number was incredible, the Country being naturally dispos'd for Pasture. He was himself also a great Lover of Tillage, Planting, Gardening, Nurseries, and all Sorts of Husbandry. As to the military Part, he had an Army of three hundred and seventy thousand select Men, under the Command of two thousand brave and experienc'd Officers, and well arm'd with Swords and Bucklers, brazen Corsets, Bows and Slings, and train'd up to the Exercise of Arms, and the Drawing up of Armies after the most advantageous Way of martial Discipline. He had several Machines and Engines also for Batttery, and Casting of Stones and Darts, beside Hooks and other Instruments for Besieging. But his Head was at last so taken up with the Vanity of these Preparations and Designs, that the Arrogance of his Ambition for a transitory and an earthly Glory took him quite off from the Thoughts of everlasting Happiness, and from the Duties of Holiness and Religion in the Worship and Service of Almighty GOD; insomuch that he fail'd in his Integrity after the Example of his Father, out of an Impotency of Mind; that was not able to bear up against the Tide of a constant Course of Prosperity and Success.

94. But as GOD was not willing to leave himself without Witnels in these idolatrous and corrupt Times, but rais'd up Prophets to declare his Will both to the House of (i) Israel and (k) Judah; so now he begins to raise up Prophets of an higher Nature, even such who should leave their Writings behind them, to make up the remaining Part of the old Testament. The first of these was the Prophet Hosea, and so (l) he testifies of himself, that the beginning of the Word of the LORD was by him: And thus as under an Hosea (m) Israel enter'd into the Land of Canaan, and (n) under an Hosea they were carried thence; so GOD rais'd up an Hosea the first of these Prophets to tax their Unthankfulness for the one, and to foretel the Fearfulness of the other. The Date of his Prophecy tells us, that it was in the Days (o) of Uzziah, Jotham, Abaz, and Hezekiah, Kings of Judah, and in the Days of Jeroboam the Son of Joash King of Israel. Now as Jeroboam died in (p) the fifteenth Year of the Reign of Uzziah, so from hence it is evident, that he began to prophesy in one of those fifteen Years. The following Occurrences in the Time of Jeroboam's Reign will lead us to conjecture, that Hosea began to prophesy in the third Year of Uzziah's Reign; and we may learn from his Prophecy it self, that some of it was written in the (q) ninth Year of Hezekiah's Reign, when Shalmanezzer King of Affyria came up against Samarina, and having kill'd many of the Inhabitants of a Place call'd Betharbel in a barbarous Manner to terrify the rest, he carried the King and the People Captives into Affyria. This the Prophet describes in this Manner, (r) As Shalman spoil'd Betharbel in the day of battle, the mother was dash'd in pieces with her children; and (s) GOD also describes it thus, I gave to Israel a king, or to be a distinct Kingdom in the Time of Jeroboam, in mine anger, to the House of Judah, and took this Monarchy or King away in my wrath to the Kingdom of Israel. So that according to this Reckoning he was a Prophet for eighty four Years together. And as in the Beginning of his Prophecy he was of an Age fit for (t) Marriage, which we cannot suppose to be less than sixteen Years, so he must be at least an hundred Years old at the End. And thus, as GOD had (u) prolong'd the Life of Jehoiada the High Priest to be an hundred and thirty Years old; so he prolong'd the Lives of others, who were eminently holy, or whom he call'd forth to more eminent Services.

95. His two first Chapters plainly shew, that they were declar'd by him in the Beginning of his Prophecy; and the two next may well be suppos'd to be of the same Date, as appears by the Subject of them. In the (x) first Chapter, GOD in a Parable orders him to marry an adulterous Wife, and so he takes Gomer the Daughter of Diblaim, a Name which may be thus interpreted, A complete and final Desolation, the Effect of a general Corruption, like (y) decay'd Figs, which are good for nothing. In this Parable he is suppos'd to have Children, by whose Names he foretels several Calamities. First, the Ruin (z) of the House of Jebn by calling the first Son Jezreel, and threatening to avenge the Blood spilt in that Place. Secondly, The Ruin (a) of the Kingdom of Israel typified by a Daughter call'd Lo-rubamah, or One who had not obtain'd mercy. For before these Times when Hosea began to prophesy, GOD had pitied Israel very much, and (b) eas'd them in a great Measure of their Troubles and Afflictions. But now he would do so no more; tho' he would yet pity and save Judah (c) not by bow and sword, but by an Angel in the Days of Hezekiah, who destroy'd Senacherib's Army. Thirdly, he foretels the Destruction (d) of the House of

Judah under the Type of the third Son call'd Lo-ammi, or Not my people, giving this as a Reason, For ye are not my people, and I will not be your GOD: After this he foretels, that the Gentiles (e) should be call'd in, and become one People under one King, the LORD JESUS CHRIST, when they should say to the Gentiles, Ammi, Ye are my people, and call each Woman Rubamah, or One who had obtained mercy. In the second Chapter he particularizes upon those Heads, which were mention'd before, and proceeds to shew the Reason and Manner of the Rejection of the Jews, and the Happiness of the Church in the Calling of the Gentiles; so that these two Chapters seem to be written about the same Time. The third and fourth Chapters cannot be of a much later Date, because he (f) foretels the Plague of Locusts, in the same Manner with Joel and Amos, describing it as the others had also done. In the third Chapter, under the Parable of another Marriage with an adulterous Wife, he foretels the Iniquity of the People after their Return from Babylon into their own Land, and their State in their present Rejection, when they neither follow'd Idols nor GOD, and when neither as a Wife they adher'd to GOD, nor yet to any other God, as to another Husband. The fourth Chapter speaks of the Jews as they were at that Time, and shews their Wickedness, and what Judgments were coming upon them, exhorting them to beware. And here he dates their Wickedness from (g) the Murder of Zechariah the Son of Jehoiada, when they so brake out, that (h) blood touched blood, and the Blood of the Sacrificer was mingl'd with the Blood of the Sacrifice, and they were grown so incorrigible, that (i) they strove at that Time with the priest, to whom if they had hearken'd, they might have repented. So that it cannot be put much farther back, because it was intended as a Reproof to them who were then alive.

96. Soon after this the Prophet Joel began to prophesy. The Time when he began, is not expressly mention'd; but the Subject of his Prophecy will give us a near Approach to it, because he speaks of the same Plague of Locusts, of Drought, and of Fire, that the Prophet Amos mentions, and therefore they could not be far distant. He sadly laments (k) in his two first Chapters the miserable Famine and grievous Condition, that the People were brought into thro' the Plague of Locusts and Drought, and describes the Caterpillars, Palmer-worms, and Locusts, whom he calls The Northern Army, as if they were an Army of Men indeed. However he concludes afterward with comfortable Promises of Rain after the Drought, and flourishing Trees and Times after the Locusts. And upon that Discourse of the Restitution of temporal Blessings, he proceeds to speak of spiritual Blessings in the Days of CHRIST, in the Gift of Tongues, and the Wonders which should attend his Death, and go before the Destruction of Jerusalem. And then he seems to conclude the third Chapter with things that are yet to come concerning the Conversion of the Jews, their Entering into the Land of Canaan, the Destruction of all their Enemies, and the glorious State of the Church which should afterward follow to the End of the World.

97. Next after these two Prophets, in the same Order as they are rank'd in the old Testament, follow'd the Prophecy of Amos. It was all spoken in the Days of Jeroboam and in the Days of Uzziah, when they liv'd together, and there is not the least Mention of his Prophecy in the Days of any other King. He tells us (k) almost at the End of his Book, that Jeroboam King of Israel was then alive, and Amasiah the Priest of Bethel would have stirr'd him up against Amos as against a Traitor. However he denounceth severe Judgments against this false Prophet, he repeats what he had before mention'd of the Captivity of Israel, and continues to prophesy, as he did before. Thus when they had been brought very low by their Enemies, and their Miseries were become exceeding great, even then GOD would not destroy them, but tries them with one Kindness more, and gives them a great Ease and Deliverance by Jeroboam the second. But when both King and People continu'd in the Idolatry of Jeroboam the first, and in the Wickedness of their own Ways, GOD sends these Prophets among them to forewarn them of their Danger, and foretel their final Destruction, thereby to induce them to Repentance. He declares, that (l) by Education he was neither a prophet, nor a prophet's son, that is, neither a Tutor nor a Scholar in the Schools of the Prophets, but a Shepherd of Tekoa, and of a rude Breeding; yet like the Galilean Fishermen he becomes a glorious Scholar in the School of GOD, and a glorious Teacher in the Congregation of Israel. He began to prophesy (m) two Years before the Earthquake, and his first Prophecy is of it, That the LORD will roar from Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem, and the habitations of the shep-

*berds shall mourn, and the top of Carmel shall wither; that (n) the LORD should smite the winter house with the summer house, and (o) the lintel of the door of the idolatrous Temple should be smitten, and (p) the posts should shake, and there should be a Rent in the Temple of Bethel, when GOD came to visit them, as there was in the Temple of Jerusalem at the Death of CHRIST. He utters the Judgments of GOD against six Nations for the Crimes already mention'd, and declares those Calamities, that should soon follow them. In each Place he speaks of three or four transgressions, putting a set Number instead of a great many, and concludes them all under an irreverable Decree of Destruction. And the Sense of the whole runs thus. (q) The LORD will roar from Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem. And (r) thus saith the LORD, Because of the many Transgressions of these Nations (s) I will not revoke the voice, which hath been spoken; but the Judgments denounc'd shall certainly light upon each of them, of which the Earthquake shall be an undoubted Token. And at last he (t) speaks of the Restoring the Church of GOD among the Jews, and the happy Accession of the Gentiles into it, in such plain Terms, that when the Apostles (u) discours'd of Admitting them without Circumcision, we read of no other Text which they mention'd but this, *After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: That the residue of men might seek after the LORD, and all the Gentiles upon whom my name is call'd, saith the LORD, who doth all these things.

98. We are expressly told, (x) that two Years after the Prophecy of Amos began, an Earthquake happen'd, which was so terrible, that it brought them to their Wits Ends, and made them flee to save their Lives, but they knew not whither. We have no Account of this Earthquake either in the Books of Kings or Chronicles; but (y) the Prophet Zechariah speaks of it, as if it was a proverbial Speech in his Time, which was above two hundred and fifty Years after; Ye shall flee, as when ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah. This was attended with a great Noise, which made it more terrible, and (z) call'd by the Prophet Amos, The Roaring of the LORD, and the Uttering of his Voice; and some think, that (a) the Prophet Joel

(s) The Hebrew Words לא אשׁיבון, which we translate I will not turn away the punishment thereof, may more properly be render'd. I will not revoke the voice, Amos 1. 2. which hath been utter'd, Amos 1. 3, 6, 9, 11, 13, and Chap. 2. 1, 4, 6. (t) Amos 9. 11, 12. (u) Acts 15. 16, 17, 18. (x) Amos 1. 1. (y) Zech. 14. 5. also foretold it in these Words, The earth shall quake, and the heavens shall tremble. And the LORD shall utter his voice before his army: for he is strong, that executeth his word, for the day of the LORD is great and very terrible, and who can abide it? But it is more probable, that these Words speak rather of the Invasion of Judea by Senacherib King of Assyria, or of their Captivity by Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, and the Judgments which should happen at that Time. This Earthquake was as the Beginning of their Desolation, and the Shaking of the Earth was a Sign unto them, that their State and Kingdom should suddenly be shaken. It was both in the Days of Jeroboam the second, and in the Days of Uzziah, as (a) Amos particularly mentions; and therefore it was neither in the Year when Uzziah was smitten with Leprosy, nor in the Year when he died, as the Jews imagine, but long before.

99. After this there seem to follow four Judgments of leis Terror, but of longer Continuance in the four successive Years. The Prophet Joel describes them as such, that (b) the like had not happen'd in the Time of any of the oldest Men then alive, or in the Time of their Fathers. The first of these was the Palmer-worm, the second the Locust, the third was the Canker-worm, and the fourth the Caterpillar. Beside these, which might have been fulfill'd in a literal Sense, it is probable, that the Prophet Joel might also refer to the four Monarchies, the Assyrian, the Persian, the Grecian, and the Roman; the three first acted their Parts against both Israel and Judah in their Turns, and the last came, and utterly destroy'd them; and it must be own'd, that what was literally spoken of the one, might also be figuratively spoken of the other. Soon after this comes a fifth Plague (c) of Grasshoppers. The other four seem to have come in the Time of the Harvest, and these seem to come immediately after the last, as soon as the Harvest was over, in the beginning of the shooting up of the latter growth after the king's mowings. Thus when the Fields and Trees were laden with Corn and Fruit, these (d) laid the vines waste, and barked the fig-trees; these (e) caused the harvest of the field to perish, and the trees to wither, so that (f) there was not corn and wine sufficient for a meat-offering, and a drink-offering in the house of the LORD. Then did (g) the beasts groan, the herds of the cattle were perplexed, because they had no pasture, and the flocks of sheep were made desolate. The (b) land did mourn, and every one that dwelt therein did languish, with the beasts of the field and the fowls of heaven. The Prophet Joel seems to call the fourth Plague, or the Caterpillars, (i) the northern army, as if they were an Army of Men indeed; so that if we take his Words in that Sense, the Locusts and Caterpillars fled first into the north Part of the Land, from toward Syria and Hamath, and kept, as it were, in a Body devouring all before them, as they went along to the south Part; and there, as they were facing about to go off below the Point of the Dead Sea, they were famish'd in the Wilderness, so that like (k) the Frogs in Egypt they were offensive to the whole Country. Thus (l) they were driven into a land barren and desolate, with their faces toward the east sea, and their hinder parts toward the utmost or the Mediterranean sea; and their stink, and their ill savour came up into the Nostrils of the Inhabitants.

100. The heavy Plague of Grasshoppers, which follow'd the Caterpillars, being also (m) remov'd by the Prayer of Amos, the Sins of the People cried for another; and therefore the LORD (n) called to contend by fire, or by an extream Drought, with which were mix'd fearful Flash- es of Lightning, which fell from Heaven, as (o) it did before in Egypt; so that (p) the flames devoured all the pastures of the wilderness, and burnt up all the trees of the field. At this Time some Cities were (q) utterly consum'd, and the rest escap'd so narrowly, that they were as a firebrand pluckt out of the burning; and unless (r) there had been a few good People in the Land, who by their Prayers and Tears turn'd away the Wrath of GOD, the whole Kingdom had been left like Sodom and Gomorrab, as a standing Monument of GOD's Vengeance. At this Time (s) not only several of the Rivers of Waters were dried up, but also (t) the Lakes upon the River Jordan were devour'd by the Heat, and a Part of them were eaten up, and (u) many of the Fish were destroyed. This being also (x) diverted by the Prayer of Amos, and probably of other Prophets and good Men, GOD resolv'd (y) upon one Judgment more, even their Captivity in Babylon, and therefore he shews the Causes of it, and the Necessity thereof, and (z) bids them

(a) Amos 1. 1. (b) Joel 1. 1, 2, 3, 4. (c) Amos 7. 1, 2, 3. (d) Joel 1. 5, 6, 7. (e) Joel 1. 11, 12. (f) Joel 1. 8, 9, 10. (g) Joel 1. 18. (h) Hosea 4. 3. (i) Joel 2. 20. The Word Army is not in the Hebrew, and therefore instead of the northern Army, we are at Liberty to translate it the northern Insects. (k) Exod. 8. 14. (l) Joel 2. 20. (m) Amos 7. 1, 2, 3. (n) Amos 7. 4, 5, 6. (o) Exod. 9. 23, 24. (p) Joel 1. 18, 19. (q) Amos 4. 11. (r) Isai. 1. 9. (s) Joel 1. 20. (t) Amos 7. 4. (u) Hosea 4. 3. (x) Amos 7. 5, 6. prepare for it; and then he proceeds, as (a) with a Line, to measure them out for Destruction, and decrees, that the high Places of Israel should be desolate, and the Sanctuaries of Israel should be laid waste, and he would rise up against the House of Jeroboam with the Sword, when the Promise (b) to his Great Grandfather Jehu was fulfill'd, and which accordingly (c) happen'd in the next Generation. GOD therefore (d) resolving to punish no more at present for their provoking Impieties, takes another Method, and raises up a Race of Prophets continually and successively among them both in Israel and Judah; so that he did not leave himself without Witnesses, but he gave them Warning, Threatning, Instruction and Exhortation from Time to Time by those already mention'd, and those who follow after. This they did not only by Word of Mouth, but they also committed what they said to Writing, and to Posterity, that all Generations to come might see the Abomination and Ingratitude of that People, (e) written as it were with a pen of iron, and with a point of a diamond; and all others might read and fear, and do no more so wickedly.

101. The next in Order both of Time, and in the Old Testament, was Anno ante CHRIS- TUM 794. Obadiab. Many of the Jewish Writers affirm, that this was the Obadiab, who liv'd in the Time of Ahab, and who (f) hid an hundred prophets from the Rage of Jezebel, and fed them with bread and water. But nothing is more common with them, than to confound Names and Times. However in this they contradict themselves, when they truly affirm from (g) express Scripture, that The beginning of the word of the LORD was by Hosea. Or he was the first Prophet, who left any thing behind him in Writing. But there is another Objection against this Opinion. He is there only call'd A fearer of the LORD; but if he had been a Prophet, he would certainly have been call'd a Prophet, because it was a more honourable Title. Besides, it would have been impossible for Obadiab to have escap'd, when Jezebel sought to destroy all the LORD's Prophets, because he was always at Court, and under Jezebel's Eye. If this Obadiab had been the Courtier of Ahab, it had been very easy to tell in what Time and Place to lay his Prophecy: but as he was not, and there is no other of this Name mention'd in the Scripture, who can lay the least Claim to it; so we are still to seek, who this Prophet was, and in what Time he liv'd. There are therefore others (h), who place him as far back as the Babylonish Captivity, because it appears by his Prophecy, that (i) at that Time Judah and Jerusalem had been under a very great Calamity and Captivity, and Edom in particular had help'd to promote their Misery; Strangers had carry'd away Captive the Forces of Jerusalem, and Foreigners had enter'd into her Gates, and cast Lots upon her, and Edom in particular was one of them. This occasion'd all the Threatnings in this Prophecy to be directed against that Country. And it is certain, that at the Taking of Jerusalem by the Babylonians, the (k) Edomites were busy to help on the Ruin, and cried, Rase it, rase it, even to the foundations thereof. Now if this Prophecy refers to that Time, it should regularly be plac'd after that of the Prophet Jeremiah. But there are other Arguments to prove, that it was of a sooner Date: First, Because there is no Mention of any such Prophet at or after the Destruction of Jerusalem, when all the Men of the best Note and Eminency are very carefully reckon'd up. And secondly, Because he mentions only the Captivity of Judah and Israel in (l) Zarephath and Sepharad; not in France and Spain, as the Words are commonly interpreted, but in Sarepta, a City of Zidon, and some other Place thereabout, or in Edom, of so small a Note, that the Name is not once more mention'd in all the Scriptures; and it puzzles the best Geographers and Commentators to tell where it lay. Now if this Prophecy had been after the Babylonians had destroy'd Jerusalem, it had been more proper to have spoken of the Captivity of Israel in Assyria, and of Judah in Babylon, and not of a small Parcel of Captives in two very small Towns or Places. The only Way therefore to fix the Time of this Prophet, is to compare his Prophecy against Edom, with what the Prophet Amos saith on the same Subject; and then we must conclude, that this malicious Carriage of the Edomites against Judah and Jerusalem, was (m) either when it was sack'd by Shishak King of Egypt, which seems to be at too far a Distance, or rather (n) when the Philistines and Arabians invaded Judah, and (o) the Edomites revolted from them at the same Time. These Captives of Israel and Judah in Sarepta and Sepharad were the same, which (p) the Prophet Amos speaks of as taken by those of Tyre to be deliver'd up to Edom, as it hath been already mention'd in the Life of that Prophet. For this Reason the Prophet Joel (p) declares, that Edom should be a desolate wilderness; and Oba-

dial faith, (r) that the Captivity of Jerusalem, which is in Sepharad, shall possess the cities of the south: which is the same that the Prophet Amos (s) faith of Edom, that GOD would send a fire upon Teman, which should devour the palaces of Bozrah, since both the Names have the same Signification. However he (t) foretels on this Occasion the great Accession which should be to the Church of GOD in the Gospel Times, That upon mount Zion there should be a deliverance, and it should be holy; or to use the Words of the Prophet Isaiah, (u) In the last days the mountain of the LORD's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills, and all nations shall flow unto it. And (x) a very remarkable SAVIOUR, or CHRIST JESUS, shall come unto mount Zion, to judge the mount of Esau, or the Nations of the Gentiles, and the kingdom shall be the LORD's; or as the (y) Angel said to the Virgin Mary, He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the highest; and the LORD shall give unto him the throne of his father David. And he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end.

102. There is little more recorded of Jeroboam the second King of Israel, but that after he had deliver'd his Kingdom from those, who had them for some Time in Subjection, and so was (z) a Saviour to them, (a) he enlarg'd their Conquests on the north Side, and recover'd Hamath and Damascus from the Syrians, and annex'd it to the Kingdom of Israel. When David was King of the twelve Tribes, he (b) fought against the Syrians, and brought them into Subjection to him; and accordingly he put Garisons into Damascus and Hamath, and left them under (c) the Jurisdiction of his Son Solomon. When Solomon fell off to Idolatry, Rezon with an Army that he had got together, (d) took that Country from him, and reign'd in Damascus; and now Jeroboam possess'd himself of it again, and by his Valour made it as subject to Israel as it had been to Judah. And after he had (e) reign'd one and forty Years with great Success, he died, and was honourably bury'd with his Ancestors. But he left the Government in such a Confusion, from Causes unknown (either thro' Wars abroad, which Jeroboam might have provok'd against his House by (f) the Conquest of Hamath and Damascus, or from Wars at home, as appears by (g) the unfortunate End of his Successor) that after his Decease there was an Interregnum or Vacancy of the Throne for the Space of two and twenty Years. However, it is certain, that they were so long without a King, because (h) Jeroboam began to reign in the fifteenth Year of Amaziah King of Judah, and died in the fifteenth Year of King Uzziah, having reign'd fourteen Years contemporary with Amaziah, who reign'd (i) nine and twenty Years, and twelve Years, during which Time there was a Vacancy in the Throne of Judah, and fifteen Years in the Reign of Uzziah, which make up the one and forty Years of his Reign, and his Son (k) Zechariah began not to reign till the eight and thirtieth Year of the Reign of Uzziah King of Judah.

103. During the Time of this Interregnum in Israel, there were two extraordinary Prophets. The first of these was (l) Jonah the Son of Amittai. He had prophesied (m) before in the Life-time of Jeroboam; and now he is sent upon another Errand after his Death. The Time when he prophesied is guess'd at from the Words of his (n) Prophecy, Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown. If we take these Words in a literal Sense for only the Space of forty Days, as Jonah himself understood them, they were not accomplish'd. For (o) GOD saw their works, that they turned from their evil way; and GOD repented of the evil, that he had said he would do unto them, and he did it not. Jonah was in such Expectation of the Accomplishment of what he said, that (p) he made a Booth on the east Side of the City, and there he waited to see, in what Manner this Destruction should happen. And when he was disappointed of his Expectation, he (q) wish'd for Death rather than Life, lest he should go under the Disreputation, and perhaps the Punishment of being a false Prophet, until GOD (r) convinc'd him by a familiar Example, that it was but reasonable to spare so populous a City. If we take these Words to signify forty Years, one Day for a Year, and that the Overthrowing of Nineveh may not signify its final Destruction, but only the Overthrow of that (s) antient Empire of the Assyrians, whose Residence was at Nineveh, which had govern'd Asia for above thirteen hundred Years, and was destroy'd under their effeminate King Sardanapalus; then the Prophesy might be literally fulfill'd, and the Fulfilling of it will lead us to the Year, in which it was spoken. However, tho' the Prophecy of Jonah was not fulfill'd at the End of forty Days, as he expected, and at the End of forty Years there was only an Overturning of the Monarchy, and not of the City; yet his being miraculously preserv'd in the Whale's Belly procur'd him such a Credit, that it was believ'd, tho' the Time was uncertain. Thus when Tobit gave Instructions to his Son Tobias, he puts (s) this among the rest, And now, my son, depart out of Nineveh, because those things, which the prophet Jonas spake, shall surely come to pass. And it is said of Tobias, (t) that before he died, he heard of the destruction of Nineveh, which was taken by Nabuchodonosor and Abashuerus; and before his death he rejoiced over Nineveh. These two being (u) related by Marriage, enter'd into a Confederacy against the Assyrians; and joining their Forces together they besieg'd this City, and after having taken the Place, and slain Saracus the King, they utterly destroy'd that great and antient City: and from that Time Babylon became the sole Metropolis of the Assyrian Empire, so that afterward their Kings always resided there. For altho there was another City which was erected out of its Ruins, and for a long Time bore the same Name, and is now call'd Mansul; yet it never attain'd to the Grandeur and Glory of the former. This City is situated on the west Side of the Tigris, which was a Part of the Suburbs of old Nineveh; but the Town it self stood on the east Side, where some of its Ruins of vast Extent are to be seen at this Day. And thus the Prophecies not only of (x) Jonah, but also of (y) Nahum, and (z) Zephaniah against it were fulfill'd. Thus when Hosea, Joel and Amos had foretold the Rejection and Ruin both of Israel and Judah, and when Obadiab had foretold the Desolation of Esau the next Kinsman, and when the Seed of Jacob and Esau was decreed to be cast off, it was a seasonable Time to send Jonah to preach to the Gentiles. At first he declines this Message, and (a) resolves to flee out of the Land of Israel, thinking that none were call'd to be Prophets but in that Country, and so he should escape from being sent any more. For this Purpose he resolves to go to Tarsus a City in Cilicia, where the great Apostle of the Gentiles was (b) afterward born, and which at this Time was under the Dominion of Nineveh it self. The Cause of his Fleeing thither is suppos'd to be his Knowing, that the Coming in of the Gentiles would be the Casting off of the Jews; and he was unwilling to be the Instrument and Promoter of it. However, after he was cast into the Sea to appease the Wrath of GOD shewn by a violent Storm, he comes to Shore in the Belly of a Whale. Thus he was a Type of the Death of CHRIST, which could only appease the Wrath of GOD conceiv'd against the Sins of the whole World, and also (c) of his Burial and Resurrection. After this he was (d) sent again upon the same Message, which he dar'd not now to refuse; and the Repentance of (e) the Ninevites upon his Preaching, made the Obstinacy of the Jews more inexcusable.

104. Two Years after the Preaching of Jonah to the Ninevites, the Prophet Isaiab is commanded to preach unto the Jews. He begins his Prophecy like Hosea and Amos, In the days of Uzziab, Jotham, Abaz and Hezekiah kings of Judah; but he doth not add, And in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash king of Israel, because Jeroboam was now dead, and there was no King of Israel at this Time. The Reason why it is plac'd here is a Prophecy of his, that (f) within threescore and five Years Ephraim shall be broken, that it be not a people. The Difficulty of this Text is to know to what it refers; for if we know where it ends, we certainly know when it began. Now the ten Tribes being often comprehended under the Name of Ephraim, this Text hath by many been suppos'd to refer to the Captivity of them (g) by Shalmanazer King of Assyria, in the ninth Year of Hoshea's and the sixth Year of Hezekiah's Reign, when it seems to have been literally fulfill'd. And if so, then it cannot be dated from the Time when Isaiab utter'd this Prophecy in the Time of Abaz; since from the first Year of Abaz, to the Breaking of Ephraim, was but twenty Years. Neither can it be dated from the Beginning of Amos's Prophecy; for he began in Jeroboam's Time, and from the last Year of Jeroboam's Reign, to the Breaking of Ephraim, was above seventy Years. And therefore it must be counted from the Time, when Isaiab himself began to prophesy, which must accordingly be in the three and twentieth Year of Uzziab's Reign. He began to prophesy then, and had so continu'd all the Reign of Jotham; and it was now the Reign of Abaz, and GOD fixeth this his Term for Ephraim's Kingdom. So that if we count from the Beginning of this his Prophecy sixty five Years forward, it brings us to the Time when the ten Tribes were carry'd away Captives. Now the Reasons of Computing from thence rather than from any other Time, may be two. First, Because this was near the middle Time of the Revolt of the ten Tribes to the Destruction of the Temple, which contain'd the Space of three hundred and ninety Years, as they are (b) reckon'd up by the Prophet Ezekiel; and the HOLY GHOST usually divides so remarkable an Epocha into two equal Parts. Thus from the Promise given to Abraham to (i) the Fulfilling it, were four hundred and thirty Years; and of these there were two hundred and fifteen Years to the Going down of Jacob into Egypt, and as many to their Deliverance thence. And in this Epocha from Israel's Sin to Israel's Punishment, which consisted of three hundred and ninety Years, there were an hundred ninety five Years to the first Admonition of this great Prophet, and as many more to their grand Captivity. And Secondly, This will carry a near Resemblance between the two great Prophets Isaiah and Jeremiah. For as (k) the Beginning of his Prophecy was a Sign to the House of Judah, that at (l) the End of forty Years from thence, Jerusalem should be destroy'd; so the Beginning of Isaiah's Prophecy was a Sign to the ten Tribes, that (m) at the End of sixty five Years their Captivity should happen; and (n) if they did not believe what he had said in the whole Course of his Ministry (which they did not) then they should not be established. There is another Interpretation given of this Text by (o) learned Men, which I shall not dispute; but if it is admitted, we have no Way to fix the Time, when Isaiah began to prophesy, but only in general, that it was in the seven and thirty Year's Space between the Death of Jeroboam King of Israel, and the Death of Uzziah King of Judah.

105. However if this Interpretation is admitted, and (p) the Arabick Historian can be depended upon, we may easily compute the Time of this Prophet. He tells us, that he was an hundred and twenty Years old when he died, and he was a Prophet eighty five Years. According to this Account, his last Prophecy was in the twenty seventh Year of Hezekiah King of Judah, or two Years before his Death: And as he is suppos'd to be put to Death in (q) the first Year of Manasseh's Reign, so he had no Revelations from GOD for three Years before; he was therefore six Years younger than King Uzziah, and born two Years after the Death of his Father and Predecessor Amaziah King of Judah. The Story of his Death is, (r) that Manasseh made an Idol, which had four Faces, and order'd it to be worshipp'd. And when Isaiah endeavour'd to dissuade him from such an Idolatry, he order'd him to be tied between two Beams, and so to be sawn asunder. This was an old Tradition among both (s) Jews and (t) Arabians; and St. Paul in (u) his Epistle to the Hebrews, reckoning that of being sawn asunder among the Torments undergone by the Prophets and Martyrs of foregoing Times, he is (x) generally thought to have referr'd hereto, especially because we know of no other Instance, to which he can refer. But tho' he prophesied so long in the Days of Uzziah; yet there are only the five first Chapters recorded, of all that he saw or spoke until the last Year of his Reign.

106. Some time after this the Olympick Games were settled in Greece, to be kept every four Years. The Use of them at that Time was to train up the Youth in warlike and active Exercises, that if Occasion requir'd, they might be more capable to do their Country Service in the Field, and be advanc'd to such Stations without Partiality, as they were thought to be most capable of. But the Use of them since hath been to fix a Method of the History of the Greeks, who continu'd afterward to reckon by the Olympiads; so that when it was known in what particular Year of any particular Olympiad any remarkable Transaction happen'd, it was easy to reduce it to the Æras kept in any other Part of the World. Varro the most learned Person among the Romans both for History and Antiquity, reckon'd (y) three sorts of Time: The first from the Beginning of Mankind to the first Flood, which he call'd uncertain, because no Account could be given of it from any Heathen Writer. The other from the first Flood to the first Olympiad, which he call'd fabulous, because many strange Stories were reported to have been done by the Gods in those Times, and they were hardly digested into any Method or Order. The last was from the first Olympiad till his Time, which he call'd historical, because from thence all Transactions were laid in their proper Places. Thus (z) Justin Martyr saith, That nothing of History was written exactly by the Greeks before the Olympiads; and we are told the same in (a) Eusebius, that until that Time every thing was confus'd, and no one Part could be made to agree with the other. These Games and Exercises were first instituted about four hundred and forty Years before by Hercules, not the Son of Jupiter and Alcmena so much celebrated by the Greek and Latin Poets, but one of the Priests of Cybele call'd Idæi Dactyli and Corybantes, who first came to Greece from Ida a Mountain in Phrygia, and brought in many superstitious Rites into that Country. He is said to have measur'd the Length of the Race by his own Foot, by which Pythagoras found out the Stature and proportionable Strength of his Body. They took their Name not from the Mountain of Olympus, but from the City Olympia since call'd Pisa, near to Elis a City of Peloponnesus, where they were celebrated in the adjacent Plains near the River Alpheus. Here was also the Temple of Jupiter, which had vast Treasures belonging to it, by Reason of the Oracles, which were given there, and these Games which were celebrated near it in Honour of this Pagan Deity. And here was (b) also his Statue made by Phidias, which was reckon'd to be one of the Wonders of the World, and from whence he was call'd Jupiter Olympius. After the Death of Hercules these Games were discontinued for many Years, till Iphitus establish'd them by Advice from the Oracle of Apollo, Lycurgus their Lawgiver being then living. This happen'd three and twenty Years before the Building of Rome according to the Varronian Account, and four and twenty Years before it according to the Capitolian Account, and nine and twenty Years before the grand Æra of Nabonassar, from whence the learned Dr. Prideaux began his famous History. Being thus settl'd they were continu'd by the Grecians till the Time of Constantine the Great, who upon his Professing himself a Christian slighted first the Ludi seculares, and afterward all the other Games, as Monuments of Pagan Superstition, so that they were less and less in Esteem, and either in the Time of Theodosius the Great, or before, they were utterly unfrequented, and so they came to nothing.

107. These Games were formerly perform'd at the End of every four Years, where the Youth of Greece contended for the Mastery in five Sorts of Exercises, which lasted for five Days, one of them for each Day, viz. The Cæstus or Whorlebat, Running either on Foot, on Horseback, or in Chariots; The Quoit, Leaping, and Wrestling. Hither also came Orators, Poets and Musicians, and all who thought themselves excellent in any laudable Quality, to make a Trial of their Skill; and the very Criers, who proclaim'd the Victories, contended which of them should get the Honour of having the most audible Voice. Neither were mean Persons only concern'd, but even Kings themselves were Competitors for the Victory: of which there is this Instance, that Hiero King of Syracuse came thither to try his Fortune, and won one of the Horse-Races; which caus'd Pindar, the most celebrated Poet, to dedicate his first Olympick to him on that Occasion. The Inhabitants of Elis were the Presidents of those Games, whose impartial Proceeding in giving Sentence according to Merit hath been highly commended. The Conqueror was call'd Olympionices. The Reward, which he had, was only a Garland of Palm or Olive, with many external Tokens of Respect and Esteem, as to be attended by the People with loud Acclamations, whilst he rode into the City in a Coach, and the Wall was broken down, to give him a full Entrance at the Breach. He was also sure of Employing the best Poets on this Occasion, who took care to rank him among the Gods, and sometimes the grave Historians thought it worthy of their Observation; so that to be crown'd there was reckon'd as glorious as to triumph at Rome. The first who came off Conqueror was Coræbus an Inhabitant of Elis; but the first who was crown'd, was Diocles of Messena, the seventh Victor in Order, after the Oracle of Apollo was consulted for that Purpose. Horace (c) speaking of these Victors, compares them to the Gods. And when Diagoras had seen three of his Sons crown'd for their Victories in those Games, one ran to him with this Congratulation, Die, Diagoras, for thou shalt not ascend into Heaven; as if there could be no greater Happiness on Earth, than what had already befall'n him. There were indeed four Games in Greece, the Olympian, the Pythian, the Nemean, and the Isthmian; but these were reckon'd to excel all the rest; insomuch that (d) Pindar is positive, That to say, there was any other Contest so noble as the Olympick, is the same thing, as to pretend, that there was some other Luminary in Heaven, and in the Day Time, of equal Glory with the Sun. The Athenians reckon'd their Years by Lunar Months. The first Month was call'd Hecatombaion, and was that Month, whose full Moon, or fifteenth Day happen'd immediately after the Sun's Entrance into Cancer, or the Summer Solstice. From the eleventh to the fifteenth Day inclusively these Games continu'd; and on the sixteenth Day they determin'd, who were the Conquerors in the respective Exercises. So that strictly speaking, every Olympick Year belongs to two Julian Years; for the first six Months from July to January belong to the first, and the other six Months from January to July belong to the second; tho' most Authors speak of the Olympiads, as if they began on the first Day of January, and reckon that to be the Year of the said Olympiad, which began in the respective Julian Year. So that as the Greeks did afterward count by the Olympiads, the Assyrians by the Æra of Nabonassar, the Romans from the Building of Rome, they may easily be reduc'd to each other, or to any other succeeding Æra, as in the following Table.

(b) This Statue is describ'd by Pausanias in this Manner: It is made sitting on a Throne of Gold and Ivory, with a Crown on his Head, which seems to be made of Olive-Branches. In his right Hand he holds an Image of Victory made also of Ivory, which hath a Crown upon its head Dress of massy Gold; and in his left Hand he hath a Scepter made of a Mixture of all Metals together, with an Eagle on the Top of it. The Shoes and Stockings of Jupiter are all of Gold, and the rest of the Drapery is of the same, and adorn'd with the Figures of Animals, and a great many Flower-de-luces. The Throne it self is embellish'd with Ivory, Ebony, Gold, precious Stones, and a Multitude of emboss'd Figures; and at the four Feet or Pedestals of the Throne are four Victories, and two others at the two Feet of the Statue. At the two Feet on the fore Side of the Throne on the one Side are the Figures of Sphinxes, who are carrying off some Theban Youths; and on the other Side are represented the Figures of the Children of Niobe, whom Apollo and Diana shot to Death with their Arrows. Between the Feet of this Throne is represented Theseus, and the rest of the Heroes who accompany'd Hercules to the War against the Amazons, beside many Athletæ. All the Place about the Throne is adorn'd with Pictures representing Hercules's Labours, with many other of the most famous Historical Subjects. On the upper Part of the Throne Phidias on one Side plac'd the Graces, and on the other Side the Hours, because both these were the Daughters of Jupiter, according to the Poets. On the Footstool of the Statue are plac'd golden Lions, and a Representation of the Combat of Theseus against the Amazons. On the Basis are several golden Figures, viz. of the Sun going into his Chariot, of Jupiter and Juno, of the Graces, Mercury, Vesta, and Venus, who hath Cupid standing by her. Beside these there are also those of Apollo, Diana, Minerva, Hercules, Amphitrite, Neptune and the Moon, who is represented sitting upon a Horse. This is the Substance of what Pausanias saith of this famous Statue. But notwithstanding that this Workmanship was the Wonder of all the Antients, and the Curiosity of seeing it might increase the Number of those who came to the Olympick Games; yet Strabo finds great Fault with it for Want of a due Proportion, because it was of such a prodigious Bigness, that if it had stood upright, it must have made a Hole in the Roof of the Temple. A small Picture hereof may be seen in the Book call'd The Pantheon; and an Image of Jupiter of about four Inches high taken from the Original, like Demetrius's Silver Shrines, or little Pictures of Diana's Temple, Acts 19. 24. was lately found in Wiltshire, with the rest of the Roman Penates.

108. And thus the first Year of CHRIST's Birth according to the Vulgar Account, happen'd to be (e) in the first Year of the 195th Olympiad, in the (f) 754th Year of the Building of Rome according to the Varronian Account, in the (g) 753d Year according to the Capitoline Account, and in the (h) 747th Year of the Æra of Nabonassar.

109. During this Time the Want of a King in Israel could not but occasion the utmost Confusion, insomuch that a Party of Men being weary of it, at last place Zechariah the Son of Jeroboam upon the Throne. He was a wicked King, and follow'd the (i) Steps of his Ancestors, but he did not live long to enjoy the Government. For as one Party was for him, so another was against him, which was (k) headed by Shallum

the Son of Jabeesh. It is uncertain who he was, or what was the Pretence of his Conspiracy; but he carried it on privately and subtilly, until he was strong enough to compass his Ends, and then making an open Assault upon the King's Person, he kill'd him, and so seiz'd upon the Throne. Thus notwithstanding their perpetual Provocations, GOD faithfully kept his Promise, which he had made to Jehu, that (l) his Sons of the fourth Generation, Jehoahaz, Jehoash, Jeroboam and Zechariah should sit upon the Throne of Israel. But now this Shallum put an End to this Family, and so fulfill'd (m) the Prophecy of Hosea, Yet a little while, and I will avenge the blood of Jezreel upon the house of Jehu, and will cause to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel. Thus also (n) the Prophecy of Amos was fulfill'd, The sanctuaries of Israel shall be laid waste, and I will rise up against the house of Jeroboam with the sword.

110. But it was not long, before Shallum was serv'd, as he had serv'd his Predecessor. The Kingdom was then infested with civil Wars, and Menabem (o) was the General of all the Forces of King Zechariah, and employ'd to reduce the Kingdom to his Obedience, and was besieging Tirzah for this Purpose. Tirzah was a large City and of great Consequence, having once been the Metropolis of the Kingdom. Menabem hearing what Shallum had done, raises the Siege of Tirzah, and marches directly to Samaria, where he beats the Army of Shallum, puts him to the Sword, and makes himself King by his own Authority. Thus Shallum reign'd but a Month, and what he got by Violence, was lost in the same Manner. After this Victory Menabem marches again to the Siege of Tirzah, not as their General but as their King. The Inhabitants, knowing he had no Title to the Kingdom, refus'd to open their Gates to him; so that he took it by Force and spoil'd it, and all the Country round about till he came to Tiphshab. Being flush'd with Success, and these Inhabitants acting like the other, he took this Town also in the same Manner, but used them more cruelly. For he put all to the Sword, without sparing Man, Woman or Child, to the highest Degree of Cruelty (as Josephus saith) that ever was heard of; for he exercis'd that merciless Rigor and Inhumanity toward his own Country men, which would have been unpardonable toward the worst of Barbarians themselves. By these Methods he thought to terrify the whole Kingdom, that none might dare to withstand him. He reign'd ten Years over Israel, but (p) his Reign was not much easier afterward, than it was at first; so that tho' his Name signifies A Comforter, yet his Actions shew him to be the worst of Tyrants.

111. The Assyrian Monarchy had now been quiet for above an hundred and fifty Years from the Time that (q) Zerab the Cushite had been their General, in the Reign of Asa King of Judah; but now they begin to stir. For Pul their Emperor, resolving to take the Advantage of these Distractions, marches with his Army, and invades the Kingdom of Israel (r) on the other Side of Jordan, which lay nearest to Babylon. Here he makes a terrible Havock of the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half Tribe of Manasseh, and was (s) the first that began the Transportation of them out of their own Country. He had now reign'd one and forty Years, and was the Father of Sardanapalus, at whose Death the Monarchy was lost from the Family, and divided into two Parts, the Assyrian and the Babylonian. He was call'd Sardanapalus or Sardan-Pul with his Father's Name annex'd to his own, as Merodach King of Babylon was (t) call'd Merodach-Baladan, because he was the Son of Baladan. This Pul is call'd Acracarnes by Julius Africanus, Ocraxapes by Eusebius, Cyndaraxes by Stephanus, Anacyndaraxes by Strabo, Arrianus and Suidas, and Aniabaxares by others. In the twenty second Year of his Reign the Prophet Jonah (u) preach'd against Nineveh, and therefore

(e) From the Julian Period for the Year of CHRIST 1, or 4714, subtract the Julian Period for the Year preceding the first Olympiad, or 3937, the Remainder is 777. This being divided by 4, the Quotient is 194, and the Remainder 1; which shews, that 194 Olympiads had been compleatly past, and this was the first Year of the 195th: Beverigii Institutiones Chronologicae, lib. 2. cap. 14. he was the King, who *proclaimed a fast, arose from his throne, laid his Robe from him, cover'd himself with sackcloth, sate in ashes, and publish'd this Decree by the Advice of his Nobles, Let neither man nor beast, herd nor flock taste any thing, let them not feed, nor drink water. But let man and beast be covered with sackcloth, and cry mightily unto GOD; yea, let them turn every one from his evil way, and from the violence that is in their hands. And accordingly GOD saw their works, and GOD repented of the evil, that he said he would do unto them; and he did it not; and seems in particular to bless this King for his Piety with a Course of Prosperity, as long as he liv'd. As these Kings sometimes resided at Babylon, and sometimes at Nineveh, so it is probable, that he, to avoid GOD's Judgments, remov'd from Nineveh to Babylon, where he staid the remaining Part of his Reign; which made him lie more conveniently to attack the Israelites on the other Side of Jordan. Thus did the men of Nineveh rise up in judgment against the men of that generation*

A Pagan Nation that repented, was rais'd up by GOD to take Vengeance on Israel, which continu'd impenitent; and a merciful Emperor was the Instrument to humble a cruel Tyrant. Menahem the King of Israel was in a great straight what to do at this Juncture. He knew, that if he march'd against the Assyrians with his whole Army, he was so hated for his Cruelty, that his own Subjects would revolt from him; and if he did not, the Assyrian Army would overrun the Country. In this Difficulty he sends Ambassadors to the King of Assyria to treat with him not only of a Peace, but to purchase his Friendship, so as to establish his own Authority in his Kingdom. The Terms agreed upon were, that the King of Assyria should keep all the Spoil and Captives, that he had got, for his own Use, and Menahem should give a thousand Talents, to be divided (x) equally among all the Soldiers of the Assyrian Army. As therefore they receiv'd fifty Shekels for each Man, and (y) three thousand Shekels make a Talent, so it is (z) observable from thence, that the Assyrian Army consisted of three score thousand Men. Menahem now thinking it high Time to ingratiate himself with the People, eases the common Sort of the Tax, and (a) lays it upon the Rich, according to the Proportion of their Wealth; which being rais'd, he gives it to the King of Assyria, who returns back to Babylon flush'd with all the Effects of a Victory, without striking a Stroke. Beside this, Menahem had a farther End in giving so much Money to the King of Assyria, which was (b) to confirm the kingdom in his hand, or to enter into a League offensive and defensive with him against his own rebellious Subjects; which was the visible Reason of his Continuing so long in the Possession of the Throne. Hosea (c) upbraids them for this Action in these Words, When Ephraim saw sickness, and Judah saw his wound, then went Ephraim to the Assyrian, and sent to the King that should plead, or fight for him; yet could he not heal you, nor cure you of your wound. This he frequently (d) taxes them with, and (e) frequently threatens them for the same, that therefore the (f) Assyrian should be their king, and (g) they should eat unclean things in the land of Assyria; which was all fulfill'd, when (h) Shalmaneser carried them away Captives into that Land.

112. The Year after this, Pul the King of Assyria dies, in a good old Age, bless'd with Prosperity, and leaving his Empire in a wealthy and flourishing Condition to his Son Sardan-Pul or Sardanapalus, who govern'd it for twenty Years. In the Beginning of his Reign he seems to be an active Prince; for it is said, that (i) he built Anchialus and Tarsus in one Day, or rather repair'd the Ruins of both at the same Time. These were two Towns in Cilicia; and the first of these in Gratitude for his Kindness erected a Stately Tomb, and set up his Statue to preserve his Memory, when it might have given an Offence to their new Governors. After this we do not find, that he did any thing remarkable; but thinking that a constant Course of Prosperity was entail'd upon him, he gave himself to all Manner of Effeminacy and Idleness, which was the Ruin of him and his Kingdom, as will be mention'd in its proper Place.

113. After Menahem had reign'd ten Years in Israel, he died, leaving (k) his Son Pekahiah to succeed him. The Kingdom of Israel was at this Time involv'd in such great Troubles and Confusions, that it was a Year before Pekahiah his Son could succeed him. This is evident, because (l) Menahem began to reign over Israel in the nine and thirtieth Year of Azariah or Uzziah King of Judah, and reign'd ten Years; so that died in the nine and fortieth Year of that King's Reign, and yet it was (m) the fiftieth Year of the same King, before Pekahiah began to reign over Israel in Samaria. What was the Cause of this Interregnum for a Year is not well known. The most probable is the Interest of his Successor, who might raise a Party to keep him out of the Throne; which soon after grew so strong as to take away his Life. However, all his Troubles did not make him better; for he was the wicked Son of a wicked Father, and he only surviv'd him for two Years; so that his Reign was short, and he perish'd by such a Conspiracy as his Father had made against Shallum. Josephus saith, that (n) he was cut to Pieces with several of his Friends about him at a publick Feast, by the treasonable Practice of Pekab the Son of Remaliah, one of his principal Officers, who seiz'd upon the Government; and reign'd about twenty Years; and at last he left it a difficult Question to determine, Whether he was more remarkable for his Impiety toward GOD, or for his Injustice toward Man. So that Josephus seems to be of the Opinion, that Argob and Arieh, and the fifty Gileadites mention'd to be with them, were Courtiers and Guards about the King, and were all slain at that Time. Others (o) think, that the King was a Gadite, and that Pekab the Son of Remaliah was a Gileadite; so that these two great Men assisted him in the Conspiracy, and the Gileadites join'd with them in the Execution of it.

114. The Victories and long Prosperity of Uzziah King of Judah make him proud. The (p) Text saith, that his Heart was lifted up to his Destruction, or the Loss of all his Authority; so that he could act no longer as King, but was forc'd to place his Son Jotham to reign in his Stead. In his Pride he resolves to take upon him not only the Office of a King, but also the Office of a Priest, and so he lost both. For this Purpose he goes into the Temple of the LORD to burn Incense upon the Altar, which was before the Holy of Holies. It is hard to give an Account, what should tempt him to this Folly. Some think, that he had a vain Ambition to imitate the heathen Princes, who in many Places executed the Priests Office. Others think, that he was puff'd up with Pride, because he had not only a Son Jotham, but a Grandson also. But the most probable Reason might be, (q) because his Wife was Jerushab the Daughter of Zadok the High Priest; and therefore as he was related to the Family, he might think, that he had also a Right to the Office. Upon this his Nephew Azariah takes fourscore Men with him, who had a Zeal for the Honour of GOD, and went into the Temple with a full Resolution to prevent it. This they attempt by all the Intreaties and Arguments, that they were Masters of. They represent to him, that he invaded the Office of the Priests, who were consecrated to this Service, but he was not, and therefore he ought not to meddle with it; that he should get no Honour, but lose very much, by Aspiring to this Dignity, which GOD had plac'd in other Hands; and that he had gone too far already, and offended the divine Majesty by Going into the Holy Place, and therefore they beseech him to proceed no farther, and probably surrounded the Altar, so that he could not come to it without offering Violence to them. All this had no Effect upon King Uzziah, but rather put him into a greater Passion, because he was hinder'd in what he intended; and whilst he press'd forward for such a rash Purpose, the Leprosy appear'd in his Forehead, where it could not be conceal'd, but was evident to all that endeavour'd to keep him from the Altar. This makes them more intent to hinder him; and as soon as he was sensible of it, he himself hastened to be gone, so that there needed no more Arguments for this Purpose; and he could not but acknowledge the Justice of GOD on his Presumption, and was afraid of a worse Punishment, if he had stay'd there any longer. Now in this Case it was a Part of the Law of Moses, that every (r) Leper was an unclean Person, and every one that (s) touch'd him, or any of his Clothes was unclean; and therefore (t) whilst they were in the Wilderness, all such Persons were excluded out of the Camp, and (u) when they were in the Land of Canaan they were also excluded from the wall'd Cities. For this Reason he was (x) remov'd to a private Country House, where he was shut up from all Conversation of Men, and so continu'd as long as he liv'd, whilst his Son Jotham not only manag'd all the Affairs of his Family, but he also govern'd the People as a King during the Illness of his Father.

115. It is certain that the Smiting of Uzziah with the Leprosy happen'd in the last Year of his Reign and not before, and it will evidently appear so to be by Solving two Difficulties in Chronology, which arise from the Text, (y) where it is said, that Hoshea slew Pekab in the twentieth year of Jotham's Reign. The first Question is, How that can be said to be done in Jotham's twentieth Year, when it is certain, (z) that he reign'd but sixteen Years in all? In answer to this we must consider, That we are there told, how (a) Pekah loseth all Gilead and Galilee before he died, and that he was slain by the Sword, so that Revenge is now taking upon Pekah for all his Cruelty against Judah. Now this Cruelty began in Jotham's Time, and therefore it is reckon'd from Jotham's Reign. Besides, this Revenge is not taken for the Sake of Ahaz, who provok'd GOD to send more Judgments, but for the Piety of Jotham, who prevail'd with GOD to think upon Mercy. In the Slaughter of Pekah GOD avengeth (b) the Slaughter and Misery that he had caus'd in Judah; for he had slain an hundred and twenty thousand of them in one Day. Now Ahaz had caus'd this Wrath upon the People by Seducing them to Idolatry; and therefore when GOD avengeth this Injury of his People upon Pekah, the Time of it is computed not from Ahaz, who had caus'd the Mischiefe, and was then alive, but from Jotham, who was holy and upright, tho' then in the Grave. The other Difficulty is, that if Pekah began to reign in the two and fiftieth or last (c) Year of Uzziah, and if Jotham began to reign in the second (d) Year of Pekah, then the twentieth Year of Pekah, when Hoshea slew him, was but the nineteenth of Jotham and not the twentieth. In Answer to this we must observe, that the Reign of Jotham hath a double Date, either from the Death of his Father Uzziah, or from his being smitten with Leprosy. If we reckon from the Death of his Father, when he reign'd in his own Right, then his twentieth Year was but the nineteenth Year of Pekah; but if we reckon it from the Time, that his Father was smitten with Leprosy, then the twentieth Year of the one will be the twentieth Year of the other, and so they began to reign together in the (e) fifty second or last Year of his Father Uzziah, and in his Father's Right. And here (f) the holy Text doth clearly place it, The LORD smote the king with leprosy, so that he was a leper unto the day of his death, and Jotham the kings son was over the house judging the people of the land.

116. In this last (g) Year of King Uzziah's Reign, the Prophet Isaiah sees the Glory of the LORD in the Temple, when it was fill'd with Smoke, as a Sign that it should be destroy'd; and the Angels call'd Seraphims or Burning Creatures do proclaim the Trinity and say, Holy, Holy, Holy is the LORD of hosts, the whole earth is full of his glory. Upon this he is sent with a Commission to declare the Obstinacy of the Jews, and their utter Desolation as the Effect thereof. The Words are repeated in (h) each of the Evangelists, in the Acts of the Apostles, and by St. Paul in the Epistle to the Romans: Go, and tell this people, Hear ye indeed, but understand not; and see ye indeed, but perceive not. Make the heart of this people fat, and make their ears heavy, and shut their eyes; lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and convert, and be healed. Upon this the Prophet asks, How long shall this Obstinacy continue? And the Answer is, Until the cities be wasted without inhabitant, and the houses without man, and the land be utterly desolate, and the LORD shall have removed men far away, and (i) the forsaken Women or Widows are multiplied in the land. This many interpret of the Babylonish Captivity. But since the Obstinacy of the Jews is so often blam'd in the New Testament, in the Words of the Prophet before mention'd, we may rather refer the Accomplishment of this Threatning to the final Destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans. However the Prophet tells us, that the Jews shall be call'd again, they shall return unto the LORD, and shall be holy to him, like the Tenth or Tythes in the Law, which were eaten by the Priests, and the holy seed shall be (k) the Prop or Support thereof. Some reckon, that the holy seed signified many pious and good Men, for whose Sake GOD would have Mercy on the Nation. But as St. John (l) quotes the Verse before mention'd, and adds, These things said Esaias, when he saw the glory of CHRIST, and spake of him; so we may conclude, that the Glory which he saw of him, was what he mentions in the first Part of the Chapter, or the Glory of JEHOVAH, the eternal and infinite GOD: And that he spoke of him in this latter Part, that (m) the holy seed, which should be born of the Virgin Mary, and be call'd the SON of GOD, this Oak or (n) Branch, should in due Time be the Support of this his People, and (o) they should stay themselves upon this GOD of Israel, whose Name is The LORD of hosts.

117. In this last Year of the (p) Reign of Uzziah, his Son Jotham began to reign. His Mother was the Daughter of Zadok the High Priest; and as he had the best of Education, so he was the best of Kings. He is (q) said to do that which is right in the sight of the LORD, according to all that his father Uzziah did. His Father Uzziah had but one Fault recorded, which was his Presuming to offer Incense in the Temple, thinking he might have a Right to it, as marrying the Daughter of the High Priest. But his Son Jotham took Warning by his Father's Miscarriage, and (r) tho' he was the Grandson of this High Priest, and in Reality of his Blood; yet (s) he wav'd this Privilege, and did not once presume to enter into the Temple for this Purpose; so that there is not the least Blemish recorded throughout his whole Reign, as there is of the best Kings of Judah. His People were wicked, which was a great Hindrance to his good Designs. For (t) the high places were not removed, where the People continu'd to sacrifice and burn incense to the LORD, tho' contrary to his Law, who had declar'd that all this Service should only be perform'd at Jerusalem. It is probable, that he intended to reform this Abuse, but it was not in his Power; and the Doing of it was reserv'd for his Grandson Hezekiah. For this Purpose he sets himself to the Repairing of the Temple, particularly the (u) high gate of the house of the LORD, which (x) was between the Temple and the Palace, and the Way by which he himself must come up to worship. This was built at first by Solomon, but many think, that he added a very glorious and magnificent Structure to it. It is probable, that this was done in the fifth Year of his Reign, and the Solving a Difficulty concerning the Age of Hezekiah may lead us to this Conjecture. The Difficulty is this: His Son Abaz was (y) twenty years old, when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen Years, so that he died, when he was six and thirty Years old; and Hezekiah his son (z) reigned in his stead, who was five and twenty years old when he began to reign, and therefore could be but eleven Years younger than his Father. To solve this Difficulty the famous Bochart tells us, (a) That tho' such Instances are unusual, yet they sometimes happen, and of these he mentions several. Others take other Methods, of which (b) Bishop Patrick hath given us a particular Account, and at last leaves it very doubtful. However all these suppose, that Hezekiah did not begin to reign till the Death of Abaz; and therefore the Difficulty is much increas'd, when we consider, that he reign'd two Years before the Death of his Father. For (c) he began to reign in the third Year of Hoshea the Son of Elah; and (d) as he began in the twelfth Year of Abaz, so it is evident, that Hezekiah began in his fourteenth Year, and so reign'd two or three Years with his Father Abaz; and according to this Account there can be but nine Years Distance between the Age of the one and the other. To solve this Difficulty it is observable, that the (e) Words both in Kings and Chronicles may be thus translated, Hezekiah was the son of the five and twentieth year, when he began to reign; and so it may not refer to the Age of his Life, but to some other remarkable Transaction, which may be guess'd at from the Context. We have already had an instance of this Nature in Abaziah King of Judah, which I cannot but repeat on this Occasion. He is said to be (f) two and forty years old, when he began to reign. His Father Joash (g) was thirty and two years old, when he began to reign, and he reigned eight years; so that he was forty Years old when he died, and as soon as he was dead the Inhabitants of Jerusalem set up his Son Abaziah on the Throne, who according to this Account was two Years older than his Father. It is therefore the Meaning of this Text, that Abaziah was the Son of the two and fortieth Year when he began to reign, not from the Date of his Life, but from the Setting up the Kingdom of Israel in the House of Omri, whose Works he follow'd, and to whom he was related, as hath been already mention'd. Thus Hezekiah was (h) the Son of the five and twentieth year, not from his Birth, but from some other Epocha, which we may gather from (i) the following History. His first Action in the first year of his reign and the first month, was his opening the doors of the house of the LORD, and repairing them, and bringing in the Levites to attend on the Service of the Temple, of which we have a large Account in two whole Chapters. This was done at that Time, and therefore the five and twenty Years refer us to the Time, when it was first intended by his Grandfather Jotham, and he began to repair and beautify the Temple for this Purpose, which accordingly happen'd in the fifth Year of his Reign.

118. As this happen'd in Asia, so it is remarkable, that the Building of Rome in Europe, from whence the famous Æra throughout the whole Empire began, happen'd in the same Year. This was in the four hundred and twenty eighth Year after the Taking of Troy by the Greeks, and the first Year of the seventh Olympiad in that Nation. There are (k) two Accounts, viz. the Varronian Account, and the Capitolian Account. The Varronian places it the Year before, and the Capitolian places it this Year; but both these may be easily reconciled. It was customary in those Times, when they began to build a City, to go round it with a Plow, and to make a Furrow where the Walls were to be built, but to leave a void Space for the Gates. The Year before, they thus mark'd out the City, digg'd the Foundation for the Walls, and provided Stones, Timber and other Materials; and this Year they laid the Foundation; so that the Computation might easily be begun from either Year, tho' the Capitolian is the general Account. The Story is this: After the (l) Taking of Troy, Æneas with his Son Ascanius, and as many Men as he could get together, sail'd to Italy. Æneas landing in Italy was (m) at first oppos'd by Latinus King of the Latines or Aborigines, who being beaten in a Battle makes Peace with him, and admits him and his Men to live in his Kingdom. This Provoking Turnus the King of the Rutuli, occasion'd a fresh War, in which Æneas killing Turnus with his own Hand was so respected by Latinus, that he gave him Lavinia his only Child for a Wife. When Æneas was dead, his Wife Lavinia being great with Child, and fearing the Power of Ascanius, fled into the Woods, where she was deliver'd of a Son call'd Silvius for this Reason, and also Posthumus, because he was born after his Father's Funeral. This Flight and Hardship of Lavinia was so resented by the People, that Ascanius was oblig'd to recal her, and did ever after treat her as a Queen and a Mother, and caus'd her Son Silvius Posthumus to be honourably educated. After this, Ascanius, to avoid all Occasions of Disagreement, left to his Mother-in-Law the City of Lavinium, which Æneas had built, and call'd after her Name; and built the City call'd Alba-longa, where he reign'd, and seem'd to be very much delighted with the Situation of the Place. After the Death of Ascanius there happen'd a Contention between Silvius the Son of Æneas, and Iulus the Son of Ascanius about the Kingdom; but the Relations of Lavinia having a great Interest in the Country, the Matter was amicably compos'd, that Silvius Posthumus should enjoy the Kingdom, and Iulus should enjoy the Priesthood, and so the Kingdom continu'd in the other Family for many Generations, and every succeeding King was accordingly call'd Silvius. Of this Race Latinus the Grandson founded many Towns in the Borders of Latium, who standing very much upon the Honour of their Original, were afterward call'd Prisci Latini. Tiberinus, another of the same Race, is suppos'd by some to have given the Name to (n) the River Tiber. The Mountain of Aventinus is suppos'd to be call'd (o) so from Aventinus, another of that Family, who was buried there. Julius the Brother of Aventinus is reckon'd to be the Father of another Julius, and Grandfather of Julius Proculus, who left Alba and dwelt with Romulus in Rome. Numitor the eldest Son of Procas was depriv'd of his Kingdom by his Brother Amulius, by whom also his Son Ægeus was slain, and Ilia his Daughter was made a Priestess of the Goddess Vesta, that so the Race of Numitor might be cut off, she being hereby oblig'd to a perpetual Virginity. However, a Soldier found Means to get her with Child, and to conceal the Disgrace, the Report was, that this was done by Mars the God of War. At last she was deliver'd of two Children Romulus and Remus, whom their Uncle Amulius commanded to be drown'd, and their Mother to be bury'd alive; which was the Punishment that the Law inflict'd, when the Vestal Virgins broke their Chastity. It is uncertain, whether this Punishment was inflict'd, or the Mother was pardon'd at the Intreaty of Antio the Daughter of Amulius. The Children were commanded to be thrown into the River Tiber and drown'd; but the Stream being low, and the Shore deep with Mud, they were left in the Flags. It happen'd, that a Woman call'd Lupa found them before they were dead, and suckled them, which gave Occasion to the Story, that they were nurs'd by a she Wolf, who bringing them home to Faustulus the King's Shepherd at that Time, he gives the Charge of them to his Wife Laurentia, and so they were both preserv'd. As soon as they came of a fit Age, they liv'd Shepherds Lives, and being naturally of valiant Tempers, they began, like Nimrod, at first to hunt wild Beasts, and then to seize on those who plunder'd the Country, and divide the Booty among the Shepherds. By this Method they gather'd a great Number of Youth together, who were employ'd sometimes in Hunting, sometimes in seizing of Thieves, and sometimes in other warlike Pastimes and Diversions. A Company of Robbers inrag'd at this, set upon Romulus and Remus. Romulus defends himself, and Remus is taken Prisoner, and deliver'd to King Amulius to be put to Death, under Pretence of Robbing the Fields of their Grandfather Numitor. Amulius sends Remus to Numitor to be executed for the Fact. In the mean Time Faustulus knowing the former Decree of Amulius to kill the two Brothers, and that it happen'd to be at the Time when he sav'd them, he had a full Persuasion that these were the two, but was unwilling to discover it till a fit Opportunity presented. Remus being brought to Numitor, who hearing that they were Twins, and comparing their Age and Temper, he concludes, that they must be his Grandchildren; and upon Inquiry, he was so far confirm'd in it, that he could hardly forbear to speak of it. However they carry on a Plot against Amulius, that Romulus should bring his Men privately into the City, and when they were all got together, they should attack Amulius's Palace on a sudden; and Remus should assist him with all the Forces, that he could get together, into the House of Numitor. The Plot succeeds, Amulius is kill'd, and (as Lucius Florus saith) thrown down from the Top of the Palace. Numitor congratulates his two Grandchildren upon this Success, and declares in a full Assembly the Wickedness of his Brother Amulius to him, that these were his two Grandchildren, how they were born, how they were bred up, and how they came to be discover'd; that Amulius was kill'd, and he was the Contriver of it. The Multitude immediately declare Numitor their King, and had Romulus and Remus in the greatest Esteem. And now, to perpetuate the Memory of their Preservation, they resolve to build a City in the Place where they were preserv'd. The Albanians, Latins and Shepherds agree to assist them in it, with a firm Persuasion, that the other Towns in Italy would in Time give Way to it. These being Twins, and it not being known who was the eldest, they agree to determine by the Flight of Birds, who should give the Name, and who should reign first. Romulus goes to the Mount Palatinus, and Remus to the Mount Aventinus for this Purpose. Remus first sees six Vultures, and Romulus after that sees twelve. Lucius Florus saith, that Romulus by this got the better, and builds the City, being full of Hopes, that it would be remarkable for warlike Affairs, because these were Birds accustomed to Blood and Violence; and that at first they only surrounded it with a Trench, which when Remus made sport at, and leap'd over it for this Purpose, he was kill'd, and as some thought, by the Command of his Brother Romulus. Thus he was the first Sacrifice, and dedicated it with his own Blood, as a Token of the Blood which should be shed by this City in all future Ages. Livy and others report this as the Death of Remus; but they add another Story, which is, that a Dispute arose concerning the Sovereignty. Remus claim'd it, because he saw the first Vultures, and Romulus because he saw the greatest Number. This occasion'd many hard Words, and so they fell from thence to Blows, when Remus was kill'd, whose Death put an effectual End to the Controversy. Romulus being now to name the City, and be their King, would not call it Romula from his own Name, it being a Diminutive, but Roma or Rome, from whence his own Name was deriv'd, and which in Greek signifies Strength. When the City was thus built, it wanted Inhabitants. There was a Grove near, and Romulus orders it to be a Place of Refuge for all Malefactors. This brings together a great Number of Men from all Nations, and they who could live in no other Place were protected here. Thus (as Florus observes) Romulus gather'd together one Body out of various Elements, and so it came to be call'd The People of Rome. But this being a Company of Men, could last but for one Age, and therefore they desire to marry among their Neighbours. This being refus'd, they take Wives by Force. For this Purpose they counterfeit Sports and Pastimes; and when the Virgins came thither to see and divert themselves, they were seiz'd by Force, and carry'd into the City, and so became Wives to those who wanted them; which was an Act so like to that of the (p) Benjamites in the Time of the Judges, as if they had copy'd from the same Original. The Parents make Wars to bring back their Daughters, and some of their Towns were conquer'd upon this Occasion. At last when the Wars rag'd more and more, the Roman Wives, who had been thus taken, come with their Hair torn, and in all the Postures of Sorrow, acquainting their Parents that they had been us'd civilly, and that if Matters were carry'd to such Extremities, nothing could be expected on either Side but Ruin and Destruction. The Parents, being overcome with their Prayers, Tears and Arguments, lay aside their Resentments, and enter into a Treaty with their Sons-in-Law, which succeeded so well, that many of them came with all their Wealth and liv'd in Rome. So that from a small Beginning, it gradually increas'd to be the Head and Seat of the Roman Empire, first in temporal and then in ecclesiastical Affairs; and what various Changes and Chances it hath sustain'd, as also what Mischiefs it hath occasion'd in all Parts of the World, hath been the Subject of all succeeding Historians.

119. After Jotham King of Judah had built a Part of the Temple, and beautified and repair'd the rest, his next Business was to set and keep all other things in Order, and to rectify what he found amiss. First, He built and repair'd the (q) Wall from the Temple to ward the South, where the Tower of Ophe was situated. After this he built or repair'd several Cities, which were in the Mountains of Judah, and several Castles and Towers in the Forests; so that he took Care to fortify his Kingdom strongly on all Sides against his Enemies.

(p) Judg. 21. 19 to 24. (q) 2 Chron. 27. 3.

120. About this Time (r) Micah utters the two first Chapters of his Prophecy, which he saw concerning Jerusalem and Samaria; in which he complains of their many Sins, particularly their Oppression, Injustice and Idolatry, and endeavours to stir them up to Repentance, as the only Method to avoid GOD's threatned Judgments. He is particularly said to prophesy in the Days of Jotham, Abaz, and Hezekiah, but not in the Days of Uzziah like those already mention'd. He was a Morasthite, or of Mareshab in (s) the Tribe of Judah bordering upon the Philistines. He mourns sadly for the Captivity of the ten Tribes, which now drew near, and for the Misery of Jerusalem, which was not far off. He frequently useth (t) the Words of the Prophet Isaiab; but it is hard to guess in many Places, who spake them first. In some Parts of his Prophecy he is very obscure and terrible; and in other Places he is very plain and comfortable. He speaks glorious things of CHRIST, first (u) of his Ascension, and (x) then of his Kingdom. He names (y) the Town, where he should be born, (z) the Enlargement of his Church under the Gospel, his (a) Power in it, and (b) the Peace that should be under it. And as he mentions no particular historical Transactions; so it is difficult to tell what Chapters were deliver'd in each of the Kings Time. The only Way of Conjecture is this: As he (c) prophesied in Jotham's Time; so we may place his two first Chapters there. And as (d) Part of his third Chapter is said by the Prophet Jeremiah (e) to have been spoken in the Days of Hezekiah; so the rest that follows may more probably be laid there, than in any other Place.

121. The first Enemy which was rais'd against Jotham was (f) the Ammonites. This People had (g) been intirely subdued by David, but by this Time they had recover'd so much Strength, that they invaded the Country of Judah. Jotham therefore marches against them, and drives them into their own Country, where they were reduc'd to such a Necessity, that to buy their Peace they were forc'd to pay every Year an hundred Talents of Silver, and ten thousand Measures of Wheat, and as many of Barley. This they did three Years, but afterward they found an Opportunity to ease themselves of this Burden, the Children of Judah being reduc'd to great Difficulties by other Enemies. For (h) in the last Year of his Reign Rezin the King of Syria, and Pekah the Son of Remalib King of Israel, enter'd into a Confederacy against Judah, and made Preparations for War, which oblig'd Jotham (i) to march against them with his Army. What Success he had herein is uncertain, only the Ammonites took this Opportunity to throw off the Taxes impos'd upon them; and the Confederacy of these two Kings, thus began, reduc'd the Kingdom of Judah to the last Extremity, and Jotham was engag'd in Wars to the Time of his Death.

122. The Affyrian Monarchy having continu'd 1300 Years, as (m) Justin tells us, or (n) upwards according to Dr. Prideaux, or (o) more particularly 1360 Years, as we are inform'd by Diodorus Siculus, was dissolv'd in the Reign of Jotham, at the Death of Sardanapalus, on the following Occasion. This Emperor, as (p) all the Historians tell us, exceeded all his Predecessors in Sloth and Luxury. He wallow'd in Pleasure and wanton Dalliances, he cloth'd himself in Woman's Attire, he spun fine Wool and Purple among his Concubines, and was seen of none out of his Family. He painted his Face, and deck'd his Body more like a Strumpet than a King; he imitated a Woman's Voice, and proceeded to such a Degree of Voluptuousness and sordid Uncleaness, that he compos'd Verses in Praise of his Manner of Life, with a Command that after his Death they should be inscrib'd on his Tomb. Arbaces, the General of the Median Forces, was stir'd up by Belesis the Governor of Babylon to destroy the Affyrian Empire; and they agreed among themselves, that if they could effect it, Belesis should enjoy Babylon, Chaldea and Arabia, and Arbaces should enjoy all the rest. Belesis was a Babylonian Priest, skill'd in Astrology and Divination, and constantly assur'd the other of Success; who being fully persuaded of the Truth of what was foretold, takes all possible Methods to effect it, enters into an Association with the rest of the Governors of the Provinces for this Purpose, and endeavours by Feasting and all sorts of Insinuations to gain their Affections. When all things were ripe, he corrupts one of the Eunuchs, by Giving him a Cup of Gold, to be introduc'd into the King's Presence; and seeing his Lasciviousness and Effeminacy, he despis'd him as a vile and worthless Wretch, and thought it much more easy to accomplish his Design. He declaring this to all his Acquaintance, they agree together, persuade the Medes to invade the Affyrian Empire, and draw in the Persians in Hope of Liberty to join in the Confederacy. Belesis also persuades the Babylonians to revolt, and gains the King of Arabia, who was his Friend, and had been his Guest, for a Confederate; and when they were united, their Army is reported to have consisted of four hundred thousand Men: Then they call a Council of War to consider what was fit to be done.

123. Sardanapalus is now rous'd from his Sloth, and draws forth the Forces of the rest of the Provinces against the Enemy, whom he beats in three pitch'd Battles. In the first, he pursues them to the Mountains seventy Furlongs beyond Nineveh. In the second he beats them so, that they were upon the Point of returning Home, and were only prevail'd upon to stay by Belesis's assuring them, that the Gods had promis'd to reward their Labours with the desir'd Success. In the third Fight Arbaces himself was wounded, and his Army pursu'd as far as the Mountains of Babylon. Belesis having now lost his Credit, could give general Promises no longer; and therefore lying all Night Stargazing in the open Field, he assur'd them the next Morning, that if they would continue together but five Days longer, the Gods had promis'd a mighty Change, and that every thing should take a different Turn. The Army being hardly persuaded to wait so long, News was brought on a sudden, that great Forces were at Hand to join the King from Bactria, which made it still worse; and Arbaces had nothing to do but to march against them, and by all Methods to persuade them to a Revolt, which succeeded even beyond their Hopes, and gave another Turn to the Face of Affairs. Sardanapalus knowing nothing of this, and puff'd up with his former Successes, was indulging his Sloth and Idleness, and preparing Beasts for Sacrifices, with Plenty of Wine, and other things necessary to feast and entertain his Soldiers. Arbaces having receiv'd Intelligence by Deserters, that the Army seem'd secure, and was already overcome with Surfeiting and Drunkenness, fell upon them on a sudden in the Night; and surprizing them in the utmost Confusion, he broke into the Camp, where he made a terrible Slaughter of most of them, and forc'd the rest into the City. Upon this

Sardanapalus's Courage fail'd him, and he commits the Charge of the whole Army to Salamenus the Queen's Brother, and takes upon himself to defend the City of Nineveh. Arbaces now pays him in his Turn, and defeats his Forces once in the open Field, and the second Time before the Walls of the City; in which last Engagement Salamenus was kill'd, and almost all his Army lost, being driven head-long into the River Tigris; so that the Number of the slain was so great, that the River was reported to have been dyed with Blood, and to have retain'd the Colour for a great Distance, and a long Course together.

124. Sardanapalus having no other Hopes, makes all necessary Preparations to sustain a Siege, which he was the more encourag'd to do by an antient Prophecy, That Nineveh could never be taken by Force, till the River became its Enemy; which he thought impossible, and therefore he resolv'd to hold out, till Succours, which he had sent for out of all his Provinces, should come to his Assistance. Arbaces on the other Hand was much encourag'd by his Success, and carries on the Siege with the utmost Vigour, which signified but little, because of the prodigious Strength of the Walls, being an hundred Feet high, and so broad, that three Chariots might go together upon them in a Rank, and especially because all imaginable Care had been taken to provide every thing necessary for a long Defence. The Siege lasted two Years without a prospect of Taking it on the one Side, or of Relief on the other. It happen'd the third Year, that the Tigris being overflow'd with continual Rains came up into a Part of the City, and tore down the Wall twenty Furlongs in Length. Sardanapalus hereupon concluding that the Oracle was accomplish'd, because the River was an apparent Enemy to the City, despair'd of Success; and therefore to prevent his Falling into the Hands of his exasperated Subjects, he caus'd (q) a large Pile of Wood to be made in the Court of his Palace, where he heap'd together all his Gold, Silver and Royal Apparel; and inclosing his Eunuchs and Concubines in an Apartment within the Pile, he caus'd it to be set on Fire, and burnt himself and them together, which the Historians (who (r) omit his Victories) represent as the only valiant Action of his Life. Arbaces and his Army being inform'd of this, enter'd thro' the Breach of the Wall, and took the City; upon which he was cloth'd with a Royal

(q) Concerning this Pile Athenæus saith, that it was four hundred Feet high, upon which he had plac'd 150 golden Beds, and as many golden Tables: That he had plac'd in it some Millions of Talents of Gold and Silver, besides the richest Furniture of Purple, and the finest Garments; and that this Pile was fifteen Days in Burning. And Diodorus Siculus saith, That Belesis by Craft obtain'd Leave of Arbaces to carry off the Ashes, under Pretence of Building an Altar with it at Babylon, by which Means he gain'd an immense Treasure. But all this looks more like a Romance than a true History. (r) Justin. lib. 1. Hoc solo imitatus virum. Athenæi lib. 12. cap. 12. Ως ἐν τῷ γεννάσας ἐτελεύτησε.

Robe, and the sole Authority was committed to him: which being done, he rewarded all his Followers according to their Merit, and being put in Mind of his Promise, he confirm'd Beleſis as Governor in Chief of Babylonia, Chaldea and Arabia, and took the rest of the Empire to himself, which put an End to the Aſſyrian Monarchy.

125. When Beleſis came to Babylon, and was made their King or Emperor, being well skill'd in Aſtronomy, he ſet himſelf to rectify the Chaldean Year, which ſeems to have ſtood unalterable from the Flood till then. Their antient Year (r) conſiſted of three hundred and ſixty Days, or twelve Months, thirty Days to a Month. This being five Days and a Quarter leſs than the Revolution of the Sun to the ſame Point of the Æquinox, the Egyptians in the Time of Thoth their ſecond King, and Grandſon of Ham, added five Days to the Year, ſo that every Year conſiſted exactly of three hundred and ſixty five Days; and in every four Years there was one Day leſs than in ſo many Julian Years, which made the Beginning of the Year in a (r) great Length of Time run thro' all the four Seasons. The Chaldeans to prevent this Inconveniency, that the Year might always begin in the Autumn, once in about ſix Years added an Embolimean Month, (as the Jews did ſeven Times in nineteen Years) which made the Years unequal. In large Epochas when they reckon'd a Day for a Year, this made a conſiderable alteration. The Chaldean 𐤠𐤭, or Time, conſiſted of three hundred and ſixty Years, and their Month of Years conſiſted of thirty Years. This makes the Time and Times and half a Time mention'd by (u) Daniel, and fix'd by St. John for the Duration of Antichriſt, to be (x) forty and two Months, or (y) one thouſand two hundred and ſixty Days, to be ſo many Years; and his (z) Dividing of a Time to be a Month or thirty Years. And thus the (a) ſeven Times, which he mentions in the Caſe of Nebuchadnezzar, were ſeven of theſe common Years, each conſiſting of three hundred and ſixty Days: and by this Computation we muſt reckon his (b) ſeventy Weeks by which he points out the Crucifixion of our SAVIOUR, and the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem. Their Year of Years was alſo of two Sorts, either this laſt Chaldean Year, or three hundred and ſixty five Years, viz. a Julian Year of Years conſiſting of three hundred and ſixty five Years and a Quarter, as it is us'd (c) by St. John in his Deſcription of the Time, in which the Turks ſhould be a Plague to Europe, and enlarge their Conqueſts on this Side. Beleſis being acquainted with the Egyptian Aſtronomers, and finding that their Year was equal, reduces the Babylonian Year to the ſame Standard, and makes it to conſiſt of three hundred and ſixty five Days, which was divided into twelve Months of thirty Days each, and five Days, which they call'd Επαιρέματα or added thereto at the End of the Year. Thus he not only brings in the Form of this Year, but even (d) the Months are call'd by the old Egyptian Account; ſo that Mizraim and Thoth, two antient Kings of that Country, gave Names to two Months in the new Babylonian Monarchy. It happen'd at this Time that the Egyptian Year began on the ſix and twentieth Day of February, according to the Julian Account brought back to that Time; and thus it was ſettl'd at Babylon. So that by Leaving out the Biſſextile Day it began every fourth Year a Day ſooner; and in the 523d Year of this Account two of theſe Years began in the ſame Julian Year, one on the firſt of January, and the other on the laſt Day of December. Beleſis, who is alſo call'd Nabonaſſar, order'd this Alteration to begin from the firſt Year of his Reign, and therefore it was call'd The famous Æra of Nabonaſſar. This Computation of the civil Year continu'd in Ægypt to the Death of Antony and Cleopatra, and was afterward in Uſe among the Mathematicians and Aſtronomers to the Time of Ptolemy, who made his Mathematical Canon by this Account, from the firſt Beginning of this Æra to the Death of Antoninus Pius the Roman Emperor, who died in the Year of CHRIST 161; and is juſtly eſteem'd (e) as the ſureſt and moſt uſeful Guide of antient Chronology, where the ſacred Hiſtorians are ſilent; from the Date whereof the learned Dr. Prideaux began his moſt admirable Connexion of the Old and New Teſtament with the neighbouring Nations.

Short Observations to the Time of the Babylonish Captivity.

THUS have we, thro' the Blessing of GOD, gone thro' a short Account of the History of the World from the Creation, as far as it related to that of the Sacred Scriptures, until the Time in which it hath been perform'd by a most incomparable Hand. And therefore from the first Year of the Reign of Abaz, to the Babylonish Captivity, there only remains some short Observations, chiefly necessary for the Fixing of the Time, when the Prophets spoke the remaining Parts of their Prophecies.

1. The Syrians and Israelites having oppress'd the Kingdom of Judah in the last Year of Jotham's Reign, and having Anno laid Siege to Jerusalem, in the Year 739. after his Death, it is evident, (a) that the Prophet Isaiah is now sent by GOD to comfort Abaz, and assure him, that they should not prevail. And therefore this is the Place to take in the seventh Chapter of his Prophecy, where these Promises are given.

2. The same Year, and probably soon after, is the Date of the eighth Chapter. The People of Israel at this Time rejoic'd in Anno the (b) Assistance of Rezin King of 739. Syria, and in the Success of Pekah the Son of Remaliah their own King. In the last Chapter the Prophet had promis'd Deliverance to Judah from these their Enemies, whom he calls (c) the Tails of these smoking firebrands, as being almost consum'd, and ready to smoke their last; and his Son (d) Shear-jashub is with him, which signifies A Remnant shall return. In this Chapter (e) a Prophetess hath a Son, and she is directed by Isaiah to call him Maher-shalal-hash-baz, or In making speed to the spoil he hastens to the prey. And gives this Reason, For before the child shall have knowledge to cry, My father and my mother, the riches of Damascus, and the spoil of Samaria, shall be taken away before the face of the king of Assyria. This was accordingly fulfill'd; for in the second Year after this Abaz calls in Tiglath-pileser King of Assyria to his Help, who (f) slays Rezin King of Damascus, and leads Part of Israel into Captivity: and the Year following (g) Pekah King of Israel is slain by Hoshea, and Judah is deliver'd from both, as Isaiah had foretold.

3. Another Reason, why these two Chapters are dated the Year after Jotham's Death, when Abaz was sole King, is (h) the Prophecy mention'd therein, that within three-score and five years Ephraim should be broken, that it be not a people. For sixty five Years after, which was in the twenty fourth Year of Manasseh's Reign, (i) Esarhaddon King of Assyria having also made himself Master of Babylon, after he had settl'd all his Affairs in Syria, march'd into the Land of Israel, and there taking Captive all those who were the Remains of the Captivity (excepting only some few, who escap'd his Hands, and continu'd still in the Land) carry'd them away into Babylon and Assyria. And then to prevent the Land from becoming desolate, he brought others from (k) Babylon, and from Cuthah, and from Avah and Hamath and Sepharvaim, to dwell in the Cities of Samaria in their stead. And so the ten Tribes of Israel, who had separated from the House of David, were brought to a full and utter Destruction, and never after that recover'd themselves again.

4. The ninth Chapter of Isaiah was spoken or written at the same Time with the eighth, as may evidently appear Anno to any one who will read the last 739. Verse of the one and the first of the other. In the eighth Chapter he speaks of the Calamities, which should befall Israel and Judah from Shalmanezar and Sennacherib the Kings of Assyria, and the Deliverance that should happen in due Time. In the End of the eighth Chapter he foretels the Babylonish Captivity, and saith, that at that Time they shall look unto the earth; and behold trouble, and darkness, dimness of anguish, and they shall be driven to darkness. In the ninth Chapter he speaks of a more glorious Deliverance than the first, and particularly to the Land of Zebulun and the Land of Naphtali, that the dimness shall not be such as was in her first Vexation. The Land of Galilee, or of Zebulun and Naphtali, had the hard Misfortune to be first in that Calamity, which beset their Nation by the Assyrians; of which we (l) have this Account, That In the days of Pekah king of Israel came Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria, and took Ijon and Abel beth-maachab, and Janoah, and Kedesh, and Hazor and Gilead

(a) Isai. 7. 3 to 10. (b) Isai. 8. 6. (c) Isai. 7. 4. (d) Isai. 7. 3. (e) Isai. 8. 1, 2, 3. (f) 2 Kings 16. 7, 8, 9. 2 Chron 28. 16 to 22. (g) 2 Kings 15. 30. (h) Isai. 7. 8. (i) Prideaux's Historical Connexion, Anno 677. (k) 2 Kings 17. 24. Ezra 4. 2, 10. (l) 2 Kings 15. 29.

(all these, except Janoah and Gilead, were Cities of Naphtali) and Galilee, and all the land of Naphtali, and carried them captive to Assyria. From this Calamity, which then newly happen'd, the Prophet takes Occasion to comfort them, with this Assurance, that after another like Calamity, which should be worse for some time, they should have a sufficient Recompence, in the first and chief Share of the Messiah, which was to come. As at the (m) first time he made vile (or debased) the land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali; so in the latter time he shall make it glorious. (If the Reason hereof is ask'd, the Reason follows) The way of the sea by Jordan, in Galilee of the gentiles, the people, that walked in the darkness of Affliction, hath seen a great light; they that dwelt in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined. Thou hast multiplied the nations, and increas'd the joy thereof. And the Reason of it is plain, For unto us a child is born, and unto us a son is given, and the government shall be upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called, Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty GOD, The Father (or Author) of eternity, The prince of peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end; upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the LORD of hosts shall perform this. This is he, that should enlighten the Province of Galilee, or the Land of Zebulun and Naphtali with the Glory of his Presence, and make it a sufficient Amends for what it suffer'd before the rest of the Country of Israel by the Hand of the King of Assyria.

5. At this Time the seventeenth Chapter of this Prophet must be plac'd. It not only speaks of the same Subject with the three before-mention'd, even the final Ruin of Damascus and Ephraim; but (n) it speaks also of Damascus and Ephraim, as join'd together in one Confederacy to invade the Kingdom of Judah, which happen'd not till the End of the Reign of Jotham, and the Beginning of the Reign of Abaz. And as it could not be plac'd sooner for this Reason, so it cannot be plac'd much later; because it (o) foretels the Ruin of Damascus, and the Kingdom of Syria, which was (p) effected by Tiglath-pileser King of Assyria in the fourth Year of Abaz's Reign. The Reason why this Chapter is plac'd so far back in this Book, is, because there are many Prophecies against several Countries laid there together, and when it pleas'd GOD to threaten the neighbouring Kingdoms, Damascus and Israel could not be without their Share. Thus the three Chapters of Isaiab (*) first mention'd are plac'd in their Order of Time, as particular Declarations of GOD's Judgments against these two Places; and (†) the other Chapters are plac'd, where they may accompany other Threatnings.

6. In the same Year we may also date the twenty eighth Chapter of the same Prophet. Ephraim was now (q) a crown of pride, and full of drunkards. They thought themselves secure by the Assistance of Rezin King of Syria, and therefore he foretels the Destruction of Ephraim or Israel by Tiglath-pileser King of Assyria, which he had before call'd (r) the razor that was hired (s) by Abaz to shave Galilee, Gilead and Damascus; and in a little Time after lighted on him that hired it. So that the Conquest of Israel by him happening the following Year, this Prophecy must be spoken at this Time; tho' it is plac'd at a farther Distance, that the Threatnings against this Kingdom might come in among the Threatnings against other Places.

7. Abaz his Seeking (t) to the King of Assyria for Help, and Revolting from GOD, occasions the Publishing the fifth and sixth Chapters of the Prophet Hosea. In (u) the fifth Chapter he reproves both Ephraim and Judah for this Fault, and threatens them both with Judgments; and in (x) the next Chapter he invites and exhorts them to Repentance with the Promise of a Blessing. He blames Ephraim or Israel more particularly for Relying upon Assyria, tho' Judah was under the same Sin, and subject to the same Reproof; because Israel was first (y) in the Fault under *Menahe*m, and (z) then Judah under Abaz; and (a) Israel was first punish'd in the Time of Pekah, and (b) then Judah in the Time of Hezekiah.

8. In the twelfth Year (c) of Abaz King of Judah, Hoshea began to reign over Israel in Samaria. And (d) in the fourteenth Year of Abaz, Tiglath-pileser King of Assyria died, after he had reign'd nineteen Years, and Shalmaneser his Son (who in Tobit is call'd Euemaf sar, and in Hosea Shalmon) reign'd in his Stead, and as soon as he was settl'd in the Throne, he came into Syria and Palestina, and there he subjects Samaria to his Dominions, and makes Hoshea the King to become his Vassal, and pay Tribute to him. This is the Time,

(m) See Mede's Discourse 25, Page 101, where he clearly makes out this Interpretation from the Hebrew Text. (n) Isai. 17. 3. (o) Isai. 17. 1 to 6. (p) 2 Kings 16. 7, 8, 9. (*) Chap. 7, 8, 9. when as the Prophet Isaiab (e) said, he had subdued the Idols of that Country, and intend- ed to make Samaria as absolutely under his Power, as Damascus was at that Time, and threaten'd to do the same to Jerusalem; which he did in the following Year, being the fourteenth of Abaz, and the third of Hoshea. This is therefore the Time, that the Prophet Isaiab (f) threatens, that he should do the like to Jerusalem. And indeed he doth it: (g) *He came up to Ajath, he passed to Migron, at Michmas he laid up his carriages; They took up their lodgings at Geba, all which were Cities within the Dominion of Abaz. They went over the passage, that had been straitly kept as a Frontier, between the Kingdom of Samaria and the Kingdom of Judah. Ramah of Benjamin was afraid, and the Inhabitants of Gibeah, where Saul was born, in the same Tribe fled away. Thus Shalmaneser came up to Jerusalem and subdu'd Abaz. These were the (h) strong Waters, which did overflow Judah, and the swift Conquests, which took in the whole Land, where (i) Emmanuel or CHRIST was afterwards to be born; so that the Promise afforded no present Security, but there were (k) such Days, that had not been seen since the Revolt of the ten Tribes. This dismal Calamity good King Hezekiah mentions, as soon as he endeavour'd to reform the People. (l) Our fathers have fallen by the sword, and our sons and daughters and wives are in captivity. And (m) be ye not like your fathers, and like your brethren, which trespassed against the LORD GOD of their fathers, who therefore gave them up to desolation, as ye see. This first Expedition of Shalmaneser King of Affyria against Samaria and Jerusalem is what the Prophet Hosea takes Notice of, where he saith, (n) that Shalmon spoiled Betharbel in the day of battle, and us'd such Cruelties, that the Mother was dashed in pieces upon her children. And therefore as he spoil'd Betharbel in his first Expedition against Samaria and Jerusalem, so he should spoil Bethel in his second, when the ten Tribes were carried away Captives. And as in the Beginning of the Reign of Abaz, when Judah was greatly distress'd by Rezin and Pekah, the Prophet Isaiab comforts them with the Promise of the MESSIAH; so he takes the same Method at this Time, and whilst they are brought into the most despicable Condition by Shalmaneser, he (o) foretels the Destruction of both the Empires of Babylon and Affyria, and the Joy that should be occasion'd thereby, and particularly the peaceable Kingdom of CHRIST,* the Branch out of the Root of Jesse, the victorious Restoration of Israel, with the Bringing in of the Gentiles, and the great Thanksgiving upon that Occasion.

9. The many Troubles, which happen'd in Judah this Year brought Abaz in so low a Condition, that he could not manage the Affairs of the Kingdom, and therefore he makes Hezekiah to be King. Dr. Lightfoot (p) supposes, that Shalmaneser not only conquer'd, but also depos'd Abaz, and made him become a private Man, and set up Hezekiah his Son on the Throne in his Stead. At this Time the third Year of Hoshea, and the fourteenth of Abaz was almost expir'd, and every thing was in such a Confusion, that Hezekiah was capable of Doing very little; so that his Reign is very seldom computed from this Year, but from the next. And thus (q) Hoshea's seventh is said to be Hezekiah's fourth, and Hoshea's ninth is said to be his sixth. The Judgments of GOD had so awaken'd Hezekiah to a Sense of his Duty that he resolv'd to reform the Kingdom, as the only Way to find Mercy, and his Father Abaz was reduc'd so low by his Misfortunes, that he might perceive it to be the Hand of GOD against him, and therefore he either dar'd not, or was in no Condition to oppose it. The (r) first Day of this new Year from whence the first Year of Hezekiah's Reign is dated, he opens the Doors of the House of the LORD, which his Father Abaz had shut up, and brings in the Priests and the Levites to perform divine Worship, in the Manner that GOD had appointed: He casts out those Defilements, which his Father Abaz had brought into the Temple, before he had shut it up; and (s) the House and Court are cleans'd in eight Days, when by Sacrifices (t) they make a new Dedication. And it is also suppos'd, (u) that in Purging and Cleansing of the Temple at this Time, a Copy of the latter Part of Solomon's Proverbs was found, and was afterwards transcrib'd by some of Hezekiah's Servants out of the old Manuscript, which was much soil'd and defac'd by Time and Neglect. In the same Chapter the Prophet also hath a (x) triumphant Insulting over Babylon, and describes its Destruction in a very terrible Manner. He here joins it with the Prophecies against Affyria, because when they were accomplish'd, Babylon and Affyria (y) made but one Monarchy, having been united under Efar-baddon the Son of Sennacherib King of Affyria. He saith, (z) that GOD should break the staff of this wicked Empire, and the scepter of the rulers, which was fulfill'd, when Belshazzar was slain; for (a) this Empire did never after bear any more Rule. He also foretells, that (b) GOD would cut off from that City the name and remnant, son and (c) Grandson, which was also fulfill'd, when (d) Evilmerodach the Son of Nebuchadnezzar (who took Jerusalem and carried the Jews Captives) was slain by a Conspiracy of his own Relations, and (e) Belshazzar his Grandson was slain by Cyrus. He prophesies also, (f) that GOD would make it a possession for the bittern, and pools of water. This was also accomplish'd, when Cyrus broke down (g) the great Bank or Dam, which was built by (h) Nebuchadnezzar between the River and the Canal, and so turn'd the Rivers of Babylon, that they overflow'd the Country, and left the Channels dry, so that he enter'd that way into the City with his Army. He also tells us, (i) that Babylon the beauty of the Chaldeans excellency should be utterly overthrow, and never inhabited any more, but be full of doleful Creatures, wild Beasts, and desolate of other Inhabitants. And (k) in the Day when GOD should take vengeance, and in the year of recompenses for the controversy of Zion, her Enemies should be made desolate in the same Manner; which was exactly fulfill'd not long after. For (l) when Seleucia was built on the Tigris, and the River Euphrates was thus drain'd near Babylon, so as to be render'd shallow and unnavigable, and the Country hereby was made unhealthy, the Inhabitants soon forsook it, so that it was brought to an utter Desolation; and the wild Beasts, and especially the venomous Creatures which are thereabout (against which there is no Fence) make it too dangerous for any Traveller so much as to go and see its Ruins.

10. The Year after this (m) Abaz dies, and the Prophet Isaiab publisheth (n) the latter Part of his fourteenth Chapter; in which he threatens the Philistines, that whereas (o) Uzziah had been a Serpent to them, and had stung them very grievously, and when he was dead, they (p) insulted over Abaz, yet now (q) Hezekiah should prove a Cockatrice to them, and should smite them again. That GOD should first (r) bring upon them a Famine, and then Hezekiah's Sword, and after that (s) the northern Power should utterly dissolve them. But that (t) the terrible Messengers of the Assyrian Nation, as Rabshakeb and Rabsaris and others, when they came against Jerusalem, should receive this Answer, That the LORD hath founded Zion, the poor of his people should trust in it, and the Assyrian Army should not prevail against it.

11. The same Year the Prophet Isaiab publish'd his fifteenth and sixteenth Chapters against Moab, that (u) Ar and Kir-hareseth two principal Cities of that Country should be destroy'd, and the rest of it brought into Contempt, Ruin and Desolation. The Prophet tells us, that all this should be accomplish'd within the Space of three Years, and it was accomplish'd accordingly in the fifth Year of Hezekiah's Reign immediately before the Siege of Samaria. For then (x) Shalmaneser to secure himself from any Disturbance on that Side, first invaded Moab, and having destroy'd these two Cities, brought all the rest of that Country under his Subjection, and plac'd Garisons in it sufficient to stop all IncurSIONS of the Arabs, which might that Way be made upon him, before he would begin that Siege. For otherwise he could not hope to carry it on with Success.

12. The next Year the Prophet Hosea publish'd (y) the eight last Chapters of his Prophecy, as it may appear from these Reasons. First, It was after (z) the first Expedition of Shalmaneser against Samaria and Jerusalem, when he destroy'd Betharbel and before his second Expedition, when he took Samaria, and destroy'd Bethel. Secondly, The common and constant (a) Speech, that the Prophet makes to Ephraim and Samaria in every Chapter, shews, that these things were spoken to the ten Tribes, before they were carry'd away Captives, which happen'd but three Years after this Date. And Thirdly, The Prophet blames them (b) for Depending upon Egypt, and threatens to punish them for the same. In the Beginning of this Year, or the End of the former, (c) Hoshea King of Israel enters into a Confederacy with So King of Egypt, hoping by his Assistance to shake off the Yoke of Assyria, and in Confidence hereof he withdrew his Subjection from Shalmaneser, and would pay him no more Tribute, nor bring any more Presents to him, as he had formerly us'd to do. For this he is blam'd as a thing past. And soon after in this Year, Shalmaneser came and besieg'd Samaria, which was the Punishment threatned; and therefore these Prophecies must be plac'd between the one and the other.

13. Samaria being now besieg'd, having in vain depended upon Egypt, the Prophet Isaiah publisheth his eighteenth and nineteenth Chapters against that Country, on whom they so much depended. He calls it the (d) land shadowing with wings, because their Fleets on the Red Sea, when the Sails were spread, look'd like Wings, or rather the Sails were to Ships as Wings to Birds to help them forward. He calls it also (e) the Land, which is beyond the rivers of Cush, because Cush lay upon one Side of the Red-Sea, and Egypt on the other. He also prophesies, that the Tribe of Judah should go down to Egypt in such great Numbers, that (f) they should fill five Cities with the language of Canaan, as they did (g) immediately after the Captivity, in the Time of the Prophet Jeremiah; and that (h) every one of these should also prove Cities of destruction, or be given up to be destroy'd, as it was (i) also foretold by the Prophet Jeremiah, and accomplish'd by (k) Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon. However he prophesies, that in due Time (l) Egypt, Affyria and Israel should unite, and come to the Obedience of the Gospel.

14. The Kingdom of Judah living in Peace for about ten Years longer, and a Reformation being carry'd on with good Success, the Prophet Isaiah had no farther Vision from GOD, which he thought fit to publish. The next was on this Occasion: In the fourteenth

Year of King Hezekiah's Reign, (m) Sennacherib King of Affyria (whom Isaiah (n) call'd Sargon) came up with a great Army against the fenced Cities of Judah, and took several of them, and laid Siege to Lachish, threatning Jerusalem next. Hezekiah comes to Terms of Accommodation, which Sennacherib observ'd for a little while, and march'd against Egypt; and the better to open his Way into that Country, he sends (o) Tartan, one of his Generals, before him, to take Ashdod or Azotus; from the Taking of which Place the Prophet dates the Beginning of the War, which he had with the Egyptians. In which, according as it had been foretold, he much afflicted that People for three Years together, and carry'd Multitudes of them into Captivity. Isaiah is now (p) in Sackcloth, and mourning for the Captivity of the ten Tribes, which had so lately happen'd: and now he threatens Egypt and (q) Cush, that they should be both taken Captives, and shamefully us'd by the Affyrian. And thus when Sennacherib march'd into Egypt, he (r) laid Siege to Libnah, a Town in the Wilderness (s) (where the Israelites once encamp'd) to open also a Communication on the other Side of the Dead Sea. Upon this (t) Tirbakah King of Cush comes against him with his Army, and was vanquish'd by him, so that (u) his Nation was punish'd instead of Judah.

15. At the same Time was also the Prophecy of Isaiah mention'd in the twenty first Chapter. The Date is plain, that (x) it was within a Year before the glory of Kedar did fail, or Sennacherib, having conquer'd Tirbakah King of Cush, extended his Conquests into Arabia and Idumea. He had before spoken largely and fully concerning the Fall of the King of Affyria; and now he proceeds to tell the Fall of the other Monarchy, which started up at the same Time, or that of Babylon. That (y) its Conquest in the Time of Nebuchadnezzar should be swift like a Whirlwind, and come from the Desarts of Arabia; that the Medes and Persians should destroy it, and all Sighing occasion'd from that Empire should cease. By a (z) couple of Chariots and a couple of Horsemen of different Beasts, he describes these two Nations, and particularly Cyrus and Darius; and foretels the Ruin of Belsazzar by them. That (a) his Height of Pleasure and Banqueting should be turn'd into Fear; and whilst they were furnishing the Tables, there should be an Alarm of War, and so Babylon should fall, and the Images of the Gods, which were (b) so lately prais'd, should be broken to Pieces. But this being at a Distance, he returns to those things which were nigh at hand: That (c) Idumea should be over-run, as in one Day; and (d) the Arabian Tents should be so spoil'd, that they should be forc'd to lodge in the open Forest; and they should flee away in such Haste, as to leave all behind them, and be forc'd to beg Bread and Water of their Neighbours.

16. Immediately upon this the Prophet (e) speaks of the Calamity that should follow, even the Invasion of Judea by the Affyrian Army, which was made vastly large by the (f) Addition of many Forces from Elam or Persia, and Kir or Media; that the choicest valleys should be full of chariots, and the horsemen should set themselves in array against their fenced Cities. That their Men should not only (g) be slain with the Sword, but also many should die by Famine. That the Invasion of the Army should cause Husbandry to be neglected. That the Nation should be troubled for it (h) Days above (or something more than) a year. For the Year when they were there, they devour'd all, and the following Year was the Sabbatical Year. This made them generally lament for the desirable Vintage, the pleasant fields, and fruitful vines; inasmuch that the Prophet was oblig'd (i) to promise them a Supply from GOD's immediate Providence, whilst they discharg'd their Duty. Ye shall eat this year such as groweth of it self, and the second year that which springeth of the same; and in the third year sow ye, and reap, and plant vineyards, and eat the fruit thereof. He also (k) prophesies the Displacing of Shebna from being over the Household, and the Placing Eliakim in his Room; and therefore he calls him (l) Eliakim, who was (or was to be) over the household, because the Prophecy might be depended upon, as certainly as if it was fulfill'd already. The Completion happen'd (m) in this Manner. When Manasseh was on the Throne, Shebna being a very wicked Man was a fit Person to serve his evil Lusts and Inclinations, and therefore was made his first Minister of State in the Beginning of his Reign; and Eliakim, who was of a contrary Character, was laid aside. When Manasseh was carry'd Captive to Babylon, Shebna was carry'd with him, and (n) there detain'd till his Death. So that Manasseh, upon his Repentance and Return to Jerusalem, having resolv'd upon other Methods, puts the Government of all Affairs into the Hands of Eliakim. Upon this the Prophet Isaiab (o) speaks of him, and his supreme Management, as a Type of CHRIST and his Kingdom. St. John himself alludes hereto in (p) very plain Terms, and the Names are very significant for this Purpose. Eliakim is in Hebrew, My GOD shall arise, and Hilkiah signifies The LORD is my Portion.

17. To the same Time we may also refer (q) several of the following Chapters. In the two and twentieth Chapter he had foretold the Misery and Perplexity of Judea by Sennacherib's Army, before the Angel destroy'd it; and now in the twenty fourth Chapter he declares the final Desolation of it by Nebuchadnezzar, as he had before mention'd the Captivity of Ephraim by Shalmaneser King of Assyria in the twenty eighth Chapter; and soon after (r) mentions the heavy Judgments, which should light upon Tyre. In the twenty fifth Chapter he mentions the great Joy which should be to the Church of GOD after each of these Deliverances, the Song of Praise which should be spoken at that Time, and the Glory, which should be given to GOD for his Judgments, for his gracious Benefits to his People, and for their glorious Deliverance. And in (s) the next Chapter he exhorts the People of Judah to trust in GOD, and wait on him, that he will exert his Power in the worst of Times, pull down their Enemies, and give them Peace and Prosperity. In (t) the following Chapter he speaks again of the Deliverance of his Church and People from Babylon, which being encompass'd with large Rivers, he compares to (u) the Leviathan or Whale, that sports himself in the great Waters; and in (x) another Song he speaks of the great Care of GOD over his People, that all his Judgments were but in Mercy, and only design'd for their Amendment; and that in the Days of the MESSIAH the (y) Gentiles should become one Church with the Jews, and should also worship the same LORD, who dwelt at Jerusalem. Thus he mixes many sweet and gracious Promises among his Threatnings; and in the twenty ninth Chapter, spoken about the same Time, he takes the same Method. He calls (z) the Altar at Jerusalem Ariel, or The Lion of GOD; and calls Jerusalem it self by the same Name, the one being remarkable for Devouring Sacrifices by Fire, and the other as remarkable for Devouring of Men by Slaughter. And now he threatens, that GOD would distress Ariel the City, and it should be as Ariel the Altar, with Abundance of Slain about it. However he tells them, that after this, tho' they should be thus besieg'd by Nebuchadnezzar; yet they should obtain a glorious Deliverance at the last, when his Empire should be overturn'd by the Medes and Persians. He tells them, that the Causes of these Judgments were (a) their Senselessness and (b) deep Hypocrisy, but (c) after their Return from their Captivity they should be an holy People.

18. The Assyrians, invading the Kingdom of Judah on the north Side, make them full of Perplexity and Terror; and therefore they send to the South for Succours from Egypt, depending much on their Assistance. For this (d) Rabshakeh blames them in his Speech, that they put their Trust in Egypt for chariots and for horsemen. Upon this he tells them, that this should prove but (e) like the staff of a broken reed, upon which if a man lean, it will go into his hand, and pierce it; for so shall Pharaoh king of Egypt be, to all that trust in him. This he speaks like a Prophet; but a greater Prophet than he blames them (f) for the same Crime in his thirtieth and thirty first Chapters, and tells them, that all this Policy should stand them in no Stead, and (g) the Egyptians themselves should be destroy'd by the Assyrian Army. However the Prophet tells them (h) here, and in (i) another Place, that GOD had heard the Blasphemies of Rabshakeh, and would defend this City, for his own name's sake, and for his servant David's sake, either David himself, or CHRIST the son of David, who is (k) sometimes call'd by this Name; and he would take Vengeance upon the Assyrians. The Misery and Oppression of this northern Army first under Shalmaneser, and then under Sennacherib, had been very long and very great, so that (l) they had eaten the bread of adversity, and drank the waters of affliction, and their teachers had been removed into corners: But as the (m) Stream of the Assyrian did reach even to the neck, or reduce things to the utmost Extremity; so should (n) GOD's Anger do the same to him. But they of Jerusalem should (o) have a song as in the night Time, when an holy solemnity, or the Passover was kept. For they then (p) sang an Hymn, because their Deliverance out of Egypt happen'd in the (q) Night; and thus their Deliverance from Assyria should happen at the same Time. And (r) through the voice of the LORD, or (s) his Angel, should the Assyrian be beaten down, who smote them with a rod; and this should be (t) in the Valley of Tophet the Son of Hinnom, near Jerusalem on the South Side, whither he came from (u) Lachish, Libnah and Cush, and where he encamp'd (x) before he could form the Siege of that Place. Thus (y) the Assyrian should fall with the sword, neither of a mean man, nor of a mighty man, but of the mighty GOD; and (z) both he and his Princes should return to his strong hold (a) of Nineveh for fear. So that these Particulars mention'd in these Chapters, to comfort the People of Judah in their Fears, and before they were accomplish'd, do plainly shew, that this is the proper Time when they were spoken, and that they are plac'd in their proper Order.

19. Immediately upon this he (b) promiseth

the Blessings, which should attend the Kingdom of CHRIST, as a farther Means to comfort them, and an Assurance that they should not be cast off. Thus he mixeth Promises with the Threatnings, and foretels the greatest Comforts, when they had the greatest Need of them. In the mean While he intermixes the sad Times, which they should suffer, whilst the Assyrian Army did carry all before them: That (c) he should destroy the Vintage and the Husbandry, that he should make (d) the High Ways waste, and should break (e) the covenant which he had made with Hezekiah, because he despis'd all their strong Cities, and valued no Forces, which could be sent against him. However the Prophet saith, that there should (f) be glorious Times again, not only at this Deliverance, but also at the Inspiration of the Apostles, when (g) GOD should pour out his spirit upon all flesh. That after this (h) the Enemies of the People of GOD should be destroy'd, and his faithful Servants (i) should be in a happy Condition. That (k) the Inhabitants of Idumea, who had been their constant Enemies, and had help'd forward their Desolation, should also be made desolate. That (l) all these things were sure and certain; And (m) at last he concludes with the joyful and flourishing State of the Kingdom of CHRIST, and the great Privileges belonging to those, who should embrace the Gospel.

20. Here also may be plac'd the five last Chapters of the Prophecy of Micah. Tho' he is said (n) to prophesy in the Days of Jotham and Abaz; yet the last Verse of the third Chapter is (o) own'd by the Men in Jeremiah's Time to have been utter'd in the Days of Hezekiah. And here may that whole Chapter, and all the rest that follow it, be very properly plac'd. He seems (p) to speak of the Siege of Jerusalem as nigh at Hand, so that it was high Time to raise Forces to defend themselves. He speaks of Rabshakeh's Blasphemy against GOD, and his Reproaching of Hezekiah, that they should smite the judge of Israel with the rod upon the cheek; and foretels the (q) Glory, Peace and (r) Victory of the Church of CHRIST and his (s) Kingdom; that (t) tho' her Number was small and their Corruption great, yet (u) she might put her Trust (x) in his Mercies, that she should (y) triumph, and (z) her Enemies should be confounded; That the promis'd (a) MESSIAH might be a Security to them, (a) as it was to Abaz. And tho' their Enemies thought to triumph, and to destroy the City of Jerusalem; yet it should be so far from being insulted over by them, that (b) the little Town of Bethlehem should produce such a Governor, as should tread down both the Affyrian and all other Enemies of his Church under his Feet. Thus CHRIST's being born of a Virgin was a Sign to Abaz, and his being born in Bethlehem was a Sign to his Son Hezekiah, that no Enemy should prevail to root out the Family of David, nor destroy the Country, where David was born. Thus also is (c) Judah call'd The valley of vision, because in this Year, when there was the greatest Occasion for it, before Sennacherib came against Jerusalem, GOD was pleas'd to reveal himself in a greater Measure by his Prophets. For eighteen Chapters were publish'd this Year by Isaiab, and five by Micah, the like whereof was never known in one Year before nor since.

21. The Prophet Isaiab having foretold these things, proceeds afterward (d) to give us the History of them, how they were accomplish'd, in the same Manner as it was also related (e) both in the Books of Kings and Chronicles: And soon after this in the same Year he had the Prophecy against Tyre mention'd in the twenty third Chapter, and there was a very fit Occasion for it. The Tyrians (f) had a few Years before with twelve Ships only, beaten the Affyrian and Phœnician Fleets both join'd together. Upon this Shalmaneser sent his Army to besiege it by Land. However they valiantly held out for five Years, or till the Year before this, at the End whereof Shalmaneser dying the Siege was rais'd. This Success puff'd them up with Pride, and made them grow insolent. Isaiab then speaks of (g) her Rejoycing, (h) the Pride of her glory, and calls her (i) the joyous and the crowning City, whose merchants were princes; and speaks also of her miserable Overthrow, and Going into Captivity. He (k) bids them take Example by the land of the Chaldeans or Babylon. This people was not till the Affyrian founded it, or (l) Nimrod made it a Monarchy, who afterward went into Affyria, and built Nineweh the Metropolis thereof, and dwelt there. This Affyrian form'd it for them who dwelt in the wilderness, or for the Offspring of his Father Cush, who were first seated in Arabia; they set up the towers thereof, and they raised up the palaces. And this Affyrian Monarchy now divided from the other (m)

shall in Time bring the other to Ruin, as it afterward happen'd in (n) the Time of Esarhaddon King of Affyria. And therefore when they saw the Fulfilling of one Prophecy against another Kingdom, they might expect the Fulfilling of the other against themselves. That the Date of this Prophecy must begin at this Time, may be observ'd from (o) the Words themselves, as they lie in the Original: And so it is in this day that Tyre is forgotten seventy years according to the days of one king, or (p) the first King, who was to succeed Hezekiah. This is the first seventy Years here mention'd, beginning (q) at the fourteenth Year of Hezekiah, who (r) reign'd fifteen Years longer, and ending at the Death of Manasseh, who (s) reign'd five and fifty Years, which made up seventy in all. During this Time Tyre was forgotten. The long Siege made the neighbouring Nations traffick with other Cities, and so their Trade was lost for the present. After the End of this Seventy Years, then Tyre did (t) sing as an harlot. Her Trade began again with all the Kingdoms, as it was before, and was very remarkable in (u) the Days of Ezekiel. When these seventy Years were past, then the Destruction of Tyre came on as it had been foretold, and (x) Nebuchadnezzar after a Siege of thirteen Years slew all the Inhabitants, which he found therein, and raised the City to the Ground; and thus the Town in the Island became the City, whilst the other was (y) laid waste; and so it continu'd in a State of Servitude under the Babylonians for seventy Years longer. At the End of this Term GOD visited Tyre again, (z) according to the Prophecy of Isaiab, when it was restor'd to (a) its ancient Privileges, and allow'd to have a King of their own by Darius the Son of Hystaspes; so that they soon recover'd their former Prosperity, and the Trade which they had before. After this the Prophet saith, that her (b) merchandise and her gain should be holy to the LORD. Many among them should be converted to the Christian Faith, and the Dispersing her Merchandize should be a Means of Propagating the Gospel. Thus it was (c) in the Apostles Days, and (d) Tyre and Sidon repented at their Preaching, tho' the mighty works were not done in them, which had been done in Judea. It is not impossible, but this Prophetick Chapter may be plac'd in its proper Order; but if it was spoken at this Time, it might be plac'd, where it is, that the Prophecies against those Countries, which lay so near together, might also lie together, and the Threatnings of divine Vengeance might be plac'd (as it were) in one Body.

22. After this the Prophet Isaiah (e) gives an historical Account of Hezekiah's Sickness and Recovery, and the King of Babylon's Sending a Messenger to congratulate him thereon; and after that he publisheth the (f) remaining Part of his Book in the Life-time of (g) Hezekiah, but without any particular Mark to direct us to the Year, when any of it was spoken.

23. Soon after this we may date the Prophecy of Nabum. It was (h) all upon one Subject, The burden of Nineveh; and therefore we may suppose it to be all publish'd at one Time. It was (i) after Sennacherib had invaded Egypt, in the fourteenth Year of Hezekiah's Reign; for (k) he speaks of the Destruction of No Ammon or Thebes at that

Time, as a thing past, where he tells us, that her Inhabitants were carry'd into Captivity, her young Children dash'd in Picces in the Top of her

Streets, and her great Men divided by Lot among the Conquerors, and put in Chains to be led away as Slaves and Captives. It was when (l) Egypt and Ethiopia were her Strength; and at this Time an Ethiopian King reign'd over Egypt, so that both Countries were as one, and mutually help'd each other. It was after the (m) Blasphemy of Rabshakeh, whom he describes as (n) one come out of Nineveh, and a wicked counsellor, who imagined evil against the LORD. It was before the Death of (o) Sennacherib, which he (p) thus describes, I will break his yolk from off thee, and will burst thy bonds in sunder. And the LORD hath given a commandment concerning thee, that no more of thy Name be sown: Out of the house of thy gods will I cut off the graven image and the molten image; I will make thy grave, for thou art vile. So that his Flight out of

Judah was his Disgrace, and his Idol Temple should be his Destruction, which happen'd also in the twenty second Year of Hezekiah. The King of Assyria, who dwelt at Nineveh, had been a great Oppressor of Judah, and therefore the whole Scope of the Prophet is to foretel the Destruction of that City, which happen'd in the twenty ninth Year of King

Josiah. For (q) Chyniladannus (being driven from Babylon by Nabopolassar who succeeded him) he afterward fix'd at Nineveh, where he was besieg'd by his Successor at Babylon, who, with the Assistance of Cyaxares the King of the Medes, took and utterly destroy'd that great and ancient City; so that for the future Babylon became the sole Metropolis of the Assyrian Empire, and the Prophecy of Nabum was intirely fullfill'd.

24. As there was the Space of 1656 Years from the Creation of the World to the Flood, so the same Space of Time Anno was again ended in the Beginning of 695.

Manasseh's Reign over Judah. We find, that long before this the World was peopled in the East of Asia, as far as China, and in the West of Europe as far as Cadiz or Hercules's Pillars, and in Africa as far as Tangier, and the Coast of Guinea; and that they brought vast Armies into the Field: so that nothing hinders a Belief, that all these three Parts of the World were inhabited before this Time. And as the Men born before the Flood did (r) generally live above nine hundred Years, in which they had more Time to increase and multiply, but since the Flood, there were (s) none who liv'd to the Age of five hundred Years, and their Lives were soon cut shorter and shorter, so that eighty Years was (t) a great Age in the Time of Moses, as it hath been ever since; we cannot therefore but conclude, that the World was as populous, or rather more, at the Flood, as it was in Manasseh's Reign. And tho' Noah before the Flood might live near the Place inhabited by our first Parents, and the Ark might afterward land near the same; yet the Flood, which destroy'd (u) all Mankind at that Time, must needs be universal.

25. After the Reign of Hezekiah there arose no Prophet until the Time of Josiah, in the (x) thirteenth Year of whose Reign the Prophet Jeremiah was call'd to Anno this Office, and publish'd his first 627.

Chapter. GOD had forborn long, after the others had ceas'd; and since, in the Time which he had given them for Repentance, they grew worse and worse, he tells them now, that he (y) would hasten the Punishments, which he had so long threaten'd. From this Time, to the last Captivity under Zedekiah, is exactly forty Years, and so long (z) GOD is said to bear the Iniquity of the House of Judah under such powerful Preaching, which had been intermitted many Years before. The Chapters which follow after the first to the End of the twelfth, are suppos'd to have been in the last Year of King Josiah's Reign; and Anno the thirteenth and fourteenth in the 609.

first Year of the Reign of his Successor Jehoiakim. The Reason is, that there is a frequent Mention in these Chapters of a great Drought or Want of Rain. Anno 608. This is mention'd in the first of these (a) Chapters to be in the Days of the first of these Kings, and in the two other (b) Chapters to be in the Days of the other. This we may well suppose to be the same Drought, and either that it continu'd two Years, or at least in Part of these two Kings Reigns.

26. About the End of Josiah's Reign, we may place the Prophet Habakkuk. Anno 608. As he is set in the Scriptures before Zephaniah; so we may suppose, that when these Books were settl'd by Ezra in their Order, there was Reason to think, that he was the first in Order of Time. He is suppos'd by some to have liv'd in the Time of Manasseh; and for this Purpose they apply to him and Nabum, (c) what is mention'd in the Book of Kings: The LORD spake by his servants the prophets, saying, Because Manasseh king of Judah hath done these abominations, therefore I am bringing evil upon Judah and Jerusalem, that whosoever heareth of it, both his ears shall tingle: which they reckon to be the same in Effect with (d) what this Prophet saith, Behold ye, and regard, and wonder marvellously, for I will work a work in your days, which ye will not believe, tho' it be told you. For lo, I raise up the Chaldeans. This may in general Terms be said of Habakkuk and Zephaniah; but will not prove, that therefore either of them liv'd in the Reign of this King; and neither of them mention his Name. On the other Hand, these Words do rather refer to the Prophecy of Jeremiah, who (e) mentions this very Name: And I will cause them to be removed into all kingdoms of the earth; because of Manasseh king of Judah, for that which he did in Jerusalem: And yet it is certain, that Jeremiah did not begin to prophesy in Manasseh's Reign, but (f) in the thirteenth Year of Josiah his Successor. We may therefore better place Anno 610. the Prophet Habakkuk near the End of the Reign of Josiah, and the Prophet Zephaniah soon after; and so (g) they will both fall in with the Anno 609. Prophecies of Jeremiah. It is certain, that (h) they prophesy'd the same things, which Jeremiah did, and upon the same Occasion, which is (i) Destruction and Desolation upon Judah and Jerusalem, because of the heinous Sins which they were guilty of. Zephaniah doth not name the Babylonians or Chaldeans, who were to be the Executioners of GOD's Wrath upon them, as (k) Jeremiah and (l) Habakkuk do. But then he tells us, that (m) this great day was near, and (n) the Punishment should be inflicted on the princes, and the king's children, who were then alive. As for Habakkuk, neither the Time in which he liv'd, nor the Parents, from whom he was descended, are any where nam'd in Scripture. But the Prophecy of the Coming of the Chaldeans, in the same Manner as Jeremiah did, gives Reason to conjecture, that he liv'd at the same Time. It is expressly said of Zephaniah, that (o) he prophesied in the Days of Josiah; and in his Pedegree his Father's Great Grandfather is (p) call'd Hezekiah, which some take to be Hezekiah King of Judah, and therefore reckon him to have been of the Royal Family. If so, he must spring from a younger Brother of Manasseh; and as (q) Manasseh at this Time would have been an hundred Years old, so let us suppose the younger Brother to be four Years younger, and allow two and twenty Years of Age to each of the three Generations, it will bring Zephaniah to be (r) thirty Years old at this Time, which is the Time in which they enter'd upon the Priests Office; and the Year in which the next Prophet, or Ezekiel, was call'd to both, as will appear in its proper Place.

27. There is another Reason to date the eleventh Chapter of the Prophet Jeremiah in Josiah's Reign, because (s) he speaks of the Covenant, which (t) that King had made with the People to serve the LORD, and walk according to the Law of Moses, which was found and read to them. This Covenant he exhorts them religiously to keep, and reproves them for Disobeying it. The twelfth Chapter is also of the same Date, as (u) referring to the same thing. Thus also (x) the eleventh Chapter mentions a Conspiracy of the Men of Annathoth against Jeremiah, and (y) the twelfth seems to speak of it, as a thing but newly past. The fourteenth and six following Chapters were written in Anno 608. the Beginning of the Reign of Jehoiakim. Anno 607. and (z) foretel the Captivity, Anno 606. which happen'd at the (a) latter End of his third, or (b) Beginning of his fourth Year; and these (c) are suppos'd to be the words of the LORD, which he spake by one of his servants the prophets. And he plainly intimates, (d) that this first Violence and Spoil had not yet happen'd, but (e) he was a Shame, a Reproach, and a Derision daily, because what he had prophesied was not accomplish'd.

28. After these follow the twenty sixth and (f) Part of the twenty seventh Chapter. They are both dated in the (g) beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah. This Beginning of his Reign doth not signify the first Year, but may be taken in a larger Sense for either of his three first Years. Of this we have an Instance in his Successor Zedekiah, where (h) the fourth Year is call'd The beginning of his reign. The Reason of both these Expressions is, because of the double Condition and Change that these Kings underwent in the Time of their Reign. Jehoiakim for about three Years reign'd by a Deputation from Pharaoh-nechoh King of Egypt, but the rest of his Time he reign'd by a Deputation from Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon. In the same Manner (i) the fourth Year of the Reign of Zedekiah is call'd The beginning of his reign. Because his first seven Years he reign'd in Subjection to the King of Babylon; but the rest of his Time he reign'd as rebelling and casting off the Babylonian Yoke: so, that the Time of either of these Kings, before this Change and Alteration beset them, is call'd The beginning of their reign, and what happen'd afterward may be call'd The latter End of it.

29. In the fourth Year of Jehoiakim, which was (k) the first Year of the Reign of Nebuchadnezzar according to the Jewish Account, Jeremiah (l) reproves the Disobedience of the Jews, and foretels the seventy Years Captivity, which accordingly began this Year, and after that the Destruction of Babylon. Under the Type of a Cup of Wine he shews the Indignation of GOD against Jerusalem and all the Nations round about it, and at last against Sheshbazzar or Babylon it self. This is mention'd in the twenty fifth Chapter; and immediately upon this he publisheth the forty sixth Chapter, in which he foretels (m) the Overthrow of the Egyptian Army by Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon at Carchemish by the River Euphrates, and also his Conquest of Egypt immediately after. He begins (n) this Chapter with The word of the LORD, which came against the Gentiles; and therefore this being a comprehensive Expression, may take in the rest of the following Chapters on the same Subject, as particularly the forty seventh and forty ninth Chapters, which have not any special Date annex'd to them.

30. Soon after this, and in (o) the same Year, Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon (p) having beaten the Army of Pharaoh-nechoh King of Egypt, and retaken Anno 605. Carchemish, march'd toward Syria and Palestina to recover those Provinces again to the Babylonian Empire; on whose Approach (q) the Rechabites finding no Security from this Invasion of the open Country, retir'd for their Safety toward Jerusalem, where was transacted between them and Jeremiah what we find related in his thirty fifth Chapter. This is plac'd so far back, that all the Prophecies relating to the Disobedience of the Jews to GOD, might be first laid together, and they be made more inexcusable by the Obedience of the Rechabites to Jonadab their Father. Most Authors have plac'd Nebuchadnezzar's Coming against Judea in the Year before; but Dr. Prideaux hath given good Reasons, (r) why it ought to be plac'd in this Year.

31. This Year also (s) Baruch writes the Prophecy of Jeremiah in a Book, and reads it in the House of the LORD upon the Day of a solemn Fast, suppos'd to be the Day of Expiation, or the tenth Day of the seventh Month. This Chapter lies after many Prophecies in the Time of Zedekiah; but the Reason is, that all (t) the Prophecies relating to the Babylonish Captivity might be first plac'd together, and then (u) the Relation of Jeremiah's Sufferings might be added in the same Manner; after that (x) other historical Transactions, and then (y) the particular Prophecies against other Nations, with GOD's Mercies toward Judah and Jerusalem, and so (z) conclude the Book with the History of Zedekiah's Reign and Captivity. And thus among the Sufferings of Jeremiah this of Baruch is plac'd first, because it was first in Order.

32. But Baruch being (a) very much affrighted at the Threatnings of the Roll, which he had thus wrote and publicly read, the Prophecy which we have in the forty fifth Chapter of Jeremiah, was sent from GOD to comfort him, and to assure him, that in the Midst of all the Calamities, Destructions and Desolations which should befall that Country, he should have a comfortable Subsistence, and his Life should be preserv'd wherever he went. Thus this Chapter seems at first Sight to be put very much out of its proper Place: But the Looking back into the forty third and forty fourth Chapters, and Considering the Scope and Design of them, will let us see the Reason not only for this, but also for the following Chapter. Upon Johanan's Carrying the People into Egypt contrary to the express Word of GOD, Jeremiah declares sad things (c) against the Jews now in that Country. At this Time Johanan had (d) carry'd Baruch with him into Egypt, together with Jeremiah, that if the Destruction threaten'd did come upon that Country, they should perish with it, or otherwise they should be put to Death as false Prophets. So that as the Story of Jethro's (e) Coming to the Camp of the Israelites is mention'd immediately after the Curse pronounc'd against Amalek (tho' it happen'd at another Time) to shew, that he himself fell not under that Curse, tho' he liv'd in that Nation; so the Prophecy of Baruch's Safety in Egypt is plac'd after some Prophecies relating to the Destruction of the Country, to shew, that this was a particular Exception to the general Rule.

33. After the Insertion of this comfortable Word for Baruch in Egypt, is plac'd (as was before-mention'd) the forty sixth Chapter, beginning the Prophecies of Jeremiah against other Nations. It is plac'd the first of these, as being spoken long before the rest, even in the fourth Year of Jeboiakim's Reign, that so all the Threatnings against Egypt, tho' deliver'd at several Times, might be plac'd together. And also, that the Accomplishment of this Prophecy deliver'd in Jeboiakim's Time, and soon after fulfill'd upon Pharaoh-nechob's Army, might be a Confirmation, that Israel in Egypt must expect the like Truth of the Prophecies deliver'd to them there, which mention'd the like Destruction to come upon it by Nebuchadnezzar.

34. Baruch having read the Roll (as is before related) in the fourth Year of Jeboiakim, and in the seventh Month, which answers in Part to our September, the City of Jerusalem was taken (f) in the ninth Month, which answers in Part to our November. At the Time of this Captivity (g) Daniel and his three Companions were carry'd into Babylon, as he himself (h) mentions, when their Names were alter'd, for they (i) call'd him Belteshazzar, and the other three Shadrach, Meshech and Abdnebo.

35. This Year was the first of the seventy Years Captivity (k) so often spoken Anno of; at the End of which came the 605. Decree of Cyrus for the Return of the Jews and the Rebuilding of the Temple. For the right Computation of which it must be consider'd, that there were three Captivities of Jerusalem by the Babylonians. The first was in the fourth Year of (l) Jeboiakim, the other in the Year of (m) Jeboiachin, and the third in the eleventh Year of (n) Zedekiah. Now it is plain, that the first of these seventy Years began from the fourth Year of Jeboiakim, because it is most proper to begin the seventy Years Captivity in Babylon, from the first Time that any Captivity in Babylon did begin, rather than from the last. And secondly, Because it is prophesied, (o) that not only the Jews, but also all Nations round about them, should serve the King of Babylon seventy Years. So that these seventy Years may be counted as the Time and Space since the absolute Monarchy of Babylon, and they are to begin from the Beginning of Nebuchadnezzar's Reign, the first Monarch.

36. It cannot be denied, but another Difficulty occurs, because the Beginning of Nebuchadnezzar's Monarchy is (p) fix'd to be in the third Year of the Reign of Jeboiakim, and not in his fourth. But the Answer is, that he began to reign over other Nations in the third Year, but over Jerusalem in the fourth. So that the seventy Years over one might be compleat, but the seventy Years over the other might be only current. Or it may be thus answer'd, That as these two Epochas began, so they ended almost a Year later. For the Babylonish Power ceas'd over other Nations, the very Night that Babylon was taken by Cyrus, and Belsazzar slain; but the Restoration of the Jews did not begin, until Cyrus was settl'd (q) in full Power over the whole Empire, which took up some Time, and after that issu'd out his (r) Proclamation for that Purpose.

37. There is yet another Difficulty remaining. For (s) in Daniel it is said, that in the third year of Jeboiakim king of Judah came Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon unto Jerusalem, and besieged it; and it is certain, that he took it, in the same Year that he besieged it. But the Words in the Hebrew express it to be in the third year of the kingdom. For the Explaining whereof we must have recourse to (t) the History, which is thus: Pharaoh-nechob put Jeboabaz in bands at Riblah in the land of Hamath, that he might not reign in Jerusalem. And Pharaoh-nechob made Eliakim the son of Josiah king in the room of Josiah his father, whom he had slain at Megiddo, and changed his name to Jeboiakim. Had the People of the Land been able to have made him King it would have been done immediately; but it being out of their Power, Pharaoh did it when he thought convenient, which was the Year following. So that the Date of his Reign might begin from the Captivity of his Brother; but the Date of his Kingdom, which Daniel mentions, began in the following Year, when he was (t) settled in it.

36. At the End of the fourth Year of Jeboiakim King of Judah (u) Daniel and his three Companions betake themselves to an Austerity of Life, but once more to be parallell'd in all the Scripture, and that was in John the Baptist. But tho' they had refus'd the Court Diet, yet their Countenances did appear fairer and fatter in Flesh than the rest, to shew, that Man did not live by bread alone, but by an over-ruling Providence.

37. In the fifth Year of Jeboiakim King of Judah, and the ninth Month, (x) upon another Fast Day Baruch reads the Roll again in the Temple; which being told to the King, he sends for it, and order'd it to be read before him. Upon which being in a Rage he first cuts it in Pieces, and then burns it; which occasion'd (y) a severe Prophecy against him, and (z) the Writing of another with many Additions.

38. Toward the End of the fifth Year of Jeboiakim (a) Nabopolassar the King of Babylon, and Father of Nebuchadnezzar, dies; upon which he hastens the nearest Way to Babylon, leaving the Gros of his Army with the Prisoners and Prey to be brought after him, and succeeded his Father in the whole Empire, over which he reign'd three and forty Years, the first of which begins from the twenty first Day of January following, which is the Babylonish Account; from which the Jewish Account differs two Years, as reckoning his Reign from the Time in which he was admitted to be a Partner with his Father. From hence we have a double Computation of the Years of his Reign, the Jewish and the Babylonian. Daniel being in Babylon follows the latter; but all other Parts of Scripture, which mention him, follow the other.

39. In the Beginning of the seventh Year of Jeboiakim, which was the second Year of Nebuchadnezzar according to the Babylonish Account, and the fourth according to the Jewish Account, at (b) the End of three Years Daniel and his Companions were brought before the King, and receiv'd into Favour. In the same Year according to the Babylonish, but the fifth according to the Jewish Account, Daniel (c) reveal'd to Nebuchadnezzar his Dream, upon which he was advanc'd to great Honour, and made chief of the Governors over all the wise Men, and chief Ruler over all the Province of Babylon, Anno 602. and one of the chief Lords of the Council, who always continu'd in the King's Court, he being then about the Age of two and twenty. Upon this he (d) recommended his three Companions, who were accordingly prefer'd to Places of honourable Trust under him in the same Province.

40. The same Year (e) Jeboiakim, after he had (f) serv'd the King of Babylon three Years, rebell'd against him, and enter'd into a Confederacy with Pharaoh-nechub for this Purpose. Nebuchadnezzar being engag'd in other Affairs, could not prosecute the War, until the (g) eleventh Year of Jeboiakim's Reign, when his Army being join'd together, besieg'd him in Jerusalem. At this Time Jeboiakim, making a Sally upon them, was kill'd with the Sword, and his dead Body was cast out into the high Way without one of the Gates of Jerusalem, allowing it no other Burial than that of an Ass, as (h) the Prophet Jeremiah had foretold, which was to be cast out into a Place of the greatest Contempt, there to rot and be consum'd to Dust in the open Air. This Captivity happen'd in the seventh Year of Nebuchadnezzar, in which it is said, That he carry'd away Captive (i) three thousand Jews and three and twenty: and the Prophet Jeremiah places this Account with two others of the same Nature, because he would mention all the Captives which were carry'd away, and had not been mention'd in any other Part of Scripture. And thus it is distinguish'd from the Captivity of Jeboiachin in the (k) eighth Year of Nebuchadnezzar, in which he carry'd away above eighteen thousand.

41. Jeboiakim being dead, is succeeded by his Son. He is call'd (l) Jechoniah, or (m) Jeboiachin, both Names signifying The LORD shall establish, the Nominative Case being before the Verb in the one and after it in the other. He is also call'd (n) Coniah, or The LORD is my Establishment. He was no sooner seated on the Throne, but he was tumbled from it. This the Prophet Jeremiah mentions at large in the thirteenth Chapter, where he laments his Fate in (o) very heavy Expressions: Mine eye shall weep sore and run down with tears, because the LORD's flock is carried away captive. Say ye to the king, and to the queen, or to the King's Mother, Humble your selves, sit down; for your principalities shall come down, even the crown of your glory. How this was fulfill'd, appears only from (f) the Repetition of the History. Nebuchadnezzar came against the city of Jerusalem, and his servants did besiege it. And Jehoiachin the king of Judah went out to the king of Babylon, he and his mother, and his servants, and his princes, and his officers; and the king of Babylon took him in the eighth year of his reign. And he carried away all Jerusalem, and all the princes, and all the mighty men of valour, even ten thousand captives, and all the crafts-men and smiths: none remained, save the poorest part of the people of the land. And he carried away Jehoiachin into Babylon, and the king's mother, and the king's wives, and his officers, and the mighty of the land, those carried he into captivity, from Jerusalem to Babylon. And all the men of might even seven thousand, and crafts-men, and smiths a thousand, all that were strong and apt for war, even them the king of Babylon brought captive to Babylon. Here the Accomplishment of the Prophecy is plain; but why it was plac'd so early is not easy to be determin'd. Perhaps the Reason might be, because the last (g) Verse of the foregoing Chapter threatens in general, that GOD would utterly pluck up and destroy that Nation; and this is plac'd after it as another Prophecy how this Desolation should begin. Besides, in the former Chapters, he (h) frequently taxes them as a foolish people, and without understanding; and this Chapter refers to the Captivity, where they seem branded as such. Fortho' the Masorites render it (i) All the mighty of the land, yet the Text calls them The Fools of the Land. To this may be added, that the twenty second Chapter of the Prophet Jeremiah seems to have three Dates. The first is in the Anno Beginning of the Reign of Jehoiakim, 609. soon after the Death of Josiah, when (k) all Israel, and particularly the Prophet Jeremiah, lamented his unfortunate End; and (l) the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the Valley of Negiddo, where he was slain, became a Proverb to signify a very great Lamentation. But now (m) Shallum or (n) Jehoabaz the Son and Successor of Josiah being carry'd away Captive into Egypt, exhorts them to turn the Stream of their Sorrow another Way: (o) Weep not for the dead, or for good King Josiah now in Peace, neither bemoan him; but weep sore for Shallum or Jehoabaz, who is carried away; for he shall return no more, nor see his native country. Upon this the Prophet Jeremiah exhorts King Jehoiakim to Repentance and Amendment, both with Promises and Threatnings. But neither this nor the first Captivity having any Influence upon him; but his Restoration making him more proud and secure, the Prophet now denounces (p) only Threatnings which were fulfill'd in the last Year of his Reign, when he was (q) bound in Chains to be carry'd as a Captive into Babylon, and had been carry'd away, if (r) his sudden Death had not prevented it. Upon the Settling of (s) Jehoiachin or (t) Coniah upon the Throne, the Prophet declares the same Judgments against him, which about three Months after were executed accordingly, and he was carry'd to Babylon. So that his Speaking not only of the Captivity of Jehoabaz, but also of Jehoiakim the Father, and Jehoiachin the Son, which were so like each other, and happen'd so soon after, may be the principal Reason that they are plac'd together in the same Chapter.

42. Besides this there is another Prophecy (u) against Jehoiachin by the Name of Coniah, in which his Captivity is foretold, and the Failing of Solomon's House in him, almost in the same Terms with the other. And I will cast thee out, and thy mother that bare thee into another country, where ye were not born, and there shall ye die. This very properly follows what was mention'd before of the Death of his Father, because there was but three Months Distance between the one and the other. And thus, when (x) the dead Body of Jehoiakim was cast out in the day time to the heat, and in the night to the frost, it was not long before he had none of his Seed to sit upon the throne of David.

43. That the three Months of Jehoiachin's Reign are included in the last Year of Jehoiakim's or his Father's Reign, is evident, because (y) the eleventh Year of Zedekiah, and the nineteenth of Nebuchadnezzar, do fall in together. And it is also said, that (z) when the year was expired, Nebuchadnezzar sent and brought him to Babylon. In this Captivity (a) Mordecai the Uncle of Esther was carry'd away out of the Land of Judah; and so was also the Prophet Ezekiel the Son of Buzi of the House of Aaron; and therefore from thence he dates the Account of his Prophecies, and sometimes calls it (b) the year of king Jehoiachin's captivity, and sometimes (c) the year of our captivity.

In the Text it is מְלָכִים, The Fools; but the Masorites make it מְלָכִים, The mighty Men. (k) 2 Chron. 35. 20 to the End. (l) Zech. 12. 11. (m) Jer. 22. 11, 12. 44. In Comparing the Story of Jehoiachin there appears one remarkable Scruple : For (d) the Book of Chronicles saith, he was eight years old, when he began to reign, and (e) the Book of Kings saith, that he was eighteen. Now we must not expect Propriety in Expressions, which are so very different; but the one is to be taken properly, that he was eighteen years old, when he began to reign, and the other that he was the son of the eighth year, after some other Reckoning. Thus this refers us to the Year, when the first Captivity of Judah did begin; for the Beginning of his Reign was in the (f) eighth Year of the Reign of Nebuchadnezzar, which was also the eighth of the seventy Years Captivity so often mention'd. An Instance of the same Nature we have in Ahaziah, where (g) one Book saith, that he was two and forty years old, when he began to reign, and the other (h) only saith, that he was two and twenty.

45. But the Prophet Jeremiah having threatned the Destruction of Solomon's House, he calls the (i) Earth, Earth, Earth to bear the word of the LORD; that the earthly Kingdom was now to decay, and therefore a Kingdom of another Nature was to be expected. Accordingly he describes this King and Kingdom in (k) the next Chapter; so that when he had foretold the Ruin of Solomon's House, and the Failure of the earthly Kingdom in the House of David in the former Chapter, he speaks of the MESSIAH, who should be of his Seed, and the everlasting Kingdom, which he should govern. And then he pronounceth Woes against those cursed Shepherds and Pastors, who had caus'd the Kingdom to be remov'd from the Seed of David, and brought the Temple of Solomon to Ruin.

46. The following Year Zedekiah is made King, and liv'd a wicked Life, as (l) Anno the Prophet Jeremiah describes him. 597. He was in Reality (m) the Uncle of Jehoiachin his Predecessor, and fifteen Years (*) younger than his Brother Jehoiakim, who had reign'd before; and therefore he was (n) call'd Mattaniah, or The Gift of the LORD, as born when his Father was of a considerable Age. He is also call'd (o) the Brother of Jehoiachin, that is his Kinsman, and (p) his Son, as succeeding him in the Throne. When the King of Babylon made him King instead of his Nephew, he took a solemn Oath, that he would be true and faithful to him; and therefore the King of Babylon chang'd his Name to Zedekiah, or The Justice of the LORD, intending thereby to put him in Mind of the divine Vengeance, that would light upon him, if he should break the Oath, which he had so solemnly taken.

47. In this first Year of (q) the Reign of Zedekiah, when (r) Nebuchadnezzar had carry'd so many of the People into Captivity, the Prophet Jeremiah saw (s) a Vision of two Baskets of Figs, the one very good, and the other very bad. The good Figs were a Type of those, who were carry'd away Captives, shewing the Care which GOD had over them, and that in due Time they should return; and the bad Figs were a Type of those who stay'd behind, and signify'd their Destruction.

48. As the (t) fourth Year of Zedekiah is call'd the beginning of his reign, for a Reason already mention'd; so we may take the same Expression in other Places in the same Sense. Accordingly in this fourth Year, the Prophet Jeremiah had (u) Anno reveal'd to him the Confusion which 594. should be brought upon Elam (a Kingdom lying upon the River Ulai, being (x) the Posterity of Elam the Son of Shem) and the Restoration which GOD would give to it, which came to pass accordingly. For (y) it was first conquer'd by Nebuchadnezzar; but afterward joining with Cyrus to conquer those who had conquer'd them, it so prosper'd afterward, that Shushan, the chief City of that Province, was made the Metropolis of the Persian Empire, and had the Throne of the Kingdom erected in it. This Prophecy is plac'd so far back, that it might be laid with others of the same Nature, and the Threatnings against all the foreign Nations might be read together. Elam (z) join'd with Babylon against Judea, and is therefore join'd here with (a) the Prophecies against Babylon it self.

49. In the Beginning of the Reign of Jehoiakim, Jeremiah was (b) commanded to make Yokes, and Bands, and put them upon his own Neck, in Token of Judah's Subjection to the King of Babylon. This happen'd in the fourth Year of Jehoiakim's Reign. The Prediction was before Nebuchadnezzar was King of Babylon, or the Name of Zedekiah was thought of, as an Heir to the Kingdom of Judah. However the Prophet was farther admonish'd, that when such Kings by Name should enjoy their respective Kingdoms, and the Edomites,

(*) For his Brother Jehoiakim was five and twenty Years old when he began to reign, and reign'd 11 Years, 2 Kings 23. 36. and his Brother, who succeeded him, was but 21 Years old at the Time when he began to reign, 2 Kings 24. 18. (n) 2 Kings 24. 17. (o) 2 Chron. 36. 10. (p) 1 Chron. 3. 16. (q) 2 Kings 24. 10 to 18. (r) Jer. 24. 1. (s) Jer. Chap. 24. (t) Jer. 28. 1. (u) Jer. 49. 34 to 39. (x) Gen. 10. 21, 22. (y) Prideaux, Anno 598. (z) Isai. 22. 6. (a) Jer. 49. 34 to the End, and Chap. 50. 51. (b) Jer. 27. 1 to 12.

Moabites, Ammonites, Tyrians, Zidonians and others, should send Embassadors to Zedekiah, probably to consult about Shaking off the Babylonish Yoke, he should deliver these Yokes to them, to be sent to their respective Masters, as a Token that they must certainly be in Subjection, and that their Endeavours to the contrary should be of no Effect, until the Time of their Deliverance came. He is also commanded to (c) deliver the same Message to Zedekiah. This is the Subject of the twenty seventh Chapter, and was in the fourth Year of this King's Reign, as the first Verse of the following Chapter doth plainly date it.

50. For it was the (d) very same Year, when Hananiah prophesy'd falsely at Jerusalem the Restoring of the Captivity within two Years, and brake the Yoke, which was upon the Prophet Jeremiah's Neck. This was call'd a Teaching Rebellion against the LORD, and for this Crime he is struck dead within two Months.

51. At the same Time the Prophet (e) denounces heavy Judgments against the Moabites, (f) Ammonites, and (g) Edomites, who propos'd this Confederacy with Zedekiah; and as these had in their Turns been utter Enemies to both Judah and Israel, so he foretels the Judgments of GOD against their other Enemies, such as (h) Damascus, Kedar and Hazor. If these Chapters were not spoken at this Time, it is impossible to fix them to any certain Year; but they are plac'd where we find them, that all the Prophecies relating to foreign Countries might be laid together. However, what the Prophet did and spoke in this Manner had such an Influence upon Zedekiah and the other Kings, that they did not then enter into (i) the League which was propos'd at that Time, until it was strengthen'd by the Addition of the Egyptians and other Nations to it. But what the Prophet spoke of these Countries, was afterward fulfill'd. For whilst Nebuchadnezzar (k) lay at the Siege of Tyre, Nebuzaradan march'd against the Ammonites, and having destroy'd Rabbah their royal City, he carry'd their King and their Princes, and most of the chief of the Land, into Captivity; which was done by a just Revenge for the Part, which they had in the Murder of Gedaliah the King of Babylon's Governor in the Land of Israel. At the same Time also the other neighbouring Nations, such as the Philistines, the Moabites, the Edomites, and the Zidonians seem also to be harass'd and broken by the Excursions of the Babylonians, and to have all these Judgments executed, which not only this Prophet, but

(l) Ezekiel also had denounc'd against them. However the Prophet Jeremiah foretels, that GOD would bring again another captivity both upon (m) Moab and (n) Ammon. This if taken in a literal Sense is suppos'd to be fulfill'd, when (o) Judas Maccabeus and his Brother Jonathan obtain'd several Victories over the Edomites and Ammonites, and brought them into Subjection; and after that, when Hyrcaus (p) made himself Master of the Edomites, and forc'd them to embrace the Jewish Religion, by which Means they were incorporated into the same Nation, and the very Name was soon after lost. Others there are, who interpret it of the Conversion of these Nations in the last days to the Faith of CHRIST, and so submitting themselves to him.

52. The League being thus broken off, Zedekiah sends a very solemn Embassy to Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon by (q) Seraiah and several others, to assure him of their Fidelity, and to prevent all Misunderstandings. Thus this Seraiah was a (r) quiet prince, or the chief of those which were sent to treat of Peace; and went in the behalf of Zedekiah, as the Margin of our Bibles translates it, it being not likely, that he would venture himself in Person at this Juncture. Jeremiah takes this Opportunity to send two Letters to the Jews, who were there in Captivity. Of the first he seems to send a Duplicate, one by (*) Elasah the Son of Shaphan, and the other by Gemariah the Son of Hilkiah, to persuade the Jews to frame their Hearts, and compose their Minds for the seventy Years Captivity, with an Assurance, that they should afterward return to their own Land. There were two false Prophets there, call'd Ahab and Zedekiah, who withstood this, and would fain persuade the People to the contrary; and therefore Jeremiah prophesies of them, that they should be roasted alive. A third writes to Jerusalem against him, to have him punish'd, whose Name was Shemaiah; and therefore Jeremiah prophesies against him also, that he should be punish'd in Babylon, and die there.

53. However Jeremiah prophesying of (s) the Return out of Babylon, takes this Occasion to speak more largely of the Calling home, not only of the two, but also of the ten Tribes, to the Kingdom of CHRIST. Now tho' it is uncertain, whether he sent these two Chapters to Babylon with the rest, yet there is no Doubt, but they lie in their proper Place, where he is foretelling of the People's Return, and makes the one to be an Introduction to the other.

Pridcaux, Anno 129.

54. The other Letter, which he sends to the Jews at Babylon, is a Prophecy (t) of the Destruction of the City itself, and frequently intermixes the glorious Deliverances of the Jews. This is laid as the Conclusion of his whole Prophecy, as the greatest Comfort to his People, and the most glorious Deliverance of all. This he delivers to Seraiah the Brother of Baruch, commanding him (u) that when he should come to Babylon, he should read it upon the Banks of Euphrates; and when he should there make an End of Reading it, he should bind a Stone to it, and cast it into the Middle of the River, to signify thereby, that as that should sink, so should Babylon also sink, and never rise any more: which hath been fully verify'd; for about two thousand Years are now past, since Babylon hath been wholly desolate and without an Inhabitant. Whether Seraiah did according to this Direction, is not recorded. It is probable, that he did not. He might think, that such an Action would absolutely spoil all his Negotiation, and exasperate both Nebuchadnezzar and Zedekiah against him to the highest Degree. He might also look upon the Words as figuratively and not literally spoken; and the Destroying such a Letter as this, when the bare Sinking of a Stone would as effectually have represented what was intended, might give an Occasion for such an Interpretation.

55. In the (x) fifth Year of the Reign of Zedekiah, which was also the fifth Anno Year of Jehoiachin's Captivity into 593. Babylon, and the thirtieth Year from the Finding the Law of Moses in the Temple, and the great Reformation which follow'd thereupon in the eighteenth Year of King Josiah, and as may also be very well suppos'd, in the thirtieth Year of the Age of Ezekiel (he being (y) a Priest, and that being (z) the Age when the Priests enter'd upon their Function) he was call'd to be a Prophet among the Jews in their Captivity. He was by the River Chebar in Chaldea, where he seeth the Heavens open'd, as CHRIST at the same Age had the Heavens open'd to him (a) by the River of Jordan. This Year was also reveal'd to him the three hundred and ninety Years of GOD's Forbearance of the House of Israel, and his forty Years Forbearance with the House of Judah, and the Judgments which GOD would afterward inflict upon both, as they are contain'd in the first seven Chapters of his Prophecy.

56. This Year also Zedekiah King of Judah having the Prospect of a great Assistance from Egypt, and depending thereon, secretly contrives a Rebellion against the King of Babylon, and enters into Negotiations for that Purpose. The Reasons of Dating it this Year are first, Because the fourth Year of Zedekiah is call'd (b) The beginning of his reign; which shews his Condition till now to be unchang'd, and also because the Prophet Ezekiel in (c) the next Year pronounceth (d) very terrible Judgments against Zedekiah for Violating his Oath and Allegiance to the King of Babylon, and Seeking to Egypt for Help and Strength, that he might rebel against him. For in the next Year, which was (e) the sixth Year of Jehoiachin's and Ezekiel's Captivity, and the sixth Year of King Zedekiah's Reign, GOD foreshew'd by Types and Revelations to this Prophet, (f) the Taking of Jerusalem by the Chaldeans, Zedekiah's Flight from thence by Night, the Putting out his Eyes, and his Imprisonment and Death at Babylon, and also the Carrying away of the Jews into Captivity, the Desolation of their Country, and the many and great Calamities which should befall them for their Iniquities. All which is contain'd between the Beginning of the eighth, and the End of the nineteenth Chapters.

57. In the (g) seventh Year of the Reign of Zedekiah, which was also the seventh Year of Jehoiachin's and Ezekiel's Captivity, this Prophet had his 591. twentieth and three following Chapters reveal'd to him. In which GOD declares, that he will be consulted no more by the Elders of Israel, but reckons up all their Abominations, and speaks of the Judgments which were now hastening to come upon them. A (h) Sword is sharpen'd to be reveng'd on Jerusalem first, and Rabbah afterward; and Nebuchadnezzar is preparing to act against them both. It seems that the King of Ammon, like Zedekiah, had prov'd a Traitor to the King of Babylon; and this made him (i) in Doubt for some Time, which of the two he should first fall upon. In the Midst thereof this Prophet declares, that (k) they should be gather'd by the Gospel. And (l) tho' the Day of Vengeance was coming on this profane wicked Prince of Israel, and he would overturn, overturn, overturn the Crown; yet it should only be till CHRIST should come, whose Right it is, and GOD would give it him, so that he should (m) reign over the house of Jacob for ever, and of his kingdom there should be no end.

58. The next Year being the 124th Sabbatical Year, and the Year before the Anno Siege of Jerusalem, Zedekiah, the 590. Princes and the People, being terrify'd by the sad Declarations of these two Prophets, make a Shew of a Reformation; and for this Purpose they agree (u) to proclaim a Liberty for their Servants, according to (o) the Law of Moses.

59. In the ninth Year of the Reign of Zedekiah, and of Ezekiel's Captivity, in the tenth Month, and upon Anno the tenth Day of the Month, in the 589. very Depth of Winter, Nebuchadnezzar lays Siege to Jerusalem. This (p) Day is particularly taken Notice of, as (q) having been a constant Day of Fasting for this sad Occasion; and also (r) because on this very Day Ezekiel was told of it in Chaldea, when by the Type of a boiling Pot was foreshewn the dismal Destruction, which should thereby be brought upon that People; and by the Parable of a beloved Wife, for whom no Mourning was to be made, was shewn, that the Calamity of the Jews for the Ruin of their City and Temple, which was their Delight, should be beyond all Sorrow. However he saith in the (s) next Chapter, that GOD would take Vengeance upon the Ammonites, Edomites, Moabites and Philistines for their Insolency upon this Occasion.

60. Upon the Incamping of the Chaldeans against the City, Zedekiah the King (t) inquires of the Prophet Jeremiah, what would be the Event of this Siege; who tells him, that the Besiegers would certainly be absolute Masters of the City, burn it with Fire, take him Prisoner, and carry him to Babylon, that he also should die there, and that there was no Way to escape but by an immediate Surrender. This Chapter is put much before its proper Time for a particular Reason. In the Chapter immediately before, Pashur the Son of Immer in the Time of Jeboiakim (u) sets Jeremiah in the Stocks for Foretelling the Destruction of Jerusalem by the Babylonians; and now (x) Pashur the Son of Malchiah, in the Reign of Zedekiah, seeks to Jeremiah for a Remedy against the Babylonians, who had made good his Prophecy so far, that they had besieged Jerusalem. It is very remarkable, that one Pashur should thus oppose Jeremiah's Prophecying, and another should thus assert it. And for the better Observing thereof, the Chapters which contain these two Stories, are plac'd together.

61. In the Beginning of the tenth Anno Year of Zedekiah, the (y) Prophet 588. Jeremiah being under his Displeasure for what he had mention'd, was shut up in Prison; and whilst he was there, he (z) purchas'd of Hananeel, his Uncle's Son, a Field in Anathoth, thereby to shew, that tho' Judah and Jerusalem should be laid desolate, and the Inhabitants led into Captivity; yet there should be a Restoration, when Lands and Possessions should be again enjoy'd by the legal Owners, as in former Times.

62. In this Spring Pharaoh-Hophrah the King of Egypt, according to his League, marches with his whole Army to raise the Siege of Jerusalem. But being willing to enlarge his own Conquests, he takes (a) Gaza from the Philistines, thereby shewing, that he only minded his own Interest, without any Regard to his Confederate. This Town lay next to him in his March, being not far from the River Sihor, the Bounds of his own Country, and in the south Part of Palestina. But before this (b) the Prophet Jeremiah foretels the Destruction of the Philistines, not from them, but from others who should come out of the North, as it afterward happen'd, when Nebuchadnezzar lay at the Siege of Tyre, as is already mention'd. This Chapter is plac'd immediately after the Prophecy against (c) Egypt, as being its next Neighbour, and before (d) the Prophecies against other Countries, that they might all lie together.

63. Whilst Jeremiah was shut up in Prison, he had a (e) gracious Promise, that the Captives should return again into their own Land, where they should have a joyful State, and a settl'd Government. That CHRIST should come of the Seed of David, who should be both GOD and Man, or The LORD our righteousness. And under him there should be the Continuance of a Kingdom and a Priesthood. That all this was sure and certain, and should last till Day and Night should come to an End.

64. Jeremiah had not been long in Prison, but he was releas'd again. Upon which GOD commands him to (f) go once more to Zedekiah with the same Message, that the Babylonians, who were now besieging the City, should certainly take it, and burn it with Fire, that he should be their Prisoner, carry'd to Babylon, and should die there. However he should die a natural Death, and have an honourable Burial; which seems to be a Favour granted by the King of Babylon, in Consideration that he had once been a King like himself.

65. Pharaoh-Hophrah King of Egypt minding his own Interest more than the distressed Condition of Zedekiah, and tarrying to reduce the southern Parts of Palestina under (u) Ezek. 34. 8, 9, 10. (o) Exod. 21. 2, 3, 4. Deut. 15. 12, 13, 14, 15. (p) 2 Kings 25. 1. Jer. 39. 1, and 52. 4. (q) Zech. 8. 19. (r) Ezek. 24. 1, 2. (s) Chap. 25, throughout. (t) Jer. Chap. 21. (u) Jer. 20. 1, 2, 3, 6. (x) Jer. 21. 1, 2. (y) Jer. 32. 1 to 6. (z) Jer. 32. 6 to 26. (a) Jer. 47. 1. (b) Jer. 47. 2 to the End. (c) Jer. Chap. 46. (d) Jer. Chap. 48, 49, 50, 51. (e) Jer. Chap. 33. (f) Chap. 34. 1 to 8.

his own Subjection, Nebuchadnezzar raises the (g) Siege of Jerusalem to give him Battle, before he advanc'd farther into the Country. And before he went upon this Expedition, he (h) sent all the Captive Jews, which he had then in his Camp, to Babylon, the Number of which were eight hundred and two and thirty Persons.

66. The Inhabitants of Judah, thinking that the Chaldeans would return no more to the Siege of Jerusalem, shew their Hypocrisy, and repent of the Covenant of Reformation, which they had made, when they were in Fear of them, and cause (i) every Man his Servant, and every Man his Handmaid, whom they had set at Liberty, to return again into Servitude, contrary to the Law of GOD, and the Covenant which they had lately enter'd into. For which (k) inhuman and unjust Act, and their Breach of the Covenant (l) so lately made with GOD, Jeremiah proclaim'd a Liberty to the Sword, and to the Famine, and to the Pestilence, to execute the Wrath of GOD upon them and their King, and their Princes, and all Judah and Jerusalem, to their utter Destruction.

67. Upon the Departure of the Chaldeans from Jerusalem, (m) Zedekiah (who seems to have some Regret) sends Jebucal the Son of Shelemiah, and Zephaniah the Son of Maasejah the Priest, to enquire of the LORD by Jeremiah for himself and his People. To whom this Prophet returns an Answer from GOD, that the Egyptians, whom they did depend upon, would certainly deceive them, that their Army would return into Egypt without Giving them any Help at all, and that the Chaldeans would again renew the Siege, take the City, and burn it with Fire. Thus the thirty seventh Chapter of Jeremiah regularly follows the thirty fourth, the Reason of the Interposition of the thirty fifth and thirty sixth having been mention'd already.

68. Whilst the (n) Chaldeans were yet absent from Jerusalem, (o) Jeremiah prepares to retire to Anathoth his native Place, that he might avoid the Siege, which he knew would be renew'd on the Return of the Chaldeans from their Expedition against the Egyptians, and puts himself on his Journey thither: but as he was passing the Gate of the City, that led that Way, the Captain of the Guard seiz'd him for a Defserter, as if his Intentions were to go over to the Chaldeans; upon which he was again put into Prison in the House of Jonathan the Scribe, where he continu'd for a considerable Time.

69. But the Egyptians upon the Coming up of the Chaldeans against them, dar'd not to stay and engage with so numerous and well disciplin'd an Army, and flush'd with Success; for (as the (p) Prophet Jeremiah had foretold) they retir'd again to their own Country, and treacherously left Zedekiah and his People to perish in the War, in which they were now engag'd. Upon this (q) the Prophet Ezekiel reproaches them for their Perfidiousness, in thus becoming a broken Reed to those, whom by Oaths and Covenants they had made to lean and confide on them, and denounces GOD's Judgments upon them to be executed both upon King and People, in War, Confusion and Delolation, for the forty Years immediately following, as a Punishment for this Crime. And (r) he also foretold, that after that they should sink low, and become a bale mean People, and should no more have a Prince of their own to reign over them. Which, as (s) the learned Dr. Prideaux observes) hath accordingly came to pass. For not long after the Expiration of the forty Years, they were made a Province of the Persian Empire, and have been govern'd by Strangers ever since. On the Failure of the Persian Empire, they became subject to the Macedonians, and after them to the Romans, and after the Romans to the Saracens, and then to the Mamelukes, and they are now a Province of the Turkish Empire.

70. In this Chapter of Ezekiel, which denounceth these Threatnings against Egypt, there is a visible Dislocation. It is dated in (t) the tenth year, the tenth month, and twelfth day of the month; but (u) the three former Chapters are dated in the eleventh Year, the (x) next Prophecy is at a very considerable Distance, and (y) those which follow, are also in the eleventh Year. But the Reason of this Misplacing is easy to be apprehended: For first, This Prophecy against Egypt was in the tenth Year, as most properly meeting with it in the very Height of its Pride, and of Jerusalem's carnal Confidence in it. It seem'd to be now on Foot to raise the Siege of Jerusalem, and Jerusalem with all its Hope did rely upon it. So that at this very Time GOD declares, that it should come to nothing, and the Hope of the Jews should be utterly disappointed. Secondly, The Reason of Setting this Prophecy against Egypt, in the tenth Year after the Prophecy against Tyre, which was in the eleventh Year, is because Tyre was first to be destroy'd, and Egypt was to be (z) the Wages of Nebuchadnezzar for Destroying Tyre. And that this might be observ'd the better, the Threatning of the Destruction of Tyre, which was given after but executed before, is set before the Threatning of the Destruction of Egypt, which was indeed spoken first, but executed after the other.

(g) Jer. 37. 5. (h) Jer. 52. 29. (i) Jer. 34. 10, 11. (k) Jer. 34. 12 to the End. (l) Jer. 34. 10. (m) Jer. 37. 1 to 11. (n) Jer. 37. 11 to 15. (o) Jer. 37. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10. (p) Jer. Chap. 21. (q) Ezek. Chap. 29. (r) Ezek. 29. 13, 14, 15. (s) Prideaux, Anno 589. (t) Ezek. 29. 1. (u) Ezek. 26. 1. (x) Ezek. 29. 17. (y) Ezek. 31. 1. (z) Ezek. 29. 17, 18, 19, 20.

71. The Egyptians being retreated, Nebuchadnezzar (a) returns again to the Siege of Jerusalem, and Zedekiah (b) sends for Jeremiah out of the Prison, to consult with him what Word he had from GOD concerning the present Posture of his Affairs. To which he found, that there was no other Answer, but that he should be deliver'd up to the King of Babylon. However the Prophet so far prevail'd at this Time, that he was remov'd out of the publick Prison to the Prison of the King's Court, where he had an Allowance of a certain Portion of Bread out of the common Store, till the City was taken.

72. Zedekiah being now reduc'd to the last Extremities, sends (c) again to Jeremiah to enquire farther of him concerning the present War. The Chapter, which gives an Account hercof, is plac'd much before its proper Date, for a Reason already mention'd. Jeremiah answers, that GOD was much provok'd against him and his People for their Iniquities, and would therefore fight against the City, and smite it. That they who continu'd in the City should perish by the Sword, Famine and Pestilence, and they who went out to the Chaldeans, should have their Lives given them for a Prey. Several of the Princes and chief Commanders (d) being enrag'd at this Answer, perss the King against Jeremiah, as one who weaken'd the Hands of the Men of War and all the People; so that he being deliver'd over to them, they cast him into a Dungeon, where he must have perish'd, if (e) Ebed-melech an Eunuch of the Court had not interceded for him, and so deliver'd him thence. For which charitable Act he had (f) a Promise sent him from GOD of Mercy and Deliverance. This Prophecy happen'd before the Taking of the City, tho' it is plac'd after it; because when the HOLY GHOST had shew'd the Safety of Jeremiah in the common Destruction, he was willing to add the Safety of Ebed-melech according to Jeremiah's Prophecy.

73. After this Zedekiah sends for (g) Jeremiah into the Temple, and there secretly inquires of him; but he could get no other Answer from him, than what had been told him before, only an Assurance, that if he would immediately deliver up himself unto the King of Babylon's Generals, who commanded in the Siege, it might be the Means of Saving both himself and the City. Zedekiah instead of Harkening to him was offended at his plain and honest Answer, and so sends him back to Prison, and after that consults no more with him.

74. And now the fatal Year comes on, which compleated the Destruction of Jerusalem and the Captivity of the Tribe of Judah, in which the three hundred and ninety Years of (h) Ezekiel's Prophecy from the Setting up of the Golden Calf, and the (i) forty Years Forbearance of the House of Judah, under the Preaching of the Prophet Jeremiah, ended. On the first Day of this Year the Prophet Ezekiel declares GOD's Judgments (k) against Tyre for their Insulring over the Calamities of Judah and Jerusalem, foretelling that the same Miseries should be brought upon them by the same Nebuchadnezzar, into whose Hands GOD would deliver them. On the (l) seventh Day of the same Month, this Prophet speaks also of the Fall of Egypt, that GOD would bring the King of Babylon against them, and deliver them into his Hands. And on (m) the first Day of the third Month he hath another Prophecy to the same Purpose, in which he adds, that notwithstanding their Greatness and Pride, they should no more escape his avenging Hand, than the Assyrian had done before them, who were higher and greater than they.

75. In (n) the ninth Day of the fourth Month, as it is related by the Prophet Jeremiah, and also in (o) the Books of Kings and Chronicles, the City of Jerusalem was taken by the Chaldeans after they had sat down before it for about the Space of a Year; and so reduc'd it not only by the Sword, but also by (p) Famine, as (q) the Prophet Ezekiel had foretold. At this Time Nebuchadnezzar (r) gave a particular Charge to Nebuzaradan his General to take Care of Jeremiah, who immediately gives Orders to loose him out of Prison, and after that he was treated by them with the utmost Respect and Esteem.

76. On the seventh Day of the fifth Month (s) Nebuzaradan the General comes to Jerusalem, plunders the Temple, Palace and other Houses of the City; and on the tenth Day of the same Month he burns all with Fire, overthrows all the Walls and Forts, till he had made it an absolute Desolation; and sends all the Spoils to Babylon, with the chief of the Inhabitants, leaving only the Poor of the Land to be employ'd in Husbandry, over whom he makes Gedaliah the Son of Abikam their Governor.

77. Upon this sad Misery which beset Jerusalem, the Prophet Jeremiah composeth his Lamentations in the most doleful and elegant Manner. All the Chapters in this Book,

(a) Jer. 37. 8. (b) Jer. 37. 16 to the End. (c) Jer. 21. 1 to 14. (d) Jer. 38. 1 to 7. (e) Jer. 38. 7 to 14. (f) Jer. 39. 15 to the End. (g) Jer. 38. 14 to the End. (h) Ezek. 4. 5. (i) Jer. 39. 2, and 52. 6. (k) Ezek. Chap. 26, 27, 28. (l) Ezek. 30. 20 to the End. (m) Ezek. Chap. 31. (n) Jer. 39. 2, and 52. 6. (o) 2 Kings 25. 3. Jer. 52. 6. (p) Ezek. 4. 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 16, 17. (q) Jer. 39. 11, 12, 13, 14. (r) 2 Kings 25. 8 to 18. Jer. 52. 12 to 24. except except the last, proceed in an Alphabetical Order at the Beginning of each Verse like the 119th and some other Psalms, and the third Chapter repeats each Letter three Times. Only in all the Alphabets, except the first Chapter, there is a visible Dislocation between the two Letters γ Ain and ⲡ Pe, by Interchanging of them contrary to the constant Method. The Letter γ Ain signifies seventy; and the Transposition seems to shew the Confusion, in which the Prophet was, when he consider'd, that this Captivity should last seventy Years.

78. After Nebuzaradan had thus destroy'd this famous City, he resolves to return to his Master, but first makes a Rendezvous at Ramah, where he disposeth of some of his Prisoners for Enlargement, particularly Jeremiah and Ebed-melech. He enlarg'd Jeremiah, by the King of Babylon's Orders, who no Doubt heard of all his Prophecies relating to himself. And he discharg'd Ebed-melech upon the Intercession of Jeremiah, and Representing him as the Instrument of Preserving him in the Dungeon. After this he goes forward to Riblah, and there he brings his Captives, being seventy two in Number, to Nebuchadnezzar the King, who orders them all to be put to Death. There is a Difference between this Account in the Books of Kings and Jeremiah. The Book of Kings saith, that (t) Nebuzaradan took away from Jerusalem, Seraiah, Zephaniah, three Porters, a chief Officer over the Army, and the chief Secretary of the Army, five Men that were near the King, and sixty Men of the Land; that is, five out of the Temple, two out of the City, five out of the Court, and sixty out of the Country; and brought them to Riblah, and there the King of Babylon slew them. The Prophet Jeremiah agrees exactly in (u) all the Account but this, that he saith, he took away seven Men that were near the King; which he did indeed, but slew only five of them, for Jeremiah and Ebed-melech escap'd, as was mention'd already.

79. In this Captivity (x) Seraiah the High Priest was taken and slain, so that he and Zephaniah the second Priest or Sagan came to an End, as fatal as Hophni and Phinehas (y) had done at the Ruin of Shiloh. This Seraiah is suppos'd to have been the immediate Father of Ezra, for (z) no other Reason but because Ezra is call'd The son of Seraiah. But this is very unlikely. If Ezra was born the Year that this Seraiah died, he must have liv'd to an extreme Age, since an hundred and forty three Years after we find him (a) completing an Edition of the Law of GOD, by having it fairly written out in the Chal-

dean Character, and (b) afterward reading publickly in it, and explaining it from Morning to Mid-day; which could hardly be perform'd by any one except in the full Vigour of his Age. Ezra was indeed the Son of Seraiah, and also of this Seraiah, and yet there might be four Generations between them. In the same Genealogy (c) Azariah is said to be the Son of Merajoth, to avoid a Multiplicity of Names; tho' in (d) the Book of Chronicles there are seven Generations between them. And as seven were omitted whilst the Temple was standing, and the High Priests were in Esteem, so for the same Reason we may suppose others to be omitted, when the Temple was destroy'd, and the Office ceas'd.

80. What happen'd in the remaining Part of this unfortunate Year is mention'd by the Prophet Jeremiah (e) at the End of his Prophecies relating to Judah and Jerusalem, and before those which related to other Nations. The rest of the Story is this: After Nebuzaradan the General had loosed Jeremiah from his Bonds at Ramah, he gave him free Liberty to go either to Babylon or to Judea, with a Promise that he should be taken Care of in either Place. Jeremiah upon (f) the immediate Direction of GOD goes to Judea, to Gedaliah the Governor there. At this Time all those who for Fear of the Chaldeans had taken Refuge among the neighbouring Nations, or hid themselves in Woods and Desarts, come also to him. He assures them of his Protection, and so they apply themselves to sow their Ground, dress their Vineyards, and do all other Acts of Husbandry.

81. But Ishmael, one of the royal Family, (g) treacherously kills Gedaliah, with a Design to make himself King, in the seventh Month, or about two Months after the Burning of the Temple. This he conceal'd for a little while; and the next Day meeting with fourscore Men, who came with a religious Design to worship GOD on the Place, where the Ruins of the Temple stood, he (h) craftily drew them to Mizpeh, and there he slew them all, except ten Men, who offer'd their Stores to save their Lives. Ishmael fearing that he was not strong enough to keep Possession of the Country, takes all the Captives, and resolves to go over to the Ammonites for Protection. Johanan hearing of this, heads (i) all the Forces that he could get together, overtakes him in his March, and recovers the Captives; so that Ishmael only escap'd with eight Men, and fled to the Ammonites. Johanan fearing the Anger of the King of Babylon, resolves to flee with the Remainder of the Jews into Egypt for Protection. Jere- miah (k) endeavours to dissuade him from it, with the Promise of Safety in their own Country, and threatening their Destruction in the other; but all his Endeavours are to no Purpose. They all go into Egypt, and carry Jeremiah with them: When they came there, Jeremiah (l) foreshews by a Type the Conquest of Egypt by the Babylonians, as it afterward happen'd soon after the Taking of Tyre.

(d) 1 Chron. 6. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11. (e) Jer. Chap. 39, 40, 41, 42 and 43. (f) Jer. 40. 1. (g) Jer. 41. 1, 2, 3. (h) Jer. 41. 4 to 11. (i) Jer. 41. 11 to the End.

82. The Jews being now settl'd in Egypt, fall in a little Time to a common and open Idolatry, the Worshipping of the Moon, whom they call'd The Queen of Heaven. Jeremiah (m) now tells them, how they were lately made desolate for their former Crimes of this Nature, and threatens the utter (n) Destruction of those, who committed Idolatry in Egypt. The Men who heard him, declare that they would not hearken to what he said, but go on in the same Method; they vindicate their Wives for the same Crime; their Wives publicly own it, and that it was by the Consent and Approbation of their Husbands. Upon which he threatens them, that GOD would destroy them with the Sword and with the Famine, and only a very few should escape to be living Monuments of this Vengeance; and as a Sign of this, Egypt and the King thereof should be destroy'd by the King of Babylon, as Judah and her King had been before. There is Anno no certain Time when to date these 586. Transactions. This might possibly have been in the Year after the Jews went to Egypt; for (o) we find them very obstinate at that Time. However, the History is set in its proper Place as immediately following the rest, that all the Prophecies relating to Egypt might come together.

83. In the next Chapter it is said (p) that Baruch had written these words at the mouth of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah. This at first View seems very unlikely; for the six Chapters immediately before are a plain History, and could not be written till after the Facts; but the fourth Year of Jehoiakim was eighteen Years before. In Answer to this it may be said, That the Hebrew Text may be thus translated, Baruch had written these things at the mouth of Jeremiah. That is, All this is the same, which Baruch wrote eighteen Years before, as he had it from the Mouth of Jeremiah. Jeremiah utter'd Prophecies to this Purpose in the fourth Year of Jehoiakim, that Jerusalem should be destroy'd, that the Land should be left desolate, and the People carried Captives, and the Vengeance of GOD should follow them, until they did repent and amend. All this we find to be fully accomplish'd in these Chapters. The Design thereof is therefore to shew the Truth of those things, which that wretched King Jehoiakim would not believe, but (q) burnt the Book in the Fire. And this is the Subject of the other Copy, that (r) Baruch wrote, when the first was burnt.

(k) Jer. Chap. 42, and 43. 1 to 8. (l) Jer. 43. 8 to the End. (m) Jer. 44. 1 to 11. (n) Jer. 44. 11 to the End. (o) Jer. 42. 19 to the End, and Chap. 43. 1, 2, 3, 4. (p) Jer. 45. 1. (q) Jer. 36. 22, 23. (r) Jer. 36. 32.

But the fourteenth Year of Hezekiah beginning this Year before Seed Time, the Prophet encourages them in the most difficult Times to sow, that they might reap, and plant Vineyards, that they might eat the Fruit thereof, which they did accordingly. For Sennacherib was gone southward to the Siege of Libnah, and Tirhakah King of Egypt and Ethiopia coming against him, prevent all Excursions back again into the Contry, Isai. 37. 7, 8, and 2 Kings 19. 8, 9.

(a) By this we may observe, how populous the World might have been long before this Time without a Miracle. For let us suppose, that there were only three Generations in an hundred Years, and that each Father had two Sons and two Daughters, which is the least that can be suppos'd to make an Increase. In this Case there would be four and twenty Generations from the Departure out of Egypt to this Time. And accordingly from one Man might spring a Million of each Sex, as appears by Doubling the Number in each Generation. And as there were 600000 Men, who went out of Egypt, how great might the Number be in the whole World even at that Time?

C H A P. IV.

The CONCLUSION.

AS the Books of the Kings treat of the Kings both of Judah and Israel, and the second Book of the Chronicles treats of the Kings of Israel according to their natural Succession; so there happen but few Dislocations, and it will be the more easy to compare them both together. In which it will be observable, that some Histories of the Transactions of the Kings of Judah are generally repeated in both. Sometimes the History is shorter in one Book and larger in the other, and sometimes some Histories are wholly omitted in one Book, which are plainly and fully spoken to in the other; so that the Comparing of both together will the better illustrate both, and fix the Method of the whole. Which may be done in the following Order, from the Dedication of the Temple, to the Time when the Prophets began to prophesy, whole Writings are preserv'd in the Books of the Holy Scriptures, which go under their Names. And this will best appear, when the whole is rang'd in a Chronological Order after this Manner.

Anno ante CHRISTUM 1007. 1 Kings 7. 1 to 13. which is mention'd before the Story of the Dedication, though it was done after it, that the Account of all Solomon's Buildings might be laid together.

Anno 994. 1 Kings 9. 1 to 10, and 2 Chron. 7. 11 to the End. 1 Kings 9. 10 to 25, and 2 Chron. 8. 1 to 11. At this Time the Book of the Canticles comes most properly in, as being the Time, when Solomon wrote it.

1 Kings 9. 25 to the End, and Chap. 10 throughout, and 2 Chron. 7. 12 to the End, and Chap. 8 throughout.

Then the Book of Proverbs comes naturally in, as being the Time, in which Solomon is suppos'd to have made the greatest Part of them.

Anno 988. 1 Kings 10 throughout, and 2 Chron. 9. 1 to 29.

1 Kings 11. 1 to 14. and then the Book of Ecclesiastes. Solomon being suppos'd to have recover'd himself by Repentance after the Admonition of the Prophet there mention'd.

1 Kings 11. 14 to 41.

1 Kings 11. 41, 42, 43, and 2 Chron. 9. 29, 30, 31.

Anno 973. 1 Kings 12. 1 to 25, and 2 Chron. 10 throughout, and Chap. 11. 1, 2, 3, 4.

Anno 977. 1 Kings 12. 25 to the End, and 2 Chron. 11. 5 to the End. At the latter End of this Chapter in the Chronicles Rehoboam's Marriages are reckon'd up, and we are told, that he desired many wives. As this was the Fault of Solomon, and as Rehoboam was one and forty Years old, when he began to reign; so without Doubt he took several of them during the Life of his Father, and therefore this Story might have come in after, 1 Kings 11. 8. It is probable also, that he took some of them after the Retreat of Shishak. And the Expression, 2 Chron. 11. 17. They strengthened the kingdom of Judah, and made Rehoboam the son of Solomon strong, seems to direct us to such Affinities, and to a like Expression 2 Chron. 12. 13. where the same Story might be added, if there was any Need of a Repetition. However it is very properly plac'd where it is, because the former Verses speak of his Establishment and Prosperity, all which Particulars are now mention'd before the Story of his Declining. And as we are told immediately after, 2 Chron. 12. 1. that he forsook the law of the LORD, and all Israel with him, which brought in the following Calamities by Shishak King of Egypt; so the Mentioning of his many Wives immediately before may teach us to observe, that this was the original Cause of all the Wickedness and Idolatry in the Reign of Rehoboam, in the same Manner as it had been before in the Days of his Father Solomon.

Anno 977. 1 Kings Chap. 13, after which follows the eighty eighth Psalm, which was written by Heman the Ezrahite, when he was grievously troubled for the fatal Breach between the House of Israel and Judah, and for the Neglect of the Worship of GOD occasion'd thereby, Verse 18.

Anno 975. 1 Kings 14. 1 to 25, and 2 Chron. 12. 1.

Anno 974. 1 Kings 14. 25 to the End, and 2 Chron. 12. 2 to the End. After this follows the eighty ninth Psalm, which was written by Ethan the Ezrahite, in which he puts GOD in mind of his Promise to the House of David, complains that the Events did not answer his Expectation, and prays for Deliverance from these Troubles.

Anno 962. 1 Kings 15. 1 to 9, and 2 Chron. 13 throughout.

Anno 959. 1 Kings 15. 9 to the End, and 2 Chron. Chap. 14, 15, 16.

Anno 958. 1 Kings Chap. 16, 17, 18. 15, 20, and 21. 1 to 41.

Anno 918. After this 1 Kings 22. 41 to the End, and 2 Chron. 20. 31, 32, 33, 34, which contains the short History of Jehoshaphat, might have been plac'd any where; but it is plac'd

Chap. IV. The SCRIPTURE CHRONOLOGY.

plac'd where we find it, because of the following Transactions with Abaziah King of Israel.

2 Chron. Chap. 17.

Anno 902. 1 Kings 22. 1 to 41. 2 Chron. Chap. 18, and 2 Kings Chap. 1. which is nearly contemporary with it. For when Jehoshaphat went to the Battle at Ramoth-gilead, he left his Son Jehoram to govern the Kingdom, and Ahab did the same by Abaziah his Son; so that his Fall from the Lattice, and the Battle, happen'd near the same Time.

The Stories of Elijah the Prophet in the first Book of Kings are plac'd in their proper Order; but the Story of Elijah's being taken up into Heaven, 2 Kings Chap. 2. is plac'd before its real Time, that it might be connected with the preceding Story concerning him and Abaziah in the End of the former Chapter. The true Method and Reason of it hath been already mention'd, and therefore needs not to be repeated.

Elisha succeeding Elijah in the Prophetic Office, and the Power of Working Miracles, manifests the same in the next Chapter, 2 Kings 3. 11 to 20. by Procuring Water for Jehoshaphat King of Judah, Jehoram King of Israel, and the King or Deputy of Edom, after they had gone seven Days in the Wilderness, and were distress'd for Want of it; and by the Promise of a Victory, which succeeded accordingly the next Day. Immediately upon this there follows several remarkable Stories of Elisha, 2 Kings Chap. 4. 5. and 6. Verse 1 to 8. which are not in their proper Order of Time, because the HOLY GHOST would give an Account of all these Particulars at once, and leave the others to be related with the respective Histories of the Kings of Israel and Judah, to which they properly belong, as they are in 2 Kings 6. 8 to the End. Chap. 7. Chap. 9. 1, 2, 3. and Chap. 13. 14 to 22. The true Method is thus:

Anno 902. 2 Kings 3. 1. Abaziah being ill of his Fall, was unable to manage the Affairs of the Kingdom, and therefore Ahab constitutes his other Son Jehoram to act as his Viceroy in his Absence. Jehoshaphat also appoints his Son Jehoram to act in the same Manner.

2 Chron. 21. 1, 2, 3, 4. Jehoram Viceroy of Judah immediately upon this destroys all his Brethren.

2 Chron. 21. 12, 13, 14, 15. Upon this Elijah writes him a terrible Letter, threatening him with a sore Disease, which is plac'd at the End of his Reign, that the Prophecy and the Accomplishment might be read together.

2 Kings Chap. 2. Soon after this Elijah is translated up into Heaven, and Elisha begins to work Miracles.

2 Kings 4. 1 to 18. Elisha works more Miracles, and promises a Son to the Shunammite.

Anno 899. 2 Kings 4. 38 to the End. Chap. 5, 6, 7. Elisha works more Miracles.

Anno 897. 2 Kings 4. 18 to 38. 2 Kings 8. 1, 2. The Shunammite's Son is restor'd to Life. This is plac'd so, that the whole Story thereof may be read together.

Anno 897. 2 Kings 8. 16, 17, 18, 19. 2 Chron. 21. 5, 6, 7. Jehoshaphat makes Jehoram Viceroy of Judah again.

2 Kings 3. 4 to the End. Upon this Jehoshaphat takes Elisha with him into the Field, and goes with the Kings of Israel and Edom against the Moabites. This is plac'd so near, that it may lie nearer to the other Acts of Jehoshaphat, mention'd in the latter End of the other Book, and might not be mix'd with the Acts of his Son Jehoram.

Anno 896. 2 Chron. Chap. 19. Jehoshaphat at his Return visits his Kingdoms.

Anno 895. 2 Chron. 20 throughout. Jehoshaphat obtains a Victory over the Moabites, Ammonites, and others, and promotes a foreign Trade.

Anno 892. 2 Kings 8. 23, 24. 2 Chron. 21. 18, 19, 20.

Anno 890. 2 Kings 8. 3, 4, 5, 6. and 2 Kings 8. 7 to 16.

2 Kings 9. 1 to Verse 29. 2 Chron. 22. 5 to 10.

2 Kings 9. 29 to the End, and Chap. 10. 1 to 15.

Anno 889. 2 Kings 11. 1, 2, 3. This is postpon'd, that the History of Jehu might be taken in all at once in the former Chapter, 2 Chron. 21. 10, 11, 12.

Anno 883. 2 Kings 11. 4 to the End, and 2 Kings 12. 1, 2, 3. 2 Chron. 23 throughout, and 24. 1, 2, 3.

Anno 862. 2 Kings 12. 4, 5, 6. 2 Chron. 24. 4 to 10. After this comes the Death of Jehu, 2 Kings 10. 35, 36. which was plac'd before in the History of his Life.

Anno 861. 2 Kings 12. 6 to 17, and 2 Chron. 24. 10 to 15. Jehoahaz succeeds Jehu, 2 Kings 13. 1, 2.

Anno 858. 2 Kings 13. 3 to 8.

Anno 857. 2 Kings 13. 10 to 14.

Anno 856. 2 Kings 12. 17, 18. 2 Chron. 24. 23, 24, 25. 2 Chron. 24. 15, 16.

Anno 845. 2 Chron. 24. 17 to 23. 2 Kings 13. 1, 8, 9.

 Anno 840. 2 Kings 13. 20, 21.
 Anno 839. 2 Kings 13. 25. The Reason why all these Texts are not plac'd in an exact Chronological Order, is for the better Connexion of the History.

 Anno 834. 2 Chron. 25. 14, 15, 16.

From the Destruction of Jerusalem to the Birth of CHRIST.

ALL (a) our latest and best Chronologers agree, that from the Destruction of Jerusalem, the Burning of the Temple, and the Captivity of the Jews, in the eleventh Year of the Reign of Zedekiah, and the seventeenth Year of Nebuchadnezzar according to the Babylonian Account, to the Birth of CHRIST according to the Vulgar Account, there were 588 Years, and in this they agree with the Canon of Ptolemy, which is the surest Measure of Time, in all those Cases where the Scriptures are silent. And as they reckon this Number to the Year of CHRIST 1, whose Julian Period is 4714; so we may reckon 587 Years to the Year of CHRIST 00, whose Julian Period is 4713.

2. This Space of Time is divided into two Parts. The first Part contains the Space from the Destruction of Jerusalem to the End of the Scripture History of the Old Testament, or the last of the Prophets, or Malachi, being (b) about 160 Years, and the other begins from thence, and ends at the Birth of CHRIST, which contains about 427 Years.

3. To begin with the first of these: In the first Year of the Captivity of Anno Jehoiachin and Ezekiel, and the 585. eighteenth Year of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, in the tenth Month, and the fifth Day of the Month, there (c) comes a Person from Jerusalem to the Prophet Ezekiel then in Babylon, giving him an Account of the Manner how the City was taken and burnt, and the Condition of the Jews at that Time. This was almost a Year and an half after the Fact, so that we cannot suppose it to be the first Time that the Prophet heard of it; tho' it might be the first Time that any one of those, who were left behind, came afterward to Babylon, and discours'd with him on this Subject. This Messenger is said to be one who had escaped out of Jerusalem, and therefore it is probable, that he came from thence after the Murder of Gedaliah, when Johanan had driven Ishmael out of the Land, and was resolving to go into Egypt. Upon this his Mouth was opened again to prophesy to his own People, which he had not done before since the Day that Nebuchadnezzar first laid Siege to Jerusalem, tho' he had prophesy'd many heavy Calamities against other Countries, as appears in the former Chapters. In this Chapter he prophesies the utter Desolation of those who were then in the Land, and herein he seems to contradict the Prophet Jeremiah, who (d) prophesy'd Safety to them who dwelt in Judea, and Destruction to those who went into Egypt. In Answer to which it must be consider'd, that this Prophecy might be spoken before Johanan and the Forces went into Egypt; and tho' he prophesies of the Desolation of those who were then in their own Country, yet he doth not say that it should happen in their own Country, but it might be fulfill'd in Egypt. Besides, he prophesies against those who (e) stood upon their sword, and resolv'd to defend themselves by Force of Arms; who claim'd a Right to the Land from their Father Abraham, independent of any other, and that the Land was given to them for an inheritance; and therefore the Prophecy might be fulfill'd upon them when they were in Egypt, tho' the poor People of the Land (who apply'd themselves to Husbandry, submitted to the King of Babylon, and intermeddled not in State Affairs) were in Peace and Quiet, according to the Prophecy of Jeremiah. However, the Prophet Jeremiah prophesy'd only Safety to Johanan and his Forces, if they stay'd in the Land of Canaan, but said nothing of the rest. And therefore when they went to Egypt, the Promise was of no Effect, but they were afterward destroy'd by Nebuchadnezzar, as he told them; and four Years after their great Captivity, the poor Remainder of the Land were also carry'd to Babylon by the same Monarch: and tho' their Persons might be safe, yet their Land was made desolate of its former Inhabitants, which is all that the Prophet Ezekiel mentions.

4. In the same Year the Prophet Ezekiel (f) had a Prophecy against Egypt, on the first Day of the last Month, and (g) another to the same Purpose on the fiftenth Day of the same Month. The Dislocation of this Chapter is easily seen; for the Chapter already mention'd, which follows it, was dated in the twelfth Month, and this in the tenth of the same Year. But the Reason of it is very plain; because there are several Prophecies against Egypt and other Countries immediately before; and this is also brought to them, that they may all lie together.

5. We may therefore suppose, that it was very early in the Spring, or rather in the Winter, that Johanan the Son of Kareah, and the People that were left, fearing the King of Babylon, because of the Murder of Gedaliah, departed from Mizpah to (h) fly into the Land of Egypt, and came to Bethlehem in their Way thither. Here they (i) stopp'd for some Time, and consulted the Prophet Jeremiah (whom they had carried with them) about their intended Journey, desiring him to inquire of GOD concerning them, who after ten Days receiv'd an Answer, assuring them of Safety in Judea, and Destruction if they went into Egypt. But all this had no Effect with them. For they pursu'd their first Resolution, and (k) took Jeremiah and Baruch, and carry'd them with them. Upon this the Prophet (l) when he came thither, foretels by a Type the Destruction of the King of Egypt, and the Conquest of the Country by the Babylonians. All which happen'd within twenty Years after, (m) exactly as it had been foretold.

6. The Jews, who went into Egypt, gave themselves wholly up to Idolatry, (n) worshipping the Moon under the Title of the Queen of Heaven, and the other false Deities of the Land, and burning Incense to them without any Regard to the LORD their GOD. The Women make Cakes for such a Purpose, and declare that their Husbands were privy to it; and the Men vindicate their Wives in this Practice, and testify their Resolution of Going on as they had began. The Prophet Jeremiah cries aloud against them; but all being of no Effect, the (o) Word of the LORD comes to him, declaring their utter Destruction by the Sword and by the Famine, except only some few, who should make their Escape into the Land of Judah. And it was also declar'd as a Sign thereof, that Pharaoh-hophra King of Egypt should be given into the Hand of his Enemies, in the same Manner as Zedekiah had been given into the Hands of Nebuchadnezzar; and then they might be assur'd, that all those Words, which GOD had spoken against them, should be fulfill'd upon them. But all this working no Reformation, GOD ceas'd to strive with them in this Manner; and so we hear nothing more in Scripture of the Prophet Jeremiah.

7. About the same Time Nebuchadnezzar return'd to Babylon, with the Spoils which he had taken, and out of them he soon after (p) made the Golden Image in Honour of Bel his God, which he set up in the Plains of Dura. The Refusing to worship it, was the Cause that Shadrach, Mesbach and Abed-nego were cast into the burning fiery Furnace; but upon their miraculous Preservation they were advanc'd higher in the Province of Babylon, and Nebuchadnezzar publish'd a Decree, that no one, upon Pain of Death, should speak against the GOD, who had thus deliver'd them.

8. Soon after this we may suppose, that the Prophet Ezekiel had the thirty fourth and five following Chapters reveal'd to him. They are upon different Subjects, and therefore may be suppos'd to be penn'd at different Times; however we may take them at large to have been wrote between the twelfth Year of the Captivity of Jehoiachin, which was the Date of the thirty third Chapter, and the five and twentieth Year of the same, which was the Date of the fortieth. They all contain Comfort to the Jews, their being restor'd into their own Land, the Destruction of their Enemies, the Kingdom of CHRIST, and the Blessings consequent thereupon, and their happy State when they shall be converted to Christianity.

9. In the three and twentieth Year of the Reign of Nebuchadnezzar, according to the Jewish Account, Anno 583. whilst he lay at the Siege of Tyre, he sent Nebuzaradan the Captain of his Guard with Part of the Army to invade the Land of Israel, and revenge the Death of Gedaliah, who seiz'd on all the Race of Israel that he could meet with, made them Captives, and sent them to Babylon; so that in the Midst of all, their Lives were preserv'd, and they perish'd neither by Sword nor by Famine, as they afterward did, who went into Egypt. But they all (q) amounted to no more than 745 Persons, the rest being all fled away before. So that here is the last Blow given to the Jews by the Babylonians; and Judea and Jerusalem is in full and complete Captivity: At which Time we may suppose, that the Prophet Ezekiel compos'd the hundred and thirty seventh Psalms, which describ'd the Posture, Sorrow and Scorn of these captiv'd People; and withal, foretels the Destruction of Babylon at the appointed Time, and also of the Edomites, who acted their Parts in this dismal Tragedy.

10. In the five and twentieth Year of the Captivity of Jehoiachin and Ezekiel, Anno 573. and the fourteenth from the Destruction of Jerusalem in the eleventh Year of Zedekiah, GOD shews this Prophet the Vision, which he describes in his nine last Chapters, of a new Temple bigger than all the old Jerusalem, and a new Jerusalem bigger than all the Land of Canaan. These very Dimensions shew, that these things cannot literally but must spiritually be understood of the Gospel Times, when both Jews and Gentiles shall be call'd, and as the Prophet Isaiah (r) speaks more clearly, when the mountain of the LORD's house shall be established and exalted above the hills, and all nations shall flow unto it.

11. The following Year, Nebuchadnezzar made himself Master of Tyre, after Anno 572. a Siege of thirteen Years Continuance, where he lay (s) till every head was bald, and every shoulder peeled, by the Length and Hardship of the War. The Prophet Ezekiel hath another Prophecy against Egypt, upon (t) the first Day of the next Year, or in the Beginning of the Spring, in which he promileth Nebuchadnezzar the Spoils of Egypt (as a Recompence for his hard Service) which he conquers the same Year with little or no Opposition. At this Time most of the Jews, who had fled thither, fell into his Hands. Many of them he slew, and carry'd others Captives with him into Babylon. The few that escap'd, sav'd themselves by Fleeing out of Egypt, and afterward settl'd in their own Land at the End of the Captivity; and thus their Desolation spoken of by (u) the Prophet Jeremiah was fully accomplish'd. This is also the last Prophecy, which we have of the Prophet Ezekiel. And tho' in Order of Time it should be plac'd at the End of the Book; yet it is plac'd in the Middle, that all the Prophecies against Egypt might come together, and the Book might conclude with those which were last to be fulfill'd, and contain'd a more glorious Subject.

12. Two Years after this Nebuchadnezzar being return'd from his Egyptian Expedition to Babylon, had there the Anno 569. Dream of (x) the wonderful great Tree, and the Cutting down thereof, which (as Daniel interpreted it) signify'd such a Disorder in his Senses, that he abandon'd all Company, and liv'd in the open Fields for the Space of (y) almost seven Years, at the End of Anno 562. which his Understanding returning to him, he was reinstated in his Kingdom, and by a publick Decree he (z) acknowledg'd GOD's Almighty Power in his Punishment, and magnify'd the divine Anno 561. Mercy in his Restoration.

13. After this Nebuchadnezzar liv'd but one Year, and died in the (a) seven and thirtieth Year of the Anno 560. Captivity of Jehoiachin King of Judah, and Evil-merodach coming to the Throne, releas'd him out of Prison, and entertain'd him at his Table as long as he liv'd. And as this King reign'd but two Years, so we may conclude, that either this, or the following Year, was Anno 559. the Year in which Jehoiachin died.

14. After Evil-merodach succeeded Neriglissar, and then Belshazzar. In the first Year of his Reign (b) Daniel hath a Vision of the four Monarchies under the Representation of four Anno 554. Beasts; and after that he had a Vision of the Destruction of the (c) Persian Empire by Alexander the Great, represented to him in the same Manner, in the third Year of the same King's Reign, under the Anno 552. Representation of a Ram and an He-goat. These Chapters are plac'd later than their proper Order, that the Historical Part might be all plac'd together in the Be-

15. In the seventeenth or last Year of the Reign of Belshazzar, he was besieged in Babylon; and very much confiding in the Strength of the Place, he order'd the Vessels to be brought before him, which had been taken away from the Temple at Jerusalem, and upon this Occasion he (d) prais'd their own Pagan Deities, as the Cause of all their Prosperity. Upon this a Hand-writing on the Wall put him into a great Consternation, which Daniel interpreted to foreshew the Loss of his Kingdom. Accordingly he was (e) slain the same Night, and Darius the Mede is said to have taken the Kingdom; so that the Government of it is sometimes attributed to Darius and sometimes to Cyrus. The Case was this: Darius was the (f) Uncle of Cyrus, and had in his own proper Right the supreme Dominion of Media. Cyrus was a Persian by his Father, but the Nephew of Darius King of Media by his Mother; and he joining his Uncle with an Army of Persians, which came to his Assistance, was made the General of both, and so commanded at the Siege of Babylon. When this City was taken by (g) Cyrus, as long as Darius his Uncle liv'd, he allow'd him a joint Title with himself in the Empire, because it was all gain'd by his Valour, and out of Deference to him yielded him the first Place of Honour in it. So that the whole Power of the Army, and the chief Conduct of all Affairs, being still in the Hand of Cyrus, he only was look'd upon as the supreme Head of the Empire, which he had erected, and therefore there is no Notice at all taken of Darius in the Canon of Ptolemy. But immediately after the Death of Belshazzar (who is there call'd Nabonadius) Cyrus is plac'd as the next Successor. However Cyrus being absent from Babylon two Years in his Syrian, Egyptian, and other Expeditions, according to the Scripture Account the two first Years from the Death of Belshazzar is attributed to Darius the Mede, and the following Years to Cyrus the Persian.

16. As soon as Cyrus had settl'd his Affairs at Babylon, he (h) went into Persia, and on his Return thro' Media he marry'd the Daughter of his Uncle Darius, having with her the Reversion of the Kingdom of Media after her Father's Death; by which Means the Medes and Persians were united into one Empire. Upon this Darius and Cyrus return to Babylon, and there consulted together for the Settling of the whole Empire; and having (i) divided it into an hundred and twenty Provinces, they distributed the Government of them among those, who had born with Cyrus the chief Burden of the War, and had deserv'd best from him. Over these were appointed three Presidents, who constantly residing at Court were to receive of them from Time to Time an Account of all Particulars relating to their respective Governments, and send back to them the King's Orders on all Occasions. Over these Daniel was made the first, which drew upon him the Envy of the other two, and several of the Governors consulted together and laid that Snare for him, which cast him into the Lions Den. But he being deliver'd from thence by a Miracle, this malicious Contrivance ended in the Destruction of all its Authors, and Daniel was immediately settl'd in the Favour of Darius and Cyrus, and prosper'd greatly in their Time, which was as long as he liv'd.

17. This Deliverance of Daniel from the Lions Den, made him think more seriously of the approaching Deliverance of the Jews from their Captivity; and therefore comparing what was said in (k) the Prophet Jeremiah, that they should continue in this State for seventy Years, and finding that the Time was now expiring, he (l) earnestly prays to GOD that he would remember his People, and grant Restoration to Jerusalem, and make his Face to shine again upon the holy City, and the Sanctuary, which he had plac'd there. Upon this he had an Assurance given him by the Angel Gabriel, not only of the Deliverance of Judah from their temporal Captivity under the Babylonians, but also of a much greater Redemption, which GOD would give his Church from their spiritual Captivity under Sin and Satan; and after this the Destruction of the Legal Temple by the Romans, to make Way for the Evangelical. For the Accomplishment of which, the Angel fixes seventy Weeks in general, or four hundred and ninety Years of Chaldean Times, to begin (m) from the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem. These seventy Weeks are again divided into seven weeks, or 49 Years, threescore and two weeks, or 434 Years or Times, and one week, or seven Years or Times; which is also divided into two equal Parts, each consisting of about three Years and an half. This is allow'd to be the clearest Prophecy concerning the Coming of the MESSIAH, and (n) his Cutting off, as it is expressly call'd, of any which we have in the Old Testament. It fixes so many Chronological Periods, and is so full for the Confutation of the Jews, and the Confirmation of Christians, that there is a Necessity to say something to it on this Occasion.

18. The Date from whence this Epocha of Years is to begin, is express'd in these Words, (o) Know therefore, and understand, that it shall commence from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem. But concerning the Time when this Date began there are various Opinions, because there are four Commandments.

19. The first Command is the Decree of Cyrus for the Building of the Temple, when the seventy Years of the Jewish Captivity were just ended, according as the Prophet Isaiah (p) had spoke of him by Name almost two hundred Years before. The History hereof is (q) fully related by Ezra in these Words. Now in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia (that the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled) the LORD stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying, Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, The LORD GOD of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth, and he hath charged me to build him an house at Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Who is there among you of all his people? His GOD be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the LORD GOD of Israel (he is the GOD, which is in Jerusalem). And whosoever remaineth in any place where he sojourneth, let the men of his place help him with silver, and with gold, and with goods and with beasts, besides the free-will offering for the house of GOD that is in Jerusalem. This at first View looks so clear, that the learned Dr. Lightfoot (r) asserts from hence, That from the Return of the Jews out of Babel to the Death of CHRIST are 490 Years, and he adds, That it needeth as little to confirm it, as to tell that seventy times seven is four hundred and ninety. But since it is evident that there are 568 Years from the Date of this Proclamation to the Death of CHRIST, this Opinion hath been generally and with good Reason rejected.

20. The second Commandment, was from the third Year of the Reign of Darius the Son of Hystaspes, when upon (s) a Search made, the Decree of Cyrus, dated seventeen Years before for the Building of the Temple, was found, and therefore he not only confirm'd it, but also gave an Order for the Compleating of it. But this was only a Subsequent of the former; and since neither the sixty ninth or seventy Weeks of Years ended with any remarkable Occurrence, it was never taken to be the Date of this Epocha.

21. The third Commandment was dated in the seventh Year of Artaxerxes Longimanus, at which Time Anno he gave a Commission to Ezra, that 458. he and all the Jews which were in his Kingdom might go up to Jerusalem, and settle all the Service of the Temple, and defray a considerable Part of the Charges out of his royal Revenue. From this Time to the Death of CHRIST are exactly 490 Years; so that the learned Dr. Prideaux dates it from this Time, and hath (t) given us a large Dissertation on this Subject; and he hath the general Stream of all Writers on this Subject concurring with him.

22. Against this Opinion there are two Objections. First, That it ought to commence from (u) a commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem, which must signify either the City, or the Temple: Now in all this Commission here is no Command for either, but only to settle the Service there; neither do we find, that Ezra was any way concern'd in any Building when he came thither, but only acted as a Priest and a Reformer of their Religion; and Dr. Prideaux himself tells us, that these Words to restore and build Jerusalem are not to be understood literally, but figuratively, for the Resettling of the State of the Jews, as well the political as ecclesiastical, and the Restoring of both according to the Law of Moses. The Command for Building the Temple was given 78 Years before, and the Command for the Building of the City was given 13 Years after. And secondly, This makes seventy full Weeks from the Date of this Command to the Crucifixion of our blessed SAVI-OUR, whereas he, who observes the Text, will find, that there are but (x) seven Weeks, and (y) threescore and two weeks, or sixty nine Weeks in all between the one and the other, and that (z) the last Week related to something, which was to follow after it.

23. The fourth or last Commandment was that of (a) Artaxerxes Longimanus to Nehemiah, in the twentieth Year of his Reign, and thirteen Years after the other, upon this Occasion. Nehemiah (b) was the Cupbearer to this King, when being inform'd by some who came from Judah, that the Walls of Jerusalem were broken down, and the Gates were burnt with fire, he mourned, fasted and prayed before GOD for this sad Calamity. When he went in afterward to wait on the King, according to Custom, the King perceiv'd his Sadness, and ask'd him the Reason of it. Upon this he tells the King the whole Truth. The King gives him Leave to go to Jerusalem, and to repair whatever was deficient; so that he immediately goes thither, and encourages the Jews, who proceed with all possible Unanimity, to repair and build the Walls, which (c) were put in a Posture of Defence, in two and fifty Days, and then they proceed to rebuild the Towers and the Streets, and repair the Temple, which took up more time, because they were not in so much Haste. From this Date the learned Bishop Lloyd the late Bishop of Worcester began the Date of Daniel's seventy Weeks. This he makes to consist also of 490 Years; and for this Purpose he takes the Space of 69 Weeks, which in the Text is divided into seven Weeks and sixty two Weeks, for the Space of Time between the Date of this Commission and the Crucifixion of our SAVIOUR, and makes the last Week to refer to the Destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple by the Romans almost forty Years after. According to this Account there will be four hundred eighty three Years in this Epocha of sixty Weeks; but there really were but four hundred and seventy five. To solve this Difficulty he saith, that we must not reckon by Julian Years consisting of three hundred sixty five Days and a Quarter, but by the antient Chaldean Year, which (d) consisted only of three hundred and sixty Days, and then every thing agrees exactly as he hath stated it. For the Supporting of this Exposition, there are (e) three Rules laid down to be observ'd in a Work of this Nature. First, One Place of Scripture must never be so interpreted, as that by the Consequence of, or Inferences from it, the same shall by such Exposition or Inference be made to oppose another. Secondly, Express Characters in the Text must always closely be adher'd to, and expounded as given in the Letter of them, unless there appears very evident Cause for the contrary. But especially they must be always so expounded, when other Scriptures do expressly point out and immediately warrant such an Exposition. And thirdly, The Canon of Ptolemy, as it ought ever to be the Chronologer's Guide in Point of Time, coincident with

Scripture Times in any Scripture Exposition; so it ought to be a Rule to him once and always in the Chronological Exposition of the Prophecy before us. And as these are Rules, which no one can reject; so according to them the Exposition of this learned Prelate will bear the Test.

24. However it must be own'd, that there are some Objections against it. The first is, that for above two hundred Years before Daniel saw this Vision, the Chaldeans had us'd a Year of 365 and not of 360 Days; which began from the Year of Nabonassar: and therefore allowing that Daniel counted by Chaldean Years; yet he ought to count by the Years then in Use. In Answer to this, we find that Daniel hath two different Accounts in his Book, one of these he calls Times both in that Part of the Book which is written in (f) Hebrew, and the Part which is written in (g) Chaldee, and the other he calls (h) Years. This Time was the Space of the antient Chaldean Year, or 360 Days; but the Word which signify'd a Year was the (i) Revolution of the Sun to the same Point of the Ecliptick, which then was suppos'd to be in the Space of 365 Days. Now Daniel mentioning only seventy Weeks, or so many Times seven, and not having particularly express'd either Times or Years, we are at Liberty to interpret it of either, according as it will best suit with the Events there foretold. To this it is farther objected, that supposing they went according to these antient Chaldean Years, yet the Chaldeans once in six Years added an intercalary Month, that so the Year might begin at the same Season; and therefore this Account must also take in these Months according to their constant Way of Reckoning. But this is denied in this Case, because in a long Series of Time such a Year as this their Time would be the same with their Year or Revolution; whereas in this Book it is mention'd as something of a distinct Nature from the other. And that this Space, according to Daniel's Reckoning, consisted of twelve Months, each Month having only thirty Days, or of 360 Days, without the Addition of five Days in a Year, or a Month in six Years, will be evident from the Expression which he useth (k) of A Time, and

Concerning this Account of Daniel's seventy Weeks, Bishop Kidder saith, in his Preface to the third Part of his Demonstration of the MESSIAS, Page 1. I am prevented in this Matter by a far better Hand; and the Reader will be so far from a just Cause of Complaint for my Omitting it, that he is like to be a greater Gainer upon that Account. A very Reverend and Learned Prelate of this Church, who did many Years ago take this Argument upon himself, hath given me Leave to assure the Reader, that he will finish it. This Prelate his Lordship assur'd me was Dr. Lloyd the late Bishop of Worcester; so that it was what he had long labour'd in, and to which he had given the finishing Stroke. It is publish'd in Marshall's Chronological Tables, and appears to be every Way becoming so great an Author. (e) Marshall's Treatise, Introduction Page 13. (f) Dan. 12. 7. two Times, and half a Time. This (l) St. John sometimes uses, and being the best Commentator thereon, he calls it sometimes (m) forty and two months, and at other Times, (n) one thousand two hundred and sixty days, allowing each Day for a Year. If then this is Daniel's Way of Reckoning in the larger Space of 1260 Days, each Day signifying a Time, we may be allow'd to put the same Construction upon the seventy Weeks, or the 490 Times, which he himself also mentions. Besides, that the Chaldean Word מן, and the other Word על, which answers to the Hebrew Word על, doth signify a determinate Quantity of Time, and must not be taken in Daniel for an indefinite Space, appears from what he saith (*) of the four Empires, they had their dominion taken away, but their lives were prolonged for a season and a time. Here both the Words are us'd, and if they signify only as we translate them, nothing can be more obscure. But if one of these Words signifies a Time in the larger Sense (as (†) St. John uses it) consisting of three hundred and sixty Years; and if the other Word signifies a Time in a stricter Sense (as (‡) Daniel uses it in another Place) for three hundred and sixty Days, the Meaning will be absolute and positive, and they, who shall live near the Time, may accordingly expect the Accomplishment. And if he had only meant a select Number of Years, or annual Revolutions, he might have express'd himself in other Words without the least Obscurity.

25. I may also add, that there is a plain Intimation in the Text it self, that we are to go by this Way of Reckoning. The Word (o) Times, which Daniel mentions (and is expounded by St. John) is us'd in the Text of this (p) Prophecy; and why not in the same Sense? From the Commission of Nehemiah to repair the Walls and the City, to the complete Finishing of it, is said to be seven Weeks, or 49 of these Times. After this it should stand in its Glory for many Years, or threescore and two weeks, or 434 of these Spaces, the street shall be built again and the wall. Our Translation adds, even in troublous times; but we may venture upon another Exposition of the Words. The Hebrew Word קצת signifies, a lesser Space of Quantity or Time; and therefore we may well render it, in (or according to) the lesser Computation of Times, which Daniel uses, and St. John explains, and not according to the longer Computation of Years. Others may put what Interpretation they please upon the Words, but I see no Reason why they should reject this; and if this is admitted, the Controversy is ended.

26. Another Objection which is made against this Account of Weeks, is, That it puts the last Week at too great a Distance from the other sixty nine; whereas they ought to be join'd together as in all other Instances of this Nature. In answer to this it is sufficient to say, That this Prophecy is so explain'd by the greatest Commentator in the World, I mean our blessed LORD and SAVIOUR. Daniel speaking of what should happen in this last Week, saith as we render it, And for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate. These Words, (as they stand (q) in the Hebrew) may be thus translated, And because of abominations upon the wing of the Temple, there shall be a destroyer. These Words were quoted by our SAVIOUR, and the two Evangelists, who repeat them from his Mouth, take the two last of them as translated by the Septuagint, ἡ ἀβὼμυα τῆς ἐρημώσεως, The Abomination of Desolation. The whole Sentence runs thus, (r) When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation spoken of by Daniel the prophet stand in the holy place (or (s) where it ought not) (whoso readeth let him understand) then let them which be in Judea flee to the mountains. (t) For these be the days of vengeance, that all things which are written may be fulfill'd. The Christians at that Time, who were taught the Meaning of these Words of CHRIST from the Apostles themselves, understood them in this Sense; and therefore when Titus Vespasian without any visible Reason rais'd the Siege of Jerusalem, they all remov'd from thence to a Town call'd Pella, on the other Side of Jordan, and so were preserv'd in the Midst of the following utter Destruction both of City and Temple.

27. For the Explaining of this Prophecy we must consider, that the Word which is here render'd Abominations, is in the Mosaical Law originally appropriated to that Set of Pollutions that sprang from Bodies, either alive or dead, which were unclean, as may be plainly prov'd from several Passages in (u) Leviticus, where the Word is us'd. The other (*) more common Word signifies an abominable thing of a moral as well as a legal Nature, and more frequently the former; and even when it relates to legal Pollutions, it is not often us'd with Reference to any particular sort of them. And accordingly it is observable, that in (x) Ezekiel, where both sorts of Abominations are hinted at, the two Hebrew Words are set down. So that the Abomination mention'd by Daniel was occasion'd by the Pollution of dead Bodies. These were על כנף, upon the Wing, as it is in Hebrew, or ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, upon the Temple, as it is in the Septuagint, or upon the Wing of the Temple, as we may expound it from both. The Hebrew Word properly signifies the Wing of a Bird, which is spread out to a considerable Distance from the Body, when the Bird flees; and thence by a Metaphor it came to signify the Battlements of the Buildings round the Courts, which were at a Distance from the Temple, strictly so call'd. Thus (y) St. Matthew and St. Luke say, that our SAVIOUR when tempted was plac'd ἐν τῷ πτερύγῳ, not upon the Pinnacle, where his standing must have been miraculous, but upon the Wing or Battlement of the Temple, from whence his Casting himself down must be a voluntary Act.

28. Now Josephus informs us, that this was actually fulfill'd in the last Siege of Jerusalem. Among the rest there were two Parties in the City; one was for Accommodating Matters with an Enemy so vastly superior to them in Power, and from whom nothing less than utter Ruin was to be expected at last, and others were as violent against it. The chief and most mischievous who were against it, were a Crew of Robbers, who for their seeming Concern for the Honour of GOD, which they could not bear to see prostituted to a Gentile Power, were call'd Zealots. This Gang of Men had seiz'd upon these Parts of the Temple, and fortify'd them. There were great Quantities of Engines, which had been left in the Country by Cestius Gallus the Syrian Governor, when he besieg'd the City about three Years before. With some of these they shot from the Battlements or Wings of the Temple; and with others they were shot at, and kill'd upon the Battlements, so that the Temple became polluted with the blood of the slain, that were within it. This was literally an abominable thing, the daily Service was intermitted, and the Sanctuary according to the Jewish Notion of the Word was become desolate. There was never the like Instance recorded in History before, whilst the Battlements were standing, and there can never happen the like again, because these Battlements are destroy'd. So that there is the best Authority in the World to postpone (z) this last of Daniel's Weeks until the Destruction of Jerusalem, when it was most exactly fulfill'd.

29. From what hath been said, I shall only add a short Exposition of this remarkable Prophecy, leaving it to the Reader to judge of it. (a) GOD hath appointed a certain Period of Time for general Events to happen therein, which he hath divided into seventy weeks: As a Week consists of seven Days; so each of these consists of seven Chaldean Times, which are not exact Years, but in each of them there were three hundred and sixty Days, being the most ancient Length of the Chaldean Year, before the other five Days were added.

(b) In this Space of Time GOD hath determined to restrain the Power of the extended Guilt of Adam's first Sin, by the Coming of CHRIST, or the second Adam, who should take it away.

(b) to finish the transgression,

(c) And also fully to put away the Guilt of all our Sins, by his Suffering in our Nature for them upon the Cross, which was a full, perfect, and sufficient Satisfaction for the Sins of the whole

(c) and to make an End of sins,

World. (d) Hereby he hath reconcil'd us to GOD, and fully freed us from the Punishment due to Sin, as

(d) and to make reconciliation for iniquity, if we had never done any thing amiss, or had made a full Satisfaction in our own Persons: (e) And also by his perfect Fulfilling of the whole Law, he hath purchas'd for us a Title to everlasting Happiness in the Kingdom of Heaven: so that as his Sufferings imputed to us do fully free us from the Punishment, his Righteousness being also imputed to us shall be sufficient to purchase this Reward for us. (f)

(e) and to bring in everlasting righteousness,

Thus all those Visions and Prophecies mention'd in the Law, and even in the Gospel (which without CHRIST we could have no Title to) are seal'd, confirm'd, and made over to us, and we may confidently expect the Performance of all on GOD's Part, if we fail not in ours. (g) For this Purpose the CHRIST, or

(f) and to seal up the vision and prophecy,

MESSIAH, shall come in this Space of Time, who shall be The most holy one of GOD, and shall be anointed with the HOLY GHOST, and with sufficient Power to perform all those Offices of a Mediator between GOD and Man, by the original Holiness of his Birth, by the perfect Obedience of his Life, by the bitter Sufferings of his Death, and his continual Intercession for us.

(g) and to anoint the most holy.

(b) But that there may be no Mistake in this Computation, it is necessary to consider, that it is not to begin from the Command

(h) Verse 25. Know therefore, and understand, of Cyrus to repair and build the Temple, as Daniel might imagine, it being then in his Thoughts, because he, Verse 2, knew that the Time was nigh. Nor from the Command of Artaxerxes in the seventh Year of his Reign to Ezra to settle the daily Service there; but (i) from the

(i) that from the going forth of the commandment to restore, and to build Jerusalem,

Month, that he should repair all the Walls and Fortifications of Jerusalem, which he did accordingly with the utmost Expedition.

(k) unto the MESSIAH the prince shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks.

But these shall be divided into two Parts, the first containing seven Weeks, and the other containing sixty two Weeks. By the End of these first seven Weeks, or 49 Chaldean Times,

(l) the street shall be built again, and the wall, tion, that there will be no Occasion of any farther Buildings. And therefore they who live at the End of this Period, when they see the first Part of this Prophecy fulfill'd, may certainly expect the Fulfilling of the

(m) even in troublous times.

Times, which consisted of 360 Days, and not according to the larger Computation of Chaldean Years, which consisted of 365

(n) Verse 26. And after threescore and two weeks shall MESSIAH be cut off,

(o) but not for himself;

of his own; but

(p) and the people of the prince that shall come, shall be subject to the Empire then at its Height, but as

(q) shall destroy the city and the sanctuary,

Commandment and Leave given by Artaxerxes to Nehemiah, in the twentieth Year of his Reign, and the first Day of the first Month, that he should repair all the Walls and Fortifications of Jerusalem, which he did accordingly with the utmost Expedition. (k) From this Date to the Death of the MESSIAH afterward mentioned, there shall be sixty nine of these Weeks, or so many Times seven of the Chaldean Epochs of 360 Days.

all (l) the Wall shall be built, the Towers shall be rais'd upon it, and all the Streets and Houses shall be in so flourishing a Condition, that there will be no Occasion of any farther Buildings. And therefore they who live at the End of this Period, when they see the first Part of this Prophecy fulfill'd, may certainly expect the Fulfilling of the other at its appointed Time,

(m) provided they reckon according to the short Computation of Chaldean

Times, which consisted of 360 Days, and not according to the larger Computation of Chaldean Years, which consisted of 365 Days. But (n) immediately after the Expiration of these sixty and two Weeks, added to the other seven, at the Time of the following Passover, the MESSIAH shall be crucify'd.

However (o) this cursed Death like a Malefactor shall not be for any Crime of his own; but as a propitiatory Sacrifice for the Sins of the World.

And (p) this cruel Act of the Jews shall so provoke the Justice of GOD against them, that the People who shall be subject to the Empire then at its Height, but as yet not establish'd, or the Romans, shall take away both (q) their Place and Nation. They shall destroy the City of Jerusalem, and burn the Temple, leaving both but a Heap of Ruins. The (r) Roman Forces shall come into Judea like an overflowing Inundation, sweeping all before it.

And as there shall be a War upon them for their Cutting off of the MESSIAH; so it shall be the most fatal and final to them, and shall end in the intire Subversion of their Church and State.

(s) This is the last Week of the seventy, and plac'd at a Distance of Time from the rest. In which for the more effectual Carrying on of this Judgment of GOD upon the Jewish Nation, the Romans shall make a firm Covenant with many Nations, and be at Peace with them, and so they shall begin to prosecute the War in the first Part of this Week, or Period of seven Chaldean

Times. And (t) in (u) the other half, or the latter Part of this Period, the Romans shall lay a close Siege to Jerusalem, so that it can have no Communication with the rest of the Country. This will cause the daily Sacrifices and Oblations to cease at the Temple. The Zealots shall (x) seize the House of GOD, and stand upon the Battlements in an hostile Manner, so that they shall kill others, and some of them shall be kill'd there; and thus their dead Bodies, which is an Abomination according to the Levitical Law, shall be upon the Battlements of the Temple. And the first Instance of this Nature shall be a sure Sign of the Desolation both of City and Temple, and both of Church and State. (y) This shall continue until the Time that GOD shall have completed his Vengeance upon the Jews for this their Fact, both in Respect of the Jewish People being desolate, and the Roman Empire the Desolaters. (a) Thus (b) Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the gentiles, until the time of the gentiles are fulfilled, when GOD will execute these Judgments no longer, but have Mercy upon both. The Jews shall be call'd, and the Gentiles shall return with them to the Knowledge of CHRIST as their GOD, and the Obedience of the Gospel.

(r) and the end thereof shall be with a flood.

(s) Verse 27. And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week.

(t) And (u) in the midst, the other half or latter Part, of the week, he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease.

(x) And for the overspreadings of abominations he shall make it desolate,

(y) even until the consummation.

(a) and that determined shall be poured upon the desolate.

(b) Luke 21. 24. He who would see a larger Paraphrase on this Prophecy, may consult Marshall's Treatise on the seventy Weeks, Page 1, &c. or the whole Book, which is written on this Subject, and also his Chronological Tables.

30. Upon the Death of Darius, Cyrus became (c) the sole and absolute Monarch of the Persian Empire, who in the Beginning of his Reign publish'd a Decree for the Restoring of all the Captive Jews and Israelites to their own Country, with full Liberty to rebuild their City and Temple. He also restor'd all the Vessels of Gold and Silver, and other Utensils, which had been taken from thence, and (d) deliver'd them by the Hand of Mithredath his Treasurer to Sheshbazzar, as he was call'd by the Chaldeans, or Zerubbabel, as he was call'd by his own Countrymen. In Summing up of these Vessels there is some Difficulty. For there is a (e) particular Sum given only of two thousand four hundred and ninety nine, and yet the next Verse sums them up to be five thousand and four hundred. To this it hath been answer'd, that the Text particularizeth only those, which were of a greater Size, but sums up the whole Number of all. And this Distinction is made in Scripture, where (f) Nebuchadnezzar is said to have brought all the Vessels of the House of GOD to Babylon, both great and small. Others translate the Words, other vessels a thousand, not as we do, but other vessels by thousands, that is, all other vessels were four thousand, wanting but one hundred. However there may be also this Distinction: The Vessels of Gold and Silver are first particularly accounted for, and then the Vessels of Brass or other Materials made up the whole Sum. Or, The Vessels of the Temple are particularly accounted for; but there were others, which belong'd to the Palaces, and other Houses in Jerusalem not before mention'd, which made up a greater Number, and were restor'd at the same Time.

31. But there is a far greater Difficulty in the Number of those, who went up from Babylon to Jerusalem, as they are mention'd in (g) the Books of Ezra and Nehemiah. In Answer to which we must observe, First, That these two Accounts were taken at two different Times. What we find in Ezra, was taken when they were in Babylon, and form'd themselves into different Companies in order march regularly toward Jerusalem. This Account was taken by Zerubbabel, or some other Person, who had the chief Command at that Time, and lodg'd in the Records at Babylon, from whence Ezra transcrib'd it, and brought it up with him to Jerusalem. The other Account was taken by some other Person, when they were return'd to Jerusalem, and lodg'd in the Records there, where Nehemiah found it, when he (h) intended to make a new Genealogy. To this Account in Ezra he annexes the Sum total, as he found it in the Record at Jerusalem; and this makes the Number of the (i) whole congregation, their men servants, their maid servants, singing men and singing women, their horses, mules and camels to exactly to agree. These in both Accounts are divided into several Companies, by which we must not mean their natural Children; for many of their Names are Names of Places, as the Children of Gibeon, of Jericho, the Men of Bethlehem, Anathoth, Bethel and Ai, &c. who were taken from thence, liv'd together in the Captivity, and return'd to dwell again in the same Cities. Others were Names of Men who commanded the respective Companies, whose Numbers are reckon'd up, and by an usual Metaphor in the oriental Languages are call'd their Children. Where therefore the Numbers in Ezra are greater than those in Nehemiah, as happens only in (k) five Instances, it is suppos'd, that the rest alter'd their Minds, or died by the Way, or remov'd into other Companies, either as they themselves thought fit, or for some particular Reasons, which happen'd in their March. The Leaders in Ezra, which (l) are omitted in Nehemiah, may be suppos'd to have (m) been incorporated into other Companies in their March. And where the Numbers in Nehemiah are greater than those in Ezra, those Companies may be suppos'd to have been occasionally join'd by other Persons, as they return'd home, which makes (n) the Number in Nehemiah greater than that in Ezra. And as to the general Number in Ezra and Nehemiah, which is said to be forty two thousand three hundred and sixty, but the particular Numbers summ'd up together are much less; for that in Ezra amounts only to 29818, and that in Nehemiah to 31031: The Reason is this, They are (o) only the Tribes of Judah, Benjamin and Levi, which are reckon'd up by their Families in both these Places,

(l) Ezra 2. 30, Magbish 156, and the three Companies of the Nethinims, under Akkub, Hagab and Alnah, Verse 45, 46, 50, whose Numbers are uncertain. (m) Thus the Company of Magbish, Ezra 2. 30. consisting of 156, being added to the 328 already mention'd, in which the Numbers in Ezra exceed those in Nehemiah, make but 484 in all, which, with many more in their March, might all be join'd to the Company of Azgad, the Number of which, Neh. 7. 17, is 1100 more than what we find in Ezra 2. 12. and the three Companies of the Nethinims omitted in Nehemiah, might easily join the other 32 of the same Order, which he mentions. (n) The Numbers in Nehemiah are but 1213 more than those in Ezra, which are not a great Number to be join'd to them in so long a March. (o) Compare Ezra 1. 5, and 21, and Neh. 7. 5, 6.

the rest being of the other Tribes of Israel, are number'd only in the gross Sum, which makes it so much exceed the Particulars in both the Computations.

32. The Jews returning from their Captivity with joyful Hearts, began to set up the Altar on the (g) first Day of the seventh Month, which answers in Anno 535. Part to our September, and then they (r) kept the Feast of Tabernacles on the fifteenth Day of the same Month.

In the (s) second Month of the next Anno Year, or about April, they began to 534. lay the Foundation of the Temple, which had a different Effect upon those who beheld it. The younger People rejoic'd to see it go forward at any Rate; and the elder People, who had seen the former Temple, wept to see how far this was inferior to it, insomuch that it could not be distinguish'd which was greatest, either the Joy of the one, or the Sorrow of the other. The (t) Prophet Haggai owns, that it was as nothing in comparison of the first, especially in the Eyes of those who had seen both. The Fund, which they rais'd for it, was but small, and therefore the Building must be proportionable. It was (u) threescore and one thousand Drams of Gold, and five thousand Drams of Silver, and an hundred Priests Garments, which hath been thus (x) computed: That every Dram of Gold is worth about ten Shillings of our Money, at the Rate of four Pounds an Ounce. And every (y) Pound or Mina of Silver worth seven Pounds and ten Shillings, because it contain'd 60 Shekels, and every Shekel is (z) about half a Crown in Value. So that according to this Computation, the Gold was worth 30000 l. 10 s. and the Silver 37500 l. or the whole 67500 l. 10 s. For the Raising of this Money, it is suppos'd, that they who stay'd behind contributed, as well as they who return'd, or else it would not have been possible to have rais'd so much.

33. The Samaritans finding the Building go forward, (a) offer their Assistance, but with a real Design to hinder it. But being refus'd, they do them all the Mischief possible at the Court of Cyrus in (b) the Anno third Year of his Reign. By these 533.

Methods they very much retarded the Work of the Temple, which Daniel being inform'd of, gave himself up to (c) Fast-ing and Mourning for three Weeks together. After this, upon the (d) the twenty fourth Day of the first Month, he saw the Vision concerning the Succession of the Kings of Persia, the Empire of the Macedonians, and the Conquest of the Romans, with the (e) happy State of the Church, which should succeed them, of which the three last Chapters give us an Account. This is the last that we hear of him; and he being of a very great Age at that Time, it cannot be suppos'd that he liv'd much longer.

34. Cyrus being dead, and Cambyſes (who (f) in Scripture is call'd Abasuerus) succeeding him, the Enemies of the Jews apply to him in the same Man- Anno 528. ner as before, so that the Building of the Temple went on heavily during his Reign.

35. Cambyſes being dead, was succeeded by Smerdis, who was of the Sect of the Magi, and in Scripture is call'd (g) Anno Artaxerxes. He reign'd but seven 521. Months. However, the Samaritans write a Letter to him against the Jews, which is recorded (h) at large by Ezra. Upon which he sends a positive Order to put a Stop both to the Building of the Temple and the Repairing of the City, so that there was nothing more done in the remaining Part of his Reign.

36. It is observable, that (i) one Verse in Jeremiah, a (k) great Part of Daniel, and (l) Part of Ezra, are written in Chaldee, but all the rest of the Old Testament is in the Hebrew Language. And the Reasons for it are either general or particular. The Reasons in general are the great Affinity of both Languages; the Necessity of its being in Use among the Jews as they were subject to the Babylonian Empire, where the Chaldee was the original Language; and that the Learning of it for the compleat Understanding of the Hebrew Bible might open a Way for a greater Progress in other Oriental Studies. The Reason in particular for the Verse (m) in Jeremiah is, because the Prophet telling the Jews what they should speak to the Chaldeans against their Idolatry, would not express it in a Tongue unknown to them, but in their native Language. As for Daniel, he begins in Hebrew, but (n) when he mentions the Speech of the Chaldeans to the King, he mentions it in the Chaldean Language, to shew that we should not content our selves with Translations, but have Recourse to the Original. From this Place to the End of the seventh Chapter he writes in Chaldee, and after that in Hebrew, because he would register in the Chaldean Language the Affairs that fell under the Chaldean Monarchy. But as soon as the Kingdom is destroy'd, he will have no more to do with the Language, but applies himself to write in his own native Tongue the Hebrew: since GOD would not have the Persic, under which Language he now was, to be the Original of any Part of Scripture, as having not the least Affinity with the Hebrew. As for Ezra, he begins his Book in Hebrew, but (o) afterwards he copies the original Letter, which was in Chaldee, with the Letter of Artaxerxes in Answer thereto, as also the Letter to Darius, and his Answer, and all the intermediate Verses, and what follows to the nineteenth Verse of the sixth Chapter, it being all proper to be sent to Babylon, as it undoubtedly was, that on other Occasions, when their Case was thus fairly stated from the original Records, they might expect the greater Favour. And indeed the following Verses in the same Chapter would be no Way proper for such a Design, and were therefore written in Hebrew. There only remains in the Chaldee Language the (p) gracious Commission of Artaxerxes to Ezra himself, which it was most proper to preserve in its Original for the Reasons already mention'd.

37. Artaxerxes being dead, was succeeded by Darius the Son of Hystaspes, Anno when the Edict of his Predecessor 520. ceas'd, and the Jews were again at Liberty to rebuild the Temple; but upon their Neglect of it, GOD (q) smote the Land with Barrenness, so that both the Vintage and the Harvest fail'd them. The Occasion of their Delay was (*) some treacherous Jews, who were hir'd by the Enemy, and were always discouraging the Work with this proverbial Expression, (r) The time is not yet come, that the house should be built. To prevent the Effects of which, GOD (s) stirs up the Prophet Haggai, on the Anno first day of the sixth month in the 519. second year of the Reign of Darius, who reproves (t) the People for the Neglecting this Building, tells them, that this was the particular Reason of GOD's Judgments upon them, and stirs them up to go on with the Work. Upon this, on (u) the twenty fourth Day of the same Month, (x) Zerubbabel the Governor, and Joshua the High Priest, make Preparation to go on with the Building, and (y) Haggai promises GOD's Assistance to them in this Undertaking; and for their Encouragement, (z) in the one and twentieth day of the seventh month, he tells them, that the Glory of this second Temple should exceed that of the first; because CHRIST, the desire of all nations, should come, and honour it with his Presence.

And in (a) the second day of the eighth month, the Prophet Zechariah begins to exhort them to turn unto GOD, that so they might be qualify'd for those other gracious Promises, which he should afterward give them. On the (b) four and twentieth Day of the ninth Month they begin to lay the Stones in the Walls of the Temple, and to raise the Building; for on these three Months last, they had only prepar'd Materials; and on this Day Haggai had two Visions, (c) one of them to tell the Jews, that hitherto their Sins had hinder'd the Success of the Work, and (d) the other being a Promise to Zerubbabel, that he should go on and prosper in Spite of all Opposition; and with this he ends the Book.

38. At this Time the Babylonish Year, according to the Æra of Nabonassar, began on the third Day of January, Anno from whence they began to reckon 518. the third Year of Darius. Tatnai, and other Enemies of the Jews, (e) endeavour to hinder the Building by Threatnings and other Artifices; but these having no Effect, they (f) write a Letter to Darius the King against them, and desire him to search, whether they had any Order from Cyrus for this Purpose, as they pretended. The Jews being now much concern'd at this unexpected Difficulty, had great Need of a Prophet to support them; and GOD, who never fails those, who trust in him in Time of Need, declares his Will by the Prophet Zechariah, on the (g) twenty fourth Day of the eleventh Month of the same Year, which is about the Beginning of our February. All this is contain'd in the Book of his Prophecies, from the seventh Verse of the first Chapter to the ninth Verse of the sixth. In which he expresseth the Mercy, that GOD would shew to his People in the Restoration and Redemption of Sion, and the Vengeance which he would execute upon those who had oppress'd them. And soon after he had the Vision of what is contain'd in the latter Part of the same Chapter; wherein by Crowns made for the Head of Joshua the High Priest, is shew'd the Church, the Priesthood, and Kingdom of CHRIST under the Name of the BRANCH, and the happy Conversion of the Gentiles to him.

39. Darius having (h) receiv'd this Letter, order'd a Search to be made in the Persian Records, where the Decree of Cyrus for the Building of the Temple was found; and upon this he gives a full and ample Direction, that they should go on with all Expedition, and that their Enemies should give them no Disturbance. This Answer coming the Beginning of the next Year, 517. 1st all Hands to work. And so every thing succeeded beyond their Hopes. At the latter End of the same Year, (i) on the fourth Day of the ninth Month, which answers in Part to our November, some Messengers come from the Jews at Babylon to inquire of Zechariah concerning their Fasts, whether they should continue them or lay them down, because every thing went on so prosperously, the Temple was almost finish'd, and they could not well observe some of them without giving Umbrage to their Enemies in the Land, where they were Captives. Now the (k) Fasts, which they observ'd, were these.

The Fast in the ninth Day of the fourth Month, because (l) the City was then broken up.

The Fast on the seventh Day of the fifth Month, because (m) the Temple was then burnt.

The Fast on the thirtieth Day of the seventh Month, because (o) Gedaliah was then slain, and all the Jews dispers'd.

And the Fast on the tenth Day of the tenth Month, because (p) the Siege of Jerusalem did then begin.

Zechariah reproves their (q) Fasting, as done more out of Custom than Conscience, but gives them no particular Direction either to continue or discontinue it. He adviseth them to a Reformation, and tells them, that their Sins were the Cause of their Captivity. However, (r) GOD would restore Jerusalem again to her former Prosperity. That if they went on with the Building of the Temple he would bless them with Peace and Plenty; and if they continu'd obedient to his Laws, their Mourning should be turn'd into Joy, and all other Nations should confess that their GOD was among them.

Under such Encouragements as these, Anno 514. they went on so successfully, that the Temple was (s) finish'd on the third Day of the twelfth Month, which answers to our February, in the sixth Year of the Reign of King Darius; so that they kept the Dedication of it at that Time, and the Feast of the Passover and of unleaven'd Bread in the following Month with the utmost Joy and Solemnity.

40. Soon after this Zechariah (t) is suppos'd to publish the remaining Part of his Prophecy. In the Beginning hereof, he tells them of GOD's (u) Care over them, and exhorts them (x) to rejoice in Hope of the Coming of CHRIST among them, that he should have a (y) peaceable and flourishing Kingdom, and (z) they should have Victory, Success and Plenty. He speaks of the (a) Conversion of St. Paul, and the (b) Gospel beginning at Hadrach and Damascus, and that (c) Antioch in Hamath should be famous upon the same Account, where (d) the Disciples were first call'd Christians. He speaks of (e) CHRIST's Riding into Jerusalem upon an Ass, of his (f) confounding the three Shepherds, the Pharisees, Sadducees and Essenes, of his (g) being sold for thirty Pieces of Silver, of (h) his Disciples being scatter'd from him, of (i) the Conversion of many of the Jews, who should mourn over him, whom they had pierced, and that (k) the rest, who continu'd obstinately in their Unbelief, should bring Destruction upon themselves, their Temple, their City, and their Nation, that (l) Asia and Africa should be left in Ignorance and Superstition, when his Worship should be in Europe, tho' the Worshipers should be in a poor and an afflicted Condition; but when (m) the appointed Day of the LORD shall come, there shall be a general Reformation, and all the Enemies of his Church shall submit themselves to the Obedience of the Gospel. Tho' it is more probable, that (n) the six last Chapters at the End of the Prophet Zechariah, were written by the Prophet Jeremiah, and plac'd there by a Mistake of the last Compiler of the Old Testament. Let it be written by either, and plac'd in any Book, it must be of divine Authority. St. Matthew seems to determine it this Way, who quoting (o) a Text out of these Chapters, and telling (p) how it was fulfill'd, when the chief priest took the thirty pieces of silver, and bought with them the potters field to bury strangers in, he saith, that this was spoken by Jeremiah the Prophet. And he might have had good Authority at that Time for such an Assertion. It is certain, (q) that such things are contain'd in these Chapters, as agree well with the Time of Jeremiah, but by no Means with the Time of Zechariah. He prophesies (r) that the pride of Assyria shall be brought down, and the scepter of Egypt shall depart. This had not happen'd in the Time of Jeremiah; but before Zechariah's Time the Assyrians were overturn'd by the Persian Monarchy, the Egyptians were also over-ran by Nebuchadnezzar, and Pharaoh-Hophras their King had lost his Crown. He also prophesies (s) against the Cities of the Philistines, particularly Askelon, Gaza and Ekron, that they should see the Destruction of Tyre, and fear, and be very sorrowful, and their Expectation should be sham'd, and particularly, that the King should perish from Gaza, and Askelon should not be inhabited, and the Pride of the Philistines, or Egypt, on whom they depended, should be cut off. This agrees well with the Cup of (t) GOD's Fury, which Jeremiah was commanded to make all the Nations to drink of, particularly all the Kings of the Land of the Philistines, and Askelon, and Azzah or Gaza, and Ekron, and the Remnant of Ashdod. This (u) the Prophet Jeremiah seems to hint at, when he dates his Prophecy against the Philistines, before the Time that Pharaoh King of Egypt smote Gaza, whilst Nebuchadnezzar lay at the Siege of Jerusalem, and where he speaks of the Accomplishment of all the rest by waters, which should arise up out of the north, or whilst Nebuchadnezzar lay at the Siege of Tyre; for this was the Fountain, from whence the Streams did flow, which over-ran all the Countries, particularly the Land of the Philistines, to make Way for his better Marching into Egypt. And when (as he farther added) Baldness was come upon Gaza, and Askelon was cut off with the remnant of their valley, and the LORD had given a charge to the Sword to come against Askelon, and against the sea-shore. Thus the Prophet Zephaniah (x) tells us, that Gaza shall be forsaken, and Askelon a desolation; they shall drive out Ashdod at the noon day, and Ekron shall be rooted up; which he joins with the Judgments that should come upon Moab and Ammon. And thus (y) during this Siege of Tyre, the Philistines, Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites and Zidonians, seem also to have been broken, and harass'd by the Excursions of the Babylonians, and to have had all those severe Judgments executed upon them, which we find in the Prophecies of Jeremiah and Ezekiel to have been denounc'd against them. Thus these Prophecies against Gaza, Ashdod, Askelon and the Philistines, mention'd at the End of the Prophet Zechariah, agree very well to the Time of Jeremiah, but cannot well be put farther off; which makes it puzzle our best Historians and Commentators to find the Time, when they were accomplish'd. Besides, the Prophet hath (z) another remarkable Expression, Ye shall flee, like as when ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Uzziab king of Judah. This the Prophet Jeremiah might report, as a Calamity, which their Fathers might have told some of them in their Time; and thus it is mention'd as more fresh in their Memories. But to speak of it in this Manner an hundred and thirty Years later in the Time of Zechariah, doth not seem so applicable to the Prophet's Design, especially since the (a) Flight of King Zedekiah and his Forces, when Jerusalem was taken, would have been as full to the Purpose, and much more fresh in their Memories. As therefore the Prophet in these Chapters speaks very largely of the MESSIAH; so they might be of the same Date with, and properly be set immediately after (b) those other Chapters, where the Prophet Jeremiah treats of the same Subject in the fourth Year of the Reign of Zedekiah. And the Reason of the Mistake in Placing it thus might be, that Simon the Son of Onias last Compiler of the sacred Canon might meet with this Prophecy without Name and without Date, and supposing that Ezra had collected all the Prophecies of Jeremiah then extant, he might without any farther Consideration conclude, that it was written by the Prophet Zechariah, after the other Books of Scripture had been plac'd in their Order, and so he might add it to the End of this Book, where we now find it.

41. After this we have no farther Scripture History for the Space of three and fifty Years; when the Book of Anno Esther begins, (c) in the third Year 461. of the Reign of Artaxerxes Longimanus, who is (d) there call'd Abasuerus; who having conquer'd great Difficulties, (e) appointed a solemn Rejoicing for an hundred and eighty Days in the City of Shushan. At this Time Abasuerus, or Artaxerxes, being disoblig'd by his Queen Vashti, puts her away, and four Years after in the (f) seventh Year of his Reign, he takes Esther for his Queen. At this Time Anno two of the King's Chamberlains in- 457. tended probably to have promoted some other Person to this Dignity, and being disappointed in their Design, could not but expect to be out of Favour; to prevent which, they conspir'd against the Life of the King, and it being discover'd by Mordecai the Queen's Uncle, they were both executed for the same.

42. But tho' the Marriage was deferr'd, yet we may conclude, that Esther was in very great Favour with the King before that; for in the Beginning of this Year (g) Ezra obtain'd of the King and his seven Counsellors a very ample Commission to return to Jerusalem, with all his Nation, who were willing to accompany him thither, that they might restore and settle the State, reform the Church of the Jews, and regulate and govern both according to their own Laws. This extraordinary Favour must have been the Effect of some extraordinary Interest; and there is none which can be guess'd at except hers. On the first Day of the first Month, which answers to some Day of March, (h) Ezra sets out from Babylon to go to Jerusalem. On the ninth, tenth, and eleventh Days he musters his Company, and keeps a Fast at the River (i) Abava, that ran to a Town of the same Name. This could not be many Days Journey from Shushan; and as the Name is lost, so we may conjecture, that it was the River Caprus, that runs into the Tigris, which lay nearest to him, and where he might stay to be join'd by others from Media. On the twelfth Day of this Month he (k) begins to march; but marching slowly, he came not to Jerusalem till the first Day of (l) the fifth Month, on the fourth Day of which Month he (m) delivers out by Weight all the Gold and Silver that he had brought with him for an Offering from the King, and from his Princes, and from the Israelites in Babylon. What the (n) King, and his Counsellors, and his Lords offer'd on this Occasion is not mention'd; but supposing it came to the Value of 23744 l. together with the silver Vessels, which weigh'd an hundred Talents, and the Golden Vessels of the same Weight, and the two Vessels of fine Copper, as precious as Gold; yet after all, the Offerings of the Israelites in Babylon will appear to be twelve Times as much, as what was offer'd when Cyrus granted the Decree 78 Years before. For the Value of that was but 67500 l. 10 s. as it hath been already mention'd; whereas (o) the 650 Talents of Silver amount to 243750 l. and the (p) 100 Talents of Gold amount to 600000 l. which make 843750 l. in the whole, and is twelve Times as much as the former Sum, beside the Excess already mention'd. This shews, that after their Captivity was ended, the Jews, which continu'd in Babylon, were in a much more flourishing Condition under the Favour of the following Emperors, than they were before; and it is an Argument of GOD's being with them, and prospering them in this strange Land, according as he had (q) before frequently mention'd by his Prophets.

43. There is one Difficulty remaining, which is, that the same Emperor is call'd Artaxerxes in Ezra, and Ahasuerus in Esther, which is an Argument, that he was not the same Person. To this it may be answer'd, That in his own Empire of Chaldea he was call'd Artaxerxes; but in Judea he was call'd Ahasuerus. Accordingly Ezra, writing some Part of his Book in the Chaldean Language, and having Occasion to translate the original Letter, at large, where his Name was mention'd, was oblig'd to speak of him throughout his whole Book, as he found him there. But the Author of the Book of Ezra, writing only in Hebrew, and having no Occasion to mention any such Record, speaks of him only by that Name, by which he was most commonly known among the Jews.

44. On the (r) the tenth Day of the tenth Month of the same Year, this King Ahasuerus, or Artaxerxes, made Anno Esther his Queen, and makes a great 456. Feast, and a Release of some Taxes, and gave Gifts to others, that so it might be done with the greater Solemnity. This encourages Ezra to go on (s) with the Reforming of the People, according to the Commission which the King had given him in the former Part of the same Year. And tho' there is no Doubt, but he rectify'd many other Abuses; yet (t) the only one recorded is their Marrying of strange Wives contrary to the Law of Moses. He issued out a Proclamation for this Purpose (u) on the twentieth Day of the ninth Month, or in December. They began to inquire into it (x) about eleven Days after, or the first Day of the tenth Month, which took them up three Months Time; so that the whole was not finish'd till the first Day of Anno the first Month, or the Spring in the 456. following Year, which concludes the Book of Ezra.

45. Haman being promoted to the chief Honour at Court, in (y) the twelfth Year of this King's Reign, forms a Anno Plot to destroy all the Jews for the 452. Sake of Mordecai, who paid him not so great a Respect as he intended. For this Purpose he calls together his Diviners to find out the most lucky Day for Executing the same. They meet as he desir'd them (z) in the first Month, and cast Lots for the Time, first for each Month, and then for each Day of the Month. Thus (a) the lot was cast, and the whole disposal thereof was from the LORD, whose Providence determin'd it for the last Month of all, and in the mean Time the Service which Mordecai did, was discover'd; he was advanced, Haman was executed, and an (b) annual Thanksgiving was afterward enjoin'd to be observ'd by the Jews for so great a Deliverance, as it is related in the Book of Esther.

46. After this Ezra proceeds to take Care, that the Law should be read and expounded to all the Jews, that they might know their Duty, and practise it accordingly, and that Copies thereof should be written out and dispersed for this Purpose; and places those Books, which were receiv'd as of divine Authority, in the most proper Method, that they might lie all together, and so the better be preserv'd in future Ages.

47. In the (c) twentieth Year of Artaxerxes, in the Month Chisleu, which answers in Part to our November and December, Nehemiah had an Information by one, who came from Jerusalem, that the whole City lay in a deplorable Condition, that the Walls (d) were broken down, and the gates burnt with fire. This was a very great Grief to him, and he waited for an Opportunity to lay this Case before the King, which he had not till (e) the Spring in the Month Nisan, or the first Month of the Jewish Year, according to their sacred Account. At this Time he was the King's Cup-bearer, and a great Favourite with him; so that when he deliver'd the Cup into the King's Hand, he laid hold on that Opportunity, and obtain'd (f) a Commission to go thither, and take Care of all the Repairs. This Daniel calls (g) the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem, and from hence he dates the Beginning of his seventy Weeks, relating to the MESSIAH. The King ask'd him, (h) How long he would be absent? And he fix'd a set Time for his Return. This Commission (i) was dated in the Month Nisan, or the first of the Jewish Months, which was in the Spring of the Year. It was about four Months before he could settle every one to his Work, which they afterward follow'd with such Expedition, that the (k) Wall was put in a Posture of Defence in the Space of two and fifty Days, or more particularly on the twenty fifth Day of the Month Elul, which answers to the Beginning of our September. At this Time he regulates the Abuse concerning the Exacting of Usury from their poor Brethren, (l) contrary to their Law, he settles their Genealogies, takes Care that the Law should be read distinctly to the People, in Pursuance of which they observ'd the Feast of Tabernacles in the following Month according to Order. After this they observe a solemn Fast, and make a Confession of GOD's Goodness to them, and their Ingratitude to him, and enter into a solemn Covenant to serve him better for the Time to come, to which the chief of them both sign'd and seal'd. And that Jerusalem might not be destitute of Inhabitants, they chose out every tenth Man by Lot to dwell there, whilst the rest took Care to manure the Country. All which is contain'd in the eleven first Chapters of the Book of Nehemiah, which plainly appears to be written by himself. After this they (m) make a solemn Procession upon the Walls of Jerusalem, to testify their Joy, that they were so soon and so compleatly finish'd, and Nehemiah settl'd the Priests and Levites in their Order, to perform the daily Service of the Temple for the future.

48. What Day of the Year this Commission was granted to Nehemiah is no where express'd, and therefore we may suppose it to have been on or about the twenty first Day of April, according to the Julian Year, as the learned Bishop of Worcester hath plac'd it, or rather some Time later. Whatever Decree was made by the (n) Emperor of the Medes and Persians was unalterable, and therefore they would do nothing hastily. Besides, this Court was generally slow in its Proceedings. Abasuerus (o) rul'd over an hundred and seven and twenty Provinces, even from India to Ethiopia; and therefore he had a Multiplicity of Business, and a Multiplicity of Hands, thro which any Business was to go after his Directions, before it came to him for his Hand and Seal. And how dilatory their Proceedings were, may be guess'd at by this single Instance, that tho' Nehemiah (p) heard of the Desolation of Jerusalem in the Month Chisleu, or the ninth Month; yet it was (q) the first Month of the following Year, or Nisan, that is, four Months Distance, before he could so much as speak to the King about it. Besides, we may conclude, that when Nehemiah had the Decree or Commandment granted him to restore and to build Jerusalem, he would lose no Time to go thither; and as he had a set Time fix'd for his Return, so he would go thither with all Expedition; and as he had only (q) Captains of the army, and horsemen with him, who could be ready at a Day's Warning, and make long Marches, so he might have gone from Babylon to Jerusalem in the Space of thirty Week Days, at the Rate of 23 Miles in a Day, the Distance being not above 690 Miles in all. We may also suppose, that as soon as he came thither, and produc'd his Commission, the Jews would immediately begin to build. Now as the Wall was finished on (r) the twenty fifth Day of the Month Elul, or the sixth Month, in two and fifty days; so it was begun on the third Day of the Month Ab, or the fifth Month. And therefore since the Month Nisan in this Year ended on the fourteenth Day of April, and it is uncertain on what Day of the Month Nehemiah spoke to the King; so we cannot allow less than a Weeks Time from the End of the Month to the Date of the Commission, because in such a Case Nehemiah would have been at Jerusalem, and the Jews would have begun to build the Walls before the Time expressly mention'd. For the Finding out the Day on which the Month Nisan began on this Year, and consequently when it ended, we may conclude, that the Jews being now return'd from Babylon, and being acquainted with the common Astronomical Methods us'd in that Country, might from thence bring the Length of the Months since in Use among them; that is, for the first Month to consist of thirty Days, and the next of nine and twenty, and so successively to the End of the Year. And the Year consisting in this Manner of Lunar Months, they began it from the first Appearance of that Moon after Sun-set, whose Full happen'd immediately after the Autumnal Equinox. From hence the Chaldeans computed it, before the Æra of Nabonassar was in Use. From hence the Jews computed it ever since the Time of Rabbi Hillel about the Year of CHRIST 358 to this Time, who brought in no new Method for the civil Year, but only improv'd the old; and therefore Nehemiah being now in Babylon, might compute from the Babylonish antient Method; or if he reckon'd from an Observation in the following Spring, it would only make the Month to begin about two Days sooner at the most. Now before the Date of this Commission the Sun came to the Autumnal Equinox on the twenty ninth Day of September according to the Julian Account. The Moon, which began the Year, chang'd on the 17th Day of September, about Midnight, in the Longitude of Jerusalem. At this Time the Moon being slow in Motion, in swift descending Signs, and having a great South Latitude, could not be seen on the nineteenth Day in the Evening, as appears by the following Calculation. The first Evening of her Visibility was therefore September 20; so that the first Day of their civil Year was September 21, and the first Day of the Month Nisan, in the following Year, being Bissextile, happen'd on the sixteenth Day of March. In this famous Year it is also remarkable, that the Year of the Julian Period being 4269, the Number for the Cycle of the Sun was 13, and consequently the Dominical Letter for that Part of the Year was E. This shews that the sixteenth Day of March, or the Day of the new Month, on which their sacred Year did certainly begin, was upon a Sunday, even on that Day of the Week, on which our LORD rose from the Dead, and consecrated it as a Sabbath to be observ'd by Christians. And thus the Rejoicing at this New Moon, which preceded the Commission of Nehemiah to restore and to build Jerusalem, may put us in Mind of the great Cause which we have to rejoice for the New Covenant, that GOD hath confirm'd to us on the same Day of the Week; whereby we are reconcil'd to him, and restor'd to greater Privileges than those which we had lost, especially as we are Members of the New Jerusalem, which is from above, and is the mother of us all.

An Epitome of the whole Calculation follows.

According to this Computation, their Work was finish'd on Thursday the fourth Day of September; so that on the Day following they prepar'd for their Sabbath, or Day of Rest, which could not but be observ'd at that Time with the utmost Solemnity.

49. How long Nehemiah had Leave to be absent, is no where expressly said. It is evident, that all these things were done in the same Year, and so the Months, in which they were said to be done, do exactly follow each other. This makes it probable, that the Time, or זמן, here mention'd, being a Chaldean Word, implies the antient Space of a Chaldean Time, or 360 Days.

And accordingly he might set out Anno from Jerusalem in the Winter, and 443. so return to Babylon in the Spring, according to the Space of 360 Days, or Time appointed.

50. During the Absence of Nehemiah, there were (s) great Abuses committed in the Temple, in Permitting of Strangers of other Nations; and particularly Tobijah an Ammonite, who was (t) always their Enemy, to lodge there. All this was occasion'd by the Jews marrying with Women of other Nations, before they turn'd Profelytes, and were obliged to observe the Law of Moses; and this was (u) look'd upon to be (x) contrary to their Law. Nehemiah hearing of Anno this, obtain'd Leave again of (y) Artaxerxes in the thirty second Year of his Reign, to come into Judæa; and there being no set Time for his Return, we may suppose, that he then resign'd his Office at Court, and spent the rest of his Days at Jerusalem, where (z) we find him very zealous in Reforming all Abuses, particularly Ordering all the Chambers of the Temple to be cleans'd, Appointing the Priests and Levites in their Offices, and Taking Care, that their Revenues should be particularly paid them. He gives a more strict Charge for the better Observing of the Sabbath, and rectifies their Marriages with strange Women, and so he continues promoting the Glory of GOD, and the Welfare of that Nation.

51. About this Time liv'd the Prophet Malachi. It is certain, that he was the last of all the Prophets of the Old Testament, and that the Temple was all finish'd, and every thing relating to it was restor'd before he prophesy'd. He speaks (a) of the Altar, the (b) Sacrifices, and (c) the Table of the LORD, as in his Time, and tells them for their Encouragement, that (d) the LORD, or the MESSIAH, whom they did seek or expect, should suddenly come to his temple; in this agreeing with the Prophet Haggai, but only placing it at a nearer Distance. Neither doth he charge the Jews with Neglecting to build the Temple, or encourage them to go on in it, as Haggai and Zechariah did, but he only blames their Neglecting what did belong to the true Worship of GOD in it, since it was built. It is certain, that he liv'd in the Times of Corruption, the Beginning of which is mention'd by Nehemiah. Both (e) Ezra and (f) Nehemiah complain much of the Jews marrying with strange Wives, and express what they did to prevent it. The Prophet Malachi speaks (g) fully against this, and to prevent it, he declares (h) against Polygamy, and (i) Putting away their Wives for every Cause, almost in the same Language with our SAVIOUR in (k) the Gospel. Nehemiah (l) observ'd, that the Portions of the Levites had not been given them, and he contended with the Rulers about it, and made Treasurers over the Stores to regulate this Abuse. The Prophet Malachi taxes the Jews, that (m) they had robbed GOD in tythes and offerings; and to prevent it, he orders them to bring all their tythes into the store-house. Nehemiah (n) redresseth the Profanation of the Sabbath, and when that was done, the Prophet Malachi (o) reproves their Unwillingness to perform their Duties. Ezra the Priest, and Nehemiah, (o) bring the People into a strict Covenant with GOD, and (p) the Prophet Malachi reproves them for their Corrupting this Covenant of Levi; and therefore he could not utter his Prophecy many Years after this Time. He concludes with (q) Turning them to the Study of Moses and the Old Testament, that they might not expect any new Revelations, and (r) speaks of Elijah the Prophet, or (s) John the Baptist, and that he should come immediately before that great and dreadful Time of CHRIST's Appearing in the Flesh, and before he should smite the Land of Canaan with a Curse, and take away both their place and nation. Before his Departure out of the World, the Spirit of Prophecy departed also, and was a Stranger among the Jews until the Publication, that (t) the kingdom of GOD was at hand, or the MESSIAS was born among them. This is a plain Evidence, that the Apocryphal Books, which were written in the Times between, were not written by divine Inspiration, like the other Scriptures, and therefore need not to be consider'd at this Time.

8 Y Priest,

52. There is indeed one Part of (u) Nehemiah, which seems to be of a much later Date, because therein is twice Mention made of (x) Jaddua the High Priest, who met Alexander the Great when he came to Jerusalem. It is plain that Nehemiah could not live so long as this; since from the Time that he had his Commission to repair Anno Jerusalem, in the twentieth Year of 444. Artaxerxes, when he could not 340. but be of a considerable Age, to the first Year when Jaddua was High Priest, was 104 Years. It is justly suppos'd therefore by (y) others, that this was inserted into the Book of Nehemiah by Simon the High Priest, who was the Son of Onias, and was surnam'd the Just, and of whom the Author of (z) Ecclesiasticus gives us an excellent and a deserved Character. The Interruption which is made thereby, in the Sense and Connexion of that Book, doth plainly shew it. And it may be farther confirm'd by (a) the last Verse thereof, in which the Author having reckon'd up several Names, adds these Words, These were in the days of Joiakim the son of Jeshua, the son of Jozadak, and in the days of Nehemiah the governour, and of Ezra the priest, the scribe. It would be strange for Nehemiah to write of himself in this Manner, and implies him to be as certainly dead, as the rest were in the Days of Jaddua the High Priest, or the Time when this was wrote. The whole is of no great Moment, containing only a Catalogue of the Priests and Levites, which came up from Babylon with Zerubbabel, as also the Succession of the High Priests, and the chief of the Levites. It seems to be inserted by Simon, that he might have an Opportunity of Recording the Names of the High Priests from the Return out of Babylon, to the Time of his own Grandfather, and thought most proper to insert them here, after the Catalogue of the principal Men, who were chosen by Lot to dwell at Jerusalem.

53. As for Simon the High Priest, the Story is thus: He (b) was the President of the Great Synagogue, which resided at Jerusalem, and consisted of an hundred and twenty Elders, who succeeding some after others in a continual Series from the Return of the Jews out of Babylon to this Time, labour'd in the Restoring of the Jewish Church and State in that Country; and in order to this, the Holy Scriptures being the Rule, by which they were to walk, their chief Care and Study was to make a true Collection of the Scriptures, and publish them accurately to the People. Ezra and the Men of the great Synagogue, who liv'd in his Time, completed it till then. The Books, which were afterward added, were the two Books of Chronicles, Ezra, Nehemiah, Esther and Malachi. It is plain, that these could not be put into the Canon by Ezra; for four of these Books (that is, the two Books of Chronicles, and the Books of Ezra and Esther) are suppos'd to be written by himself. The Book of Nehemiah was written after his Time, and so most likely was the Book of Malachi also. So that a later Date must be assign'd for their Insertion into the Canon, and none is more likely than that of Simon the Just, who is said to be the last of the Men of the great Synagogue, and so might settle these sacred Books in the same Order that we find them in our Hebrew Bibles. And tho' the Spirit of Prophecy, as it related to future Events, or immediate Revelations was now ceas'd; yet in a bare Collection of Names he might be so assisted, as to make no Mistake, and likewise be directed to insert them, where they are. For we may safely conclude, that he being so pious and good a Man, would never have done it, without a sufficient Warrant for such a Purpose.

BOOK VIII. and LAST.

CHAP. I.

From the Birth of CHRIST to the Compleating of the Canon of the New Testament.

WHEN the Time was (a) fully come, which GOD by his Providence had fore-ordain'd, and by his Prophets had foretold, he sent his SON our LORD and SAVIOUR JESUS CHRIST into the World, who accordingly was conceiv'd by the HOLY GHOST, and born of the Virgin Mary. The Design of his Coming was to fulfil all the Types and Prophecies which related to him, to put an End to the Jewish Law, to deliver us out of that miserable State, into which we had been plung'd by the Fall of our first Parents, to satisfy divine Justice for the Sins of the World by his Sufferings, to purchase for us an Inheritance in the Kingdom of Heaven by his Obedience, and to be a Mediator between GOD the FATHER and us, both in Respect of Intercession and Redemption. The Time when he was born was remarkable upon several Accounts. It was when (b) Daniel's seventy weeks were almost ended, according to the latest and largest Computation. It was whilst the second Temple was standing; so that (as the (c) Prophet Malachi said) The LORD, whom the Jews did seek, did come into it; and this (as the (d) Prophet Haggai foretold) made the glory of that latter house to be greater than that of the former, because he, who was the desire of all nations, came and honour'd it with his Presence. It was at a Time when the Jewish Polity was in a low Condition; for (as (e) Jacob had mention'd long before) the scepter was departed from Judah, and Herod an Idumean was set upon the Throne, and soon after it was made a Province of the Roman Empire. Besides, there was no longer a lawgiver of that Tribe, but they were so wholly govern'd by the Decrees of the Senate of Rome, that foreign Punishments, such as Crucifixion, unknown in the Law of Moses, were inflicted on Malefactors, and it (f) was not lawful for the Jews to put any man to death, but they were oblig'd to apply to the Roman Governors on such Occasions. It was at a Time, when there was a general Expectation of his Birth, and upon the Rumour thereof Herod inquires, (g) where CHRIST is born, not in the least doubting, but that it was really so; and the Answer return'd by the chief Priests and Scribes, intimates that they did acquiesce in the same Opinion. And St. John's Disciples ask, (h) Art thou he that is come? or must we look for another of the same Nature? And this made (i) Anna the Prophetess speak of him in particular to all those, who at that Time looked for redemption in Jerusalem; tho' they could not tell how it should be accomplish'd. There was also an Expectation of the same Nature in the Gentile World, both East and West. The (k) wise men came from the east, saying, Where is he that is born king of the Jews? For we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him. Josephus (l) tells us of a Prophecy, that in those days there should come one out of Judea, who should have the command of the whole world; and that this was the chief Motive to their unfortunate War with the Romans. This is the same Word for Word, which (m) Suetonius saith, was an ancient and a constant Opinion, and the common Report was, that it would be fulfill'd at that Time. And (n) Tacitus another Roman Historian gives us the same Account of such an Expectation. It is said, that (o) Augustus Cesar, in whose Time our SAVIOUR was born, sent to the Oracle, to know who should reign after him, and that the Devil, who spake from thence, return'd this Answer, That an Hebrew Child had commanded him to depart from his Seat, and remitted him to his sad Doom, and that therefore they should forbear from Making any farther Addresses to him. And what (p) Virgil applies to the Son of Pollio, was taken from some Prophecies among the Romans, which pointed at our SAVIOUR as the Son of GOD, who at that Time should come down from Heaven, and take away the Sins of the whole World. It was at a Time, when Augustus Cesar was Emperor of Rome, and consequently of all the known Countries, who was the justest and best of all the Heathens, that ever sway'd the Scepter. And it was at such a Time of his Reign, when the Temple of Janus was shut up in Rome, tho' it was always open whilst there were any Wars. This happen'd only five Times, from the first Building of Rome till then, which contain'd the Space of seven hundred and fifty Years. The (q) first Time was in the Reign of Numa. The second (r) at the End of the first Carthaginian War. The third (s) when Augustus had vanquish'd Anthony and Cleopatra, and reduc'd thereby the whole Empire to a quiet Submission to him, which happen'd nine and twenty Years before the Birth of CHRIST, according to the Vulgar Account. The fourth Time (t) was four Years after, when Augustus return'd from the War, which he had with the Cantabrians in Spain. And the fifth Time (u) was in this Year, under the Reign of the same Augustus. For now there was a general Peace all over the World, and that which made it more remarkable was, that it continu'd for twelve Years together. So that now (x) Mercy and truth did meet together; and righteousness and peace did kiss each other. Truth did spring out of the earth, and righteousness did look down from heaven. And all these did go before the (y) Child that now was born, and the son, which now was given, and who was called in a more eminent Manner The prince of peace, and (z) The LORD our righteousness. And more particularly it was at a Time, when Augustus Cesar had issu'd out a Decree, for the Taking a Description, or Survey of the whole Roman Empire, containing an Account of all the Persons, Possessions, and Estates therein, and the Taxes issuable from them. And it was this Year executed in Judea, in the same Manner as St. Luke relates. This occasion'd Joseph and Mary to go to Bethlehem, there to be register'd among their own Relations, and by this Providence our SAVIOUR was born in that City, according as it was (a) foretold by the Prophet Micah, and indisputably own'd to be (b) of the house and lineage of David, exactly as it was written in (c) the Psalms, and (d) other Places of Scripture concerning him. In this Respect the Providence of GOD was more remarkable, when we consider, that Augustus Cesar had decreed about eight and twenty Years before the Birth of CHRIST, that (e) there should have been an Enrolling of the whole Empire, and proclaim'd it in Tarracon a City of Spain, after the Cantabri had been reduc'd by him; for he conceiv'd that to be a fit Time, when the Roman Empire seem'd to be at Quiet. His Design was to know the Strength or Weakness of every Province, that he might the better govern them in Time of Peace, and what Number of Forces could suppress them in Case of an Insurrection. But finding afterward some unexpected Commotions, he deferr'd it to the fourth Year before the real Time in which CHRIST was born. So long had the Ta ing of this Description or Survey been Carrying on thro' Syria, Calosyria, Phœnicia and Judæa, before it came to Bethlehem. Had it been done before, there might have been no need of it now; and then Joseph and Mary would neither have had the Occasion of Going from Nazareth to their native City, or of being enroll'd. But what shall we say to these things? Every Particular as the LORD's doing, and it may well be wonderful in our eyes.

2. How long it was since the Birth of CHRIST, according to the Vulgar Computation, to this Time, is well known to every one. But the first Year from whence it began, instead of being one Year, happens to be three Years and seventy nine Days later than the real Time. This Difference proceeded from hence, that it was not till the 527th Year according to that Computation, when it was first brought into Use. Till then some reckon'd by the Æra of Nabonassar, some from the first Olympiad, some from the Building of Rome, and some by other Accounts. But at this Time (f) Dionysius Exiguus, a Scythian by Birth, and then a Roman Abbot, was the first Author of it; and Beda, our Countryman, taking it from him, us'd it in all his Writings; and the Recommendation which he gave it thereby, hath made it of common Use among Christians ever since, especially in these western Parts. If all Christians had computed their Time by it from the Beginning of the Church of CHRIST, there could have then been no Mistake. But it being so long after his Incarnation before this Æra of it was ever us'd, it is no Wonder, that it happen'd not to be rightly fix'd at the first Attempt. The Reason of Fixing it in this Manner was this: It evidently appears from (g) St. Luke, that in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Cesar John the son of Zacharias came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins. Upon this our SAVIOUR was baptiz'd of him, when (h) he began to be about thirty years of age. After this St. John reckons four Passovers during the publick Ministry of CHRIST, who was crucify'd on the last of them. The Day of the Passover on which he was crucify'd, happening this Year to be upon a Friday, or (i) the day of their preparation, when the sabbath drew on, was a convincing Argument, that this was the Year of his Crucifixion, as it really was; and from thence it was concluded, that he was crucify'd on the Passover, in the thirty third Year of his Age.

3. The Discovery of the Mistake, which happen'd concerning the Year of his Birth, was occasion'd by a more strict Inquiry into the Roman History, by which it (k) appears, that Herod died some Time before the Birth of CHRIST, according to this Computation, in a Year, when the Moon was suppos'd to have been eclips'd in the Spring, and as (l) Josephus intimates, between that and the following Passover, five Days after the Death of Antipater, four and thirty Years after the Expulsion of Antigonus, and in the thirty seventh Year of his being declar'd King of the Jews by the Romans. Whereas it is plain from (m) Scripture, that this Herod intended the Murder of our SAVIOUR, destroy'd all the Children of Bethlehem for his Sake, and died, after he had been carry'd into Egypt to avoid the same Fate.

4. To set this Matter right we must own (as (n) St. Luke tells us) that the word of GOD first came to John the son of Zacharias in the fifteenth year of Tiberius Cesar Emperor of Rome. But then it must be observ'd, that this fifteenth Year of Tiberius could not be his fifteenth Year from the Death of Augustus his Predecessor, as Dionysius reckon'd it, because it is not consistent with the Death of Herod: And besides, in this Case there would have been but four Years for the Ministry of John the Baptist, and the personal Ministry of CHRIST put both together, which Time would have been too narrow a Space for the Actions, which are recorded of them both in the Gospels. Besides, in so short a Time as must be allow'd to the Ministry of John in this Case, it is not likely, that he should have acquir'd that great Fame, as appears not only (o) by the Gospels, but also from (p) the Writings of Josephus the Historian, that he had obtain'd not only in Judæa and Galilee, but also throughout the circumjacent Regions before his Death. The fifteenth Year therefore of the Reign of Tiberius Cesar, (q) in which John the Baptist began to preach, must be reckon'd from that Time, when he, being the Daughter of Livia by a former Husband, and now Wife to Augustus, began to reign jointly with him, and was, according to (r) Velleius Paterculus, and (s) Suetonius, admitted by him into a Copartnership with him in the Empire; and by a Law (which Augustus caus'd to be propos'd and enacted by the Consuls) had conferr'd on him an equal Power in the Government of the Provinces with Augustus himself. This was in the 41st Year of the Reign of Augustus Cesar, and three Years before his Death, which makes the Difference of the three Years already mention'd. For from that Time the publick Acts went in his Name, as well as in the Name of Augustus, especially in the Imperial Provinces, of which (t) Syria was one. And therefore from that Time the Years of his Reign were reckon'd in those Provinces. And this happen'd, as (u) the most learned Archbishop Usher observes, in the Year of the Julian Period 4725, and the fifteenth Year from thence brings us to the Year of the Julian Period 4739, in which the Word of GOD came to John the Baptist, and the Preaching of the Gospel first began. And then it was, that CHRIST by his Fore-runner manifested his Coming, and made his first Appearance in that great Work of our Salvation, on which he was sent; and soon after was (x) baptiz'd of John in the River of Jordan, when he enter'd upon the thirtieth Year of his Age, or was just turn'd of nine and twenty. So that from the Year of the Julian Period 4739, by subtracting 29, the Remainder is 4710, or the Year of the World 4005, which was the real Year of CHRIST's Birth, or Annus Æræ Christianæ 00.

6. This Year is remarkable, because it happen'd to be the Year of Jubilee. The Time of the Year is also as remarkable, as being on the fifteenth Day of the Month Tisri, or the Day when the Feast of Tabernacles began, which was a plain Type of our SAVIOUR's Incarnation, when, as (y) St John saith, he was made flesh, & dwelt among us. The Day also was as remarkable, being that Year on the seventh Day of October, which happen'd to be a Sunday, and the same Day of the Week which he intended to consecrate by his Resurrection, as the Day of the Christian Sabbath. On this Day he was born. At this Time the Shepherds having kept a Watch over their Flocks by Night, heard the Angels say unto them, Fear not, for behold I bring unto you glad tidings of great joy, which shall be unto all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a SAVIOUR, which is CHRIST the LORD. At this Time the multitude of the heavenly host praised GOD and said, Glory be to GOD on high, and on earth peace, and good will to men. On this Day the Shepherds came to Bethlehem in haste, and found Joseph and Mary, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they had seen him, they made known abroad the saying, which was told them concerning this child. And thus when the Sound of the Rams-Horns, as commanded in the Year of Jubilee but five Days before, had publish'd a Liberty to Servants, and that the Lands which had been alienated should be restor'd to their antient Owners; even then the Angels from Heaven declare our Redemption and Liberty from the Tyranny of Sin and Satan, and that we should be restor'd to all the Privileges which we had formerly lost. But this being mention'd more at large in the fourth Book, and in a Chapter on this Subject, needs not to be again repeated.

7. The Time of our SAVIOUR's Birth being fix'd, and also the Year of his Crucifixion, there are several other Particulars depending thereon, which may easily be fix'd also. Thus the Angel appear'd to Zacharias (z) six Months before our SAVIOUR's Conception, and fifteen Months before his Birth. Zacharias was (a) a Priest of the course of Abia, which was (b) the eighth Course, and (c) as he executed the priests office before GOD in the order of his course according to the priests office, the angel of the LORD appeared to him. This Course began in the former Year, on (d) Saturday the twenty fourth Day of June, and ended on Saturday the first Day of July, Anno Mundi 4004. About the eighth Day of July Elizabeth conceives. About the first Day of January in the following Year Anno Mundi 4005, the Virgin Mary (e) receives the Message from the Angel, and she also conceives. Upon the 13th of April, or the Day of the Feast of unleavened Bread, John the Baptist was born. Upon the seventh Day of October, or the first Day of the Feast of Tabernacles, our SAVIOUR was born. On the fourteenth Day of October, the two and twentieth Day of the seventh Month, or the last Day of the Feast, (f) he was circumcis'd. On the fortieth Day after his Birth, or the fifteenth Day of November, he was (g) brought to be presented in the Temple to GOD, on the Day that his Mother was purify'd, according to (h) the Law of Moses. Soon after this Joseph his Father was (i) warn'd to flee with him, and his Mother into Egypt. And about a Year after, or something more, or upon the twenty eighth of December (at least nothing appears to the contrary) the Children in and about Bethlehem were slain for his Sake.

(t) Prideaux, Anno 65. (u) Annalium, Vol. 2. pag. 553. (x) Luke 3. 21, 22, 23. (y) John 1. 14. (z) Luke 1. 36. (a) Luke 1. 5. (b) 1 Chron. 24. 10. (c) Luke 1. 8. (d) See Page 409. Immediately upon this, Herod, who order'd this Massacre, was seiz'd with a violent Dis-temper, of which he died not long before the Passover, in the second Year following the Birth of CHRIST, which happen'd on or about the twentieth Day of April. The same Summer (k) Joseph returns from Egypt, and dwells at Nazareth. When our SAVIOUR was (l) twelve Years of Age, he disputeth with the Doctors in the Temple. When he was entring upon the thirtieth Year of his Age, he was (m) baptiz'd by St. John in the River Jordan, soon after he had begun the Course of his Ministry, which St. Mark calls (n) The beginning of the gospel of JESUS CHRIST the SON of GOD. Three Years after this our SAVIOUR begins also to preach, and work Miracles, about the Feast of Tabernacles, when he enter'd upon the thirty third Year of his Age, and continu'd so to do for the Space of three Years and an half, until the Time of the Passover, when he was crucify'd. For the Methodizing of all these Actions, we must observe, That St. Mark is allow'd by all to have plac'd those which he mentions in their exact Order. He was at Jerusalem when he wrote it, the Place where all these things were done, and wrote by the Direction of St. Peter, who was the Apostle of the Circumcision, and resided there, and therefore had the fittest Opportunity for that Purpose. St. Mark being very short, St. Matthew takes many of those Stories, and adds to them several others, which had been omitted. It is plain, that St. Mark's Gospel was by him, when he wrote his own, because he not only mentions the same Stories, but also useth in many Places the very same Words. He also observes an exact Chronological Order, except from the End of the seventh Chapter (o) to the Beginning of the fourteenth, where he makes a Variation, that he might first place together the Miracles of OUR SAVIOUR for the Good of the Bodies of others, and after that his Commissioning his Apostles to preach, and his own Preaching for the Good of their Souls. St. Luke writes by the Direction of St. Paul, and had the Gospels of St. Matthew and St. Mark before him at the same Time, and accordingly he takes some Stories out of the one, and some out of the other, and is of singular Use to reduce into their proper Order those Stories of St. Matthew, which are omitted by St. Mark. He also follows an exact Order. His fourth Chapter begins with the Account of CHRIST's Temptation in the Wilderness, in the same Manner with St. Matthew;

then he adds several Stories, which were recited by the other Evangelists, and then proceeds to a (p) particular Account of many things omitted by them, which happen'd not long before OUR SAVIOUR's Crucifixion. St. John writes after the rest, and it is probable, that he had the Writings of the other three before him at that Time. His chief Design was to mention those Particulars which the others had omitted, and therefore he takes Care to speak of different Actions and Discourses. Thus there is a wonderful Harmony in these Evangelists, which plainly shews the wonderful Wisdom of GOD in Directing them in such a Manner. Besides, the things, in which they vary, are very remarkable. The History in the Minority of CHRIST, which was mention'd by St. Matthew, receives very considerable Additions from St. Luke; so that there was no Necessity for St. Mark or St. John to say any more on that Subject. St. Matthew recites his Genealogy from Joseph, and St. Luke from the Virgin Mary, that there might be no Dispute of either Side. These Accounts plainly prove him to be Man, in Opposition to some Heresies which afterward sprang up, and therefore it was more necessary, that St. John in the Beginning of his Gospel should assert his Divinity, as he did in Opposition to the Heresies which were actually sprang up when he wrote. The chief Particulars which they all relate, are his Passion, Death and Resurrection. And it was necessary that these things should be mention'd by all, being the grand Articles of our Faith, and the Foundation of all our Hope. As for the Settling the whole in a Chronological Order, it must be observ'd, First, That where two or three Evangelists have join'd any one Story to some other either before or after, they have laid it in its proper Place. Thus the Story of St. Peter's Denial of CHRIST must be laid where (q) St. Matthew, St. Mark, and St. Luke hath plac'd it, and (r) St. John varies from them for a particular Reason. Secondly, Where St. Matthew varies from the others, he must be rectify'd by St. Mark or St. Luke, as in the Chapters above-mention'd. Thirdly, That all those Stories, which were related by two of them in the same Manner, and with the same Circumstances, as we find them referr'd to in the Margin of our Bibles, were the same Stories, and not acted at different Times, except the excellent Sermon mention'd by (s) St. Matthew and (t) St. Luke, which are very much alike, but may be distinguish'd by these following Circumstances: The one was (u) spoken (k) Matth. 2. 19 to the End. (l) Luke 2. 41, 42. (m) Matth. 3. 13 to the End. Mark 1. 9, and Luke 3. 21. (n) Mark 1. 1. (o) Or more particularly to Chap. 13. 53. (p) Luke 9. 51. (q) Matth. 26. 69 to the End. Mark 14. 66 to the End. Luke 22. 54 to 63. (r) John 13. 36 to the End. (s) Matth. Chap. 5, 6, 7. (t) Luke 6. 20 to the End. (u) Matth. 5. 1. (x) Luke 6. 17.

from a Mountain, the other (x) from a Plain. The one was spoken (y) before the Calling of the twelve Apostles, and the other was (z) after it. The one is generally own'd to be his first Discourse, when (a) the People came not to hear him, but to be heal'd of their Diseases, and accordingly (b) were astonish'd when they found that his Preaching was not inferior to his other Miracles. So that the first of these Discourses must be before the first Passover, and the other was (c) after it. As for the particular Times of these Transactions, it is plain, that (d) St. John mentions his Crucifixion to have been on the Day of the Passover, which was on the fourteenth Day of the first Month, or on the full Moon, and this Year happen'd upon a Friday, because it was the Day of the Preparation for the Sabbath; and this is allow'd by all to have been Anno Christi 33, according to the Vulgar Account. As for a more particular Distinction of the Years of OUR SAVIOUR's Ministry, St. Luke divides his Gospel into five Parts, First, From the Time of his Entrance thereon (e) to the first Sabbath after the first Sabbath of his first Year. Secondly, What happen'd on that Sabbath. Thirdly, What happen'd on (f) the Sabbath following. Fourthly, What (g) happen'd after that, until his Crucifixion was near: And lastly, What (h) happen'd near his Crucifixion. And this St. John more exactly divides into the Space from the Beginning to (i) the first Passover, then (k) to the second, then (l) to the third, then (m) to the Feast of Tabernacles in the seventh Month, then to (n) the Feast of the Dedication in the ninth Month, then (o) to the sixth Day before his last Passover. After this it is (p) unanimously agreed, that he rested in the Grave on the Day after the Passover, or on the Jewish Sabbath, and (q) rose from the Dead on the first Day of the Week, being Sunday, or the Day following, when he appear'd to his Disciples. The (r) Sunday following he appear'd to them again. Forty Days after his Resurrection, he (s) ascended into Heaven. After that (t) Matthias was chosen to be an Apostle. Fifty Days after his Resurrection, or on (u) Sunday the Day of Pentecost the Apostles were inspir'd with the HOLY GHOST. And some Part of their Preaching is mention'd to be before (x) the Dearth in the Reign of Claudius Cesar, and some Part to be after it. St. Paul gives us (y) several Hints to distinguish the Transactions of his Ministry. And St. John (z) saith, that he wrote his Revelations, when he was banish'd into Patmos, which (a) is generally allow'd to be in the Reign of Domitian Emperor of Rome, and in the 96th Year of CHRIST, according to the Vulgar Account. All these are Guides and Helps to direct us in Fixing the Chronology of the New Testament, as it will more evidently appear in the following Tables. They who are willing to be acquainted with the sacred History of the New Testament (as every one ought to be) may consult the divinely inspired Writers themselves with the best Success; and if they are willing to add others of human Composure to them, they may be abundantly furnish'd from the Right Reverend Bishop Taylor in his Life of CHRIST, and the Learned Dr. Cave in his Lives of the Apostles, or from (b) other Authors, who have written on the same Subject, and whose Works are printed in our own Language.

8. The Time of the Birth of our SAVIOUR being fix'd, there remains but one Difficulty more, which is concerning the Time of the Death of Herod. They who have plac'd it on the seventh Day of the Month Chislen, or about the latter End of our November, depend only on the Authority of a Jewish Calendar, which is not sufficient to bear the Weight laid upon it, it being uncertain when it was written, or by whom, or upon what Design. And as the Jews were the worst of Chronologers, so they were the bitterest Enemies of the New Testament; and therefore the Author might add this to make its History the more suspected. Josephus, one of their own Nation, (c) gives us a better and more impartial Account of this Matter. He saith (d) that Herod intending to destroy his own Son Antipater, was diverted, by a sudden Fit of Sickness, from the Execution of it. After this he grew every day weaker and weaker. His Disease was an universal Pain from Head to Foot, a violent Fever, an intolerable Itching all over his Body, Cholick, Dropical Humours, Wind in his Stomach, some Parts of his Body putrify'd and crawling with Worms, Difficulty of Breathing, broken Sighs, Contraction of the Nerves, and Convulsions in all Parts. The Jews themselves look'd upon it as a Judgment from GOD for his many Barbarities, and we Christians may add in particular, for the Murder of the innocent Children at Bethlehem, which happen'd not long before. In the Midst of this Judas the Son of Sariphæus, and Matthias the Son of Margalothus, stir'd up the People to pull down the golden Eagle of a prodigious Weight and Value, which Herod had caus'd to be set up over the Portal of the Temple, as a Profanation of that holy Place. Whilst they were making an Oration for this Purpose, a false Rumour was spread abroad, that the King was dead; upon which the Mob rose, tore down the Eagle at Noon-day, and cut it to Pieces with their Axes, in the Sight of a vast Multitude. The Soldiers by Force suppress the Tumult, and seize the two Leaders, and many others with them; and Herod orders the two Leaders of the Faction to be burnt alive, and that the Heads of those who were taken together, should be struck off by the common Hangman, which was done accordingly; and the Night following the Moon suffer'd an Eclipse. After this Herod tries all Sorts of Remedies in Hope of a Cure. His Physicians advis'd him to go over Jordan to the hot Baths of Callirhoe, which empty themselves into the Lake of Asphaltites. Whilst he was here, his Embassadors brought him Word from Augustus Cesar, that Antipater was left to Herod to do as he pleas'd, either by Death or Banishment. Upon this there was a second Report of the King's Death, which Antipater believing, treats with his Keeper with large Offers and Promises for his Discharge, who telling the whole to Herod, he orders one of the Guards to go that very Moment and kill him; and he himself liv'd but five Days longer, having first alter'd his Will, and declar'd Archelaus his Successor, provided the same was confirm'd by Augustus Cesar. His Death was kept secret for a little while, but as soon as it was known, a Tumult little less than a Rebellion was rais'd against Archelaus, upon the Account of those who were executed for Pulling down the Golden Eagle, which made a terrible Uproar in the Temple in the Time of the Passover. So that the Time of his Death was near the Passover, and in a Year when there was an Eclipse of the Moon about two or three Months before.

9. It is certain, that this Eclipse did not happen in the Year immediately after our SAVIOUR's Birth, or of the Julian Period 4711. This Year a new Moon happen'd at Jerusalem on the 15th Day of February, at about forty Minutes after one of the Clock. At this Time the Moon was so near the Node, that she had but five Seconds of North Latitude. So that here was a very large and total Eclipse of the Sun, but it happen'd to be so much to the South of Jerusalem, as not to be visible there at all; and at the Full both before and after the Latitude of the Moon was so great, that there was no Eclipse.

10. But it is very probable, that this Eclipse happen'd in the Year after, upon the 20th Day of January. At this Time the Sun did set at Jerusalem at four Minutes past five of the Clock, and the Middle of the Eclipse was about two Minutes before. The Moon rose totally eclips'd, and continu'd so for a considerable Time, and did not recover her Light until above an Hour and an half after, when it was totally dark; and therefore it happen'd at a Time when most People might observe it, and was three Months before the Passover. There was indeed a total Eclipse of the Moon, and much more central than the other; on the tenth Day of January, in the Year following. But as it was at too great a Distance from the Birth of our SAVIOUR; so the Middle thereof happening at Jerusalem about half an Hour after two of the Clock in the Morning, and being when the Inhabitants were in their Beds, there were but few, who could make their Observations of it, so as to remember it for so long a Time after. And as for those which happen'd after the Birth of CHRIST, according to the Vulgar Account, they are all at too great a Distance from the Passover to correspond with the History of Josephus, which in this Case may be of undoubted Credit.

11. The true Matter of Fact is therefore this: Our SAVIOUR being born on the seventh Day of October as aforesaid in the 4710th Year of the Julian Period, was circumcis'd on the eighth Day, and presented in the Temple on the fortieth Day after, according to the Law of Moses. All this was done before the wise Men came from the East to Jerusalem, to enquire concerning him; for upon their Coming, Herod the King, and the whole City, were under such a Consternation, that it would not have been any Way safe for Joseph and his Mother to have adventur'd thither with him, and so they (a) return to their own City Nazareth. Some time after, and perhaps in the Spring, the wise Men came from the East, to enquire where they might find him that was born King of the Jews? Herod enquires of the Scribes, where he should be born? They tell him, In Bethlehem. He sends the wise Men to Bethlehem. We do not read whether they went thither or not, but only that they follow'd the Guidance of the Star, till it came and stood over the House, where the young Child was; which might have been in Nazareth as well as Bethlehem. When they see him, they offer him Gold, and Frankincense and Myrrh. This must be after the Presenting of him in the Temple ; for otherwise the Gold which they brought, must have been sufficient to purchase a Lamb for the Purification of the Blessed Virgin, which the Law of Moses did (b) positively require, instead of (c) the Pair of Turtle Doves, or two young Pigeons. Joseph and Mary being warn'd by an Angel, and having sufficient to live upon by this wonderful Providence, depart into Egypt with the young Child, and Herod waits for the Return of the wise Men to the End of the Year. When our SAVIOUR was enter'd on the second Year of his Age, Herod could wait no longer, but orders all the Children in and about Bethlehem, under two Years old, to be slain, supposing that CHRIST being of a middle Age could not escape. Soon after this Herod was taken ill of a very strange Distemper, which every one look'd upon as a Judgment from GOD. Judas and Matthias incense the People to destroy the Golden Eagle set up before the Portal of the Temple, and were burnt alive for the same. This happen'd on the twentieth Day of January ; upon which Evening the Moon was eclips'd. Herod grows worse and worse, alters his Will, and declares Archelaus his Successor. He dies. His Death is kept secret for a few Days, but known a little before the Passover, which this Year happen'd about the nineteenth Day of April, when a violent Tumult was rais'd in the Temple to embroil the Government, before it was settl'd. As soon as it was suppress'd, Archelaus goes to Rome to have his Father's Will confirm'd by Augustus Cesar, and leaves the Care of his Kingdom and Family in his Absence to his Brother Philip. Augustus confirms the Will, and Archelaus comes back to his Kingdom as fast as he could. Whilst Philip govern'd, Joseph returns out of Egypt, but coming to the Frontiers of Judea, he hears that Archelaus was come back, and had taken the Government upon him. This makes him afraid to go thither, and so he fetches a Compass round, and with the Virgin and our SAVIOUR he takes up his Abode at Nazareth, which must therefore most probably be in October, in the Beginning of the third Year of CHRIST's Life. Thus the Scripture History is consistent with it self, and with other Authors, and is most fully confirm'd by Astronomical Observations.

10. There hath been a late Controversy started concerning the Day, on which our SAVIOUR suffer'd, whether it was upon the fourteenth or fifteenth Day of the first Month Nisan or Abib. It is certain, that the Feast of the Passover was upon the fourteenth Day of this Month, when they (d) kill'd the Lamb ; and to this St. Paul alludes, when he saith, (e) that CHRIST our Passover is sacrific'd for us ; and St. Peter also, when he saith, (f) that we are redeem'd by the precious blood of CHRIST JESUS, as a lamb without blemish, and without spot, which was exactly true of (g) the Lambs slain at that Time. And St. John alludes to the same, when he tells us, (h) that the Scripture was fulfill'd, which was written of him, A bone of him shall not be broken. Besides, he tells us plainly, that on the Day of his Crucifixion, (i) the Jews went not themselves into the judgment-hall, lest they should (k) be defiled, but that they also might eat the Passover. The Argument to the contrary is, that (l) CHRIST did eat the Passover the Night before with his Disciples ; and therefore that was the fourteenth Day. But to this it is answer'd, (m) that as in (n) extraordinary Cases the Passover was deferr'd for a Month ; so sometimes in such Cases it was anticipated for a Day before. This made the Distinction between that Passover, which was sacrificial, and that which was commemorative. Now JESUS knew, that he was to die the next Day, and therefore not being to live to the legal Time, he anticipated it, and must have done so, or not have kept it at all. There was a Necessity for him to keep the commemorative Passover, that he might institute his own Supper instead thereof, and as a Commemoration of something else. So that in this Case he did all that was possible for him to do ; and he was so far from Breaking the Law of GOD, that he did what was allowable in Cases of Necessity. Thus (o) JESUS saith to his Disciples, Go into the city to such a man, and say unto him, The master saith, My time is at hand, I will keep the passover at thy house with my disciples. What we render I will keep, is ποιῶ in the present Tense, I do keep ; that is, I cannot stay to the following Day, when the Paschal Lamb is to be sacrific'd ; but intend forthwith (my time being at hand) to keep the Passover with my Disciples. 'Tis farther observ'd, that JESUS is said to eat the Passover, but not to sacrifice it. So that tho' it is granted, that the sacrificial Passover could not be kept out of the legal and appointed Time ; yet this doth not infer, but our SAVIOUR might observe that which was commemorative. But this Difficulty may also be solv'd by an Astronomical Calculation. It is allow'd by all, that he was crucified on Friday the third Day of April, Anno Christi 33, according to the Vulgar Account. If this was the fifteenth Day of the Month, then the Moon must have been visible on the nineteenth Day of March in the Evening immediately before. But if it was the fourteenth, then the Moon was not visible until the twentieth Day of the same Month. I have therefore added the Calculations for both these Times with the utmost Exactness from Mr. Whiston's Astronomical Tables; by which it will more fully appear, that they are not only out in Divinity, but also in their Mathematicks, who affirm that our SAVIOUR was crucified on the fifteenth Day; but that it was really on the fourteenth: And so he died, when the Paschal Lamb was slain, as the Apostles plainly shew us in the New Testament.

From these two Tables it evidently appears, First, That it was impossible for the new Moon to be seen at Jerusalem on the nineteenth Day of March immediately before the Crucifixion of Our SAVIOUR, and consequently that the Month could not begin on the following Day. For the Difference of the Oblique Descension of the Sun and Moon at the Time of Visibility being but 3<sup>d</sup>. 28<sup>m</sup>. it so happen'd, that when the Moon might have been visible at her setting by Reason of a proper Distance from the Sun, she had been under the Horizon, above half an Hour before. On the other hand it appears, that the next Evening, or on the twentieth Day of March at the time of Visibility the Difference of the Oblique Descensions was 20<sup>d</sup>. 09<sup>m</sup>. occasion'd by the swift Motion of the Moon, her North Latitude, and her being in a Sign of very slow Descension, so that she did not set until an Hour and a Quarter after the Sun: Thus the Moon was very visible on this Evening; and therefore the Month began on the twenty first Day of March, and Our SAVIOUR being crucified on Friday the third Day of April following, was crucified on the fourteenth and not on the fifteenth Day of the said Month.

By other Calculations too tedious to be here inserted it appears, that on the said nineteenth Day of the Month, there was a total Eclipse of the Sun in the more remote southern Parts of the World, and that the Shadow approach'd nearer and nearer to Jerusalem; and therefore when the Sun did set in that City, it was totally eclipsed in the more southern Parts at the same Time, and soon after the Shadow left the Earth. Now no one can imagine, that the Sun can be totally eclipsed in one Part of the World, and the Light of the New Moon can be visible in another Part at the same Time.

Hence it is evident, that Our Blessed LORD and SAVIOUR was crucified on the fourteenth Day of the Jewish Month Nisan or Abib, even upon the Day when the Jews killed and eat the Paschal Lamb: And tho' he kept the Passover the night before; yet even that was most agreeable to the literal Sence of the Hebrew Text, where the Words ירח and חרש, which we translate A Month, are more applicable to the Conjunction than the phases, and do properly signify the Moon or the Renovation, which we call the Change; on the fourteenth Day after which, our SAVIOUR observ'd the Passover, as the Jews observed it the Day following, being the fourteenth after the Moon's Appearance.

TABLE the Fiftieth, or last.

Chap. 10 and 11. and Wars of the Jews , Book 1. Chap. 21. and Book 2. Chap. 1.
						Joseph , Mary and CHRIST return from Egypt to Nazareth , Matth. 2. 19 to the End.

(a) N. B. That the real Year of CHRIST's Birth, or Year 1, begins October 7. on the Day of his Birth, Anno Per. Jul. 4710. and ends on the sixth Day of October following. But the Vulgar Year of CHRIST, from whence we compute our present Years, begins January 1. Anno Per. Jul. 4714. almost three Years and a Quarter after the other, and ends on the 31st Day of December following.

(b) N. B. That St. John divides the Time of CHRIST's publick Ministry, by the four Passovers which happen'd therein. The first Passover is mention'd, John 2. 13. The second, John 5. 1. The third, John 6. 4. And the fourth, John 13. 1. St. Mark, St. Luke, and St. John generally observe the Order of Time, which St. Matthew seems in many Places to have neglected, and therefore the Order of his Gospel must be rectify'd by the other three. The Reasons of the Dislocations shall be taken Notice of, as they happen.

(c) St. Matthew places the Genealogy of CHRIST in the Beginning, but St. Luke at the End of the third Chapter; but as it is not a Part of the History, it might be plac'd indifferently in any Part thereof.

					The twelfth Year from the Birth of CHRIST beginning October 7. Joseph, Mary and CHRIST go up to the Passover, which this Year happen'd on Saturday March 30, the new Moon or first Day of the Year being on Sunday March 17. the Position of the Sun and Moon the Evening before at Jerusalem being as follows, at the Time of Visibility. Sun in ♋ 23 d. 58 m. 24". Moon in ♑ 9 d. 54 m. 33". Latitude of Moon South 5 d. 10 m. 35". Difference of Oblique Descension of Sun and Moon 17 m. 40". Dominical Letter F. Thus Joseph, Mary and CHRIST came to Jerusalem this Year on Friday March 29. The Passover began on the fourteenth Day of the first Month, Exod. 12. 6. or on Saturday, March 30. The Feast of unleavened Bread after the Passover ended on the twenty first Day of the first Month, Exod. 12. 18, or on Saturday April 6. On Sunday April 7, they return'd home, and travelling from the Temple on the LORD's Day they lost the LORD of the Temple. On Monday April 8 they return'd back to Jerusalem. On Thursday April 11 they found him in the Temple, Luke 2. 41 to the End.
4019	11	14	4724	208 6	The sixty sixth of Daniel's Weeks ends about the thirtieth Day of August.

4034	26	29	4739	211 0	About the Spring John being 29 Years of Age begins to preach, and afterward he baptizeth, Matth. 3. 1 to 13. Mark 1. 1 to 9. Luke 3. 1 to 19 (d).
4034	26	30	4739	211 0	After the Feast of Tabernacles CHRIST being enter'd upon the thirtieth Year of his Age, was baptiz'd of St. John, Matth. 3. 13 to the End. Mark 1. 9 to 12. Luke 3. 21, 22, and Part of the 23d Verse.

(d) Here the History of St. John's Imprisonment is added to his Baptism and Preaching by St. Luke, ver. 19, 20. to join both together. And for the same Reason St. Matthew, Chap. 14. 3, 4, 5. joins it with the History of his being beheaded.

4038	30	33	4743	2114	CHRIST turns Water into Wine, and goes from Cana in Galilee to Capernaum, John 2. 1 to 13.
					The first Passover after CHRIST's publick Ministry, John 2. 13.
					This Year begins on Saturday March 25 , the Moon not being visible on March 23 in the Evening, her Position at the Time of Visibility being thus. Sun in ♈ 0 d. 43 m. Moon in ♋ 10 d. 53 m. Latitude South 3 d. 57 m. Difference of the Oblique Descension at the Time of Setting, 11 d. 03 m. Dominical Letter A. So that the Passover began this Year on Friday April 7 , and the Feast of unleavened Bread ended on Friday April 14.
					CHRIST goes to Jerusalem, drives the Buyers and Sellers out of the Temple, and foretels his own Death and Resurrection, John 2. 13 to the End. CHRIST discourses with Nicodemus, and St. John testifies of him, John 3, throughout.
					John is now cast into Prison, Matth. 14. 3, 4, 5. Mark 6. 17, 18, 19, 20. Luke 3. 19, 20. (f)
					CHRIST hearing that John was in Prison, begins to preach, Mark 1. 14, 15.
4038	30	33	4743	2114	CHRIST having staid eight Months in Judea, and hearing that the Pharisees knew that his Disciples baptiz'd more than John had baptiz'd, goes from thence for Galilee, John 4. 1, 2, 3. Matth. 4. 12.
		34			In the Beginning of December, or four Months before the Harvest, at the Passover, (g) CHRIST goes to Sychar in Samaria, talks with the Woman at the Well, and converts several of the Citizens, John 4. 4 to 43. Having stay'd two Days, he departs for Galilee, John 4. 43, 44.

(e) For the Methodizing of this Story, we must observe, that it is not the same with the Calling of Andrew and Peter mention'd Matth. 4. 18 to 23, and Mark 1. 16 to 21. This was done in Bethabara beyond Jordan, John 1. 28. the other in the Borders of Zabulon and Naphthali on this Side, Matth. 4. 13. and Mark 1. 16. Here they attended on John as his Disciples, John 1. 35, 37. in the other they were in the Ship casting their Nets into the Sea, Matth. 4. 18. Mark 1. 16. At this Time they follow'd him by St. John's Directions, John 1. 36, 37. at the other Time by CHRIST's Call, Matth. 4. 19. Mark 1. 17. For the right understanding of this we must observe, that of all the four Evangelists St. John hath only given us an Account of the Doctrines and Actions of John the Baptist from the Baptism of CHRIST until his own Imprisonment. And except the Temptation of CHRIST in the Wilderness, there is none of the four that hath told us any Passage of CHRIST himself in all that Space: And therefore, as St. John the Evangelist places this Story before the Imprisonment of John the Baptist, John 3. 64. but St. Matthew and St. Mark have plac'd it after, Matth. 4. 12. Mark 1. 14. the leaving them distinct, as the Evangelists have plac'd them, will solve all the Difficulties, which have otherwise been rais'd on this Occasion. After this first Call they follow'd him but for a Day, to the Place where he dwelt, and went back to St. John the Baptist: After the second Call, they left all, follow'd CHRIST, and went back no more.

(f) The Reason of this Dislocation in all the three Evangelists is, that the whole Story of St. John the Baptist might be taken in together. See the former Page in the Reference (d). Compare John 3. 24. Mark 6. 17, 18, 19, 20, and Matth. 14. 3, 4, 5.

(g) Compare John 4. 35, with Deut. 6. 9, and Levit. 23. 4 to 15.

A Continuation of the last TABLE.

Year of the World.	Vulgar Year of CHRIST.	Real Year of CHRIST.	Year of the Julian Period.	Sabbatical Year.	The History, and Texts of Scripture, with the Chronological Order of every Part of the New Testament.
4038	30	34	4743	211 4	He was kindly receiv'd by the Galileans, John 4. 45. Luke 4. 14, 15. Mark 1. 14, 15. This was his second Return, after his Baptism, from Judea to Galilee. He cures the Son of the Nobleman, John 4. 46 to the End.
4039	31	34	4744	211 5	He reads in the Synagogue of Nazareth, Luke 4. 16 to 31. He leaves Nazareth, and dwells at Capernaum, Matth. 4. 13 to 17. Mark 1. 21, 22. Luke 4. 31, 32. Teaching in the Synagogue he casts out a Devil from a Man possessed, Mark 1. 23 to 29. Luke 4. 33 to 38. Coming out of the Synagogue he enters into the House of Simon and Andrew; and cures Simon's Wife's Mother, being sick of a Fever, Matth. 8. 14, 15. Mark 1. 29, 30, 31. Luke 4. 38, 39. (f) At Sun-set he cures others, Matth. 8. 16, 17. Mark 1. 32, 33, 34. Luke 4. 40, 41.
4039	31	34	4744	211 5	In the Morning he goes into a Desert, and prays, Mark 1. 35 to 39. Luke 4. 42, 43. He preaches in Galilee, Mark 1. 39. Luke 4. 44. He enters into Simon's Ship, and teaches the People, Luke 5. 1, 2, 3. He calls Simon, Andrew, James and John to be Apostles, Matth. 4. 18 to 23. Mark 1. 16 to 21. Luke 5. 4 to 12. (g) He preaches throughout Galilee, works Miracles and the Multitude follow him, Matth. 4. 23, 24, 25.
4039	31	34	4744	211 5	He preaches from a Mountain to those who follow'd him, Matth. Chap. 5, 6, and 7, to Verse 28. (h) The Multitude are astonish'd at his Doctrine, Matth. 7. 28, 29. He cures the Leper, who publisheth the Fact, so that Multitudes flock to him, Matth. 8. 1, 2, 3, 4. Mark 1. 40 to the End. Luke 5. 12 to 17. He goes to Capernaum, and heals one sick of the Palsy, Matth. 9. 2 to 9. Mark 2. 1 to 13. Luke 5. 17 to 27. (i) He calls St. Matthew or Levi a Publican to be an Apostle, Matth. 9. 9. Mark 2. 13, 14. Luke 5. 27, 28.
4039	31	34	4744	211 5	He vindicates his Disciples for not Fasting, Matth. 9. 10 to 14. Mark 2. 15 to 23. Luke 5. 29 to the End.

(f) This in St. Matthew may be plac'd after Chap. 4. 17. But as St. Matthew observes not an exact Chronological Order; so it is plac'd, where we find it, among other Cures of the same Nature.
(g) The Calling of Andrew and Peter is by St. Mark plac'd before its proper Order, which is after Verse 39, because he having given an Account of St. John's Preaching immediately before, proceeds to give an Account of the two of his Disciples, which only are mention'd by Name, before he speaks of the History of CHRIST's Preaching and Miracles, which he afterward placeth all together without Interruption.
N. B. That there are no other Dislocations in the remaining Part of St. Mark, St. Luke, and St. John. Those which happen in St. Matthew shall be spoken of as we come to them, and are easily rectify'd by Comparing them with the parallel Histories in the other Evangelists.
(h) As this Discourse of St. Matthew is of the same Nature with that of St. Luke, Chap. 6. 20 to the End; so it hath been suppos'd, that they were spoken at the same Time, and this Supposition hath introduc'd very great Dislocations in St. Matthew. But tho' the Subject is much the same, yet it is most probable, that they were spoken at different Times. For that of St. Matthew was spoken on a Mountain, Matth. 5. 1. that of St. Luke on a Plain, Luke 6. 17. In St. Matthew it is said, that he sat when he spake it, Matth. 5. 1. but St. Luke saith, that he stood at that Time, Luke 6. 17. St. Matthew mentions it before the Election of the Apostles, Matth. 10. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. but St. Luke after it, Luke 6. 13, 14, 15, 16. In St. Matthew we may suppose it to be spoken before the second Passover, John 5. 1. and in Galilee, Matth. 4. 23. before CHRIST came to Jerusalem, John 5. 1. In St. Luke it is plac'd at least three Sabbaths after the same Passover, Luke 6. 1, 6. when he return'd from Jerusalem to Capernaum, Luke 7. 1. and so went forward to Nain, Luke 7. 11. in his Journey toward other Parts of Galilee. And therefore this being admitted, we need not suppose any Dislocation of this Part of the History either of St. Matthew or St. Luke; but the Particulars in both, which are both immediately before and after these excellent Discourses, are plac'd in their proper Order.
(i) This Story is plac'd in St. Matthew among many other Miracles, and especially miraculous Cures, that the Evangelist might speak of them all at once.

(k) This Story is plac'd in St. Matthew, where it may serve for an Example of the Words immediately before, Matth. 11. 28. CHRIST's yoke is easy, and his burden is light.

(l) Our SAVIOUR having cur'd a Leper, who was present, St. Matthew immediately annexeth this Example of the Centurion, to shew his Power also in those who were absent.

(m) St. Matthew places this Story of John's Disciples immediately after that of the Mission of his own Apostles, to illustrate both Accounts by each other, and to shew, that these Miracles, which confirm'd the one, were also of Use to confirm both.

(n) This in St. Matthew regularly follows what was mention'd before, Matth. 12. 1 to 22. allowing for the Interposition of Matth. 8. 5 to 14: of which an Account hath already been given in Numb. 54. Reference (l).

(o) St. Luke puts the Parable of the Sower before the Declaration of CHRIST, who were his Relations; but it is not material which is first, because both happen'd at the same Time.

(p) St. Matthew puts the Stilling the Tempest before its proper Place, that all the Miracles might be laid together first, and all his select Discourses might be plac'd afterward.
(q) That this is plac'd in its proper Order appears; because the following Parts of the Chapter agree, with what follows in the other Evangelists. And it could not but be plac'd here; for otherwise the Time when it was spoken could not have been determin'd, because it was omitted by all the rest.
(r) The Account how CHRIST was despis'd by his Countrymen is plac'd by St. Matthew after many more Miracles than those which were mention'd before it by the other Evangelists, to shew that they persever'd in their Obstinacy.
(s) The Words of St. Matthew, Chap. 9. 35, regularly follow what was mention'd Verse 24, since the Interposition, Chap. 13. 54 to the End, might have been equally set here, or in any other Place.
(t) And (u) Tho' these Places in St. Matthew are transpos'd in this Table, and the Imprisonment of St. John hath been mention'd already; yet any one, who reads Matth. 14. 1 to 13, may plainly observe, that the whole Story is well laid together, and properly plac'd where it is.

CHRIST

(x) The Story of CHRIST's Forewarning Peter of his Denial, is set by St. Matthew and St. Mark in its proper Place. St. Luke ushers it in with a gracious Promise of supernatural Assistance, and for this Reason he places it after a general Promise to all the Apostles. St. John intermixes it with several other Discourses of CHRIST concerning his Death and Passion, and what should happen at that Time, because he was willing to lay them all together.

This was Sunday April 5. and on this Day he appeareth five Times. Mary Magdalen comes to the Sepulchre, and afterward Peter and John , being ignorant of the Resurrection, John 20. 1 to 11. (1.) After the Departure of Peter and John CHRIST first appear'd to Mary Magdalen , John 20. 11 to 19. See Mark 16. 9, 10. Mary Magdalen tells this to Mary the Mother of James and other Women, who had brought sweet Spices to anoint him, who come together to the Grave, Matth. 28. 1 to 9. Mark 16. 1 to 9. Luke 24. 1 to 9: (2.) As they go to tell his Disciples, they see CHRIST, Matth. 28. 9, 10.
4041	33	36	4746	They tell this to the eleven Disciples, but are not believed. Mary Magdalen was the Person who spake it, Mark 16. 9, 10. Luke 24. 9, 10, 11. Thomas was now with them, for they were eleven, Luke 24. 9. (3.) Peter by a particular Direction goes again to the Sepulchre and sees him, See Mark 16. 7. Luke 24. 12. and 1 Cor. 15. 3, 4, 5. The Watch come, and tell what happen'd, and are brib'd to conceal it. Matth. 28. 11 to 16. (4.) He appears to two Disciples going to Emmaus , who tell it to the eleven Apostles, Thomas being now with them, Mark 16. 12, 13. Luke 24. 13 to 36. One of these was Cleophas , Luke 24. 18. the Husband of one of the Mary's , who had seen him before, John 19. 25. Luke 24. 10. The other is supposed to be St. Luke , who out of Modesty conceals his own Name. (5.) Thomas goes immediately from them, and CHRIST appears to the other ten, John 20. 19 to 24.
4041	33	36	4746	(6.) Sunday April 12. He appears to the eleven, and upbraids them for their Unbelief, Mark 16. 11. Luke 24. 10, 11. and particularly satisfies Thomas , who till this Time was doubtful, John 20. 24 to the End. They immediately go to Galilee , Matth. 26. 32. and 28. 7. Mark 14. 28. and 16. 7. (7.) He appears to five of them at the Sea of Tiberias , whilst they were fishing to supply their own Necessities, and the Necessities of the rest, John 21. 1 to 25. (y)  (8.) Sunday April 19. He appears to five hundred of them at once, as they were celebrating divine Service on the LORD's Day, 1 Cor. 15. 6. (9.) He appears to James , 1 Cor. 15. 7.
4041	33	36	4746	(10.) He appears to all the Apostles at Mount Tabor in Galilee , 1 Cor. 15. 7. Matth. 28. 16 to the End.  (11.) Thursday May 14. He appears to his Disciples at Jerusalem , from whence he brings them to Bethany , blesses them, and ascends into Heaven, Mark 16. 19. Luke 24. 50, 51. Acts 1. 6 to 12. The Apostles return to Jerusalem , Luke 24. 52, 53. Acts 1. 12. The Conclusion of the Gospels, John 20. 30, 31. and 21. 25. (z) The Connexion of them with the Acts of the Apostles, Acts 1. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5.

(y) This is plac'd in these Tables in its proper Order, as appears from John 21. 14. This is now the third time, that JESUS shewed himself to his disciples, after that he was risen from the dead. The Day of his Resurrection he appear'd five Times; but his four first Appearances were only to particular Persons. His first general Appearance was April 5. to all his Apostles except St. Thomas, John 20. 19 to 24. His second was April 12. to them all, when St. Thomas was with them, John 20. 24 to 30. And This was the third Time; so that all the rest happen'd after.
(z) It is very probable, that the last Chapter of St. John's Gospel was added as an Appendix to the rest, when the whole seem'd to be finish'd. This may be the Reason of the Insertion, John 20. 30, 31. Instances of the same Nature we have in St. Paul's Epistles after Rom. 16. 16, 20 and 24. 1 Tim. 6. 16, and Heb. 13. 21.

4041	33	36	4746	Sunday May 17. Matthias is chosen to be an Apostle, Acts 1. 12 to the End. Sunday May 24. The Apostles are inspir'd with the HOLY GHOST, and three thousand are converted on this Day to the Christian Church, Acts Chap. 2 throughout.
4043	35	38	4748	The Apostles now begin to preach and work Miracles, Mark 16. 20. (12.) CHRIST appears to St. Paul going to Damascus, Acts 9. 1 to 10. 1 Cor. 9. 1. and 1 Cor. 15. 8. (a)  Here ends the History of the Gospels, and of CHRIST's Personal Appearing to his Apostles.

(a) The Appearing of CHRIST to St. Paul was after the Time of his Ascension; but it is here plac'd with the rest, that they may be all seen together at once.

Year of the World.	Vulgar Year of CHRIST.	Year of the Julian Period.	The Acts of the Apostles, from their Inspiration, to the End of the New Testament.
4041	33	4746	Sunday May 24. The Apostles are inspir'd with the HOLY GHOST, and three thousand are converted on this Day to the Christian Church, Acts 2, throughout. Peter and John cure the lame Man in the Temple. Peter preaches CHRIST to the People, Acts Chap. 3. The Converts are increas'd to five thousand, Acts 4. 1, 2, 3, 4. Peter and John are taken by the Jews, charged to preach no more, and dismiss'd. The Church betake themselves to Prayer, and GOD testifies, that he heard them, Acts 4. 5 to the End. Ananias and Sapphira are struck dead, which brings a Fear upon the rest, Acts 5. 1 to 12. Many Signs and Wonders are wrought by the Apostles, and Believers are added to the Church, Acts 5. 12 to 17. The Apostles are again imprison'd, and deliver'd by an Angel, Acts 5. 17 to the End. Thus the word of GOD increased, and the number of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem greatly; and a great number of the priests were obedient to the faith. ( Acts 6. 7.) (a)
4042	34	4747	The seven Deacons are chosen, among whom was St. Stephen, Acts 6. 1 to 8.
4042	34	4747	A violent Persecution happens, upon which St. Stephen is taken and ston'd, Acts 6. 8 to the End, and 7 throughout. Upon this follows the Dispersion of the Disciples, except the Apostles, throughout Judea and Samaria, and even into Syria. For there were some converted at Damascus, whom Paul went thither to persecute, ( Acts 9. 1, 2.) One of these was Ananias, ( Acts 9. 10.) Some went as far as Phœnice, and Cyprus and Antioch, preaching only to the Jews, Acts 8. 1, 2, 3, 4. Acts 11. 19, 20, 21. (b) Philip the Deacon, ( Acts 11. 12.) who ( Acts 21. 8.) is also call'd an Evangelist comes to Samaria, where he wrought Miracles, preach'd and baptiz'd, Acts 8. 5 to 13. He converted Simon Magus, who afterward taking upon him to be another Christ, (as CHRIST foretold some would do, Matth. 24. 4, 5.) set up a Heresy in the Church. Upon this Peter and John were sent by the other Apostles to plant and confirm the Churches there, by Laying on of their Hands,

(a) N. B. That where the Texts are inclos'd in a Parenthesis, they do not follow in Order with the rest; but are added to illustrate and explain the History.

(b) This Part is plac'd in the Scripture, later than its proper Time, because the following History of Barnabas depended on it.

4043	35	4748	Peter and John return to Jerusalem , and in their Journey they preach the Gospel in many Villages of the Samaritans , Acts 8. 25.
			Philip baptizeth the Ethiopian Eunuch , and preach'd at Azotus and all the Cities, till he came to Cæsarea , Acts 8. 26 to the End. And there he dwelt, ( Acts 21. 8. )
4043	35	4748	Saul a Persecutor is now converted, and become an Apostle , and baptiz'd by Ananias , Acts 9. 1 to Part of 19. ( Acts 22. 1 to 22. Acts 26. 1 to 19. ) He was three Days without either Food, or Sight; so that he could not tell whether he was in the Body or out of the Body, ( Acts 9. 9, and 2 Cor. 11. 2, 3. ) At this Time he had great Visions and Revelations, ( 2 Cor. 12. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. Gal. 1. 12. ) particularly of the whole Gospel, ( 2 Tim. 2. 8. ) (which he afterward caus'd to be penn'd by St. Luke his constant Companion) of the Death, Burial and Resurrection of CHRIST , ( 1 Cor. 15. 3 to 8. ) and the Administration of the LORD'S Supper, ( 1 Cor. 11. 23 to 26. ) and his own Sufferings, ( Acts 9. 16. )
			Immediately upon this he goes into Arabia , where no Apostle had preach'd before, ( Gal. 1. 11 to 18. )
4044	36	4749	Saul was all this Year in Arabia , ( Gal. 1. 11 to 18. )
4045	37	4750	Saul returns to Damascus , ( Gal. 1. 17. ) There he preaches in the Synagogue, Acts 9. Part of Verse 19, and 20, 21, 22. The Jews there would have kill'd him, and incense the Governor for this Purpose, but he escapes by being let down in a Basket, Acts 9. 23, 24, 25. ( 2 Cor. 11. 32, 33. ) Tiberius the third Roman Emperor dies March 16. and is succeeded by Caius Caligula
4046	38	4751	Saul goes to Jerusalem three Years after his Conversion, ( Gal. 1. 18. ) where no Disciple would trust him. But Barnabas brought him to Peter and James , the only Apostles which he then saw, ( Gal. 1. 19. ) So he abode with Peter fifteen Days; disputing there with the Hellenists , they seek to kill him, and upon this the Disciples bring him to Cæsarea , Acts 9. 26 to 32.
4046	38	4751	Saul goes from thence to Tarsus ( Acts 9. 30. ) and then into the Regions of Syria and Cilicia , where he preached the faith, which once he destroy'd, Gal. 1. 21, 22, 23, 24.
			Peter travelling among the Christians in those Parts came to Lydda , Saron and Joppa , where he raiseth Tabitha to Life, had a Vision, that the Gentiles were to be admitted into the Church, converts Cornelius , and baptizeth him and his Household, Acts 9. 32 to the End, and 10 throughout.
4047	39	4752	After some stay at Cæsarea he goes to Jerusalem , and being blam'd for baptizing Cornelius , he gives a satisfactory Answer, Acts 11. 1 to 19.
4049	41	4754	Caius Caligula the fourth Roman Emperor dies, January 24. and is succeeded by Claudius , ( Acts 11. 28. )
			The Gospel being now preach'd at Antioch not only to the Jews , but also to the Greeks , ( Acts 11. 19, 20, 21. ) the Church of Jerusalem sends Barnabas thither, who being a Prophet (as the Name signifies, Acts 4. 36. ) had Power to officiate in the Church, which an inferior Minister could not do, ( Acts 15. 32, 35. ) He exhorts them to Perseverance, Acts 11. 22, 23, 24.
4050	42	4755	Saul returns from Cilicia to Tarsus . Barnabas seeing the Number of Disciples at Antioch too great for one Assembly, goes to Tarsus , and brings Saul thither to help him, Acts 11. 25.
4051	43	4756	Saul and Barnabas were together at Antioch a whole Year, where the Disciples were first call'd Christians , Acts 11. 26. Here it is suppos'd, that Luke was converted to be one of their Disciples.
4052	44	4757	A Famine happening, the Christians at Antioch send Relief to those in Judea by Barnabas and Saul , Acts 11. 27, 28, 29, 30.
			Herod kills James , and imprisons Peter , who is deliver'd by an Angel, Acts 12. 1 to Part of 19.
			Saul being at Jerusalem at this Time, sees no Apostle there, and therefore he makes no Mention of this Journey, ( Gal. 1. 18. )

For as such they travell'd, and preach'd and planted Churches. All this Time the Ministers, whom they made in all these Churches, were Prophets, and Teachers, and distinguish'd from the rest by the Gifts, which they had receiv'd at the Laying on of Hands. declares the Conversion of the Gentiles , which caus'd much Rejoicing. They took Titus with them on this Occasion, ( Gal. 2. 1 to 9. ) who had been converted by St. Paul some time before, ( Tit. 1. 4. ) they were all kindly receiv'd by James , Peter and John , ( Gal. 2. 9, 10. ) After this Judas returns to Jerusalem , and Silas tarries at Antioch , Acts 15. 33, 34, 35.

Peter comes to Antioch , where Paul had a sharp Contention with him, but Barnabas complied with him, ( Gal. 1. 11 to the End. ) This begins a Misunderstanding between Paul and Barnabas . So that when they intended to visit the Churches, Barnabas resolv'd to take Mark with him in his Travels, as being a near Relation, ( Col. 4. 10. ) but Paul was against it, because he had forsaken them at Perga in Pamphylia . Upon this they parted, and Barnabas took Mark , and sail'd to Cyprus , and Paul took Silas with him thro' Syria and Cilicia , Acts 15. 36 to the End.
From thence Paul comes to Derbe and Lystra , and from thence he takes Timothy with him. So that St. Paul , who was himself of the first Order, or an Apostle , ( Acts 14. 4, 14. ) and as such had been own'd the Year before by the Apostles at Jerusalem , ( Gal. 2. 9. ) had now with him Silas , who was of the second Order, or a Prophet, ( Acts 15. 32. ) and Timothy of the third Order, or an Evangelist , ( 2 Tim. 4. 5. ) who before was a Disciple, and went now as Paul's Deacon, ( Acts 19. 22, and 1 Thess. 3. 2. ) Acts 16. 1 to 5.
Now the Churches increased in Number daily, Paul and Silas and Timothy went together throughout Phrygia , Galatia and Mysia to Troas , Acts 16. 5 to 11. Here Luke joins them, for he now speaks of himself as one of the Company ( Verse 10. 16. ) From Troas Paul and his Company went over to Macedonia , and form'd a Church at Philippi , Acts 16. 11 to 16. Here Paul furnisheth Luke with Materials to write the Gospel; and Luke stays at Philippi , till Paul came thither again, Anno Christi 58, ( Compare Acts 16. 17, and 20. 5, 6. ) After some stay here Paul and Silas are taken, whipt and imprison'd, but being miraculously deliver'd they were let go, and went thro' Amphipolis and Apollonia to Thessalonica , where they made many Converts, Acts 17. 1 to 5.
4060	52	4765
A Tumult happening at Thessalonica , Paul and Silas go to Berea , and Timotheus follows them. Many are converted, but another Tumult rising, Paul leaves Silas and Timothy there with Orders to come to him to Athens , Acts 17. 5 to 16. Hearing of some Disorders among the Thessalonians , he sends Silas and Timothy thither to put all things right, ( 1 Thess. 3. 1 to 6. ) At Athens he disputes with the Philosophers and converts several there. And so goes to Corinth , Acts 17. 16 to the End, and 18. 1.
Silas and Timothy return to Paul to Corinth , upon which Paul writes the first Epistle to the Thessalonians , in the Name of them all three, viz. Paul an Apostle , Silas or Silvanus a Prophet, and Timothy an Evangelist , ( 1 Thess. 1. 1. ) Felix was made Procurator of Judea , which he held with Samaria and Galilee , ( Acts 24. 24 to the End. ) Claudius Cesar now publisheth his Edict for the Expulsion of the Jews from Rome , ( Acts 18. 2. ) Suetonius in Claudio . Claudius takes away Chalcis from King Agrippa , after he had enjoy'd it almost four Years, and in the Room of it he gives him Ituraa and Batanaa , Josephus Jewish Ant. Book 20. Chap. 5, and Wars of the Jews, Book 2. Chap. 11.
Paul finds Aquila and Priscilla at Corinth . Silas and Timothy come thither to him, Acts 18. 2 to 7. So that now the Word of GOD is preached there by Paul and Silas and Timothy , ( 2 Cor. 1. 19. ) Paul converts Crispus ; and stays at Corinth a Year and an half, ( Acts 18. 7 to 12. )
Gallio being the elder Brother of Annaus Seneca is made Proconsul of Achaia .
4061	53	4766
Paul writes the second Epistle to the Thessalonians from Corinth , whilst Silas and Timothy are with him in all their Names, ( 2 Thess. 1. 1. ) This is the last Act that we hear of Silas , tho' it is probable; that he stay'd with Paul all the Time that he was at Corinth . Paul is accused by the Jews before Gallio , and dismiss'd, Acts 18. 12 to 18. Claudius the fifth Roman Emperor dies Oct. 13, and is succeeded by Nero .

Year of the World.	Vulgar Year of CHRIST.	Year of the Julian Period.	The History, and Texts of Scripture.
4062	54	4767	In the Beginning of this Year, after a Year and six Months Stay at Corinth, Paul sail'd from thence to Ephesus, having Priscilla and Aquila with him; leaving them there he went to Casarea and so to the Passover at Jerusalem, Acts 18. 18 to Part of 22. which this Year happen'd to be on Sunday April 11, as appears from (a) the Epitome of the Calculation.
4062	54	4767	From Jerusalem Paul went down to Antioch in Syria. In the mean Time an Alexandrian Jew nam'd Apollos came to Ephesus, and being instructed by Aquila and Priscilla he came from thence to Corinth. At this Time also Paul went thro' Galatia and Phrygia, encouraging the Disciples, and whilst Apollos was at Corinth, Paul went again to Ephesus, to encourage that Church also, which he seems to have planted the Year before, and he is therefore suppos'd to be the first Apostle that preach'd at Ephesus, (Rom. 15. 20, 21. 2 Cor. 10. 15, 16.) Acts 18, Part of Verse 22, to 19. 2. The HOLY GHOST is there given by his Hands, which they knew nothing of before. And their Number, till he came, was but twelve. He begins to teach in the School of Tyrannus, Acts 19. 2 to 10. Felix now married Drusilla Sister to King Agrippa. Josephus Jewish Ant. Book 20. Chap. 5. (Acts 24. 24.) Claudius Cesar dies, Octob. 13. being poison'd by his Wife Agrippina, and Nero succeeds him.
4063	55	4768	Whilst Apollos was now at Corinth, Peter is said to have come thither, and to have gone from thence to Rome, and form'd a Church there. (So Clemens in his Epistle to the Corinthians) and to have made Linus the first Bishop of that Place. Others, who deny that Peter was ever at Rome, and that he only preached to the Jews, (Gal. 2. 7, 8.) say, that two Years after, when Paul wrote his Epistle to the Romans, it is probable, that there had been yet no Apostle with them, and they seem not to have been form'd into a Church at that Time, (Compare Rom. 1. 7, with 1 Cor. 1. 2. 2 Cor. 1. 1. Gal. 1. 2. Phil. 1. 1. 1 Thess. 1. 1. 2 Thess. 1. 1.) Paul in his Epistle to them tells them, that he had for many years greatly desired to come to them, (Rom. 15. 4, 9, 23, 32.) And whilst he was at Ephesus he purposed, after he had been at Jerusalem to see Rome, (Acts 19. 21.) but he came not thither until six Years after. Paul continues still at Ephesus, and preaches this Year and part of the next in the School of Tyrannus: So that all Asia the less had CHRIST preached among them, Acts 19. 10 to 21. Felix is now confirm'd in the Government, which he had under Claudius, except four Cities, which Nero gave to King Agrippa, Josephus Jewish Ant. Book 20. Chap. 5.
4064	56	4769	At this Time St. Luke is supposed to have wrote his Gospel. There is no Doubt, but it was between the Years of CHRIST 51 and 58, being then at Philippi, from the Informations which he had from them, who had seen OUR SAVIOUR, (Luke 1. 2.) and from what Paul had told him of such things, that he had receiv'd from CHRIST himself, which Paul insists on in many Places, especially 1 Cor. 11. 23. No doubt, this Gospel was written before the first Epistle of Paul to the Corinthians, as it appears from (1 Cor. 15. 5.) compar'd with (Luke 24. 12, 33, 36.) This Paul delivered to them, (1 Cor. 15. 3.) And there is no Mention in Matthew or Mark of CHRIST's being seen after his Resurrection first of Cephas, and then of the twelve; but we have it only in Luke. And therefore it is probable, that this was the Gospel, which Paul calls My gospel, (Rom. 2. 16, and 16. 25, and 1 Tim. 2. 8.) And what he quotes as Scripture in 1 Tim. 5. 18. it is probable was taken out of Luke 10. 7.

Paul continues now in Asia, Acts 19. 21, 22. and perhaps at Ephesus. During his Stay there, Apollos with the other Brethren (1 Cor. 7. 1, and 16. 12, 17.) come thither with an Epistle to him from the Corinthians. Apollos had now left Corinth most probably upon the Account of the Schism there, (1 Cor. 1. 11.) and he might now introduce the rest of the Christians to Paul as best acquainted with him. Paul had before sent his two Disciples Timothy and Erastus into Macedonia to visit them in his Absence, (Acts 19. 22.) who probably had came with him from Corinth three Years before, and upon their Return he sends Timothy to Corinth, (1 Cor. 4. 17.) so that he was not with Paul, but only Sosthenes, when he wrote this first Epistle, (1 Cor. 1. 1.) Titus and Luke might probably attend the Brethren, (1 Cor. 16. 17.) at their Return with this Epistle, (2 Cor. 12. 18) Apollos was not disposed to go with them, (1 Cor. 16. 12.) perhaps fearing lest his Presence might increase the Schism, which was rais'd on his Account. At this Time also it is suppos'd, that Paul wrote his Epistle to the Galatians, who were corrupted with Judaism, or the Heresy mention'd, (Acts 15. 1.)
At the End of the former Year, or rather at the Beginning of the next, Paul had Thoughts of Tarrying at Ephesus till Pentecost, which happen'd on Sunday the twenty first Day of May (d) according to Calculation, (1 Cor. 16. 8.) but being driven away by Demetrius he went from thence to Troas, (2 Cor. 2. 12.) and so to Macedonia, (2 Cor. 2. 13.) Acts 19. 21 to the End, and 20. 1, 2. Still intending for Corinth, (1 Cor. 16. 6, 7.) to set things right in the Churches there, (1 Cor. 4. 19, 20, 21, and 11. 34.) Going over those Parts where he had been formerly, he now ordains these Bishops and Deacons, which he afterward mention'd, (Philip. 1. 1.) He came to Greece, and there he tarried three Months, purposing again for Macedonia, (2 Cor. 1. 15. 16.) He comes to Philippi, where Luke joyns him again, and was with him till the End of the History recorded in the Acts. For now, (Acts 20. 6.) and always after, he reckons himself as one of the Number. Timothy was now return'd to Paul at Philippi (Acts 20. 4.) and joins with him whilst he was in Greece in Writing the second Epistle to the Corinthians, (2 Cor. 1. 1.) after Titus had came from them, and given an Account of the good Success of the first, (2 Cor. 7. 5, 6, 7, 13 to the End, and 12. 18. It was sent thither by Titus, 2 Cor. 8. 6, 16, 17, 23, and Luke, whose Gospel was now published, and therefore Paul saith of him, (2 Cor. 8. 18.) that his praise was in the gospel throughout all the churches. Soon after this when Timothy was with Paul, (Rom. 16. 21.) in Greece, and he intended to go from Greece to Jerusalem, (Rom. 15. 25.) he writes the Epistle to the Romans.

From Troas Paul goes on for Jerusalem , Acts 20. 3 to 13. He goes to Assos , and Mitylene , and so to Miletus , Acts 20. 13, 14, 15. Being in great Haste to go to Jerusalem , he would not call at Ephesus , but sent for the Elders of the Church to him at Miletum , where he takes a final Leave of them, Acts 20. 16 to the End. He goes to Tyre , Protemais and Cesarea , and is dissuaded from going to Jerusalem but to no Purpose, Acts 21. 1 to 17. For he endeavours to be at Jerusalem on the Day of Pentecost ( Acts 20. 16.) which he at first intended to have spent at Ephesus , ( 1 Cor. 16. 8.) An Egyptian Magician with the Ruffians , which he had got together, was now routed by Felix on Mount Olivet . He and four thousand more saved themselves by Flying into the Wilderness, ( Acts 21. 38.) Josephus Jewish Ant. Book 20. Chap. 6. Paul taking some of his Company with him into the Temple at Jerusalem , the Jews supposed, that Trophimus an Ephesian Gentile, ( Acts 20. 4.) whom they had seen with him in the City, was one of them. From hence began all his Troubles at Jerusalem . From Jerusalem he was sent Prisoner to Cesarea . There he was accus'd before Felix by Tertullus , and answer'd for himself. He was now a Prisoner at large, and preached CHRIST to Felix and his Wife Drusilla , Acts 21. 17 to the End, and Chap. 22, 23, 24 to Verse 27.
4068	60	4773	Felix is now turn'd out of his Government, and bound over to answer several Accusations of male Administration, which the Jews laid to his Charge, Josephus Jewish Ant. Book 20. Chap. 7.
4067 or 4068	59 or 60	4772 or 4773	About this Time James the Brother of our LORD and Bishop of Jerusalem , is supposed to have wrote his Epistle to the scatter'd Jews , ( James 1. 1.) It is supposed, (from James 5, 5 and 6.) that he foresaw his own Martyrdom; but it is more probable, from ( James 5. 7, 8, 9. compar'd with Matth. 16. 28, and Math. 24. 32, 33, 34, and the other Evangelists) that he might foresee the approaching Destruction of Jerusalem .
4068	60	4773	About this Time Peter is suppos'd to have wrote his first Epistle to the Jews , who were dispersed in the five Countries mention'd by him, ( 1 Pet. 1. 1.) He wrote it from Babylon in Egypt , and Mark was with him at the same Time, and it was sent by Silvanus , ( 1 Pet. 5. 12.) and therefore it was written after the two Epistles to the Thessalonians , and after Paul had preached at Corinth , ( Acts 18. 1 to 18.) for then Silvanus was with him, ( 1 Thess. 1. 1. 2 Thess. 1. 1. and 2 Cor. 1. 19.) and not long before the Destruction of Jerusalem , ( 1 Pet. 4. 7.) Portius Festus succeeds Felix in his Government of Judea , being two Years after Paul was accus'd by Tertullus , Acts 24. 27.
4068	60	4773	Festus hears the Accusation of the Jews against Paul , and seem'd willing to deliver him up to them. Upon this he appeals to Cesar . However he had another Hearing before King Agrippa , and had been set at Liberty, if his Appeal had not prevented it, Acts Chap. 25 and 26. Upon this Appeal he was sent away by Sea to Rome , and in this Voyage he was cast away upon Melita now call'd Malta , Acts Chap. 27 and 28. 1 to 11.
4069	61	4774	After three Months stay at Malta , he went from thence by Syracuse , Rhegium , and Puteoli , for Rome , whither he came about February in this Year. His Imprisonment was with great Liberty from the Beginning to the End of the second

Year, for he dwelt in his own hired House, where he received all that came in unto him, and preached the Kingdom of GOD, or the Christian Religion, with all Confidence, no Man forbidding him, Acts 28. 11 to the End.

On the second Day of the Feast of unleavened Bread, which this Year happen'd on Tuesday the thirteenth Day of April, James the Brother of our LORD, called the just, and Bishop of Jerusalem, was martyred by Ananus the High Priest, who three Months after was turn'd out by King Agrippa for this Fact, for he seem'd now to favour the Christians, Acts 26. 28, 32. At his Death the Christians at Jerusalem fled from thence to Pella, a City of Decapolis beyond Jordan, and so escaped the Destruction of that City, Eusebii Hist. Ecclesiast. lib. 3. cap. 11.

Festus dies in Judea, and Abinus succeeds him in the Government.

Paul at the End of this Year, having preached two full years in his own hired house, and having a Prospect of his Liberty, writes four Epistles in the following Order. First, To the Philippians joining Timothy with himself in the Title of this Epistle; so that he also was then at Rome. In this Epistle he saith, that his Bonds in CHRIST were made manifest in Cesar's Court, and to all others, Phil. 1. 13. and that there were Saints in Cesar's Household. Secondly, To the Ephesians, and to others also, whom the Apostle had not seen, nor they him, Eph. 1. 15, and 3. 2. This Epistle seems to have been a circular Epistle, which being sent first to Ephesus, was from thence to be communicated to all those imperfect Asiatick Churches. These were first planted by Prophets and Evangelists, who were all very probably Paul's Disciples, and had a great Veneration for him, tho' he had no particular Authority over them, as he had over others, upon the Account of their being converted by himself. Of this Epistle Paul sent a Copy to Laodicea, and order'd it to be sent from thence to the Colossians, Col. 4. 16. Next he writes to the Colossians, joining also Timothy with himself. In this Epistle, Col. 1. 23. he saith, that the Gospel had now been preached to every creature under heaven, that is, throughout the Roman Empire. And therefore it is probable, that before this Time he had sent some to preach in Spain. The Occasion of this Epistle was the News of their being tainted with a Mixture of Gentile Philosophy and Judaism, which seems to be the Occasion of Epaphras his coming to Rome, Col. 1. 3 to 12. He was of that Country, Col. 4. 12. and having been probably converted by Paul, he had also converted these Colossians to the Christian Religion, Col. 4. 12, 13. But his Authority not being sufficient to cast out those Errors, he desir'd Paul's Assistance, and therefore went to Rome to beg the Favour of this Epistle. After this he writes to Philemon his fellow labourer at this Time, Verse 1. that is a Prophet, who officiated at the Church Assembly in his own House. Philemon was a Colossian, Philem. Ver. 21, 22, 23. and therefore it is probable, that this Epistle was sent by Epaphras and Onesimus; or by Onesimus soon after, who had been a Servant to Philemon, and ran from him to Rome, with some of the Goods which he had stolen, but attending on Paul's Preaching, was converted by him, and having been very useful to him, was now sent back again with this Epistle to his Master, Philem. Verse 10 to 21.

Luke now writes The Acts of the Apostles. Had he wrote later, he would probably have continu'd the History longer. So that he might stay in Italy, when Paul went from thence, until his Return; but having published the Book before, he would not add any more to it.

Paul had now an Intention of sending Timothy to the Philippians in a very little while, hoping himself also to go shortly to them, Philip. 2. 19, 23, 24.

Paul being now in Italy waited for the coming of Timothy to him, who had been a Prisoner at Rome, as well as he, but was now set at Liberty, Heb. 13. 22. So that at this Time he wrote the Epistle to the Hebrews, promising to come to them, and bring Timothy with him, Ibid. That Paul was the Author of this Epistle is plain from Heb. 13. 23. where the Writer calls Timothy his Brother, as St. Paul doth in other Places, 2 Cor. 1. 1. Col. 1. 1. Philem. Verse 1. He that wrote it mentions his Bonds, Heb. 10. 34. as St. Paul used to do, Acts 20. 23, and 26. 29. Ephes. 6. 20. Phil. 1. 7, 13, 14, 16. Col. 4. 3, 18. 2 Tim. 2. 9. Philem. Verse 10 and 13. A farther Argument is the Agreement of the Quotation, Heb. 10. 30, with St. Paul's Quotation, Rom. 12. 19. The Manner of Arguing is the

Such of these he also quotes, Col. 2. 20, 21, 22. Besides, he tells us, 2 Thess. 3. 17, 18. That this Salutation of his is his token in every Epistle, The grace of our LORD JESUS CHRIST be with you all, Amen. This he also uses, Rom. 16. 24. 1 Cor. 16. 23. 2 Cor. 13. 14. Gal. 6. 18. Ephes. 6. 24. Philip. 4. 23. Col. 4. 18. 1 Thess. 5. 28. 1 Tim. 6. 21. 2 Tim. 4. 22. Tit. 3. 15. Philem. Verse 25, and Heb. 13. 25. but it is never used by Peter, James, John or Jude. The only Objection is, because his Name is not set to it, as it is to his other Epistles. This will as well prove, that it was wrote by no body, because there is no Name annexed to it. But there are Reasons, Why he should conceal his Name in this, and not in the rest. The rest were wrote to those of the Uncircumcision, and to Gentiles, of whom he was the Apostle, Acts 22. 21. Gal. 2. 7, 8. 2 Tim. 4. 17. And as he knew the constant Violence of the Jews against him; so he might have Reason to think, that the Setting of his Name to this Epistle would have effectually prevented all the good, which he intended by it. Soon after the Writing of this Epistle it is supposed by some, that St. Paul went from Italy, and preached the Gospel in Spain, Rom. 15. 24, 28. and the learned Bishop Stillingsfleet, in his Origines Britannicae, takes a great deal of Pains to prove, that he went from thence and preached the Gospel here in England. At the End of this Year, or the Beginning of the next, Paul and Timothy going for Judea sail'd to Crete.
4072	64	4777	Paul having preach'd for some time in Crete, now probably ordain'd Titus Bishop of the Church there, and left him there to ordain Elders in every City according to his Direction, Tit. 1. 5. It is probable, that Paul and Timothy now sail'd from Crete to Judea, according to his Intention, Heb. 12. 23. Thence he went into Asia, and so Timothy went to Ephesus, and Paul to the Colossians, whom he had never yet seen, tho' he had design'd it, Philem. Ver. 21, 22, 23. There he made some Stay with Apphia and Archippus, Philem. Ver. 2. the latter of which was a Teacher in that Church, Col. 4. 17. Thence going on his Way to Macedonia he call'd at Ephesus, and there he left Timothy with Authority over the Teachers, 1 Tim. 1. 3. having first excommunicated Hymeneus and Alexander, 1 Tim. 1. 20. At this Time Nero having set Rome on Fire, threw the Odium of it upon the Christians, and had them all put to Death, that could be found there. Thus he became the Author of the first Persecution of the Church from the Roman Emperors.
4073	65	4778	Paul went from Ephesus to Macedonia, 1 Tim. 1. 3. and from thence as he design'd for Philippi, Phil. 1. 19, 23, 24. There he stay'd according to his Intention, Phil. 1. 25. And he afterward winter'd at Nicopolis; not the City in Macedonia, but in Epirus.
4073	65	4778	At this Time St. Paul writes his first Epistle to Timothy, who continu'd still at Ephesus. He doth not mention the Place, from whence he wrote it. However it is suppos'd, that it was wrote, whilst he was in Macedonia. Now also he wrote to Titus.
4074	66	4779	From Nicopolis Paul went again to Corinth, and there he left Erastus, 2 Tim. 4. 20. He was also at Troas, 2 Tim. 4. 13. and at Miletum, where he left Trophimus sick, 2 Tim. 4. 20.
4075	67	4780	Paul ventures again to Rome, the Persecution being over above two Years before, and Nero being also in Greece; but Nero left Helius to govern there, who was as great a Persecutor as himself. However Paul was so well known at Rome, that he could not be hid. He was therefore taken, and kept a close Prisoner, not as formerly, Acts 28. insomuch that Onesiphorus could not find him out but with great Difficulty, 2 Tim. 1. 17. Helius having a full Power given him by Nero to act in all Matters, as he pleased, even without Consulting him, calls Paul to a Trial before him for his Life, and not as formerly for his Religion. None of his Friends dared to appear for, or with him; but all for-

took him, 2 Tim. 4. 16. However GOD deliver'd him out of the mouth of Helius this devouring Lion, 2 Tim. 4. 16. After this first Apology at Rome before Helius, Paul wrote the second Epistle to Timothy, being now in Bonds, 2 Tim. 1. 8, and 2. 9. and in near Expectation of his Death, 2 Tim. 4. 6. He desir'd Timothy to be with him without Fail before Winter, and to bring Mark with him, who was now at Ephesus, 2 Tim. 4. 9, 11, 21. Luke the Evangelist was with him at this Time, and this is the last Time that we hear of him.
4076	68	4781
Peter being now at Babylon in Egypt, writes his second Epistle a little before his Martyrdom. Nero returns in January out of Greece into Italy: In April he came to Rome. June 9. he kills himself. Galba the seventh Roman Emperor succeeds him, and reigns seven Months and seven Days. St. Paul is martyr'd at Rome under the Governors in Nero's Absence on the 23d Day of February. St. Peter is now said by the Western Church to have suffer'd with St. Paul at Rome. But there are others, who think that he died in the East; and some say, that he never was at Rome in all his Life Time.
4077	69	4782
Jan. 10. Vitellius adopts Piso, and makes him Cesar. Jan. 15. Galba and Piso are both kill'd by Otho the eighth Roman Emperor, who reign'd three Months and two Days. April 16. Otho kill'd himself, and was succeeded by Vitellius the ninth Roman Emperor, who reign'd eight Months and five Days. Against him came the Eastern Armies set up by Vespasian. Vitellius dies Dec. 20, and Flavius Vespasian the tenth Roman Emperor succeeds him. Here it may be observed, that the first Prophecy of St. John in the Revelations, Chap. 6. 1, 2. mentioning the Conquest of CHRIST in the Success of the Gospel throughout the Roman Empire, and the Destruction of his Enemies, seems to point at this Vespasian as the Instrument in the East for this Purpose. The Scene, upon which these Visions appear'd, was the Encampment of the Israelites in the Wilderness. The Tribe of Judah pitch'd upon the East, Num. 2. 3. whose Ensign was a Lion. Thus the Face of the Cherub in Ezekiel toward the East, Chap. 1. 4, 6, 10, and 10. 14. was the Face of a Lion; and this Animal from the East, exhorts St. John to come thither and behold it. Here CHRIST began his Kingdom, and here Vespasian his Instrument went forth conquering and to conquer, until his Enemies in those Parts were totally subdued. Mede, Page 437, and Page 442. and Whiston on the Revelations, Page 35, and 135. Not long after the Death of Peter and Paul, whilst the Temple was yet standing at Jerusalem, Clemens Romanus wrote his Epistle to the Corinthians. He was an Acquaintance of Paul, Phil. 4. 3. and his Companion, and about this Time he succeeded Anacletus as Bishop of Rome.
Clemens being Bishop of Rome, Hermas (who was an Acquaintance of Paul, Rom. 16. 14.) is supposed to have written his Pastor. Others think, that it was not written till the second Century. Jerusalem and the Temple are now destroyed by the Romans, as our SAVIOUR had foretold, Matth. Chap. 24. Mark Chap. 13, and Luke Chap. 12, 17, and 21.
4079	71	4784
Barnabas is supposed by some to have wrote his Epistle about this Time, tho' there is greater Reason to look upon it as a spurious Piece. Jude did now more probably write his Epistle. It seems to be design'd against the Ebionites, who now broke out in the Country round about Pella. It is very plain, that Jude wrote after Peter's Death, at least after he had wrote his second Epistle, since Verse 3 to 17. he speaks of that as actually fulfill'd, which 2 Pet. 1. 1. to 20. was only foretold. And if this Epistle had been written later than this Year, it is highly probable, that this Apostle in his Inscription would have made mention of his Cousin Simon the Son of Cleophas, who was living and made Bishop of Jerusalem in the next Year, as he made mention of his Brother James the former Bishop, who in such a Case must have been dead, when he wrote it.
4080	72	4785
The Apostles, who were now alive, met at Jerusalem, and in Council chose Simeon the Son of Cleophas (mention'd in John 19. 25.) to fill up the See yet vacant. Euseb. Ecclef. Hist. lib. 3. cap. 11.

4087	79	4792	Flavius Vespasian dies, Jan. 24, and is succeeded by Titus Vespasian the eleventh Roman Emperor.
4088	80	4793	Cerinthus about this Time vents his Heresy.
4089	81	4794	Titus Vespasian dies, Sep. 13, and Domitian the twelfth Roman Emperor, and last of the Casars succeeds him.
4091	83	4796	Euarestus succeeded Clemens in the See of Rome.
4099	91	4804	Alexander succeeded him, and was Bishop till the Year of CHRIST 101. This Year, or in the next, it is probable, that St. John did write his first Epistle, and soon after his second and third.
4103	95	4808	This Year St. John was banish'd into the Isle of Patmos, Rev. 1. 9.
4104	96	4809	This Year St. John saw his Revelations in the Isle of Patmos, Rev. 1. 9, 10. and wrote them at the same Time. Domitian the twelfth Roman Emperor dies on the eighteenth Day of September, and Cocceius Nerva succeeds him. St. John return'd from the Isle of Patmos to Ephesus, and from thence he went to exhort the neighbouring Parts of the Gentiles. In some Places he ordain'd Bishops, in others he form'd whole Churches, and in all of them he ordain'd such Persons, as were signified to him by the HOLY GHOST, to be fit for the Ministry.
4106	98	4811	After the Return of St. John to Ephesus, he did now at the Request of the Bishops of Asia write his Gospel, particularly against the Cerinthians and Nicolaitans. Nerva dies on the twenty sixth Day of January, and Trajan is made Emperor of Rome. The second Seal or Prophecy of St. John in the Revelations Chap. 6. 3, 4. points to him, and his Successor Adrian. He is represented by the second Animal, or an Ox on the left Side, or toward the West, which was the Standard of the Tribe of Ephraim, on the same Side, Num. 2. 18. Thus Trajan was born in the utmost Parts of the West, even in Spain, and was the first Roman Emperor, who was not an Italian. The Prophecy now was, that Peace should be taken away from the earth. And the many Wars and Slaughters during the Reign of those two Emperors sufficiently confirm the Truth of it, Mede, Page 442. Whiston, Page 137.
4108	100	4813	St. John dies, in the third Year of Trajan the Emperor.

An Appendix to the last TABLE, concerning the last of Daniel's seventy Weeks, Dan. 9. 24, 27, or the single Week, or a Week by itself, as the Word sometimes signifies, Josh. 22. 20. 2 Sam. 7. 23. 2 Chron. 18. 7. taken out of Marshall's Chronology, TABLE 4, publish'd by the Direction of the learned Dr. Lloyd, late Bishop of Worcester.

It is very observable, That whereas the Prophet Daniel all along in his Prayer had call'd Jerusalem and the Jewish Nation GOD's City and People, as if they were so by an indefeasible Right, the Angel in his Answer to Daniel would by no means allow of that. But on the contrary he calls them Daniel's People, and not GOD's. He tells them in the Beginning of this Prophecy, Dan. 9. 24. Seventy weeks are determined for THY People, and for THY holy city. And so again, Chap. 10. 14, and Chap. 12. 1. The Reason of this is plain in the twenty sixth Verse: There the Angel foretelling what should follow after the Death of the MESSIAH the Prince, which was to be after 69 of the 70 Weeks, he shews, that after the End of the Weeks they should be לֹא אֶיךָ NOT HIS, which Words are explain'd by those that follow עַם נִיר הַנָּה The Prince's future People; shewing that those that were to come in their stead, the MESSIAH's, or The Prince's future People, were they that should destroy the city and the sanctuary; by which Expression he plainly means the Romans.

The Calling of this future People, as far as the History is given us, we have in the Acts of the Apostles. Therein it appears, how according to Our SAVIOUR's Prophecy, Matth. 24. 14. The gospel was published in all the Roman world; and that even in the Apostles Time. After that it is said in our SAVIOUR's Prophecy, that then the end shall come; meaning the End which was foretold by Daniel the Prophet, as it follows in the fifteenth Verse; when according to his Words, The abomination of desolation should stand in the holy place. That was to be the last of the seventy Weeks, being the שבוע אחר, That single Week spoken of in the last Verse of this Prophecy. Here it is to be shew'd, from what Year, Month and Day we are to date the Beginning of that Week. The End of it is known to have been at the Setting up of the Roman Idols on the Battlements of the Temple; which (as will be presently shewn) was on the tenth Day of August, in the Vulgar Year of CHRIST 70. From thence it is not hard to climb up to the Beginning of the Week, there being in every one of these Weeks 7 Times 360, or 2520 Days. But it is easier to ascend by five Days in every ordinary Year of the Julian Calendar, and six Days in every Bissextile, as it will appear here below. By these Steps, going up from Anno Domini 70, August 10, every Year 360 Days for 7 Years together, we shall come up to the sixteenth Day of September, in the Vulgar Year of CHRIST 63. Therefore that Day is set down in this Table for the certain Time of the Beginning of Daniel's שבוע אחר the single Week, as we render it; within the Compass of which Week all those things happen'd, which are contain'd in the last Verse of this Prophecy.

Years of the single Week.	Year of the Vulgar Era of CHRIST.
I	63	Sept. 16. Now began the single Week appointed by GOD for the Destroying of the City and Temple at Jerusalem, and therein for the Dissolving of the Jewish Church. In this single Week the MESSIAH's future People, or the Romans, were to make a firm Covenant with many. Accordingly they did so in this Year, and as near as can be judg'd at this very Time of the Year, their General Corbulo now making Peace with the Kings of the Parthians, Medes and Armenians, Taciti Annalium lib. 15. Sect. 30, & 31. Dion lib. 62. adds also with the King of the Adiabeni.
II	64	Sept. 10. Now began the second Year of the Single Week. Of which Tacitus saith, Annal. lib. 15. Sect. 46. that there was never so firm a Peace as now. His Words are these, Haud alias tam immota pax. He had great Reason to say this; for tho' this Peace was made when he was very young, yet when he wrote this, which was about forty Years after, he saw, that in all that Time the Romans had never open War with any of those Kings, or their Successors.
III	65	Sept. 5. Now began the third Year of the single Week, in which according to the Conditions of that Peace Tiridates King of Armenia and his Queen took a nine Months Journey to Rome; where he laid down his Crown at Nero's Feet, and received it again at his Hands, Taciti Annalium lib. 16. Sect. 23, et 24. Dion lib. 63. All the other Kings sent their Sons as Hostages to Rome with him, Dion lib. 63.
IV	66	August 31. Now began the Fourth Year of the single Week. In the Month of October this Year, being the Thirteenth Year of Nero's Reign, Janus his Temple was shut up in Token of a general Peace.

An Appendix to the last TABLE.

Years of the Single Week.	Year of the Vulgar Era of CHRIST.
IV	66	Now on Febr. 28. began the latter Half of the Single Week, in the End of which the Jewish Sacrifices and Oblations were to cease, Dan. 9. 27. and after that was to follow the Burning of the Temple, and the Setting up of the Roman Idols upon the Battlements there, according to Daniel's Prophecy, Ibid. It was now about March that Vespasian enter'd into a War with the Jews, being sent by Nero for that Purpose. It was between Winter and Spring according to Josephus, Wars of the Jews, Book 7.
V	67	August 26. Now began the Fifth Year of the Single Week, in which Vespasian went on with the War, and subdued all Galilee, Josephus Wars of the Jews, Book 4. Chap. 4.
VI	68	August 20. Now began the Sixth Year of the Single Week, in which the Change in the Empire caus'd a Slackning of the War with the Jews, Josephus Wars of the Jews, Book 5. Chap. 6. And yet in this Year Vespasian reduc'd all the rest of Palestina except Jerusalem, and three or four strong Holds in Perea, Josephus Wars of the Jews, Book 5. Chap. 8.
VII	69	August 15. Now began the Seventh Year of the Single Week, or the last of the Years in Daniel's seventy Weeks, in which Vespasian pursuing his Hopes of the Empire, left the War in Palestina to his Son Titus, who prosecuted it vigorously. Josephus, Wars of the Jews, Book 5. Chap. 14.
VIII	70	A little before the Passover, which in this Year was April 13. Titus began the Siege of Jerusalem, Josephus Wars of the Jews, Book 6. Chap. 11. Into which he shut up an innumerable Multitude of People, that were come thither to the Feast. There were reckon'd 110000 of them to have died in the Siege, and in the Taking of the Temple and the City, and 97000 taken Captives. The seventeenth Day of July following, the Daily sacrifice ceased according to Dan. 9. 27. Josephus Wars of the Jews, Book 7. Chap. 4. and thereby an End was put to the Worship of GOD in his Temple. The tenth Day of August following, the Temple was set on Fire, Josephus Wars of the Jews, Book 7. Chap. 9. and whilst it was burning, the Roman Soldiers set upon the Battlements of the outer Wall their Idols, or the Standards of their Legions, every Standard having on it the Image of the tutelar God of that Legion: And after this they sacrific'd to them according to their idolatrous Manner. Josephus, ibid. The latter of these Events was certainly the End of the Half Week, and so of the Whole. For it was not only Unconsecrating and Destroying the Temple of GOD, and the Alienating of the Place from him to the Devil; but therewith it was the utter Dissolving of the Jewish Church. Soon after that, the Lower City was burnt, Josephus Wars of the Jews, Book 7. Chap. 14. On the eighth Day of September following, the Upper City was taken, Josephus ibid. Chap. 16. Then all was thrown down to the Ground, except a Part of the Wall, and two or three Towers, and the Plough was drawn over the Ground, on which the City and Temple had stood, to shew, that the Romans meant this to be a final Destruction, and such as had been foretold in this Prophecy; and to shew also more particularly, that there was not one Stone left upon another, according to our SAVIOUR's Prophecies of the City, Luke 19. 41 to 45, and of the Temple, Matth. 24. 1, 2. Mark 13. 1, 2, and Luke 21. 5, 6.

Of the Stature of the Men in the Antediluvian World.

AS the Men in the Old World generally lived above 900 Years which is ten Times as long as oldest People in this Age; so it may be supposed, that their Stature might be ten Times as high, as those in these Days, or at least much bigger in Proportion; and the Bones of Men of a prodigious Size, which have been formerly reported to have been digg'd up in several Places of the World, seem to favour such a Conjecture. It is said, (a) that there were giants in the earth in those days; but as their Stature was extraordinary, so there is no way to compute it. The common Size may be better guess'd at from the Dimensions of the Ark, which Noah built, (b) the length whereof was five hundred cubits, and the breadth thereof fifty cubits, and the height thereof thirty cubits. It is plain, that this was a Measure in the Old World, and the Word itself intimates, that the Length thereof was the common Measure from the Elbow to the End of the Middle Finger, from whence it took its Name in all Languages, and more particularly those of the East. Ham the Son of Noah, who was preserv'd in the Ark, was well acquainted with this Measure; and no Doubt, but it was agreeable to his own Stature, and to the Ark itself when it rested upon the Mountains of Ararat. There is no Doubt, but that Ham, when he came into Egypt with Mizraim his Son, brought with him the antient Measures, having a Necessity to make Use of some, that every one might be restor'd to his own Lands after the Overflowings of the Nile, and neither having Time nor the least Necessity of Making any Alterations. Civil (c) Government cannot be suppos'd to be without determinate Measures and Weights; nor is there any Reason to believe, that Ham or Mizraim in the Life-Time of Noah could be unacquainted with those which he used, or could see any Cause to alter them in his Life-Time, because the Measures would in such a Case be made disproportionable to his own Stature. Egypt is supposed to have been inhabited 190 Years before the Death of Noah, and the Inhabitants had, no Doubt, frequent Commerce with him and his Descendants dwelling in other Lands; and such a Commerce would be facilitated by Keeping up the same Measures; but it must be made more troublesome, if not totally be broken off by the Change of them. Had the Cubit been different, it would have been in vain for Moses to have described his Measures by a Word, the Sense whereof was unknown, or if he had spoken of the Measures in the Country different from those, they would not upon Reduction, have fallen into such round even Numbers, as he hath described them. Now our learned Countryman Mr. Greaves travelling into Egypt, measuring the Pyramids by our English Foot, and comparing it with the Number of Cubits mentioned by the antient Writers, found, that the Egyptian Cubit was 21.888 Inches. Now it is observ'd, that in the most comely shap'd human

(a) Gen. 6. 4. (b) Gen. 6. 15. (c) Cumberland of Weights and Measures, and Arburthnot on the same Subject.

Bodies the Length from the Elbow to the End of the Middle Finger, being four Times repeated, gives us the Talness or Stature of a Man. Thus in later Times when the common Height was six Feet, the Cubit was reduced to 18 Inches; and therefore the Cubit at that Time being 21.888 Inches, when multiplied by four, shews their Stature to have been 87.552 Inches, or seven Feet, three Inches and an half. So that the Difference of their Stature bears no Proportion with the Difference of their Longevity at that Time.

An Abstract of the History of the World immediately after the Flood, and the Founding of the Assyrian Monarchy by Nimrod.

WHen the Ark was built by Noah at a Place call'd (a) Cyparissos, so call'd because it was famous for the great Quantity of (b) Cypress, or Gopher Wood, which grew there, the Inundations of the Persian and Mediterranean Seas join'd with a wet South-west Wind drove it to the North-east as far as the Caspian Sea, and when the Rain ceased, the North Wind brought it in a direct South Course to one of those Mountains, which were call'd (c) the Mountains of Ararat, which lay (d) directly East from Babylon, and not at so great a Distance as is usually supposed. Thus the Providence of GOD brought him so near to his native Country, that he might be capable of Guessing where he was, or at least have a Notion of the Rivers in the adjacent Parts, with which he might be better acquainted, as sending by them into all Parts for Timber to build the Ark. Noah being old did not travel far from the Place, where he landed, but (e) applies himself to Husbandry, leaving his Sons, who were (f) five hundred Years younger than himself, to travel into distant Countries. At (g) the Birth of Peleg, which was in the 101st Year after the Flood, when the Posterity of Noah began to be numerous, he orders his Sons to disperse themselves regularly into more distant Habitations. He gives the Right of Primogeniture to Shem for the Sake of his Piety, and allots his Posterity to be near to himself, and to inhabit all the Parts of Asia, which lay to the north and east of the River Tigris as far as the Persian Sea. He allots to Japhet all the fruitful Country between Tigris and Euphrates; and he allots to Ham all the Country lying south of Euphrates, and which generally speaking was more full of Desarts, and more barren than the rest. So that Shem lay open to people the greatest Part of Asia. Ham had a free Passage into Africa, and the Posterity of Japhet could more easily in Process of Time remove themselves into Europe. Accordingly the Sons of Shem soon take to those Countries, which were allotted for them. Arphaxad is allowed by all, being the eldest Son, to settle himself in the fruitful Country on the east both of Tigris and Babylon, which is supposed to have been the antient Seat of Paradise. Lud inhabited the Country of Lydia. Elam went Southward into that Part of Persia call'd by his Name and since Elymais, the Inhabitants whereof were call'd Elamites. Ashur went higher up the Tigris, and seated himself in that Country, which was afterward called Assyria, of which Nineveh was afterward the Metropolis. And Aram goes farther Westward, and seats himself beyond his Brother Ashur, on the North Side of the Tigris. Ham and Japhet and their Posterity going to take Possession of the Countries allotted to them, came as far as Babylon, and there they resolve to tarry, and to prevent their Dispersion they build that famous Tower; but being providentially dispersed from thence, they betake themselves to the Places allotted for them. The Sons of Japhet are situated between the Tigris and Euphrates. The four Sons of Ham place themselves thus. Canaan takes to the Land of Canaan. Mizraim takes to Egypt, called in Hebrew The Land of Mizraim. Phut goes farther into Africa. And Cush seats himself in Arabia upon the Banks of the Red Sea. This Country being very barren, Cush makes an Invasion into the Country belonging to Elam the Son of Shem, or Persia, on the other Side of the Persian Gulph, and having conquered it he dwells there, and calls it Chuzestan, which in the Persian Language signifies, The Province of Cush. Here he builds (h) Erec, and Accad, on the Banks of the Tigris, and his Son, whom the Scripture calls (i) Nimrod or the Rebel, seizes upon Babylon, and so lays the Foundation of the Assyrian Monarchy, so call'd from the Country which he afterward conquered, and where he afterward dwelt. As he was the Son of Cush the first Invader of Countries, and imitated his Father's Temper, so the Eastern Inhabitants called him Nin, which in Hebrew signifies A Son; and hence the Greeks called him Ninῶ, and the Latins Ninus. After this he seizes on (*) the City of Calneh, which lay higher up on the Tigris, in the Country belonging to Arphaxad, another Son of Shem. Upon this Peleg, the great Grandson of Arphaxad, flees from thence into Mesopotamia or the Country of Japhet, and there he with his Relations builds a City, which the Greeks called Pholga. When he had secured these Conquests, he makes farther Invasions, and (k) marches out of that Land, into the Country of Assur, another Son of Shem, who was situated on the Tigris as before mentioned, and from whom the Country was afterward called Assyria. The Inhabitants flee from him over the Tigris, and drive out the Posterity of Japhet; so that this Part of the Country was afterward also called Assyria, as being now inhabited by the Sons of Assur. Upon this Nimrod (l) builds several Cities in the Country, which he thus conquered, particularly Nineveh, where he dwelt, and therefore the Name in Hebrew signifies, The Habitation of Nin, Ninus or Nimrod. After this he invades the Country of Aram, which lay farther up on the Tigris. These Inhabitants also flee over the Tigris into the Country of Japhet, and inhabit those Parts, which were called Mesopotamia, in Hebrew Aram-naharaim, or Aram between the Rivers; Padan Aram or the Field or Village of Aram; Aram Dammesek, or The Syrians of Damascus; Aram Zobah; and Aram beth Rehob, or The Syrians of the House of Rehob; and Aram Maacah. This Pressure upon the Posterity of Japhet, and the Apprehensions of future Invasions was the Cause of their Removal out of the Country, which lying open to them on the west Side, so that they went forward into Asia the less, whilst the Heads of their Families were alive, who after the Flood (m) lived near five hundred Years; and then they called their Towns and Countries after their Names, as the (n) Scriptures tell us, and as it is abundantly proved by many (o) learned Authors.

2. This Account of the Rise of the Assyrian Monarchy is agreeable to the Chronological Tables set forth by Mr. Marshall by the Direction of the late learned Bishop of Worcester, who places the Beginning thereof in the 289th, and the Death of Nimrod in the 341st Year after the Flood. It is also agreeable to what the learned Dr. Prideaux saith in the very first Words of his admirable History, viz, That the antient Empire of the Assyrians had governed Asia for above thirteen hundred Years before the Death of Sardanapalus. It also explains the Account, which is given us by Moses in (p) the tenth Chapter of Genesis, and in other Places, where the Scripture expressly calls (q) the land of Assyria, by the Name of The land of Nimrod. And (r) in another Place, the Prophet speaking of the Overthrow of Tyre, and how the Inhabitants thereof should pass over to Greece, gives a parallel Case: Behold the antient land of the Chaldeans, or those who inhabit near Babylon; this present people was not, did not inhabit there, till the Assyrian Nimrod, who afterward dwelt in Nineveh the chief City of Assyria, formed it for them that dwelt in the wilderness, for the Posterity of Cush his Father, who dwelt in the Deserts of Arabia, near the Red-Sea; they, the Chaldeans, set up the towers thereof, they set up the palaces thereof, and he, Nimrod, brought it to ruin, or destroy'd them, and set up the Assyrian Monarchy in their stead.

3. It must be own'd; that (s) Herodotus tells us, that the Assyrian Monarchy lasted but five hundred and twenty Years to the Death of Sardanapalus, from which Authority (t) our learned Prelate dates the Beginning thereof, about the Time that Deborah the Prophetess judged Israel, and he quotes some (u) other Authors for the same Purpose. From so great an Authority others also have been since of the same Opinion. But if the Testimony of Herodotus is invalid, all those which are built upon it, will fall of Course. And that this is the Case, will (as I hope) appear from the following Reasons.

First, As the Scripture seems to date it from Nimrod the Grandson of Ham; so if any human Writer seems to clash with this, we must certainly give the Preference to the sacred Penmen, and not to any other.

Secondly, If the Account of Herodotus is true, it is impossible to give any Reason, why the chief City upon the Tigris should be call'd Nineveh, or The Habitation of Ninus by Moses himself, so long before Ninus was born, or at least was famous. And there can no Reason be given, why the Posterity of Japhet should come so soon into Asia the less, even whilst his Sons were alive to head them, and call the Lands after their own Names.

Thirdly, The Manner, by which Herodotus came by his Knowledge of the Assyrian History, is not so very satisfactory, viz. by Travelling in the Country, and Conversing with the Inhabitants, who might be mistaken themselves, and so more easily lead him into an Error.

Fourthly, In those Times they usually reckon'd three Generations to contain an hundred Years. Now Herodotus might have been told, that there were six and thirty Generations or Kings in that Empire, which he might mark in Numbers thus  $\lambda\varsigma$ , and this upper Stroke not being legible, he might afterward mistake it for  $\iota\varsigma$ , which in Greek signifies sixteen, and after this, when he came to compile his History, he might easily, instead of sixteen Generations, place the round Sum of five hundred and twenty Years.

Lastly, This Supposition is more natural, because Ctesias hath given us a Catalogue of the Assyrian Kings from Ninus to Sardanapalus, making seven and thirty in all, or six and thirty, excluding either the first or the last, in which he inserted how long each of them reigned. Ctesias was Physician to Artaxerxes Mnemon Emperor of Persia; and therefore he could have free Access both to the Assyrian and Persian Records. He tells us, that he took this Catalogue ( $\times$ ) out of those Records, which might have been search'd by others as well as by him; and any Mistake might easily have been found out to his Discredit. Some of ( $\gamma$ ) the Greeks speak of him as a fabulous Writer; however he was never contradicted, as to the Names of the Kings, or the Time of their Reigns. The Reason, why he was slighted by them, was, because he contradicts Herodotus, and in some things differs from Xenophon; tho' after all he might write the Truth concerning the Country in which he lived, and they might be in the wrong, concerning a Country so far distant from them, whose Language they did not understand. However, Diodorus Siculus, and Trogus Pompeius (who is contracted by Justin) take from him the most, which they have written of the Assyrian

Affairs, and this shews him after all to be no contemptible Author. So that where two Heathen Authors differ in their History, we may well give the Preference to him, who is most agreeable to the sacred Scriptures.

4. It hath been objected against the Antiquity of the Assyrian Monarchy, that we hear nothing of it from the Time of Nimrod till near its Fall at the Death of Sardanapalus. But the Reason is, the Want of Historians. Sanchoiatho's History is but very short. And ( $z$ ) Herodotus (who is the most antient Historian next to him) was born 264 Years after the Fall of this Empire, and therefore it is no wonder, if he saith but little of it, or indeed of any thing else of so great an Antiquity. But Secondly, After this Empire was establish'd by Nimrod, who conquer'd a vast Part of the Country, his Successors (as Diodorus Siculus tells us) gave themselves up wholly to Ease and Luxury, and even some Countries revolted from them, and set up Kings of their own without Opposition. So that we hear nothing of them, because they did nothing remarkable. However, a Lion is a Lion, when it is asleep, and an Empire is an Empire, when it doth nothing; and this Account is most agreeable to what ( $a$ ) the Prophet Daniel mentions, who, describing the four Monarchies under the Representation of four Beasts, saith, That the first, the Assyrian Monarchy, was like a Lion, swift and furious in his Conquests, and had eagles wings, to make him more swift. I (saith Daniel) beheld until the wings thereof were pluckt, so that it conquer'd no farther, and even lost some of its extreme Dominions. And tho it was lifted up from the earth in Pride, as being an Empire, whose Metropolis was the most antient and famous City in the World; yet it was made to stand upon the feet as a man, like the rest of the neighbouring Kingdoms, without Hunting after farther Conquests, and a man's heart was given unto it. It was now like the rest of the Kingdoms, and not like a Lion, as it was at first. So that even the Silence of other Writers concerning this Monarchy confirms the Account, which we have thereof in the sacred Scriptures.
